GILPATRIC STILL NOT AWARE THAT HE IE BLIND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Sept. 21.—Whether or not G. Harold Gilpatric, defaulting cashier of the First National bank, will be taken to New Haven Tuesday to be presented in the U. S. district court has not been determined, as far as can be learned. While in this city Attorney William A. King of Willimantic would give out no information. Attorney King, when asked if Gilpatric would be arraigned Tuesday, said that he did not know yet. As far as his health is concerned, it is believed that Gilpatric could stand the journey, but being out on bond it may be thought advisable to wait a while longer to be sure of his physical condition. From remarks recently made by Gilpatric as to plans for the future when he is able to see better, it is the belief of relatives that even yet he does not realize that he is blind.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

LITTLE BROWN BUNNIES

Oh! little brown bunnies, come out and play!"
Cried a child at the close of a summer day.
As she wandered over a moorland wide,
Where under the bracken the rabbits hide;
"I've left my terrier—'Spot'—at home,
So alone with me you can safely roam!
I've brought you a cabbage, all fresh and green—
A finer one I have never seen!"

"I've got fresh clover and lettuce too,
I think they will be so nice for you—
I know that bunnies don't care to eat
The sweets and cakes that I think a treat!"
Then the merry brown bunnies came out to play
When the twilight shadows were gathering gray.
And they ventured close to the maiden's side.
And cabbage, and clover, and lettuce they tried.

They frolicked about in the falling dew,
And the little girl watched the funny crew,
But foot-steps were heard as they leaped and played,
And the pretty bunnies were much afraid,
With a flash of tails, soft, fluffy, and white,
In an instant they had all taken flight!
And the child just whispered, "Good-bye! Good-bye!"
As she went towards her home, 'neath the sunset sky.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Over the river and through the wood,
To grandmother's house we go;
The horse knows the way
To carry the sleigh
Through the white and drifted snow.

Over the river and through the wood—
O, how the wind does blow!
It stings the toes
And bites the nose
As over the ground we go.

Over the river and through the wood,
To have a first-rate play.
Hear the bells ring,
"Ting-aling-ling!"
Hurrah for Thanksgiving Day!

Over the river and through the wood,
Trot fast, my dapple-gray!
Spring over the ground
Like a hunting-hound!
For this is Thanksgiving day.

Over the river and through the wood,
And straight through the barnyard gate
We seem to go
Extremely slow—
It is so hard to wait.

Over the river and through the wood,
Now grandmother's cap I spy!
Hurrah for the fun!
Is the pudding done?
Hurrah for the pumpkin pie!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Every once in a while we read about a certain city or section of the country having so many inches of rain during a week or a month. Sometimes after an unusually severe storm we read about so many inches of rain having fallen during that period. Do you know what is really meant by an "inch of rain" and how it is measured. It is quite an interesting process and worth knowing about.

Measuring rain is done by means of a "rain gauge". This consists of a small cylinder which has a lid in the form of a funnel. In side the cylinder there is a glass container or vessel, for collecting and holding the rain. The funnel itself is generally made of copper or specially prepared metal which is rust proof, or nearly so. The rim of the funnel is usually made of brass.

At the present time there are a number of different kinds of rain gauges in use. Some have a diameter of eight inches, and have a metal bucket in which the depth of the rain is actually measured. Five inches is the diameter of some other rain gauges and in them is a graduated glass container or vessel from which the water is poured into a glass vessel more finely graduated so that the actual amount of rain that has fallen can be accurately measured.

There is another ingenious invention for measuring the amount of rain that has fallen. In this apparatus rain from an ordinary receiver runs to a cylinder which has a float. This float rises as the falling rain collects in the receiver and shows the reading.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

VISITED IN NORWICH

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about what I did during my vacation. Two weeks after school was out I went to visit my friend, Mary. We had a good time. I stayed there two weeks. We went swimming every night. Some times we would go out for a ride. After a while I went away to my cousin's house. She lives in Norwich. After dinner I went out for a walk. I had a very happy time. At my cousin's house I played with my cousin Alice. We played hide and seek and tag. I had all the candy I wanted. I stayed at my cousin's house four weeks. After that I went home in an automobile.

When I was home I helped my mother wash the dishes and I helped her wash the clothes. I carried the wood in while my brother chopped the wood. I like to go fishing with my brother Stephen. I helped my father pick apples and pears.

MARTHA SZCZEPAIAK, Age 8

MY VACATION

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would tell you about my vacation. I went on a Sunday school class picnic. We went in bathing, and had lunch. One Sunday I had an auto ride to North Stonington. Then I went to the Sunday school picnic at Columbia Lake, and had bathing and boating, also a good lunch. I also went to the elks fair. Our school started Sept. 3rd. I was glad to go to school again. I wish some of the Wide Awake, would write to me and I will answer their letters. This is my first letter to the Wide Awake circle.

A VISIT TO THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write to the Wide Awake Circle as I have not written since last July.

Every Saturday afternoon when we go to the city we go over Raymond Hill as the road is best. We stop at the Raymond Library to take out books. My father and mother have taken books from there for quite a while but this is my first year to take out books from a library. It is situated opposite the Montville Center School, about a mile from Oakdale.

The librarian is very pleasant and helps everybody to find a book if one can not find one. I have read over twenty books from the library and all of them are very interesting. My latest book was Robin by the author of Secret Garden.

We stop a few minutes when we go. We also get magazines from there. We can get a magazine in every book. There are hundreds of books packed orderly in rows on the shelves. In front of the library there is a small rack which contains books that are popular. After getting our books we then go to the city. It is very confusing to see so many books to choose from.

Will write again soon.

MY DOG TED

Dear Uncle Jed: Maybe you would like to hear about my dog. I just got him last week. His name is Ted and he is white with little black spots. The tip of his tail is black too. He likes me pretty good and goes everywhere with me. I am going to teach him tricks, like a circus dog I saw last summer. He likes to chase cats but I scold him every time he does it. I got him from my uncle because my other dog, Spot, died two months ago. He was quite old and got his leg broken by an automobile. We had to shoot him.

LIKES THE FALL

Dear Uncle Jed: I like the fall season when the leaves on the trees begin to get red and yellow and all colors. Every fall I go out in the woods and collect pretty leaves and press them in books. I have quite a lot of them and I have learned the names of most all of the different kinds of leaves. I like to gather nuts in the fall, now. But there aren't many chestnuts or walnuts around where I go.

I have a little brother and he is two years old. He likes me and I take him out in the carriage nearly every day when it is fine. When it rains he has to stay indoors, because rain would not be good for him. His name is William but I call him Billy.

JENNIE MURPHY, Age 10.

MAKING DOLLS CLOTHES

Dear Uncle Jed: My sister and mother are showing me how to make doll dresses. I have three dolls, a small baby doll, a big sister doll and a boy doll. It is lots of fun making clothes for them. I cut the clothes and sew them all myself. I made a pretty pink dress for the small doll last week and this week I am making a hat for her. The hat is black.

I take my doll's out riding in a little carriage I got last Christmas. I broke a wheel on the carriage when it fell off the sidewalk but my brother fixed it. He almost fixed it because it is a little bit here yet. He says it needs a new wheel. Maybe I will get another carriage this Christmas.

MY VACATION

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about my vacation. During my vacation I raked on the horse rake all during haying. After that I went down to my mothers for a few days. I had a very good time and during that time they took me to the circus. I came home and it seemed queer when I started to milk cows again. It seemed as though I didn't know how. I stayed home after that and in a few days my brother came home and every day the girls, my brother and I went swimming. We had a great deal of fun. Then my oldest brother and his wife came home and so we all went on a picnic. The Sunday before we all went down to my cousins. My aunt and all of us went to the beach. We had a good time. I had a very nice vacation and hope to have as good a one next time.

HAD GOOD TIME AT BEACH

Dear Uncle Jed: I won a book last winter and so I am going to try and win another one. The one you sent me was a Girl Scout book. I liked it pretty well. I let a girl take it to read and her family moved away somewhere and she forgot to return it and so she has it yet. I had a nice time this summer at the beach. We went down five times one in the train and the other four times in an automobile. I liked going in the automobile better than going in the train. One day it rained but we got very wet. I went for a ride in a canoe one day. I liked it in the canoe, but it tipped pretty much. I thought once we were going to tip over.

LOUISE BOLLEAU, Age 13.

VISITED HER GRANDMOTHER

Dear Uncle Jed: One day I went up to my grandmothers and stayed a long time. I had a nice time. My grandmother was very good to me. She went to the attic and got me a pewter doll carriage, a little doll's bed and some doll's chairs. I played with them a long time.

ALTHEA DAVIS, Age 8

ON A RAINY DAY

Dear Uncle Jed: When it is raining and I can't go out to play I stay in the house and help my mother. The last time it rained she told me to go up stairs and clean out the attic. It was a great fun. I found lots of interesting things up there. There were some old books that my father had when he was a boy. They are a lot different from my school books. I am going to read some of them.

Sometimes on rainy days I clean up the cellar. Sweep out the coal bin and pile the wood up and if there isn't any cut why I cut some. It is pretty hard work because the pieces of wood are tough. But I generally have a sharp axe. One day I cut my foot, but not very bad and it was soon better. Another day I got up on the step ladder to close the cellar window and I fell off and hurt my elbow. But that got better right away so I didn't mind it much.

I work in the garden too and help my father plant potatoes and beans. We planted a lot last spring and they grew pretty good.

JOHN ADAMS, Age 12.

GOING TO NEW ORLEANS

Dear Uncle Jed: We are going to leave pretty soon for New Orleans where we are going to live as I thought I would write you a letter and say goodbye. I am sorry we are going as I like to live here in New London. We haven't been here very long but I know quite a few boys here now. Maybe I will like it in New Orleans. I have never been there but my father has. That is where he used to live. He is going to work there. He says I will like it. When I get down there I will write and tell you how I like it. We are going in about a week.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Wise Tailor Bird

The Luckymobile is a wonderful car,
It goes just as fast as a swift shooting star.
And Little Jack Rabbit is filled with great pride
When dear Uncle Lucky takes him for a ride.

"Where shall we go," asked the old gentleman rabbit, turning to look at the smiling face of his small nephew.

"Along the Shady Forest Trail," answered the little bunny. "Maybe we'll meet a friend."

Turning into the woods, dear Uncle Lucky carefully steered the Luckymobile along the winding path, around the rocks and the bushes, in and out, among the trees, until, all of a sudden, a low hanging limb ripped a seam in his coat.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" he exclaimed, stopping just like that. "what shall I do? If I were home Little Miss Mouse would mend the tear but oh dear, I'm here and not there," and with a great big sigh, dear Uncle Lucky looked at the rent in his nice sport coat.

Just then the bright eyes of the little rabbit spied the Tailor Bird. This clever little feathered fellow was busily at work on a limb overhead.

"What is he doing?" asked the old gentleman rabbit, as his small nephew pointed upwards.

"Sewing a growing leaf around his nest to hide it from sight," answered the bunny boy. "Isn't he a wise bird?"

"Well, I guess yes three times and a half," replied dear Uncle Lucky. "Why don't we ask him to sew up the rent in my coat

FREEMAN RENOMINATED.

Ten years of continuous service, in which the district has been ably represented, was rewarded by the delegates assembled in congressional convention at Willimantic Saturday as a good and sufficient reason for the unanimous renomination of Richard P. Freeman, of New London, as a member of congress from the Second district.

Connecticut is desirous of not only returning President Coolidge to the chief executive's chair but of giving the country the benefit of a congress that will stand back of and support the Coolidge policies. It wants a government which we are greatly mistaken when it has the nation's welfare constantly in mind and which is prepared to work for it whether the way to such a goal be an easy one or not. It is therefore important that there should be sent to Washington men who are committed to such support.

Where Congressman Freeman stands upon that point there is no question. He has been a loyal upholder of the Coolidge policies and will be found in the forefront of those who will continue to do so if returned to Washington.

The renomination of the congressman from this district must be looked upon as an endorsement of his services by the republicans of this end of Connecticut. Those services carry to some amount of credit with them and there are good reasons for believing that the voters of the district will be as eager to display their endorsement at the polls as the delegates were in the convention.

Congressman Freeman has given conscientious service during the past decade. It is the best also to consider it and it is gratifying to note that the same approval that has been manifested regarding his work for this district has been shown in other parts of the state where Congressmen Tilson, Merritt and Benn have met with the same unanimous renomination. It shows how the people back home regard the manner in which their interests have been taken care of at the national capital.

A NAVAL SURVEY.

When it comes to maintaining our defense it is necessary to look into the future. There have been years when the naval preparations of one nation was more or less dependent upon what other nations were doing. There was a continual effort to keep it an even progress to let the other fellow get ahead, and regardless of what the financial outlay called for it must be had. This evidently had its influence in spurring about the limitation of armament as established in the naval agreement. That, however, doesn't mean that all the efforts in behalf of the navies of the respective nations can be abandoned. They must be maintained for defense purposes, and just now the question before this government is as to where the most use can be made of the funds which are to be devoted to naval defense purposes.

There are three branches of the naval defense the big ships that are visible, the underwater craft and the naval aircraft. Developments have taken place which create a quandary as to the effectiveness of the visible battleship in the face of opposition from the air, and the merits of the submarine development in view of the aircraft.

It is no small question to decide. Opinions differ as to whether the aircraft have made the battleships obsolete, but there is no mistaking the fact that the airplanes have shown in various ways that they are sound to be of greater service than ever in case of defense. Where then should the sum to be asked for naval purposes be devoted? There may be those who are particularly interested in one and some who are favorably disposed to another branch. It isn't a question of favoritism, however, in this matter. It is a question of defense and the manner in which the best results can be obtained under present day conditions.

The conference which President Coolidge has had with Secretary Wilbur is therefore a most timely one, and the decision to leave the relative value of several branches to a study by a board of experts must be regarded as dealing with the matter in a sensible way.

SUNDAY EXCURSIONS.

As an object of attack there is probably nothing that holds a higher average than the railroads. They get it from all directs. Some of it is deserved and much of it isn't. Justification, however, isn't the guiding spirit under such conditions for somehow the railroads are looked upon as a common target and every one is ready to take a pot shot at it. They are blamed if they don't meet public requirements and they are blamed if they do.

Just at the present time there is a petition before the public utilities commission of Massachusetts to prevent the railroads from running Sunday excursion trains. There was a time when such an appeal would have represented the sentiment of the general public. Does it do so today?

It is known that the railroads have been running excursions on Sunday to various points, and according to the reports have been getting a good patronage. It marked the return to an old time practice with the exception that in other years the excursions were weekday instead of Sunday. It is because of the Sunday phase of it that opposition arises.

What those who favor the Sunday excursion cannot understand is why there is objection to such service, for the patronage would indicate that it is a service to a large number, whether actually necessary or not, when the highways are filled with endless processions of automobile parties headed for the same or similar destinations, when Sunday baseball is tolerated and community after community has approved the idea of Sunday theaters.

The necessity of the other Sunday activities might as well be questioned as that of running an excursion train. It means an accommodation for a great number of those who have no automobile, and who take the train simply because the trolley or the bus would not carry them as far or transport them for as reasonable a rate. The liberalization of Sunday has not been done by the railroads. They are simply endeavoring to meet public demands and render service under present day conditions.

STATE TAXES.

When the democratic platform called for the elimination of the personal, unincorporated business and gasoline taxes there was no method suggested of making up the $3,500,000 which those taxes provide for the state. It was a bid for votes on the ground of reduced taxation without showing how it could be done. It was intended to fool the gullible.

Lieutenant Governor Bingham dealt with this subject in the address he made at East Hampton, which appears elsewhere, and in that he clearly pointed out that such taxes are not burdensome, that they are well distributed with a view to treating all alike and that there cannot be an abandonment of such taxes without the abandonment of importance services now being rendered by the state, unless they are replaced by others.

It is an old story to make a drive against certain taxes without giving any consideration whatever to what is involved. The psychological effect of the tax elimination cry is relied upon to do its work, without an explanation of how it can be done being sought.

It is a well known fact that our state institutional work cannot be done without revenue. Few there are who would admit that it could be abandoned. Instead of abandonment larger outlays are called for each year. It is toward such work that the taxes go.

The gasoline tax provides funds for the maintenance of the highways. It takes revenue from those who use the roads and is devoted to the upkeep of what the motorists are most interested in. They are the direct beneficiaries of the tax. No one would think of abandoning the maintenance of the state roads.

In quick time Lieutenant Governor Bingham punctured the tax abandonment plank of the democratic platform, and he did it in a businesslike and convincing manner. State business cannot be carried on even under one of the most efficient administrations without funds, and since taxes are necessary they should be so levied as to include all and properly deal with the object for which they are intended.

BURNING LEAVES.

The time is coming within the next few weeks when the man with the rake is going to be kept busy piling up the leaves. The question of disposing of them is always uppermost. There are those who use them for bedding and for fertilizer, and consider that gathering a binful of them is worth the time involved.

For the most part those that are raked up will be burned. This involves a due amount of consideration before anything rash in the way of fires is started. Dry leaves burn without much encouragement and they may be not only a serious menace to property but to those who are inclined to jump through and play about such fires.

One thing is certain, sooner or later the leaves which are now on the trees are going to be on the ground. Wherever they fall they serve as material for starting a brisk fire. Starting such a fire is nothing compared to the stopping of many of them. Thus where leaves are blown or where they are raked it behooves the human agent to be exceedingly careful either to keep fire brands away therefrom or to see that the burning of such material is done in properly guarded localities and limited quantities.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The longer the prince stays the better time he seems to be having.

The weatherman is catering more to the football than to the baseball players these days.

Long before New England week is over it will be realized that it ought to be held more often.

There is no reason why the football practice should lag considering the inducements of the weatherman.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Stale cake may be sliced and used to line a mold for the gelatin or cornstarch mixture.

Whiting and cold water mixed to a paste will clean mother-of-pearl articles perfectly.

Always remember that proper mixing insures uniform texture when baking a cake.

A sliced onion placed in a basin of cold water will absorb the smell of new paint in a room.

To chop nut meats in a hurry roll once firmly with a rolling pin. This saves cleaning a food chopper.

Put a pinch of salt or bicarbonate of soda into the milk as soon as it arrives and it will keep sweet longer.

The fireless cooker will be with you longer if it is thoroughly washed, dried and put in the sun after each using.

A little vinegar cooked with coarse meat helps to make it tender, or the meat may be dipped into vinegar before cooking.

Never use soda water when washing dishes with gilt decorations. Soda will gradually react on the gilt until it disappears.

To remove rust from sinks use petroleum ointment and a cloth, rubbing it well in, and you will be pleased with the result.

If too much salt has been added to soup, slice a raw potato and boil it in the soup for a few minutes. The potato will absorb much of the salt.

Before adding berries, raisins, nuts, citron or anything of the kind to puddings or cake it is well to roll them in melted butter, then in the flour, to prevent their falling to the bottom.

When boiling cabbage or cauliflower, tie up a crust of bread in a muslin bag and place it in the saucepan. This will prevent the smell from pervading the house.

TO FRESHEN LETTUCE

Put a piece of powdered borax into the water in which you wash lettuce. Let the leaves soak for half an hour or so, then shake free from water, wipe each leaf separately after rinsing well, and you will be delighted at the crispness. Salted water softens lettuce but borax both cleans and freshens it up.

MAKING GOOD COFFEE

Prof. Prescott of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology maintains that the blend of coffee has very little bearing on the flavor produced—that coffee of low commercial grade, if freshly roasted and ground and properly prepared, is better than high-grade coffee when it is stale and badly prepared. He also points out that the utensils employed are of the utmost importance.

For best results the coffee should be freshly ground. Surprising as it will be to most, Professor Prescott says that the coffee should not be more than two minutes in water of from 185 to 203 degrees Fahrenheit. At these temperatures most of the caffeine will be dissolved, the flavor-giving oils will not be boiled away, and the bitter and woody taste will not be developed as much as by boiling. It was also found that coffee boiled for one minute is markedly more bitter than that which has been infused at a little below the boiling point.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A dry skin wrinkles more quickly than does an oily complexion. A woman with the former type should, therefore, start early to massage and feed her skin with suitable creams, especially about eyes, mouth and throat.

If your feet are not very sensitive take some laundry starch, sift the powder from the lumps—Crush the lumps to make more powder—and mix one ounce of boracic acid powder to every six or eight of the starch. This is cooling, soothing and antiseptic, and better than baby powder if the feet have a strong odor. In this case, however, use half starch and half boracic.

To keep young it is absolutely necessary to take a great deal of exercise. This does not necessarily mean that you must stand up with a pair of dumb bells if this form of it bores you, for you can find many pleasant ways of making the body vigorous. But if you are to stay young the muscles must be kept firm, the skin must be clear and healthy, the system must be in as good running order as a well cared for machine should be.

If you can afford it, a good talcum is most pleasant to use after the bath, especially if you like to sprinkle it liberally over your skin for it is cooling and soothing. But a very good substitute is fine cornstarch, such as is used for cooking, scented with real flower petals or mixed with a little sachet powder. And for the face, plain rice powder, unscented or very delicately perfumed, flesh for pale faces of blondes, Rachel for brunettes who are not sallow, Blanche for the too rosy cheeked girl.

USEFUL RIBBON STRAPS

A lingerie strap made of ribbon will make an attractive gift for a bride's shower. The strap is put around the piles of lingerie, and keeps the different garments in neat separate piles in the drawer. It may also be used in the linen closet for keeping the linen pieces stacked together. To make the strap get a piece of ribbon two inches wide and a yard and three-quarters long. After forming a loop with the ribbon the ends are run through a casing which is made from two pieces of card board two inches long and an inch and a half wide. Cover these pieces on both sides with white ribbon or silk. Work a little cross stitch pattern on the silk which is to form the top side in the same color as the ribbon from which the strap is made. Sew the two pieces of covered cardboard together by overcasting the edges at the top and bottom leaving a casing through which to run the ends of the ribbon.

SLIP COVERS

We all enjoy covering our good furniture with slip covers during the summer, but did you ever think of making an attractive cretonne slip Cover for the shabby chair that is tucked in a corner and not thrown out because it is so comfortable? It would not cost nearly so much as having it upholstered and yet would present a very nice appearance.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A youthful and charming coat is made of white crepe romain with huge bands of white rabbit.

English eyelet embroidery in colors on white is a very novel decoration for a white or colored frock.

Flowers demurely nestle on the shoulders of evening gowns, the gardenia being a prime favorite.

Peforated red, green, blue and brown suede collar and cuff sets strike a new note in neckwear.

The tunic blouse becomes the basis of any costume. Now are the leopard or tiger printed crush velvets. Tunics of chenille are particularly good.

Some of the new scarfs of chiffon are delicate in coloring. But they avoid neutrality of tone by having huge, bright flowers hand painted across the ends.

Lizard skin and snake skin are employed extensively as trimmings now. In narrow bands, they criss-cross the cuffs of sports coats or the ribbon ends that stand up straight on hats.

A touch of embroidery and that chiefly at the waistline, is a feature of many new afternoon frocks of silk crepe. The embroidery is usually a brilliant motif in beads.

The scarf, which women still insist upon wearing, is sometimes attached to the hat brim in back. Or it may wrap the crown and descend in long ends about the neck.

For the young girl of 12 or over nothing could be nicer than a frock made of eyelet embroidery in which the eyelets are outlined in color. The dress is bound with the same color and there is a wide ribbon sash as well.

Dresses are now being made by furriers to accompany three-quarter length fur coats. The lower part of the dress is banded with wide fur borders matching the coat, and cuffs on the dress also reproduce the fur.

The double-breasted coat, darter at the sides, achieves high honors. Tweeds and homespuns, many in large striped or plaid patterns, make smart fall coats. Coats, on the whole, follow the straight line, though many develop a decided flare across the front. The latest shoulder line shows a fitted yoke.

BLACK HAT FOR FALL

The new black hats are exceedingly attractive and will prove a great temptation to many women. A small hat with a square crown of black hatter's plush has the unturned brim covered with tinsel brocade in which red and blue are the predominating colors. A long scarf of black satin ribbon extends from one side of the hat and is finished at the end with a border of the tinsel.

NEW LENGTH FOR FROCK

For the present at least the frock will remain at fourteen inches from the ground. This is the new length, and is reminiscent of the shortness which prevailed a few seasons ago.

ROYAL BLUE FOR FALL

There is some hint that hosiery of royal blue will be worn with black shoes this autumn. Royal blue and black are favorite frock colors now, and royal blue stockings with a black frock would seem to be rather chic.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

Before you do very fine sewing it is well to wash your hands in alum water.

If you will fasten a large safety pin on the outside of the bag where you keep your patches and attach a small sample of everything that goes into the bag you will save yourself lots of time and exasperation.

One woman who does a great deal of sewing has a needle covered brick to which she pins any sewing that needs to be held taut while handwork is being done. It is placed on the table with the rest of the sewing articles, and it looks a lot more comfortable than constant bending over one's knee.

Sheets wear first through the middle. Therefore sew the sides together and cut through the worn place. Some however, use a top-sewing seam. Overlap the edges (selvedges) about one-quarter of an inch. Sew down one edge, then go back and do the other the same way. The seam will then be smooth and soft.

If embroidering with yarn it is very difficult to thread the needle. Try this. Take a short piece of sewing thread, place the two ends together and put through the eye of the needle. Then put the yarn through the loop formed and pull the sewing thread and the yarn through the eye.

PLACING WAISTLINE

When the waistline appears at all new it is at the point called normal. But most frocks give the effect of a long waist even though no definite line appears.

HOW TO WEAR A SCARF

To be truly chic wear your scarf inside your autumn coat. It will be crossed in front and just allowed to peep forth enough to show its colors.

SAVES STOCKINGS

To save stockings from wearing out at the top, where the garters fasten, sew on inch and a half strips of cloth on the inside. If the stockings are silk, sew a piece of silk ribbon.

USEFUL AT MEALTIME

Quaint and useful are little pink and white pinafores for little children. Across the front of each is a large patchwork elephant done in white with black stitching. These pinafores are seminade.

APPLE WATER

Apple water makes a delicious drink, especially for children who sometimes grow tired of the ordinary lemonade. Four pounds of apples must be peeled, cored and placed in a big jug. Cover with three pounds of castor sugar, and pour over five pints of boiling water. Cover closely, and leave until cold. If possible, this beverage should be placed on ice, for the flavor will then be improved.

WILL KEEP CLOTHES ON HANGERS

It is very annoying to go to your clothes closet and find several frocks and fine blouses have slipped from the hangers. Wind tightly a wide elastic band around each end of each hanger and you will find the clothes will not slip off.

WIPE BOTTLES

Always wipe the mouth of the milk bottle carefully before you pour out the milk, as this part usually harbors a few impurities.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The University of California is organizing a training school for policewomen.

Women workers in British Columbia work on an average 43.31 hours a week.

"Indian Lucy," a squaw living in the Yosemite Valley, claims to be 120 years of age.

It is estimated that 4,000,000 women in the United States do not exercise their right to vote.

In many parts of India it is still unknown for a woman to walk in the streets alone or unveiled.

For the first time in history the Japanese parliament, in a recent session, employed girls as pages.

The average wage paid for experienced female labor in British Columbia last year was $17.14 a week.

One of the first official acts of William A. Perry, acting Governor of Kentucky, was the appointment of his wife as a colonel on his staff.

POLISHING WOODWORK

Furniture polish should not be used on furniture until the latter has been well dusted, or it will smear and clog. Apply with a small piece of flannel. Rub off with a soft duster, and polish with a chamois.

RECIPES

Chocolate Sponge Roll: Beat the yolks of four eggs until thick and lemon tinted; add one-third cup of cold water and gradually one cup fine granulated sugar, beating constantly with a crank egg beater; add gradually one and one-fourth cups of pastry flour that has been sifted with one teaspoon of baking powder and one-eighth teaspoon of cinnamon. Lastly, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Turn into a buttered and floured shallow pan measuring 10 by 12 1-2 by 1 1-2 inches and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Great care must be taken that it does not bake too long or too hard. Remove from oven, loosen the edges and turn on to a sheet of manila paper, quickly trim off the edges on all sides, spread with marshmallow filling, roll over and over, wrap a tea towel or large napkin around it and let stand until cool.

Marshmallow Filling: Boil one and one-half cups of milk six minutes. Have ready one-half pound of fresh marshmallow cut in small pieces and partially melted in a saucepan containing one-fourth cup of boiling water, set in a large saucepan of boiling water. Pour the hot sirup over the marshmallows; remove saucepan, add one-half teaspoon of vanilla and beat until mixture is stiff enough to spread. If a thermometer is used boil the sirup to 238 degrees Fahrenheit before adding to the marshmallows.

Hays, Home Lover, Had to Travel

Will H. Hays is a home lover; he knows everybody in his home town of Sullivan, Ind., and he likes to live there, but he has had to be away most of the time since he graduated from high school.

In Sullivan, where Will Hays was born, his father was a prominent citizen and the boy grew up knowing practically every one of the 3,000 persons there. He went to public school took part in public movements, was a teacher in Sunday school and an elder in the church.

As a reward for high marks in school, he was taken by his father to the Republican National convention in St. Louis. Soon afterward he left home at 16, and entered Wabash college at Crawfordville, Ind. Before he was graduated four years later, he was a prominent committeeman.

Admitted to the bar at 21, he studied two years more, returned to Sullivan and was married. Then he was elected Republican county committeeman and later chairman of the speakers bureau of the republican state advisory committee, which required him to be away frequently.

At 31 he was chosen city attorney and served three years, but as district chairman of the party state committee and later as chairman of the state central committee, he had to be on the road a great part of the time.

When the United States entered the world war his application to be a soldier was rejected because he did not weigh enough. Then he was chosen to head the Indiana state council of defense and his whirlwind statewide campaign made that organization famous.

Hays was not a candidate for chairman of the republican national committee in 1820, because the position required constant traveling, but he was elected, and conducted an active campaign. The next year he was appointed pastmaster-general. Twelve months later he resigned to become president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, at a salary of $150,000 a year.

Hays still has to travel but there is a home a pew and a law practice awaiting him back in Sullivan, and he is earning enough to provide a fund that will permit him to live there without financial worry when he chooses to.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. H. A. L. Fisher, who is to pay a visit to Canada this fall under the auspices of the National Council of Education, was president of the Board of Education in Great Britain under the Lloyd George administration. Previous to entering the government he had served for some years as vice-chancellor of Sheffield University. In England he is generally recognized as an educator who combines a wealth of ideas with practical experience, and he is credited besides with the statesmanlike outlook to which some advocates of a business government attach little importance. Born in London fifty-eight years ago, Dr. Fisher was educated at Winchester and New College, Oxford, where he took a Double First. Afterwards he continued his studies at Paris and Gottingen. A brilliant historian, he has written numerous biographies and has been a frequent contributor to magazines and reviews. He has lectured extensively in America, where he is very popular.

WORKING TO CURE DISTEMPER IN DOGS

Constantly gathering momentum, the most interesting and significant movement ever inaugurated for the benefit of the dog in America is passing the year-old stage.

It was just about a year ago that a group of American sportsmen, primarily business and professional men of wide repute but ardent lovers of the dog, fomed a committee with the determination of enlisting the aid of American dog owners and dog lovers in the worldwide drive which had been inaugurated against distemper. The committee was headed by Hobart Ames of Boston, with William Ziegler, Jr., of New York, vice-chairman; Charles H. Tyler of Boston, secretary-treasurer and active head, and Samuel G. Allen of New York; Frederick T. Bedford of New York; Louis Lee Hamlin, Lexington, Kentucky; Harry D. Kirkover, New York; Arthur G. Leonard, Chicago; Russell Perkins, Pomfret Centre, Connecticut; Frank Reily, Philadelphia; Arthur R. Sharp, Boston; Henry G. Vaughn, Boston and George S. West, Boston, as the other members. Since that time, Dr. Theobald Smith of Princeton, New Jersey a noted scientist who became intensely interested in the success of the work, both from a scientific and a humanitarian point of view, has been added to the list of directors.

Those men formed the American Distemper Committee and became the leaders of the most important, concerted move ever made in the history of the dog for its betterment. With this country and England, the two greatest nations of dog lovers and of clean sport in the world taking the lead, the work has progressed satisfactory. The experimental plant in which the actual scientific research is being carried on near London has been constructed, pictures of the buildings and a detailed description of their equipment having been recently received by Mr. Tyler from Sir Thomas Cook, who is the active head of the work in England. And America, even though it has meant hard work on the part of Mr. Tyler and the other members of the committee, has kept pace with England in the matter of contributions.

As indicated by the revised list of contributors, about $16,199.95 has been raised in the last year among American dog people. This sum of money, creditable but not at all phenomenal, when the number of dog owners and dog organizations that this country boasts is considered, has been contributed by individual dog owners, by kennel owners and by kennel clubs (many clubs have given all or a portion of the receipts of their annual shows and plan to continue that until the successful completion of the distemper drive. About 575 persons representing every state in the Union, exclusive of the club organizations, have contributed, having been told of the work and its aims by the thousands of circulars which the committee has sent out to practically every club and every individual listed on the American Kennel Club books.

That the movement will be successful is the anticipation of those directing the work and of the scientists who are carrying on the actual research activities. If a job well begun is half done, then this campaign may look forward confidently to the second year of activity in this country. The confidence is based on the fact that America, the greatest sporting loving and dog loving nation on earth will not let things now well under way, lag until the objective, which is the definite abolition of distemper for all time, is attained.

Brimfield, Mass., Sept. 21.—Charging the sale of inflammable shoes, Mrs. [illegible] M Saunders of this city yesterday brought suit for $5,000 damages against Walter M. Dunbar, proprietor of a local shoe store.

The claim made in the petition is that the interlining of the shoes was of a highly combustible material.

UNDER ARREST AFTER CRASH THAT WRECKED MOTORCYCLE

Theron B. Woodmansee, 24, of 9 Bushnell place was arrested by Officer John Donovan about midnight Saturday on Thames street on the charge of evading responsibility when he did not stop his automobile after it had crashed into and badly wrecked a motorcycle that was parked in front of the motorcycle shop of James Donovan at 21 West Main street.

The motorcycle belongs to Jeremiah Fish of 327 Main street. It was so badly wrecked that it was estimated by Mr. Donovan that it will cost about $125 to repair it.

After the crash, Mr. Woodmansee drove along West Main street towards his home and was followed down Thames street by Officer Donovan who commandeered an automobile to chase the Woodmansee machine. Woodmansee explained to the police that he did not stop because he did not know he had hit anything.

Young Woman Injured.

While her father's machine was stopped on the Norwich-Westerly road Sunday afternoon to change tires after a blow-out, Mrs. Marion Almond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Hoffman of 250 Laurel Hill avenue, was struck by a machine driven by Miss Sadie Newton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newton of 15 North A street, Taftville. Mrs. Almond was thrown to the ground by the blow from the fender of the Newton machine, receiving bruises on the head and knee, but her injuries were pronounced not serious by Dr. F. J. Harper, who was called to the Norwich police headquarters to attend her. Mrs. Almond was in a hysterical condition from the shock and Miss Newton was almost equally affected by the accident.

According to the report made the accident happened when Mrs. Almond stepped into the road from behind the Hoffman machine as the Newton machine came along. It was charged by the members of the Hoffman party that no horn was blown by the Newton machine but the persons in that car disputed that statement and said that Miss Newton swung the car off and missed hitting a young man in the party but could not avoid hitting Mrs. Almond with the fender. All agreed that the Newton machine was not going faster than 10 or 15 miles an hour.

With the Hoffman car, besides Mrs. Almond, were her husband, her father and mother and her brother. In the other car, besides Miss Newton and her father, were two ladies, a young man and a small boy.

Capt. D. J. Twomey summoned Dr. Harper to police headquarters to attend Mrs. Almond, who went to her home after the physician had seen her.

SECOND FASHION DAY GOOD WEATHER AND TRADEWISE

Again the Weather Man played into the hands of the local merchants Saturday, the second of the formal Fashion Days. It was exactly cool enough to set the fancies of shoppers turning toward thoughts of new hats, dresses and coats.

In the line of dresses, some unusually beautiful fallies, bengalines, twills, chameuses and pencil stripes were taken down from the racks for the inspection of buyers.

Well selected Fall coats, smart and comfortable and exquisitely tailored in all the favored materials, were offered to intending purchasers.

Hats in velvet, felt, natter's plush and heavy silks, modishly trimmed and showing all the latest touches of the leading designers were specially priced for the day. Many of the embroidered hats sold on sight. The correct shapes for wearers with bobbed hair were featured. A wide range of fashionable colors awaited choice.

There appeared be a strong call for crepe dresses—satin crepes, Canton crepes, crepe black satins, while georgettes, Poiret twills, hair line cloth models and the desirable flannels went off finely.

Saturday's buyers by no means exhausted the large stocks of seasonable apparel in every line. Just as good bargains await shoppers today

Just where, is told in The Bu[illegible]'s advertising columns this morning. . . .

TATOOED ARM MAY HELP IN IDENTIFICATION

Up to Sunday night the body of the man found floating in the Thames river Saturday morning remained unidentified at the rooms of Undertakers Cummings and Ring. The body was found shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday morning by William McKnight of Gales ferry who saw it floating at a point between Gales Ferry and Allyn's Point. Dr. N. B. Lewis, medical examiner for the towns of Ledyard and Preston, was notified and after viewing the body gave permission for its removal to the undertakers rooms.

Dr. Lewis expressed the opinion that the man had been fishing and had accidently fallen into the water. There was a piece of fish line wound around his waist. He was about 45 years of age, about 6 feet in height and weighed about 180 younds. He was attired in a brown suit, undershirt, dark striped outing shirt, and brown bicycle shoes. In his pockets were two jackknives, two pipes, a can of corned beef and an onion and a pair of gold bowed glasses. There was nothing else by which to identify the body.

Something that may assist in identification of the body is a woman's head enclosed in a wreath which is tatooed upon his left arm.

Realistic Totem Pole.

One of the most interesting exhibits at the Springfield exposition was the totem pole in the Mohawk indian village. The pole was a product of the New London Boy Scout camp, Wakenah.

On the shores of Gardner lake where Camp Wakenah is located, many boys have been busy all summer preparing the pole.

The state police investigated the report but could find no signs of any accident on the highway at or near the vicinity indicated.

MISS ALLEN, MRS. AMBURN IN AUTO ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Sept. 21.—A Dodge coupo owned and operated by Maud E. Allen of 26 Main street, Norwich, and a Buick touring car driven by the owner, Eli Gravel, of 234 Sherry street, Pawtucket, R. I., were partially demolished and Mrs. Lena Gravel was painfully cut about the face early Sunday afternoon in a collision on a grade two miles east of North Windham on the Providence-Willimantic highway. The driver of the Dodge and a passenger, Mrs. Minnie Amburn of 45 Pearl street, Norwich, and the occupants of the Buick, with the exception of Mrs. Gravel, escaped uninjured.

Each owner blamed the other for the accident and they were notified by State Policeman George L. Gardner of the Danielson barracks to appear in the Chaplin town court next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. As near as could be learned, there were no eye-witnesses to the collision and apparently the drivers plan to fight their cases of reckless driving. The entire left side of the Buick, which was headed toward this city, was wrecked and the left front wheel pulled off, and the Dodge met about the same fate on the left side. After the impact the Buick swerved to the left of the road and came to a stop against the state fence. Mrs. Gravel was struck by glass from the broken windshield.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY OF ITALIAN INDEPENDENSE

An audience of 100 Italian residents of the city was at the Community house Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock when an enthusiastic celebration of the Independence day of Italy, Sept. 20, was held under the direction of Rev. V. Panizzoli.

Judge John H. Barnes was frequently applauded as he made the historical address for the day in which he sketched the progress and events under different leaders until Sept. 20, 1870, when under King Victor Emanuel the control of Rome was taken from the papal power and Italy rejoiced in a new unity and independence.

Mayor Milo R. Waters spoke briefly of the high esteem in which those of Italian lineage are held as citizens, and Rev. Mr. Panizzoli made an address along histroical lines in the Italian language.

Music during the exercises was rendered by the Italian band, and American and Italian flags were displayed on the platform.

WORLD'S SERIES GAMES WILL START OCT. 4TH

New York, Sept. 21.—The world's series will open in the American league city winning the pennant, on Saturday, October 4, unless a tie in either league necessitates a play-off. This was definitely decided today at a meeting of the club owners of the five leading teams with Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

The first, second and sixth games will be played in the American league city and the third, fourth and fifth in the National league city. Games will be played on consecutive days, the teams traveling at night. If a seventh game is necessary the owners of the two contending teams will meet and toss a coin to determine in which city the deciding contest will be held. All world's series games will start at 2 o'clock Eastern Standard Time.

If either league race ends in a tie, the president of the league in which the owners of the tied teams together to arrange for a series of three game to determine a winner. In the event this is necessary, the dates for the world's series will have to be changed.

New York and Washington in the American league and Brooklyn, New York and Pittsburgh in the National league were represented at the meeting. Detroit was not represented owing to the fact that the Tigers are virtually out of the running.

The schedule of prices for the annual classic was made out and other details preliminary to the big series were discussed.

WEDDINGS.

Crowell—Williams.

One of the prettiest early fall weddings took place Saturday evening at 7.30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur S. Williams of 45 Uncas street, when their daughter, Marian Bonhotal Williams, became the bride of Frank Lane Crowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Crowell of 102 Williams street.

To the music of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengren, softly played by Miss Annie L. Taft at the piano, the bride entered the prettily decorated living room with her father and her maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Carleton of Providence. Here they were met by the groom and his best man, Walter Manley Hitchon, Jr., and the marriage ceremony was conducted beneath a beautiful arch by Rev. Samuel H. Howe, pastor of Park Congregational church, the double ring service being used.

The floral decorations were most attractively arranged, the massive archway being made up of asparagus ferns and asters shaded gradually from a deep rose on either side to a pure white at the top of the arch. The background was entirely of hemlock. The entire color scheme throughout the house was in pink and white and fences of hemlock and hydrangeas led from the arch to the corners of the room. Baskets of many shaded asters, gladioli, cosmos and roses were placed about the house and the stairways, archways and sidewalls were pleasingly draped with clematis. Pink and white ribbons were supported by large German shells banked with asters, a large white ball and table decorations of pink and buff were used in making a most attractive setting for the happy event.

The ushers were Bert Patrick of Boston, Mass., and Russell Crowell of Norwich, cousins of the groom, and Lester Crowell of Norwich acted as door tender.

The bride was most charmingly gowned in white flat crepe trimmed with satin and orange blossoms and her coronet veil was caught up with orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. Her only jewel was a beautiful platinum brooch with diamond set in the center, the gift of the groom.

The maid of honor was prettily gowned in Nile green chiffon over gold cloth and her arm bouquet was of crystal pink asters. The mother of the bride wore a gown of grey georgette beaded with gold and powder blue, her arm boquet was of tea roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Crowell, mother of the groom, was gowned in sunset yellow beaded crepe and she carried an arm bouquet of tea roses, orchids and lilies of the valley.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held, many guests being present to wish the couple much joy in life, after which Mr. and Mrs. Crowell left on their wedding tour by automobile through New Hampshire and Canada. They will be at home to their many friends after November 1st, in their newly furnished home, 57 Lincoln avenue, the house being the wedding gift to the bride from her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Caulkins of Middletown. The bride also received many other most beautiful gifts, including linen, cut glass, china, money, silverware, electrical appliances and household articles.

Born in Providence, R. I., the bride came to Norwich with her parents about five years ago. She graduated from Providence schools and also from LaSalle Seminary, Auburndale, Mass., where she was a member of the Glee club and took a prominent part in the student life at the seminary. Since returning to Norwich she has for the past three years been in the office with her father at the Williams Motor Company on Main street. She is a member of Park Congregational church and is active in church life.

The groom was born in Norwich and graduated from Broadway Grammar school. Following two years at the Norwich Academy, during which time he was active in school life, he attended and graduated from Goddard Seminary, class of 1922, where he was a member of the Glee club, manager of the Goddard Record and prominent in school athletics. He is employed as a salesman in his father's business in leather and shoe findings.

The travelling gown worn by the bride was of black crepe, heavily beaded and she wore a hat to match.

Among the many out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Smith, Milford; Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Tisdale, Reed Tisdale, Miss Sally Tisdale, all of Edgewood, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carlton, Miss Virginia Carlton, Mr. and Mrs. G. Walter Morgan, the Misses Ruth and Virginia Morgan, Danbury; Miss Emma Gobillot, Sharon; Mrs. James Stoddard, Gales Ferry; Miss Fay Davis, Saco, Maine; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Patrick, Herbert H. The ceremony was performed in New York city Sept. 12, 1924, by Monsignor Waring, oishop over the army and navy.

Mrs. Hoppes was graduated from the Wm. W. Backus hospital training school, class of 1918, and for the past four years has been stationed at various naval hospitals.

The couple will reside at 216 Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Fern—Lahn.

Sunday evening at 6 o'clock in the beautiful ballroom of the new Elmwood hotel at Colchester the marriage of Samuel Fern of New London and Miss Mae Lahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Lahn of Westerly, took place before 200 guests who included relatives and friends from Westerly, New London, Norwich, Boston, Worcester and Providence.

Following the ceremony, an elaborate banquet was served under the direction of the hotel's manager, S. Davidson, and the chief steward, W. Davidson, and an orchestra furnished music.

The bridal couple left at 10.45 for a honeymoon that will include Washington, and upon their return will reside on Pequot avenue, New London, where Mr. Fern has purchased a handsome residence. He is the successful proprietor of the Star restaurant on State street, New London, and his bride is the daughter of a wealthy Hebrew family in Westerly.

MRS FANNIE WELCH NOT A CANDIDATE

Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, of Columbia, vice chairman of the democratic state central committee, has definitely declined to become a candidate for the democratic congressional nomination in the second district. Hamilton Holt of Woodstock and several others in the Twenty-eighth senatorial district have been urging Mrs. Welch to run for congress.

Captain Frank P. Fenton of Windham minority leader in the last session of the house of representatives, appears certain of the democratic nomination in the second district. Raymond Jacobs, who ran against Congressman Freeman two years ago, said during the state convention, that he stood ready to support Fenton for the nomination.

NEW RULING ON KICK-OFF IN FOOTBALL MADE

New York, Sept. 21.—A change in the football rules for 1924 which permits the receiving eleven to be behind a line ten yards in front of the point from which the kickoff is made, no matter what yard line is chosen by the kicking team, it was announced today by Chairman E. K. Hall of the American Intercollegiate football rules committee.

The following clause is added to section 3, rule 8 and is effective immediately:

"In case the kickoff is made from a point behind the middle of the field, the opponents shall be behind a line ten yards in front of the spot from which the kick is made."

In 1923 and for several years previous, the rules provided that a team should kick off from "it's own forty yard line at a point equidistant from the side lines." At the meeting of the rules committee last February the kicking point was placed at midfield, artificial tees were abolished and the opposing eleven was restrained on its own forty-yard line.

It was then suggested that a muddy field it might be difficult to get away a good kick without the use of an artificial tee and accordingly the rule was changed to provide that the kickoff might be made from the middle of the field or "any point directly back of it," thus making it possible to go back such distance as might be necessary to get a firm shot for the kick.

Immediately coaches and officials foresaw a result that might cause some serious gridiron situations this fall. The rules were studied closely and it was learned that while the opposing team was restraining on its forty yard line the kicking eleven might retreat to any part of its territory, directly behind the center of the midfield line, make a short kick and recover the ball itself at Midfield, the kicking team being permitted to recover after the ball his traveled ten yards.

A telegraphic poll of the rules committee members was taken and the situation was relieved legally by lifting the forty-yard line restriction on the receiving eleven. The receivers may now range ten yards from the point of kickoff at all times.

This and many other phases of the new rules will be considered by the eastern football officials in their annual interpretation meeting here tomorrow night.

Gave Wonderful Psychic Messages.

Psychic messages which were declared by those in the audience to be nothing short of marvelous were given Sunday evening by I. Hazel Stoddard of Boston. The audience was astonished at the number and the clearness of the messages that came through Mr. Hazen from many well known Norwich people who have passed on.

Solos were rendered by Miss Charlotte Fowler and James Hollingsworth with Hugh Kinder as accompanist.

RED SOX HAND INDIANS A DOUBLE BEATING

Cleveland, Sept. 21.—Boston made it three straight from Cleveland today, winning a double header 2 to 0 and 11 to 5. Errors produced Boston's runs in the first game, Miller, a recruit pitcher allowing only six hits.

Roy's wilderness in the ninth inning of the second game was his undoing. The score:

TODD COLEMAN BESTS COLBERG IN FINAL GAME OF EAST SIDE SERIES

If Walter Johnson and Dazzy Vance oppose each other in the world's series next month there will be no more tense rivalry than there was Sunday afternoon right over on the East Side field when Berger Colberg and Todd Coleman pitched against each other. Of course, it is understood that we are not trying to compare Colberg and Coleman with either Vance or Johnson, but are just speaking of the rivalry between well known pitchers.

With a mid-summer sun glaring down upon 18 players, nine of whom ran along with understanding that Bald Head Why Did I Kiss That Girl? and nine who have not yet made the great mistake, a game that will long be remembered by the East Side, was played Sunday afternoon with the Married Men coming out on the long end of a 15 to 14 score after 11 innings of gruelling play. By virtue of this victory the married men, who are fortunate enough handled the company shekels, were enriched by $100 which will be divided pro rata. The single men who were so indiscreet as to wager on uncertainty are bemoaning the loss of an equal amount of coin of the realm.

Little did the crowd that left the field after the game guess that in one heart on that field there was a sincere feeling of sadness. This heart was in the manly breast of Berger Colberg, and the feeling of sadness found vent through his blue eyes. Tears streamed down those bronzed cheeks, tears shed, not for himself, but those that had lost their money through his pitching. Berger bore the burden of defeat becomingly, caring little for himself but regretting the financial setback he had given his teammates. However, his buddies of the diamond were quick to assure him that it was not his fault any more than theirs, it was the luck of the game and the best team won.

In comparison, Todd Coleman walked from the field with the proud air of the victor, not caring a hurrah or a raw him either. He rightly deserved this victory for he had put his whole heart and soul into the game, not to pay quite a few of his hard-earned dollars. It is rumored that Todd had wagered heavily on himself for this game and had secured 2 to 1 money which would net him a tidy little sum. Perhaps this is the reason why Todd's life partner insisted on sitting on the Married Men's bench to encourage her hubby and at the same time keep a watchful eye on the family bankroll. If Todd don't buy the wife a new dress or some other equally suitable gift with his winnings, his name will be mud on the East Side.

But to get back to the game itself. It was a real battle for blood, each team struggling to get a stranglehold on the opposition. The Married Men were two men short when the game was about to start but enlisted two other unfortunates, who although they do not live on the East Side, walk over there once in a while to enjoy the scenery. The Married Men took the field promptly at 3 o'clock and the battle was on. The Single Men promptly scored two runs in the first half of the inning and the Married Men just as promptly scored three, and so it went until the fifth or sixth inning when the Married Men forged ahead and at one time had a five-run lead. Here it was that Todd Coleman thought of his money and weakened a little and the Single Men crept up, until in the ninth inning they were two runs in advance. Coleman, sensing that his money was fast taking winks plead with his teammates to do something. His pleading was not in vain for they promptly tied up the score but could not push over the winning run. Going into the tenth inning with the score deadlocked Coleman pitched hard and a fast double play held his opponents without a score. Then in the last of the tenth Calkins, who led the batting attack for the Married Men came through with a hit, stole second and was advanced by Tommy James' bunt. Then to the bat came Cy Perkins, a former member of the Poquetanuck Blues (not a song but a baseball team). Cy felt the responsibility that rested upon him and he was equal to the occasion for his sharp hit to short scored Calkins with the winning run. Thus ended a great game.

Matt Delaney was chosen as umpire and officiated in satisfactory style. For the Single Men Bob Woodmansee and "Smiling Jimmy" Pedace were the leading hitters, Jimmy getting five hits out of seven times up and Bob getting four doubles out of six times up. Coleman fanned ten men while Colberg fanned three. Calkins was the hitting fiend for the Married Men. The score:

MONTVILLE-QUAKER HILL SERIES NOW DEADLOCKED

(Special to The Bulletin)

Quaker Hill, Sept. 21.—All chances of a clean sweep o fthe inter-township baseball series, between Montville and Quaker Hill for the latter team met with a little disappointment here this afternoon. After losing the first game Quaker Hill by a 22 to 2 score, Montville with Caron on the mound came back strong and won the second game of the series by a 10 to 2 score.

The series which has the two towns gripped in a controversy as to the best nine, drew a large crowd for every one it seems is baseball mad. The Montville nine made short work of Kirchoff and chased him off the mound in the fifth inning. Nine runs had been scored off his delivery until he was relieved by Widner of the Sub Base. Hawes was on the receiving end for Widner, and the game from that point on was interesting.

A home run by Hamm, in the fourth with a man on the bases gave the locals their only tallies. The hitting of Caron, Barry, and Hawes featured.

How It's Done in the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham, New York Giants

Score 4 to 4. Team at bat has runners on first and third with two out. The pitcher is at the bat.

Where should catcher throw the ball, if runner on first attempts to steal second?

To make a throw of this kind the catcher should know the speed of the runner on third base. If the man on first is slow, he should make a perfect throw to second in order to get him. If the runner going to second should pull a delayed steal and the catcher makes a perfect throw, the infielder taking it at second would always have a mighty good chance of catching the runner coming from third to home. Such a play is quite easy if the shortstop or second baseman, whoever takes the throw, has a good arm.

The east's "Big Three," Harvard, Princeton and Yale, do not open their drives until the following week.

Cornell, which shared eastern honors with Yale in 1923, has St. Bonaventure as an opponent Saturday.

Vanderbilt, which was crowned southern conference champion last year, meets Howard Saturday.

Illinois, on October 4 face a formidable opponent in Nebraska. Michigan's first opponent is Miami on the same date.

California's Golden Bears, the Pacific coast's perennial champions, open their season Saturday against Santa Clara.

In the east, other outstanding elevens that start play include Syracuse, Pennsylvania, Penn. State, Washington and Jefferson, Dartmouth, Pittsburgh, and West Virginia, none have opponents likely to extend them.

RANGERS LOSE FIRST GAME OF LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 21.—The New London Rangers soccer team opened its present season against the Scandia A. C. of Hartford in a regular schedule game of the newly formed soccer league in this state. Playing brilliantly throughout but forced to play against the breaks of the game, the Whalers were chalked down for a defeat in the league standing. The final score was two goals to one in favor of the Capitol City players.

Although the play was continually hovering around the Scandia goal, all attempts to put the ball through the post for a score met with disappointment. The forward line of the Rangers was especially strong and the ball was taken from the possession of the Hartford players on numerous occasions. The first score made by either team came after twenty minutes of play in the first half. Olmquist shot the ball through the posts. New London retaliated in the second half with a goal, which showed some fine work, on the part of the local players. This tied the score at one-all, but in one of the numerous breakaways, Anderson kicked the ball squarely into the hands of the Rangers goal-keeper, who messed it up and let it slip by him for the winning goal.

SHIP TEAM BEATEN IN INDUSTRIAL FINALS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New Haven, Sept. 21. — The New London Ship and Engine company nine of New London, made a fine bid for the State Industrial baseball honors at Weiss Park, Saturday afternoon. The game although won by the Safety Car and Heating company nine of this city which eliminated the Chase Metal Works nine of Waterbury earlier in the afternoon by a 7 to 6 score, had all they could do to come out the winner in the second game against the Whalers. The final score of 4 to 0 does not show the real difference that the score would indicate between the two teams.

The Safety Car nine had the trump card up its sleeve, and that trump card was the former Eastern league twirler, and now Yale boxman, Anderson. Apparently expecting the stiffest opposition from the New London nine, the Safety Car manager saved his best twirler for the final fray. He did not err in his judgment, for the visitors gave one of the best exhibitions of baseball a team could put up and only a slight break in the second inning, which went against the visitors would have shown another aspect to the story.

Tillie Daniels and the recuperating George Shefiott, who composed the Bulkeley High school battery worked fine together and five hits were made off Daniels' delivery. The Whalers made four hits all told off Anderson, and of this total Barry accounted for two. In the second inning with men on first and third bases Tillie Daniels, the visiting pitcher hit a clean single to left center. The man on third scored, but Brewer who was stationed on first was declared out for not touching second base, when he made third on the hit. As two were down at the time the run did not count, and it robbed the locals of staging a fine rally for the head of the batting order was to follow Daniels. The visitors kicked strenuously over this decision of the umps but it stood.

The Safety Car scored three runs in the second, and Weston gave the trouble with a double, a triple followed this and wto misscues, furnished the three runs to the locals. This inning was the only frame that Daniels found in a hole, and in later innings he could not be budged for hits. He really deserves credit for the fine game he put up.

ATHLETICS BREAK EVEN WITH WHITE SOX

Chicago, Sept. 21. — Philadelphia and Chicago broke even in a doubleheader today, the Athletics winning the first game, 4 to 1, and the White Sox the second game, 12 to 5, the game being called in the eighth inning on account of rain. The locals were unable to hit Baumgartner in the first, while the visitors bunched their hits off Faber. In the second game the locals took advantage of bases on balls and piled up a big lead. Hale was ordered out of the game for objecting to a decision by Umpire Hildebrand in the second game. Scores:

MOOSUP WINS EASY GAME FROM SOUTHBRIDGE CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Moosup, Sept. 21.—Errors by Southbridge during the first two innings gave Moosup enough runs to beat the visitors 7 to 4 here this afternoon. Three of Southbridge's runs that came in the third inning were also largely due to loose playing. After the third inning it was a pitching duel between Chick Davis and Lattoille, the former having the best of the argument. Davis yielded four scattered hits while Lattoille was touched for seven. The fielding feature of the game was a pretty running catch by Harry Mills. The score:

SUB BASE OPENS FOOTBALL SEASON WITH 12 TO 0 VICTORY OVER WRIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 21.—Improving in its play after each succeeding play, the Submarine Base by scoring two touchdowns, one in the second and one in the fourth periods, inaugurated its 1924 football season with a victory. With conditions favoring football, and a large opening day crowd on hand, the Base after getting off to a belated start romped off with what at first seemed a U. S. S. Wright victory. The final score was 12 to 0 for the local gobs, the two points after the touchdowns being both missed.

Exibiting a powerful running attack with the closing of the first quarter, the victors almost put the dampers on a Base victory. Running an end run, the only one tried by either team the entire afternoon, and which netted the visitors nineteen yards, paved the way for a temporary spurt that was expected to end up in a touchdown. Two more succeeding runs of twelve and eight yards each, brought the Wright within striking distance of the Base goal for the first time during the afternoon. The march of the Wright team down the field, began at the 42 yard line and was halted abruptly on the Base's one yard line. This spurt showed two things that the rival coaches did not fail to point out to their quarter backs. The first that line plays were not successful, and second that the Base line could hold when they had their backs to the wall, literally speaking.

The ball fluctuated in about mid field during the first period, and the U. S. S. Wright advance upon the Base goal came as the result of a fumble by O'Hara of a punt. Currey immediately substituted for O'Hara, after that fumble but the Wright being presented with a golden opportunity, came very near upsetting all calculations and gaining the first touch down. The Wright completely out played the Base in this half, but a fortunate piece of work and some exceptionally good interference brought the Base their first score in the second quarter after the ball had been in possession of the visitors, by means of an exchanging of punts. Completing three forward passes in three previous attempts, the visitors tried their fourth, but to their dismay, Meska grabbed the pig skin on his own 18-yard line and galloped the length of the field of 82 yards to a touch down. Good work by Murphy and McKernan, who formed the rear guard around Meska, made this touch down possible. For two of the visitors were in the act of over hauling him when they were taken out of the play by Murphy and McKernan, the rest of the distance to the goal line, Meska traveled unmolested.

Wright made six first downs in the first half, while the Base failed to make even one. However in the second half, the Base began an offensive drive down the field that gave them satisfaction of running through the Wright line at will. It was four here by Locke, seven more by Locke, three by Meska and so on until the ball was brought to the Wright one yard line. It was an easy matter for O'Hara to go the final chalk mark for the second last touchdown of the afternoon.

The work of Waldman for the visitors outshone that of any individual on either team. Waldman was called on more times than any of the other three backs, and he responded gamely. He was responsible for the long end run, and another on tackle play he reeled off 15 yards. He was the big gun of the Wright attack, but he alone could not do the work of eleven men. The success that was Wright's in the early minutes of play was a short cross buck, and it was necessary for the Base secondary men to stop the opposing player who was carrying the ball.

Baldy Locke for the Base could not be touched as far as his generalship and his line bucking was concerned. Locke was the biggest thorn in the side of the visitors, for after Waldman for the Wright eleven intercepted a pass and had a clear field, he was tackled from the side by Locke, before he brought the ball very far into Base territory. Murphy's play at end, and his punting also helped along. While the line play of May, Bailey and McKernan featured.

The next game on the Base schedule is with Springfield College at Springfield, Mass., on Saturday, Sept. 27.

WILD PITCH BY BEALL GIVES TIGERS GAME

Detroit, Sept. 21.—A wild pitch by Beall, who had relieved Hoyt in the sixth inning, gave Detroit the run that resulted in a 4 to 3 victory for the Tigers today and gave them three straight wins over New York. Wild throws paved the way for all three Tiger victories, Dugan's wild throw to first in the ninth inning of the first game resulting in the winning run being scored, while Shawkey's wild pitch Saturday let in the deciding counter.

All Tiger runs were scored in the sixth inning. Manush opened with a scratch two-bagger that Meusel lost in the sun. Cobb got a single when Hofmann pushed his bunt over the foul line. Heilmann then smashed one through shortstop, Manush scoring. Pratt laid down a bunt and Cobb streaked home with a run when Hoyt threw hurriedly to Hofmann. Beall then relieved Hoyt and walked O'Rourke. Burke flied out and Heilmann was thrown out at the plate.

Bassler was purposely passed, filling the bases. A wild pitch by Beall then let Pratt score. Currey's O'Rourke came in with the fourth run soon afterward on Whitehill's single. Meusel's throw cut down Bassler at the plate for the third out of the inning.

SENATORS TAKE SHORT GAME FROM BROWNS

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—Washington made it two out of three by defeating the Browns in today's game here 6 to 4. Owing to a heavy downpour the start of the game was delayed one hour and a half, and so the game was delayed one hour and a half, and so the game was called on account of darkness at the end of the seventh inning.

By taking today's game the Senators gained a lead of two full games on the second place Yankees who lost to Detroit.

Despite the heavy rain, a crowd estimated at more than 10,000, assembled at the park and waited till the game was started.

Dixie Davis, who was batted from the box in the first inning of Friday's game, was sent back to the mount today by Manager Sisler, but was hit freely. Goslin hit his third home run in two days. Jacobson also drove out a home run in the fourth inning with one man on base.

Zachary, who was given the pitching assignment by Manager Harris, fared well, but weakened in the fourth inning when the locals scored all their runs. A wild throw by Sisler in the sixth inning, gave the visitors their fifth and deciding run.

BROOKLYN BEATS PIRATES OUT OF SECOND PLACE

New York, Sept. 21.—Brooklyn regained second place and advanced to within half a game of the Giants today by defeating Pittsburgh in a ten inning battle by 2 to 1. It was the farewell game of the Pirates here and the struggle took on the aspect of a world's series contest.

Burleigh Grimes went the route and while frequently in trouble kept the Pirates away from the plate until the ninth, when Traynor's single and Maranville's double with nobody out tied the score. Taylor saved the Dodgers from probable defeat by picking the rabbit off second by a fine throw.

Kremer kept pace with Grimes until the sixth when Mitchell scored for Brooklyn on a single, a steal and Fournier's hit. Kremer gave way to a pinch hitter

JEWETT CITY

Sunday in the borough was one of surpassing fall beauty. With a mean temperature of 70 degrees, hundreds of people enjoyed refreshing walks afield. Returning, many brought beautiful bouquets of asters and golden rod which in local hillsides are now combined in radiant display.

The pupils in the schools here, who were enthusiastic early spring botanists, and easily identified a hundred flowers, are now up against a different proposition. In this end of Connecticut there are 80 species of golden rod and fifty-four of asters. The flower lover, be he amateur or an ardent "semi-pro," who classifies a dozen sorts of each flower, can justly lay some claim to botanical skill.

A colony of purple multiflora asters, grows in this section, on the first cross-road to Canterbury, above Butts' bridge. A very rare golden rod occurs on the Stone Hill road, near the Griswold town farm. It is the lanceolata, and with its long narrow leaves was found growing five feet tall. Several were searching for bitter-sweet, but this once frequently found vine, has either become very elusive, or unusually scarce.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Kanahan have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Mabel Evelyn, and Byron Pierce Kinney, the ceremony to take place at their home, Wild Acres farm, in Lisbon, at 12 o'clock, Oct. 7.

Mrs. Willis Chapman returns to her home in Melrose Highlands, Mass., today (Monday) after a visit at Mrs. E. B. Cheney's.

Rev. William Muttart of Preston City preached at the Congregational church Sunday.

The beautiful bouquet of peerless "Maude Adams" dahlias at the Baptist church Sunday, was a gift from Rev. W. J. Reynolds, of Newent, and was from his Pilgrim gardens. Few flowers of equal beauty are to be seen in the gardens on this side of the Quinebaug.

The vital statistics for August show six births: Joseph Eugene Roland Chabotto, son of Eugene and Alfreda Audet Chabotto; Sara Hattie Blonder, daughter of Samuel and Freda Gloger Blonder; Estel Clair, daughter of Herbert and Estel Roy LaFere; Eugene F., son of Eugene and Blanche Parker Raymond; Edgar Ernest, son of Edgar and Vachn Tourtellotte; Mary, daughter of William and Katherine Blake Murray.

There were four marriages: Chester Stafford and Ruth Peterson; Edward Murphy and Blanche Jodoin; Andrew Anderson and Marzini Pulaski; Leo Roberts and Lillian Corby.

Five deaths are recorded: Patrick Lyden, Eugene Dragon, Constandi Mioduszeroski, Daniel Gagnon, Sarah A. Lee.

Saturday opinions on the street were about evenly divided, relative to the proposed purchase of the Jewett City water works by the borough.

One man allowed "as how it wasn't him as was going to loan the borough the bones to buy it."

Also, argument is presented by a "pro" agitator, in citing the city of Willimantic. That city even has to pump all the water supply, yet the revenue from it pays a large per cent. of the municipal running expenses.

Finally, some sense is apparent when a citizen, a large property owner, says he believes in letting well enough alone. We have good service, good water and comparatively reasonable rates. It is believed that when the present franchise expires, attractive bargains could be made again.

It cost this borough $30,000 when it made several unsuccessful attempts to manufacturs its own electricity. Within a short time the board of electric light commissioners, with George J. Moeller as chairman, so successfully managed the electric light affairs (with every volt of current bought of an outside firm) that the price to the consumer was cut from 11 cents to 10 per kilowatt.

The large list of women to be made voters includes Annie E. Bromley, Katherine Bromley, Rose Barry, Isabella Blair, Irene Brickley, Mary Blake, Camille Casavant, Fortuna Cyr, Virginia Desjardines, Rosanna Desjardines, Ida Ducharme, Ethel M. Fiske, Sarah D. Fiske, Anna Falvey, Katherine Guillet, Julia Guillet, Mary Havey, Marion Hill, Minnie Johnson, Nettie B. Johnson, Florence LaBarre, Elisa LaLiberte, Florence LaLibrete, Dorothy LaLiberte, Ethel Morgan, Stella Miss, Katherine McCarthy, Mildred Olsen, Margaret Peniner, Bessie Rosenberg, Anna Ruszenas, Jennie Roy, Mrs. Joseph Rosol, Beatrice Read, Edna Sharkey, Tillie Streckna, Anna E. Wilcox, Evelyn Woodmansee, and Elizabeth Willis.

Thirty-three years ago, Mrs. J. C. Fifield entertained the Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church at her home in Sylvandale. Horace Fifield sang. Miss Jessie and Arthur E. Swift gave a piano and violin duet. Miss Lou P. Young a soprano solo, and Miss Bessie V. Fanning a piano solo. On the same date a special train ran to Jewett City, after the performance of the Drummer Boy in the Broadway theatre, Norwich. The next Sunday the organ at the Baptist church was played by Miss Alice D. Phillips, on account of the indisposition of Charles Edw. Prior.

A local man when recalling that special trains were after run to Jewett City from Norwich, after special theatre performances or fraternal occasions, was overheard to say, "Today it would be cheaper, and give better satisfaction, to move the theatre to Jewett City, and then move it back to Broadway after the show.

There's interest in the fact that now after 33 years, Miss Ellen Prior, the daughter of Mrs. Alice D. Phillips Prior, is the organist at the Baptist church.

TWO PUTNAM YOUTHS ROB SERVICE STATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Plainfield, Sept. 2.—About 11 o'clock, Saturday evening, someone entered the Grav Service Station, on the Canterbury road and looted the cash drawer. The intruders also took six new Ford tires and tubes from the stock room.

About 10.30 that same evening two young fellows, about 20, came to Mr. Nygren, proprietor of the station, to have their car, a Ford, repaired. They told him that they were stranded and the car needed a new connecting rod. Mr. Nygren offered his services and the parts required on their promises to repay him. A roll of fifty pennies was taken from the drawer. On further examination of the car he saw that two rods were needed and he told the driver, who informed him that they would be able to proceed without the second rod.

Sunday morning when an employe went into the office the window on the south side was wide open; further examination showed that it had pried open with a bar.

The state police barracks in Danielson, after being notified, sent officers to the garage and after an investigation they found a footprint and a fingerprint on the window sill.

A new connecting rod was also missing from the stock room.

The police notified Mr. Nygren on Sunday afternoon that they had another clue and would make an arrest soon.

The two men in the Ford sedan, who are suspected, were identified as residents of Putnam.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Sept. 21.—Stock and bond prices pointed higher this week with increasing activity in both markets. Activity in the stock market was devoted largely to specialties in which favorable developments are pending, although both standard industrials and rails, which had been fluctuating within a narrow trading area for a fortnight in apparent disregard of news developments, showed a tendency to discount reports of improvements in various lines of trade.

Easy money rates, despite the government's billion dollar turnover and unusually heavy new financing, were an important contributing factor to the firmness of the bond market. The most important offering was the $90,000,000 Canadian issue of one-year 4 per cent. notes. Call money held at 2 per cent., but there was a noticeable easing of time money rates.

Cotton prices again lost ground on increasing indications that the crop would exceed earlier expectations. Wheat held relatively steady, but corn prices sagged in reflection of favorable weather in the corn belt.

Foreign exchanges were reactionary as a result of a large volume of grain and cotton bills.

THREE PENS GO PAST THE 2,000 EGG MARK

One pen of Rhode Island Reds and two pens of Leghorns in the Storrs laying contest have now passed the 2,000 egg mark or an average of over 200 eggs per hen. Another pen of Reds from Massachusetts, and two additional pens of Leghorns, one from Maine and the other from Missouri, are sure to reach 2000 eggs before the end of September. In the forty-six pens of White Leghorns owned [illegible] Gaze of Ramsey, N. J., [illegible] lead [illegible] with a score of 61 eggs and a pen of the same breed owned by George Bailey of Grand Rapids, Mich., is in close second with 60 eggs. Mating [illegible] pens of Leghorns from [illegible] contest placed with [illegible] 47 eggs each. The [illegible] for all pens was 3166 eggs or a fraction over 45 per cent.

The college has recently taken occasion to warn poultrymen against the use of garbage for chickens. Within a few weeks the college has been called to diagnose three cases which were reported as epidemics of parrot fever. These were all believed to be due to the inclusion of garbage as part of the poultry ration. Scraps from one's own table are always relished by hens and doubtless clean garbage would be entirely satisfactory. The trouble, however, is that garbage is not always well taken care of. Those who suspect trouble from this source should especially examine the crops for the presence of moldy [illegible].

RECEIVES HER COMMISSION TO GO TO MISSIONARY FIELD IN INDIA

MISS GERTRUDE S. AVERY.

Under the auspices of the Eastern Connecticut Branch of Woman's Board of Foreign Missions an impressive service of commission for Miss Gertrude Stark Avery as a missionary was held at the First Congregational church Sunday morning.

Miss Avery, the second daughter of Senior Deacon and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery of West Town street, is soon to take up her duties as a missionary in India, having received her appointment from the American board of commissioners for foreign missions to the Marathi mission in western India, and is to teach in a girls' school at Ahmednagar.

In the very large congregation were several clergymen, also many representatives from other churches, including Stafford, Hanover, Lisbon, Gales Ferry, Stonington, New London, Preston City, Lebanon and large delegations from the local Congregational churches.

Seated on the platform with the church pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, who presided at the service, were two of Miss Avery's uncles, Rev. Frank A. Fuller of Stafford and Rev. Dwight C. Stone of Stonington, who had a part in the service, also Rev James L. Barton, D. D., secretary of the American Board, Boston, Mass., who presented Miss Avery her commission and delivered the address of the day. Rev. Mr. Fuller read the scripture lesson from Luke 10: 1-2; 17: 24. Rev. Mr. Stone offered prayer.

From the Woman's Board, The Welcome to the Field was by Mrs. Harriet Hyde Zumbro and Miss Margaret Wells. The third member, Mrs. Theodore S. Lee, was unable to be present.

The Pledge of Support from the Eastern Connecticut Branch was by Miss Abby Willard, president. During this part of the service the candidate and women speakers were also on the platform, which had been prettily decorated with a choice variety of asters, the gift of Miss Emily Wilcox, and arranged by Miss Rose K. Durr and Miss Mary Watties.

Organist Herbert L. Yerrington was in charge of the musical part of the service. Two anthems were given by the choir, God So Loved the World, by Stainer, and O Light! O Love! O Spirit! by Pinsuti.

In the course of his address Rev. Dr. Barton said: This is not the first time a service of this kind has been held in this church, which has a splendid record of members who have gone before to foreign fields, putting themselves in the hands of the Lord. Special mention was made of Rev. Edward Huntington Smith and his work in the Foo Chow mission, China. Acts 13: 2, was the text referred to by the speaker, as they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me, Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them.

We are here for much prayer, said Dr. Barton. We are here for one who is to go forth as a missionary, sent by the Holy Ghost to India, to carry the gospel of the Lord across the world. Our friend, Gertrude Avery, can go forth only by an organization back of her, as it will be necessary to have something backing her, something directing her, this great organization working together to carry out the work of the Lord. In promoting the Spirit of God, the receipts of the American Board at the closing of the year were over $2,000,000.

The difference in which Miss Avery will go as a missionary to India, in comparison to 111 years ago, is that she will be greeted by thousands of men and women Christians who are awaiting her arrival at Bombay, where she is to land at the expiration of her journey. In 1813, when the first missionaries tried to get into Calcutta, some landing at Bombay, they were in the courts for six months, missionaries years ago being forbidden to carry on their work, or six months they knocked at the door of India to preach the gospel, and for six months were refused. Missionary work began then. What a contrast to 111 years ago, the speaker said, when doors were closed; now they are open. These missionaries are preaching the gospel to these people to make them good citizens, intelligently, morally, etc. According to census there are over 5,000,000 Christians in India today. The world is moving into a brighter light.

The only foundation for continued peace in the world is extending the teachings of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, as Miss Avery is going forth to do in carrying His message. These missionaries are not only carrying the gospel of salvation, but are raising up a body of educated men and women to be leaders. There are 100,000 students in Christian schools there. The American Board of Foreign Missions is one of the greatest organizations in the world. It is welcomed by Japan, China, India, Near East. This is the greatest movement of Christian civilization, Christian government, Christian education in the world. This organization is back of this member of this church. Referring to educational work, Miss Avery is to take up the study of the language where she is going and while it will be hard for her, she will eventually speak it as well as the English language.

Although Miss Avery has given herself to the service of Jesus Christ in His partnership for life, a glorious fellowship, she will be back home among her family and friends in five years, to remain for a year.

Dr. Barton congratulated the First Congregational church in having such a member to be given to India. The way has opened to her and we can stand back of her in leaving her home and friends, with our prayers, sacrifices and support.

Rev. Mr. Bailey at the conclusion of the address said it was a great privilege to hear from a man who knew India so well.

A beautiful part of the service was when Dr. Barton presented Miss Avery her commission.

When she received her welcome to the field by Mrs. Zumbro and Miss Wells, also the pledge of support of the Eastern Connecticut Branch by Miss Willard, all spoke in a most encouraging way of her future life work. Mrs. Zumbro, a former missionary from this church, engaged in this work for many years in India, mentioned that she could speak from experience, and after personally welcoming Miss Avery to India assured her of a cordial welcome from hundreds of girls, whom it will be a privilege to come in contact with. While sometimes there are real hardships, you will enjoy the life that Christ has given you.

If you enjoy teaching in America you will be more eager to teach there among these hundreds of untaught girls, said Miss Wells. You will have an unlimited spirit of help, you will enjoy studying the language of India, and whether studying or teaching you will enjoy doing it for Christ, so I welcome you to a service of joy.

Miss Willard expressed the enthusiasm and joy of the Eastern Connecticut Branch, which is about to begin its fiftieth anniversary, in Miss Avery, also Miss Elizabeth Konz of Colchester, who is going out as its representative at this time. Those who are already there will welcome you and no doubt are waiting for you. Miss Willard made mention of Miss Avery's beloved aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Ussher, who gave her life in the work; also the work of her grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. John O. Barrows, who served so many years in Turkey. We will remember you with our prayers, support, courage and all necessary for you to carry on your work, and we are glad that you are free to give your life. Those who have gone out from this church as members in recent years to carry on the work, also others associated with this church in later years, who previously had served in this way, include Miss Susan C. Hyde, for many years a missionary in Turkey, Rev. and Mrs. Edward Huntington Smith of Ing Hok, China, Rev. and Mrs. William Zumbro (Harriet Hyde), for many years rendering the service in India, Rev. and Mrs. J. O. Barrows and their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. Ussher and Mrs. Ussher (Elizabeth Barrows), who served many years in Turkey.

After Rev. Mr. Bailey assured Miss Avery of the prayers of a large congregation, not for today, but throughout the years, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed with many communicants. Rev. Mr. Bailey was assisted in the communion service by Dr. Barton, who also pronounced the benediction.

At the conclusion of the service the women of the church served coffee in the chapel to the out of town visitors who brought their luncheon.

RUBBER OUTPUT VALUE INCREASES 35 PER CENT

Connecticut, which came second to Massachusetts in the New England states in the number of establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of rubber products last year shared in the general increase of about 35 per cent. in the value of products made last year as compared with the preceding census year, according to a report of the bureau of census of the department of commerce at Washington.

Connecticut had 23 of the 528 such establishments in the country, which reported products valued at $953,643,355, of which $567,217,159 represented rubber tires and inner tubes; $134,986,879, rubber boots and shoes; $58,115,453, rubber belting and hose, and $193,323,864, other products such as rubberized fabrics, and rubber heels.

Massachusetts, which ranked second in the country in the number of such business houses, had seventy; Rhode Island, eight; while Maine shared forty-five with 17 other states.

The total production of pneumatic tire castings for automobiles and trucks increased from 37,297,919, valued at $377,829,338, in 1921 to 45,362,747, valued at $457,374,139, last year, the rates of increase in number and value being 66.2 per cent and 21 per cent, respectively. In the same period the output of inner tubes for automobiles and trucks increased from 32,082,002, valued at $32,858,181, to $56,933,646, valued at $74,660,021, the rates of increase being 77.5 per cent. and 41.2 per cent., respectively.

The output of rubber boots increased from 6,532,212 pairs in 1921 to 10,097,896 last year, an increase of 54.6 per cent.; of rubber shoes and overshoes, to 37,125,061 and 22,977,714, respectively, from a total of 57,191,040, an increase of 5.1 per cent.; while the value of tires and inner tubes rose from $450,339,135 to $567,217,141, an increase of 26 per cent.

BROTHERS STICK TOGETHER IN THE NAVAL SERVICE

At commendatory mast on September 11, George F. Lusk and Clyde T. Lusk presented themselves for change of rating from Seale to MM2c. From the day of their first enlistment to the present, these brothers have done duty on the same ship or station. They were born in New London, enlisted in the navy Sept. 23, 1920, together; served through their entire first enlistment together; shipped over together October 5, 1923; completed the course in the machinist's mate school together and now hold their rates as of the same date. It is their purpose, if possible, to "stick together" through the remainder of their cruise.

Few, if any, instances of this kind of such "stick-together-ability" are on record in the navy department. We wish the double Lusks double luck!—The Base newspaper.

Working on Tax Analysis.

Another meeting of the tax analysis committee is to be held this (Monday) evening in the assessors' office in the court house. There will be a further discussion and study of tax conditions in Norwich.

ROADSIDE GAS STATIONS INCREASING IN STATE

New roadside gasoline stations are being established in Connecticut this year at the rate of about three a day. Licenses have been granted for 650 of them by the state motor vehicle department since the first of the year, and applications continue to pour in without interruption. The sale of fuel for motor vehicles is a comparatively new form of employment to thousands of people.

There are now over 3,500 retail gasoline dealers in Connecticut, licensed by the motor vehicle department at $2 each. The common impression is that they are supplied by three or four well-known wholesale distributors. The fact is, however, that the gasoline is being supplied to these Connecticut dealers by about a dozen principal wholesalers and some forty others of secondary importance, and the competition between most of them is keen. At the end of the first year of the gasoline tax which went into effect September 1, 1921, thirty three dealers had registered with the department as required by law, indicating a net increase of nineteen to date.

The people engaged in this business of supplying gasoline for motor vehicles handled about 66,000,000 gallons of taxable gasoline in the first eight months of this year for which approximately $14,708,000 was paid. Many gasoline stations are conducted in conjunction with roadside "hot dog" and refreshments stands for the purpose of encouraging motorists to stop and patronize the establishment.

Stands of this kind have increased so rapidly as to give concern to the motor vehicle department as to the increased traffic hazard they cause by influencing sudden stops and thoughtless parking.

It is due largely to the fact that it cost the manager of most roadside stands practically nothing to install his pumps and other equipment, that they have sprung up so rapidly. Many of the distributors put in the apparatus, grade the adjacent grounds, paint the buildings and furnish illumination free of charge to the manager of the station, who generally is the owner of the property. The common arrangement is that the owner leases the apparatus for $1, and the distributor does the rest, leaving the owner with his plant ready to retail the gasoline. The person who conducts the stand is required to obtain a state license, for which the fee is $2, paid upon approval of the location by the motor vehicle department whose inspectors judge the location merely from the standpoint of public safety.

BISHOP FREEMAN SICK, PRES. MARSHALL WILL SPEAK

A telegram was received by the officials of the chamber of commerce late Saturday afternoon from Right Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, D. C., stating that the bishop was confined to his room suffering from a severe cold. His physician stated that under no circumstances could it be possible for the bishop to keep his engagement in Norwich this (Monday) evening. The news was received with regret by the officials and an expression of sorrow, accompanied by good wishes for a speedy recovery for the bishop, is on the way to him.

The officers of the chamber found it necessary to secure a speaker, if possible, at once. President Benjamin T. Marshall of Connecticut college was immediately interviewed. Inasmuch as the college begins the fall term next Monday, consequently the president will be extremely busy, he suggested several speakers, stating, however, that if efforts to obtain one of them proved unsuccessful, he would address the members and their friends rather than have a disappointment occur. Earnest efforts were made to secure several possible speakers Saturday night without success. Thereupon President Marshall consented to address the meeting tonight, at a great deal of personal sacrifice, and upon very short notice.

President Marshall needs no introduction to the people of this state. A recognized leader of education, a scholar of great attainments, his addresses are eagerly sought. He is a forceful speaker, and it is very safe to state that the meeting this evening will be highly interesting and instructive.

TEMPLETON APPROVES PROJECT OF CHURCH AT STORRS

Governor Charles A. Templeton, who is an active churchman, has endorsed the movement to provide fuller religious and social opportunity for the young people who attend Connecticut Agricultural college by building a larger church and community house.

"Your appeal will interest the people of Connecticut of all denominations," the governor said. The project has also been endorsed by the college board of trustees and prominent alumni. The Storrs community is solidly back of it, yet this foundation is entirely separate from the college campus. In the opinion of John M. Wadhams, chairman of the state board of finance, the movement will accomplish better results than if the state were to undertake it. The plan has also been approved by Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Connecticut.

The Connecticut Federation of Churches will lend its support to the campaign for $250,000 needed to carry out the project and its secretary, the Rev. Morris E. Alling, will direct the campaign. The treasurer will be Fred P. Holt, chairman of the board of directors of the City Bank & Trust Co., of Hartford, and this bank will be the repository of funds. There is an executive committee and a general committee of fifty that has been named.

HOW SHALL A MAN DIE? "AS HE LIVES," SAYS PRIEST

"Behold a dead man was carried out," a phrase from the gospel for the Sunday, the fifteenth after Pentecost, was the text from which Rev. M. H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church preached at the 7.30 o'clock mass, Sunday. This gospel was Luke vii 11-16, narrating the restoration to life of the only son of the Widow of Naim.

In the brief time for his instruction Father May pointed out the certainty that sooner or later—maybe sooner than any of his listeners could foresee—the lifeless body of each must be carried out to the grave. It matters little, declared he, where or when one may die; the important question is how each dies, whether in friendship with God or in sin.

In the seventh chapter of Ecclesiastes is taught the lesson that it is better to go into the house of mourning than into the house of feasting, for the reason that the sight of the dead impresses upon man the brevity of his own span of life. Looking upon the face of the dead Isabella, consort of Charles V, famed and envied for her beauty, St. Francis Borgia was so moved by the change which death had wrought that he turned from the vanities of earth and became one of the saints of God. The avaricious man, gazing upon the coffined dead, realizes that he can take nothing with him out of this world, that that hoarded wealth which he has denied to the suffering poor he must one day leave behind.

Not when or where, but how one dies is of paramount importance. "Behold, a dead man was carried out." Father May urged his listeners to live righteously, that they might die worthily, meriting the favor of a merciful judgment.

In administering Holy Communion Father May, who read the low mass, was assisted by Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero.

POETRY

THE CAPTIVE SEEDS.

There comes a ghostly space
'Twixt midnight and the dawn,
When from the heart of London Town
The tides of life are drawn.

What time, when Spring is due,
The captives dungeoned deep
Beneath the stones of London Town
Grow troubled in their sleep.

And weeds—mint, mallow, dock,
Brambles in bondage sore,
And grasses blind in London Town
A thousand years and more.

Yet though beneath the stones
They starve, and overhead
The countless feet pace London Town
Of men who held them dead,

Like Samson, blind and scorned,
In pain their time they bide,
To raise the roots of London Town
And tumble down its pride.

Now will by proof and sign,
By men unheard, unseen,
They know that far from London Town
The woods once more are green.

But theirs is still to wait,
Deaf to the myriad hum,
Beneath the stones of London Town
A Spring that needs must come.

SKY MEADOWS.

The great still meadows of the sky
Seem full of peace, where love's desires
Strikes at our hearts like silver heard
From distances as limitless
As dream; and all entranced we be Gazing at a cloud and bird.

From this minutely measured field
Our drowsy sight may lift and rest
Into the higher range of air,
And our vain thoughts, being each
each,
May find it very sweet to yield
Their gradual yearnings there.

Our small cupped valley holds the sun
Brimmed to the edges, meadow grass
In goldenrod and fading clover . . .
Nothing abroad shall break our peace
Though leagues above, and near by us
The southward geese fly over.

TWO MURDERS PERPETRATED TO CLEAR WAY FOR MARRIAGE

Confession Signed by Rev. Lawrence M. Hight of Ina, Ill, Discloses Diabolical Plot—Poisoned His Own Wife and Bought the Poison With Which Mrs. Walford Sweetin, His Paramour, Killed Her Husband—Precautions Are Being Taken to Forestall Possible Mob Action.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 22.—The Rev. Lawrence M. Hight of Ina signed a new confession late today in which he said he poisoned his wife, Anna, and bought the poison with which Mrs. Wilford Sweetin killed her husband. They had planned to be married, the minister admitted. Mrs. Sweetin was ordered arrested.

Earlier in the day, the Ina clergyman had signed confessions that he had administered poison to both his wife and Sweetin. Until this afternoon he had steadfastly maintained Mrs. Sweetin was in no way to blame.

Fearing possible mob action, State's Attorney Frank G. Thompson telephoned the sheriff's office from Ina late today asking the jailer to throw a guard around the jail. Thompson said feeling was running high at Ina. Fifteen special deputy sheriffs were sworn in immediately.

MRS. SWEETIN HAS BEEN PLACED UNDER ARREST

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 22.—With the arrest tonight of Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, of Ina, 12 miles south of here, and an admission by the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, minister of Ina, that he had poisoned his wife and had bought the poison that had been administered to Wilford Sweetin, late husband of the arrested woman, State's Attorney Thompson tonight was making every effort to connect the two deaths.

Rev. Hight, in jail here since last Friday, confessed today. The state's attorney announced that Hight had administered the poison to his wife and that it was he who had purchased poison to be administered to Sweetin. It remains unsolved who gave Sweetin the poison that was found in his stomach by a chemist after the exhumation of the body on the day the clergyman was taken into custody.

The minister's confession came early this morning after an all-night visit in the sheriff's office where the prisoner was questioned. Reading from the Bible of favored passages of the minister's dead wife, is believed to have prompted Hight to deviate from his otherwise stoical attitude and to "make a clean breast of it."

In telling of the circumstances of his wife's death, the state's attorney announced, the clergyman had admitted that he had given her poison that he could marry Mrs. Sweetin. In his early confession, however, the state's attorney said, the prisoner had asserted he had administered the poison to relieve his wife of her pain.

Geneva, Sept. 22 (By the A. P.)—If three or four of the great powers—Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan—which have permanent seats on the council of the League of Nations, and ten other states members of the league ratify the protocol of arbitration and security which was made public today, there will open at Geneva on June 15, 1925, an international conference for the reduction of armaments.

The United States, like Germany, Russia and other non-members of the league, has been invited to participate in the conference, the program of which will be prepared under the direction of the council of the league.

The long awaited protocol draft was presented today officially to the commission on disarmament, by the "big twelve" composing the sub-committee.

The new draft was presented under impressive circumstances, all the delegates sitting silently in their places and looking rather solemn, as if they were subconsciously aware of taking part in a historic meeting destined perhaps to direct the world definitely into the path of peace.

WORLD FLIERS AT ROCKWELL FIELD, SAN DIEGO, CAL.

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 22.—America's round-the-world fliers returned today to Rockwell Field, San Diego, from which they took off last March to start on their globe-encircling trip.

As if to give good measure to an achievement already heralded far and wide, the fliers got in ahead of the announced schedule, disappointing part of a large crowd which was assembling to meet and cheer them.

The announced plan is for the fliers to resume tomorrow their trip to Seattle, the official starting point of the flight around the world. They expect to leave for Santa Monica about noon.

ENORMOUS SEIZURE OF LIQUOR IN LOUISIANA

New Orleans, La., Sept. 22.—Dry agents today seized thousands of cases of liquor at Mandeville and Bayou La Combe, across Lake Pontchartrain from New Orleans, and unearthed they said a gigantic conspiracy to ship liquor by carloads to the large cities in the south and middle west.

Ernest Prieto, wealthy sportsman, prominent member of St. Tammany Parish Law and Order League and parish political league leader was arrested. Agents said they found thousands of the bottles of wine in the store room in his general store at Mandeville.

J. H. Hemmingway, said by the officers to be the "brains" of the alleged conspiracy, was arrested as he attempted to leave Prieto's yard in his automobile.

The raid was the culmination of several weeks of investigation, prohibition officials said. The conspiracy, it was stated, involved also the movement of enormous quantities of liquor by automobile and motor truck.

Three Score Persons Were Killed by Storm

Besides the Dead, Many Suffered Injuries in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

(By The Asociated Press.)

Mounting through the day as new reports came in, the death toll of Sunday's storms in Minnesota and Wisconsin stood last night at three score persons, with sections of the latter state bearing the brunt of the havoc.

The known dead in Wisconsin had reached 53 last night, while Minnesota's total remained at five, but the continued isolation of many Wisconsin communities caused fear that the list in that state might be further increased.

Patchwork wires permitted only meager messages to trickle out of the devastated countryside in sections of central and northern Wisconsin, gradually swelling the list of casualties and sending into high figures the estimates of monetary damage.

Besides the many dead, perhaps an equal number suffered injuries, for from the Throp-Owen district alone, 25 seriously injured persons were sent to hospitals, principally at Chippewa Falls, Stanley and Owen, Wisconsin.

Agencies of aid directed their energies all day yesterday to the work of relief, giving surgical attention to the many injured, and finding shelter for those made homeless.

Violent wind and rain storms prevailed generally over Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotats, and extended southward into northern Iowa, the entire district suffering damage to trees, some corn crops and wire communication.

Around St. Paul, the wind attained a velocity of eighty miles an hour, fallen fences and signboards, and hundreds of broken windows.

In the Throp region in Wisconsin, an area seven miles southwest of that town extending from 12 to 15 miles toward Owen, was swept clean in many spots over a width of 300 to 400 feet. More than fifty farms were in the storm's path there.

Flattened barns, razed houses and shattered outbuildings on numerous farms readily explained the heavy loss of lives.

In South Dakota, Watertown reported heavy property damage to the section south and east of that city.

After the alleged hold-up, Schafrick chased a car containing some negro men and women as far as Newington, where he lost them, according to a report he made to the Berlin police at that time. New Haven, Sept. 22.—The detective bureau has been unable to find any trace of Henry Fenton, district manager of the Economy Stores, who has been missing since last Wednesday when he started up-state to visit other stores. According to the police, their investigation shows that he was in this city Saturday noon with Jack McKiernan, of 265 Putnam street. The police found, they claim, that he cashed a check on a Woodmont storekeeper for $40 but that this check was returned when it was found that he had but 53 cents in the bank. His wife says she had received no word from him and cannot explain his disappearance.

TO FIND DEFENSE VALUE OF AIR CRAFT AND WARSHIPS

Secretary of Army Wilbur is to Select a Special Board to Make an Intensive Study of the Matter—Action to Be Taken at the Request of President Coolidge—Selection Will Be Made After Consultation With Secretary of War Weeks

Washington, Sept. 22.—Selection of the special board to be appointed by Secretary Wilbur, under instructions given him by President Coolidge, to make an intensive study of the relative value for national defense of aircraft and capital ships, will be held up by Secretary Wilbur until he learns whether Secretary Weeks thinks it desirable to name a member to represent the army.

Secretary Wilbur said today he would seek the opinion of the war secretary on this question as soon as possible. Mr. Weeks is not expected to return to Washington from his New Hampshire home until Sept. 30, and it was indicated that Secretary Wilbur might not await an opportunity to confer with him personally, but would communicate with him meanwhile and thereby expedite creation of the board.

Secretary Wilbur was not prepared tonight to say definitely whether this would be his course in consulting Mr. Weeks, nor was he willing to indicate whether the scope of the investigation would be broadened to include aviation questions of a sort that would necessitate the presence of army experts on the board in addition to naval line officers and aeronautic experts. The question, however, was discussed by Secretary Wilbur and President Coolidge at a White House conference this afternoon, and until that time had been expected the secretary would announce the appointment of the board today or tomorrow.

A share of the responsibility for defense of the coasts rests upon the army air service in conjunction with the coast artillery and land fortifications forming a part of the nations defense system, and it is assumed that this situation has been recognized by President Coolidge as part of the problem he has asked Secretary Wilbur to take steps to solve.

MAY BE CHANGE IN THE PHILA. POLICE DEPARTMENT

Philadelphia, Sept. 22.—Illness of Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, director of public safety, prevented Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick from making public today a communication addressed to the head of the Philadelphia police department which, it was said, may affect the status of the director. A report that the communication would demand the resignation of General Butler could not be confirmed, the mayor refusing to give any intimation of its contents.

General Butler was confined to his home today with a cold which was described by Dr. Hubley R. Owen, chief surgeon, who attended him, as "virtually bordering on pneumonia."

There have been reports current from time to time since last spring that the mayor and the general were drifting apart, but until recently, each publicly maintained that there was no official friction between them.

General Butler, who has a leave of absence from the marine corps expiring January 5, next, was often quoted as saying that he would remain in Philadelphia to clean up the city "unless fired."

Last Thursday, in a weekly talk with the police lieutenants, General Butler told them that he was practically working alone in his crusade to clean the city of vice and other lawlessness and that he was not receiving any support in city hall. This gave rise to a report that there would be a "show down" today.

Mayor Kendrick, responding to these reports, said he knew of no such move but said that the situation was fast becoming "intolerable."

MAN SLAIN AND WOMAN WOUNDED IN NEW BRITAIN

New Britain, Sept. 22.—Joseph Angelo, who, with Mrs. Amelia Scorsoto was shot by John Vottari, last midnight, died on the operating table of the New Britain hospital this afternoon. The patient was shot in the stomach and at no time after his admittance did the surgeons believe he would recover. An operation was decided upon in hope that it might save his life.

Mrs. Scorsoto also has a bullet in the stomach and her condition is regarded as critical. An operation was performed this evening in an effort to save her life.

The police are still hunting for Vottari. It developed today that Vottari was defendant in police court some time ago in a case which involved a disturbance at the home of the woman where he was a lodger. The court told Vottari to secure lodging elsewhere. The police say that he was jealous of the woman.

Last night, according to the police who secured statements from Angelo before he died and from Mrs. Scorsoto, Votarri appeared at the Angelo home and persuaded the latter to accompany him to the woman's house with the hopes that he would again become a lodger at her home. She refused, it is said, and Vottari pulled out a gun and began firing. Angelo ran, according to the police, and went home to bed. An hour later Vottari is alleged to have appeared at the Angelo home and without warning fired at the latter who was in bed.

Vottari, the police story continues then went to the woman's house and shot her. She also was in bed when Vottari appeared.

Both Angelo and Mrs. Scorsoto agreed in their statements to the police that Vottari was the man who did the shooting.

BELIEVE THAT DEFAULTING BROKER HAD CONFEDERATE

New York, Sept. 22.—The search for George R. Christian, missing partner of Day and Heaton, whose disappearance and defalcation last week threw this stock exchange house into bankruptcy, was centered today in the quest for a suspected accomplice. Detectives having discovered clews which pointed to expert assistance, spent the day in examining employes of the firm as well as a number of former employes acquainted with its affairs.

Several transactions traced to Christian, the police said, indicated that he had employed a confederate in his activities. No details of these operations were revealed, however. A thorough investigation of Christian's personal habits, the police indicated was expected to prove helpful in the solution of the mystery.

The discovery of several blocks of misplaced securities today probably will reduce the firm's loss to some extent W. W. Heaton, senior partner, announced. The loss has been semi-officially estimated at from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

WILLIMANTIC

Members of the Willimantic police department were kept on the jump all day Monday, in their endeavors to put the new ordinance relating to traffic and parking regulations into effect. They were handicapped to some extent by the absence of the traffic and parking signs which had not been received up to evening. The majority of the local drivers had familiarized themselves with the new laws and but little trouble was caused by them; but out of town drivers had to be painstakingly directed by extra officers on duty. The regulating of the one-way traffic on North, Church, Temple and Center streets was the biggest problem. During the day, white signs were painted on the roadbed with arrows pointing out the direction of travel. All along Main street cars must be parked parallel not over six inches from the curb and no less than three feet from the nearest vehicle. Parking is restricted on Bank street, between Main and Meadow streets, in the locality of the Bank street Engine House. On the north side of Main between Church and North streets parking is limited to fifteen minutes and a two-hour limit applies to the remainder of the main thoroughfare. The usual ordinances of no parking within ten feet from a hydrant or corner and stopping ten feet back of a trolley car are still enforced. Upon the approach of the fire apparatus or an ambulance, all vehicles must draw up as close to the right hand curb as possible and come to a standstill until the machines have passed on. Acting Mayor George W. Hickey reviewed the work being done by the officers Monday and expressed himself as satisfied. The time limit parking in certain districts is not to be enforced until the traffic signs have arrived.

HOW I LOST 50 POUNDS

In 2 Months Without Diets, Exercise, Rollers or Massage.

New French Method Explained by Mme. Elaine of New York.

"I did not have to go through strenuous exercises, nor rub myself with absurd creams, which generally put on flesh instead of taking it off. I did not wear weakening garments, nor torture myself with diets. I was fortunate enough while in Europe to find out the secrets with which millionaires, French actresses and beautiful women of Paris keep their figures slender. Not only did I easily and gradually lose 50 pounds, but the reduction was lasting, as I have never gained a pound since stopping the treatment. I feel and look years younger and my health has greatly improved with this wonderful discovery. No matter how fat you are you may do just as I did and easily lose a few pounds every week without any danger. Simply go to any good drug store, get a package of SAN-GRI-NA tablets (insist on these, as nothing like it has ever been offered before to the public), take it as per directions and watch your weight go down. You can eat all you want while you take SAN-GRI-NA, AS IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS; it is the formula of a French physician and is sold with a money-back guarantee."

SAN-GRI-NA is now sold at Lee & Osgood, McLaughlin's, or Bray's drug stores.

Bread Theater

A terrific storm at sea, culminating in a shipwreck, is one of the gripping scenes in The Marriage Cheat, a First National picture produced by Thomas H. Ince, now enjoying a sensational engagement at the Breed theater. The action takes place in the fabled South Seas, where the picture was filmed.

Probably never before has such a realistic storm been screened. Director John Griffith Wray, who took his company to that far-off section of the globe, waited many days before a typhoon took place, but the ferocity of it resulted in such remarkable "shots" that his patience was rewarded.

The Marriage Cheat is based on the story by Frank R. Adams, and is enacted by a cast which boasts such capable players as Percy Marmont, Leatrice Joy, Adolphe Menjou, Laska Winter, Henry Barrows and J. P. Lackney.

The story is an unusual one in many respects. The chief figure is Octavia Caulfield, who has been mistreated for many years by her pleasure-seeking husband, a millionaire. Finally, driven to desperation, she leaps from his yacht while in South Sea waters and is found on the beach of an island by a young missionary.

Her baby is born before its father discovers them. In the meantime Octavia has fallen in love with the missionary, and is content to spend the rest of her life on the island. But she puts duty before love and consents to return to civilization with her husband. Then fate, in the form of the storm, interferes and brings happiness out of the turmoil, with the husband making the great sacrifice to redeem himself.

Ben Turpin in The Dare Devil and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

53 Miles of Carpet

The wool used daily in the weaving of carpets and rugs by a New York manufacturer is equal to the shearing from thirty thousand sheep. The soft, rich coats of these animals are turned into the looms at the rate of 120,000 pounds every day.

These and many other interesting facts were revealed recently through the publication of statistics concerning their mammoth mills at Yonkers, N. Y., by Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company said to be the largest manufacturers of carpets and rugs in the world.

If all the wool used in these mills were reckoned according to the number of animals from which it is sheared, a year's output at the mills would represent the clip from 9,000,000 sheep —a number which would constitute herds beyond imagination.

For the manufacturing of all this wool into American-made carpets and rugs, the energy and industry of 7,600 employees is devoted with a spirit of co-operation and craftsmanship resembling the loyalty given to his individual loom by the smaller weaver of bygone days.

This army of workers operates 1,500 looms, with a total daily production of 90,000 yards of carpets and rugs. Place one day's tremendous output in a continous line and it would make a strip of carpet 53 miles long. In one year of eight-hour working days, the 1,500 looms turn out 28 millions of yards, making an annual production of almost 16,000 miles, enough to reach more than half way around the world.

Every hour this mill produces 11,250 yards, or 187 1-2 yards per minute! The amount of mechanical energy entering the work may be pictured from the fact that the company uses 125 tons of coal every day. And all this activity takes place in mills which occupy 52 1-2 acres of floor space, ample area to accommodate the parking of about 40,000 motor cars!

It is interesting to note that the founder of these giant mills was also the inventor of the famous Axminster loom. The institution which has carried on since 1860 has specialized, it is said, in the making of four basic weaves known as Axminsters, Velvets, Tapestry, Brussels and Wilton Velvets.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Though several, including F. A. Jacobs, E. B. Wilbur and T. E. Hammett, spoke in favor of the proposed improvement, no one appeared in opposition, Monday afternoon, when the selectmen held a hearing relative to the laying out of a new street running easterly from Broad street, between properties of Mrs. Agnes Paine and E. B. Wilbur a distance of about 650 feet, to land owned by Nelson Gauthier. The hearing was ordered following the receipt by the selectmen of a request that the street be laid out. No claims for damages to property through the proposed layout were presented. A plan of the street has been prepared by Engineer W. K. Pike, this showing a thoroughfare 34 feet in width with an eight-foot sidewalk on either side, making a total width of 50 feet. If the layout is approved by the annual town meeting the matter will be before this meeting on the first Monday in October, and if so, the selectmen will proceed with the work of improvement.

The proposed thoroughfare is to be known as Danielson street, the territory through which it will pass having been, many years ago, a part of the Hezekiah Dapielson farm. Mr. Danielson was of the family for which this place is named.

If the town authorizes the construction of the street, it will open very desirable territory for homes, in a select neighborhood and in a locality that will allow of developing one of the attractive residential streets of the borough.

The selectmen having a petition, headed by the signature of Thomas Bradford asking that a clause be inserted in the warning for the annual town meeting to see if a vote will approve the laying of curbing on the northerly side of Reynolds street between Main and Broad streets. This is another move toward the desirable end of having a row of shade trees as shown as the town unanimously voted should be done a year ago.

KLAN MEETING ATTENDANTS STIRRED UP BY EXPOSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Sept. 23.—Danielson people who attended the Klan meeting in the rear of the Charles Williams farm Saturday evening were being repudiated on all sides Monday—by people of every race and creed represented in this community, by persons of high estate, by those seeking to free themselves of the stigma of having attended a gathering dedicated to hatred, by those who believe in peace on earth and good will toward men. Danielson might have been canvassed Monday to its nethermost distances without finding more than a handful of men and women willing to admit that they had anything to do with Saturday night's meeting or any sympathy with its aims or cared to have anything to do with such an enterprise.

The fact is that about every responsible person is seeking to get out from under. Another fact is, that the great majority of people of this town, attending to their own business and thankful if everyone else will do the same, do not care to be identified with the Ku Klux Klan or any of its activities. They know it by reputation. They are familiar with its flare for creating strife and fanning the flames of fanaticism. They know how its spokesmen preach a creed of intolerance, in violation of the Constitution of the United States. They know how it misrepresents.

Various officials of the town of Killingly, various responsible business men, various citizens not so much in the public eye, told Monday of the invitations they had received during the past week to attend Saturday evening's Klan gathering. These invitations were turned down by various methods ranging from the extremely courteous to what amounted to cold-blooded, flat-footed refusals—and more. All of it can't be told here. Honestly, what some of the Klan inviters were t[illegible] wouldn't look good in print!

There is evidence on every hand that the Klan isn't going to prosper in Danielson. With what is known now about its local membership and promoters, as checked up Saturday night, its chances of ever amounting to much are as slim as the Boston Red Sox's chances for the American league pennant. Saturday night's party, with its uninvited attendance, spoiled whatever small chances existed for its getting anywhere.

There are those who insist that the Klan thrives on publicity—that it should be ignored. That is an optional view. It was remarked Monday, however, that the press was deluged with requests to deny this or that report, to make it clear that "I have nothing to do with the Klan;" that "I would not be found dead in the same community that harbored the organization." There was a general seeking after what might be termed a clean bill of health—freedom from the infamy of being proclaimed a member of the hooded order.

One could not blame the applicants for this rush to be freed of a charge of being a hater of one's fellowmen. It was excusable, too, in view of the fact that numbers of business men and representatives of business houses who never went near the Klan meeting are now being reported, on the street, as having been present at the gathering—and it is hurting their business. This is an unfortunate feature of the Klan getting caught afholding a meeting. In connection with this feature of Danielson's experience with Kluxism, it may be well to point out to the general public that they should not repeat street talk regarding who attended that meeting. There is a list of Danielson people who attended available, but it does not include the names of numbers of people who are now being reported as having been there, but who were not there and did not want to be there. Every individual who just likes to hear himself (or herself) talk should not make the serious error of telling that this one and that one was at the meeting; for attendance there was a very serious thing for anyone engaged in trade or business. One can be unfair, it is evident from what has been set down here, without being a member of the Klan.

From various people who attended Saturday night's meeting is now coming the anticipated whimper: "I do not belong; I just went to look on." That likely is true in some cases. It is a well established rule, however, that a Klansman never admits his membership. That is well known here. But lookers-on do not get the passwords to let themselves through a guarded lane, nor are any outsiders placed on guard to ask anyone who happens along for a password to get in to a Klansmen's meeting. Not on the old straw bonnet that you threw away last week!

SELECTMAN J. A. GILBERT DENIES THAT HE WAS THERE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Sept. 23.—It becomes necessary to deny specifically that First Selectman John A. Gilbert of the town of Killingly, attended the Ku Klux Klan meeting held here on Saturday evening. This denial is necessary, first, because John A. Gilbert was not at the meeting; second, because those who oppose him politically are spreading the lie to injure him and his candidacy.

Mr. Gilbert said Monday evening that he does not belong to the Klan, has not attended any of its meetings, has no sympathy with its plans, or no use for the organization from any viewpoint or consideration.

To this may be added the statement of the writer and the endorsement of all those who checked up the Ku Klux meeting that John A. Gilbert did not attend it nor did he go near where it was held. The people who checked up that meeting know that John A. Gilbert never went near it. It is known that he was at his home while it was being held.

As is pointed out elsewhere in this column cheap talk is unfair and injurious. In this particular case, those who would defeat Mr. Gilbert for first selectman are no better, morally, by lying about him—to use the very simplest of English—than those who are arousing strife and discord by a purely asinine movement.

PUTNAM

Friday evening at the Victory theatre, the opening gun of the local democratic campaign will be fired when a rally will be held under the auspices of the Putnam and Woodstock John W. Davis clubs. Democrats of Thompson and Pomfret are affiliated with the Woodstock club so that the meeting will embrace the four towns. The speaker will be Charles G. Morris, of Newtown, democratic candidate for governor of Connecticut, who will touch on both national and state campaign issues.

The recently formed Putnam John W. Davis club has 100 or more members with officers as follows: President, City Clerk Thomas P. Ryan; first vice president, Selectman Alfred Bonneville; second vice president, Mrs. W. J. Bartlett; treasurer, Orice Girard; secretary, Irene Maynard; advisory council, Alderman Pigeon, Alderman Dubois, Mrs. Fred Gilman and Mrs. Fred Wells.

The new club is to make a strenuous campaign for new members and to take a very active part in both the state and national campaign.

Francis Cotton, eight year old daughter of Raphael Cotton who has been at the Hartford hospital under observation for five days, has returned to her home in Putnam. She was accompanied to Hartford by her father and by Mrs. W. J. Bartlett. An X-ray picture taken at the hospital showed that the child's hip was dislocated which had caused a serious lameness since she was an infant. It is believed that this condition is due to a fall.

When Mrs. Bartlett had her attention called to the child she wrote to the Newington Home for Crippled Children. Miss Leavabee, a state investigator for the home, came to Putnam and made an investigation which resulted in the child being taken to Hartford for observation. It was stated after the trouble had been located that it could be cured so that the crippled child would grow to young womanhood without her present lameness.

Steps were promptly taken to get the little girl into the Home for Crippled Children and as a vacancy at the home will occur shortly, she expects to tenter in about ten days. The child's mother is dead but the father is greatly pleased that a place has been found where his daughter can regain her health and her lameness be overcome.

At a special session of the city court Monday afternoon, Dennis Vertefeuille, of Willimantic, pleaded guilty to operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, failing to have the automobile registered and to driving without a license. He was fined $100 on the first count, $10 on the second count and $1 on the third count, which he paid. It was also stated that he had paid $100 for the damage he did to the other machine.

The accident from which the case grew, happened on Providence street Sunday afternoon, about two o'clock, near St. Mary's church. Miss Albina Bourque was driving west on Providence street. The car was owned by her father, Eloi Bouque of Grosvendordale, who, with his three daughters, was in the machine. The car driven by Vertefuille came from the opposite direction and the driver did not appear to be on the lookout. He ran his car over on to the left side of the highway and his front wheels crashed into the rear wheel of the Bourque car breaking the axle and occasioning considerable other damage. The defendant's car was also damaged and both machines had to be towed to a garage. Captain Jarvis was called and seeing the defendant's condition placed him under arrest and locked him up at the police station. Vertefeuille called his attorney, Lawyr Harry Gaucher of Willimantic, who came to Putnam early Monday afternoon bringing funds for the accused.

As far as could be learned Monday no preparations had been made for removing G. Harold Gilpatric, defaulting cashier of the First National bank of Putnam, to the United States district court at New Haven today (Tuesday). Gilpatric is out under bonds of $50,000 subscribed by relatives and fellow citizens, for his appearance in the U. S. district court when his presence is demanded. The court convenes this (Tuesday) morning and it has been stated that Gilpatric would be presented at this session. Although his counsel have made no statements relative to whether he will appear at the opening of the court the fact that no arrangements have been made, as far as can be learned, to remove the blind cashier to New Haven leads to the conclusion that he will not appear for the present, in person at least.

Although the comptroller of currency has given notice that 90 days have been limited to filing claims against the First National bank with the receiver, there has been no rush on the part of creditors to get their claims in.

The filing of claims must be made by all persons having any sort of a claim against the bank whether it be a depositor in the savings or the checking department or for securities left with the bank or of any nature whatsoever. Some persons have been led to believe that because the bank sent out statements of account balances that no proof of claim on this score is necessary. This is not the fact. It has been pointed out that sworn statements of claims of all discriptions, including deposits, must be filed within the 90 days or the claims will be barred. Those having claims can have them made out on the blank forms prepared at the bank and the oath will be administered to them. All this will be done without cost to the claimant.

The bride was gowned in a dress of jade silk, wore hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Following the mass a breakfast was served at the bride's home after which Mr. and Mrs. Auger left on a trip to Boston and New York. Upon their return they will reside in Putnam where both are wall known.

JEWETT CITY

Mrs. J. C. Hawkins found her kitchen stove occupied by a strange visitor the other day. She has had no fire in the stove this summer, and has occasionally placed papers in the stove. One day she heard a sort of commotion which seemed to be in the stove. Her niece heard the same noise later and advised burning the papers. As only one side of the stove seemed to burn well, the other stove lid was lifted off, to find out the reason. Out hopped a very lively gray squirrel. The outside door was opened and he whisked in a jiffy, evidently not having enjoyed his fiery experience. He must have fallen down the chimney when jumping from a tree.

LINE STORM 109 YEARS AGO WORST STORM RECORDED

The line storm due about this time, suggests an account of the storm which occurred in 1815, which is an old Bible and which was written by William Miner, a soldier of the Revolutionary war who lived in what is now known as the Cavanaugh house in Quiambaug:

"Sept. 23, 1815—The wind at 6 o'clock in the morning at N. E. and heavy Shower of rain; at 7 o'clock the wind at East, the wind and rain and tide increasing very Rappidly; at 8 o'clock the wind hailed S. E. and increasing and Sweaping away houses and Barns, and Cribs and all kinds of Bildings and Blowing Down trees of all kinds, fences and almost all the hay stacks was Blown down and swept away with the tide. The tide was said to rise 17 feet from low water mark and it was said the salt water was carried 20 miles Back in the Woods by the Winds. At 10 o'clock the wind Hailed to to the South and abating at 11 o'clock, the Wind at S. W., and a moderate Breeze. Their was many lives lost in the Blow. This is William Miner's account that he saw—Stonington, Sept. 23rd, 1815."

This storm was the great line gale of 1815, probably the worst storm that ever visited this section of the state, and occurred just 109 years ago today. The severe storm last month which did such a vast amount of damage is considered the worst storm of recent years, but was not in it with the gale of 1815 in point of intensity and devastation and loss of life.

About all a pessimist is good for is to sit around and anticipate misery.

DENIES APPLICATION TO CHANGE DIVORCE DECREE

The application of Regina B. Pensalfini of New London to have the divorce decree modified so that her divorced husband, Gino Pensalfini, should not have the right to visit the children has been denied by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin. The plaintiff secured her divorce on May 23, 1923, and brought the application for modification of judgement in March, 1924, on the ground that her divorced husband had been leading an improper life since the divorce and that he was not a fit person to have the right of visitation any longer.

In his memorandum of decision which the clerk of the superior court, Judge Marvin says:

The court finds no occasion to alter the decree of May 23, 1923, (Hinman, J.). Evidence at the hearing April 11, 1924 showed nothing worse at least with reference to the conduct of the defendant and did show a contemplated remarriage on the part of the plaintiff. The decree of May 23rd gives the custody and control of the two children to the mother with only the proviso that the father may exercise the opportunity of visiting them at reasonable times and places as to the reasonableness of any proposed visit she is of course the judge in the first instance and must only restrain herself from unreasonableness. As a matter of fact at the time of the hearing the father had not attempted such a visit for three weeks. He now claims it is an attempt to carry revenge too far and is denied.

THE DAYS OF THE TROLLEY.

Is the outlook for the trolley improving or are its days numbered? There have been reports which have shown better prospects for these transportation lines, but there is one continuous fight for them to keep their heads above water. They must fight to reduce expenses, and they must fight to get sufficient revenue to make ends meet. And there is one thing steadily compelled the replacing of existing lines with buses and the junking of the rails, wires and other material.

After a long fight the Springfield trolley system has been authorized to put into effect a ten cent fare with three rides for a quarter. It was maintained by the company that it could not exist with [illegible] was losing money every month. The reduction of one cent was opposed, but the state commission has been convinced that the increase is justified.

What has been authorized for Springfield is one [illegible] permitted in the city of Phinehas. There the judges have found that the eight cent fare is confiscatory and that will be two rides for 15 cents.

Readjustment of rates is necessary on many other lines even though the [illegible] agreements has been [illegible] quest for a change never fails because strong opposition.

Recently the trolley line to Ansonia was ordered to [illegible] cause for lack of sufficient use. A line operating in Middle and North Attleboro, Mass., is [illegible] because it [illegible] business. [illegible] new Haven Company [illegible] of Providence [illegible] of operating the [illegible] that of running cars.

There is always [illegible] as of the electric [illegible] affected by the [illegible] is the thing that causes [illegible] often than a certain [illegible] rates to permit such [illegible] time, while there [illegible] because [illegible] for transportation [illegible] ance by some other method.

SAFER ROADS.

Highway accidents have been [illegible] as to cause many to study [illegible] of preventing them. The problem has been considered from the various angles and if all [illegible] was followed there is no question but what different conditions on the roads would be experienced and greater safety would prevail.

The engineers of the bureau of public roads in the department of agriculture are concerned in the matter because of the federal aid funds. Their aim is directed toward the building of roads that will be safer through the elimination of highway defects. They have come to the conclusion that road building can be made to contribute to greater safety through the devotion of greater attention to blind curves and road intersections, sharp curves on embankments, unprotected embankments, narrow bridges, sharp curves with short curves, slippery road surfaces, steep grades, narrow road surfaces, low or rough shoulders, [illegible] curves at bridge and [illegible] approaches, grade crossings, and unsuperelevated curves.

These are all matters which given attention will result in the establishment of safer road conditions. There are instances where each one of those conditions might be pointed to as having happened to accidents. Their removal doesn't mean that more accidents would occur, but would still be the negligence which is created by those who fail to observe the rules of the road, the rights of others and who display a recklessness that is bound to cause trouble sooner or later. Much is [illegible] however, when roadbuilding is [illegible] directed that in addition to providing a smooth surface and a good roadbed, safety is given the proper amount of consideration. [illegible] certain amount of expense involved in giving attention to these points, but it can never be if the [illegible] than at the time the road is being built and where more speed is being urged in order to take care of the traffic it is certainly a time to give attention to such details for the protection that will be afforded. There is little danger that there will be too much done in behalf of safety.

WITHOUT PARTIES.

Someone is always bobbing up with an alleged improvement in the political machinery. Just now the state of Nebraska is being asked to give its approval to the idea of having no political party designations. All the candidates for office would be placed in a list and it would be required of the voter to pick out those he wants to vote for, and only those he is entitled to vote for, without there being any designation in front of the respective names to tell who is who.

That is probably looked upon as ideal, where all stand on the same basis before the voter's eye, though it is well known that the policies of the various candidates are as far apart as the east and the west.

Nebraska is being asked to accept or reject this idea through the referendum, the plan being to have it apply both to the primaries and the elections. Possibly the idea of the advocates is that such a plan would result in the selection of the most efficient men. That is the ideal phase of it. But it is well known that the ideal seldom works out as it is expected.

To attempt to replace party government by such a jumble is simply to invite all kinds of bickerings and as the Omaha World-Herald says: "We will have a government neither democratic nor republican but of freebooting bands and clans and cliques and special interests organizing and unorganizing and reorganizing for each campaign."

The chief worry of Nebraska at the present time is that the scheme will be approved because only a small part of the voters will express themselves thereon. That, unfortunately, is apt to be the case with such questions. Most any state knows how few of the voters ever take the trouble to vote on constitutional amendments, or how ready some are to vote affirmatively on all questions regardless of the merits.

REBUKING THE COURT.

While there are communities which have recognized the ineffectiveness of penalties applied for the violation of motor vehicle and highway laws, especially when fines fail to produce the desired results, there are those where the courts continue to display their unwillingness to cooperate in bettering the situation. It is an old story that a fine is considered no more than a slap on the wrist, or a license fee, for serious violations, and yet fines continue to be imposed.

Perhaps there is no state where the registrar of motor vehicles has encountered a greater lack of cooperation than in Massachusetts. But it has not deterred the registrar from disclosing such instances and in doing that the protection to which the public is entitled be given. Judges have resigned or been removed as the result of disclosures.

The latest instance of the effort of a court to override the registrar comes from Concord, Mass., where a speeding driver was fined $150 on conviction for his third offense. The fine was not collected because the case was filed and where he was exempted to say that the driver should be restricted from using the highways after 7 p. m. each day with the exception of Saturday when he would be allowed to run his car all day. This driver was not incarcerated but had his number transferred to another car and [illegible] when ordered to.

[illegible] couldn't override the [illegible] would prevent the accused [illegible] continuing to drive. He informed [illegible] that it had nothing to [illegible] driver's license and in [illegible] allowing him to drive at all [illegible] promptly suspended it [illegible] if protection is to be [illegible] highway users the unjustifiable [illegible] must be stopped.

CONNECTICUT STANDS WELL.

[illegible] S. J. Maher, head of the state [illegible] commission, has recently returned from a visit to Europe [illegible] inspection of the work [illegible] this direction among [illegible] countries.

[illegible] speaks in the high terms [illegible] of the work which is [illegible] and here in Connecticut [illegible] well with that being done [illegible] is of course a satisfaction. [illegible] has devoted much money [illegible] development of its sanatoria. [illegible] the benefit of capable di[illegible] This work and through [illegible] the commission [illegible] the respective institutions just such a fight against the white plague as this state desires is being waged.

[illegible] not be doing what other [illegible] going. If it is doing it [illegible] thoroughly so much the better, but it cannot be overlooked that in effort it is treating the sick under the very climatic conditions [illegible] are accustomed to live. [illegible] doesn't involve going long distances from home. It doesn't mean going to a certain section of the [illegible] where it is necessary to remain thereafter. It is a Connecticut treatment for Connecticut people so that radical changes are not faced by those in need of it or those who are discharged from the sanatoria.

With as good chance for the cure of the disease in this state as anywhere, with the disposition to make a successful fight and with the means provided for it, all that is required [illegible] those threatened with the disease is to comply with the fundamentals of the treatment for steadily increasing benefits to be obtained. Connecticut has long had reason to be proud of the work being done by its [illegible] sanatoria.

The report from Pennsylvania of an upward tendency in the price of anthracite is probably due to the fact that coolers haven't been coming in fast enough.

INEVITABLE QUESTION

They had been engaged about twenty minutes when the young man bethought himself and regarded very seriously the charming young creature who had just promised to accompany him through life.

"Diana," he began, tensely, "there is something I want to ask you and you must tell me the truth, no matter how much it may hurt—have you ever loved any man before you met me?"

"Why, er—certainly not!" the pretty girl began indignantly, and ended somewhat weakly. "Why, Belvedere, what a horrid question! As though I ever could have cared for any one else as I do for you!"

The handsome young man grinned cheerfully. "Spiked that gun!" he told her complacently. "The first thing a girl does after she gets engaged is to attack her finance on that line—and the poor dub is mentally in no state to conuter. If he tells her the truth all is over, because a woman can't look at the question impersonally. So he has to lie just as you did, Diana!"

"I don't know what you mean!" the pretty girl assured him, wide-eyed. "I meant it."

"Of course you did, dearie," the handsome young man assured her. "Just at this minute I obscure everything. Your memory has gone into temporary eclipse.

"You find it simply appalling," he explained, "to think that you thought you were in love with any of the sixteen or eleven pallid examples of men whom you have run around with since the running was good. No, you tell yourself, they were just good friends of yours, and it is absurd for any one to claim otherwise. It being so hard to explain the fine points of the difference between a casual friendship and a love affair, it is far simpler to dispose of the question just as you did by claiming that you never cared about any one else until you met me. And having brought the point to your notice you will of course realize how absurd it would be for you to make the same kind of inquiry!"

"I nev—I never thought of asking anything like that!"

"Well, you would have in about five minutes. It never fails. My brother has been engaged three times, and on each occasion he had a terrible time making the girl forget that she was interested in the question. I witnessed all his pacings up and down as he communed feverishly with himself in the interims when Dolly or Susy or Irene refused to speak to him over the phone or admit him through the front door, and I resolved that when my time came I should get in first with the fatal question. Now that you have been thrown into mental turmoil by trying to explain to me just how it wasn't your own common sense will prevent any further trouble on the score and we shall be happy ever after. I refuse to be jealous of Tom and Bill and Eustace and Gregory and the rest of 'em!..

"Remember, I saw you with him at the Palm Gardens one night. And you were gazing at him as if you didn't know that any other man existed on this green earth, so there is not the slightest bit of use in trying to stall."

"Now I think of it," the pretty girl interrupted, the light of a sudden memory illuminating her eye, "that must have been the night you had Sappho with you, that girl with the huge dark eyes you were so insane about! I remember that you were hanging on her every word and I don't believe at all that you took time to watch me—not that there was a thing to see."

"H'm!" scoffed the handsome young man. "There was plenty! The more I think of it the more I wonder how you ever gave us any man on whom You had such an awful case! Are you sure down deep in your heart that you don't care more for him than you do for me?"

"I've always wondered about Sappho although I said nothing!" the pretty girl broke in feverishly. "You've just got to tell me, Belvedere, all the truth about that affair! You were just crazy about her and if I thought you asked me to marry you just to show her—and that secretly you cared more for her than you do for me—"

"I'm not going to listen to such nonsense!" the young man said vigorously. "But you can't put me off about Gregory this way! I want truth!"

The pretty girl burst into tears and the handsome young man regarded her with his jaw dropping. "Say!" he exploded, "it's no use! I guess this scene goes with an engagement just as much as does the ring and congratulations! Let's just settle down to it, Diana, and fib ourselves out of it as every other couple does and get through with the doggone thing! C'mon!" — Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Radio Interference.

Mr. Editor: Of the "radio fans" who are looking for something to improve radio receiving, I ask if there is anything that can be done to prevent the daily growing interference radiated by receiving sets tuning up?

I am sure that this is the greatest obstacle to the continued growth of the popularity of radio.

Since I installed my present set which is a non-regenerative neutrodyne receiver, I have experienced much trouble, and there are others with sets of the same type in this locality, who have the same trouble to which I am going to refer.

The interference from whistling tuners has become steadily greater. Every new set installed of the regenerative type adds to the squeak and howls of those already in operation.

It is a most unusual thing to be able to enjoy even one-third of any concert, and many of our friends are prejudiced against radio because of the miserable noises radiated from neighborhood sets.

I am afraid our evenings this coming winter, will have to be devoted to other means of entertainment unless this interference is stopped in some way.

From another standpoint, will the sale of radio interfering apparatus in the future reach a point where the public will become disgusted with radio entertainment?

The most expensive radio sets today are helpless when the several neighbors tune in their regenerative sets, or at least try to. The whistles are not only heard in tuning in but continue throughout the entire concert.

If this interference can be stopped everybody can have radio in their homes; if continued, only a few will be interested in the awful squeals and howls which come through the phones.

The broadcasting stations are transmitting strong and clear, their programmes are wonderfully pleasing and beneficial and it seems too bad that all this should be spoiled by the interference radiated by receiving sets, daily becoming more numerous.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Teacher Bird

"Now where shall we go?" asked Uncle Lucky after the kind Tailor Bird had mended the rent in the old gentleman rabbit's coat, as I mentioned in the last story.

"Oh, anywhere, I don't care," answered Little Jack Rabbit, taking a lollypop out of his pocket. "Maybe we'd better drive out of the Shady Forest. You might get another rent in your coat.

"That would never do, sighed the old gentleman bunny. "An ounce of caution is worth a pound of cure."

"We heard you calling," said the Bunny Boy.

The next minute the bright eyes of the bunny boy discovered a little bird, slightly larger than the English Sparrow, dressed in an olive-green coat tinged with brown. Underneath he was white, with heavy marks of brown at the side of his throat and breast. He was slowly walking about, searching for grubs and worms among the dead leaves.

"We heard you calling," cried the bunny boy. "I thought at first one of the school children had lost his way."

"Sorry to put you to so much trouble," answered the little warbler. "Some people call me the Teacher Bird. But I never taught school. Dear me, no. I have no time till I've built my nest."

"Where is it?" asked Uncle Lucky, curiously. "I'd like to see it."

"No, siree," answered the Teacher Bird. "I must be very careful, for my nest is on the ground. It is shaped like an oven, made of coarse grasses, leaves and roots, with a doorway at the side. Its one of the hardest nests to find, for I cover it all over with dry leaves."

"Mr. Meadow Lark builds his nest on the ground, too," chimed in the bunny boy. "He arches it over with the tall grass to hide it."

"Yes, we are ground birds," answered the little feathered fellow. "We must be very careful to hide our nests. Yes, indeedy."

"I wish I could see your oven-like nest," sighed Uncle Lucky, "but I won't insist on it."

"I'm also called the Ovenbird," went on the little feathered fellow, not noticing the old gentleman rabbit's remark. "And sometimes the Golden-crowned Thrush because the feathers on my head are of an orange color."

"Well, well," exclaimed the old gentleman rabbit, "you've told us a lot about yourself even if you wouldn't show us your nest," and starting up the Luckymobile, dear Uncle Lucky took the bunny boy home to the dear Old Bramble Patch, where Lady Love stood waiting at the little gate in the picket fence.

and then turning the Luckymobile into the Sunny Meadow, followed the Old Cow Path up the hill. All of a sudden from the Shady Forest came the words, "Teacher, Teacher, Teacher!"

"What's that?" inquired the bunny uncle, looking over his shoulder. "He isn't calling us, I'm sure."

"School's out long ago," answered the littel rabbit, "Who is it I wonder?"

Turning the Luckymobile about, the old gentleman rabbit soon reached the Shady Forest, where he halted under the trees.

Suddenly near at hand, again came the call, "Teacher, teacher, teacher!"

Ripley Took the First Job Offered

When E. P. Ripley was graduated from high school, and was starting out into the world, he did not know what vocation to follow, so he took the first job offered.

While attending the public schools in Dorchester, Mass., he helped in his father's little store, but hid not care for the work, and besides that the profits were so small that there was not room for another in the business.

Without money or influence and having no inclination toward any particular kind of work, he took the first job he could obtain, that of general boy in a wholesale dry goods house in Boston with a salary of $1 a week.

The duties were not pleasing, but by diligence he rose in four years to shipping clerk, earning $8 a week. Then a railroad agent offered him a position paying $50 a month. Ripley's employer matched the "raise" and Ripley remained with the firm. A year later he accepted an offer from the Pennsylvania Railroad and became clerk in its Boston office at $100 a month. The following year he was with the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy at a higher salary. He was married at 25, then became New England agent for the road and at 32 was general Eastern agent.

Offered the position of general freight agent for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, he declined because he thought Boston better than the then frontier town of Atchison, Kans., in which to rear his children. Two months after that he was made general frieght agent of the Burlington, with headquarters in Chicago; later he became general manager, and at 45 was chosen vice-president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad.

An item in a newspaper first told him that he had been elected president of the Atchison. He took office and at 50 started the hardest task of his life. The road was in a decrepit condition physically and in disrepute financially; bankers would not help it and only by strictest economy and highest railroad efficiency could he save it. He made it one of the best and most profitable systems in the world, and became known as one of the greatest executives in the history of railroads.

ANCIENT AMERICA

That the huge Carlsbad Caverns of New Mexico, recently rediscovered, were known to the early inhabitants of America is proved by a skull and other human bones, fragments of matting, and wooden implements found by Dr. Willis T. Lee, leader of the National Geographic Society expedition which is exploring the caves. The material has just been examined by experts. They find that the skull differs from that of a Pueblo Indian and resembles the skulls of the Cliff Dwellers. The bones were identified as those of a man and a woman.

The matting from the caves consists of well woven strings and has the appearance of being of Indian manufacture.

The specialists who examined the fragments point out that the occurrence of such material in the Caverns does not prove that they were inhabited, since it was customary, even with some nomadic peoples, to lay away the dead in caves. Such natural shelters also were used by early men as temporary camping places.

The National Geographic Society, through the expedition led by Dr. Lee, is mapping and photographing the Caverns and seeking for entrances that will make them accessible to visitors. President Coolidge several months ago set aside the region containing the caves as the Carlsbad Caverns National Monument.

Stories That Recall Others

He Fell For It.

John is laughing up his sleeve. He has a right to. A few days ago a friend, leaving on a vacation, told him of the new lines, flies, poles and fishing tackle he had bought for the trip. But the bait puzzled him, John offered his advice.

"I've fished much this time of year" said John, "and the best bait I have found is gold fish. The larger fish are always attracted. Sometimes they even fight for the bait."

And, would you believe it, he bought 100 goldfish at fancy prices and left in great glee on his fishing trip. John is waiting for reports.

A New One.

He was a booster, but really a student at it. He had spoken on some local occasions at which he would not be expected to display nervousness. He was recently asked to speak in a neighboring city, and he answered the call without hesitation.

All went well. There was a good crowd, he had planned a good community get together talk, and the gathering joined lustily in the songs that were sung. Youthful enthusiasm was the keynote to a successful service. He had completed the most of talk and the time came for the final appeal. Imagine his embarrassment when he wound up with "Let everyone join hands and push this effort with fresh veal and new zigor."

The democratic national committee issued a statement quoting Daniel C. Roper, as expressing the opinion that the "hesitant" voter in the states which have been visited by John W. Davis, was being won over to the democratic cause.

TELEPHONE DUCT IS BLOCKED BY DIRT

A blocked-up telephone conduit near a manhole in Franklin square opposite the Chelsea Lunch has obliged the telephone company to dig up the street there in order to make repairs. The trouble was discovered in the course of running a new 900-pair line of wire that will provide increased facilities in the eastern section of the city and up Franklin street. It was found impossible to run the leader wire through the tile duct and the trouble was located a few feet from the manhole, where the duct had been broken in some previous job of excavating. This had caused the duct to fill up solidly with dirt so that the wires could not be pushed through in running the new line.

COMMITTEE ACCEPTS RECOMMENDATION FOR REVISION OF TOWN'S TAX LIST

The tax analysis committee of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held Monday evening in the office of the assessors at the court house unanimously adopted a recommendation for a revaluation of the property in the town of Norwich, the recommendation being made by the tax survey committee, a sub-committee of the tax analysis committee. The meeting was held for the purpose of hearing and acting on the report of the tax survey committee. Called to order at 8.15 o'clock by Chairman James L. Case, the meeting accepted the minutes of the previous meeting as read by Secretary John J. O'Rourke. Chairman Case then told of the appointment of the survey committee to study the tax abstract for inequalities and fluctuations in assessed values of properties in the town and report back to the tax analysis committee. The survey committee comprised Herbert M. Lerou, chairman, Shepherd B. Palmer, A. R. Manning, M. J. Curran and John F. Rogers. Chairman Case then called on the survey committee chairman, Mr. Lerou, for his report.

Mr. Lerou stated that Mr. Manning and Mr. Curran had made a careful study of the tax abstract and had prepared a list of figures showing the assessed value, the mortgage value and sale value of property on a score of streets in the town. He asked Mr. Manning to give a report on the results of the survey.

We tabulated the houses in Norwich, taking them by streets, said Mr. Manning. We found that there are 1,270 houses valued at less than $1,000 with an average tax valuation of $650; and 1,239 houses valued at under $1,500 with an average tax value of $900. Mr. Manning said that 40 per cent of the houses in the town are assessed at about $900. He then proceeded to read a list of figures, by streets, showing the assessed value, mortgage value and the sale value of a number of houses. In all, figures for 54 properties on 23 different streets were given, indicating wide fluctuations in assessed values as compared with sale values. Below is a table showing the figures given by Mr. Manning, which, as Mr. Lerou said, speak for themselves in regard to the need of a revaluation of the property in the town.

Following Mr. Manning's report, Chairman Case called on Mr. Lerou for any recommendation that the survey committee had to make. Mr. Lerou said that the fluctuations in the tax abstract are such that the survey committee recommend a revaluation of the property in the town. The committee's report and recommendation were unanimously adopted.

A motion was carried that the chair appoint a committee on ways and means to work out a plan to put the recommendation of the survey committee for a revaluation in shape to present to a town meeting for action by the citizens. Mr. Case appointed as the committee on ways and means, Charles D. Noyes, chairman, Grosvenor Ely, Frank E. Rickeson, Charles R. Butts and Albert Boardman. This committee was requested to prepare and submit its report as soon as possible.

The meeting adjourned about 9.15 to reconvene at the call of the chairman.

CRASHED PANEK CAR; FINED IN GROTON COURT

William E. Franks, a chief petty officer at the submarine base, was fined $100 and costs by Deputy Judge C. Tyler Landphere in the Groton town court Monday morning on a charge of reckless driving, the charge resulting from an accident on the Military Highway near the Peckham farm about 9.30 o'clock Sunday night in which the Chandler sedan owned and driven by Joseph K. Panek of 119 Williams street, Norwich, was wrecked completely by the Studebaker Special Six operated by Franks.

Franks, it is alleged, was headed toward New London and was traveling at a fast rate of speed and as he came around the curve in the highway he crowded over well to the left side of the road. Mr. Panek pulled his car well off the road to avoid the accident, but the Franks car smashed into it, striking the left side, completely wrecking the machine.

The occupants of the Franks car, all sailors, escaped uninjured, but Mr. Panek was considerably shaken and bruised, making it necessary to receive medical attention. With him at the time were his brother, Michael Panek, also of 119 Williams street, who received bruises on the arm, William Ensling of 65 Sherman street and William Keiffer of the state tuberculosis sanatorium, the last two named being badly cut and bruised. They were taken to the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London, where stitches were taken to close several cuts about the hands and shoulders, caused by flying glass.

The Chandler had a badly wrecked body and chassis, mudguards torn off on the left side, steering apparatus broken, universal joint snapped off, gear shaft bent, drive system put out of operation and the windshield broken. The Studebaker was also badly smashed about the body and underpart, with the wheels broken. Wreckers were called from W. R. Frisbie's service stations in Norwich and New London and it took both wreckers to pull the cars apart. Mr. Panek's car was brought to Norwich and the Studebaker was taken to New London.

It is alleged that Mr. Franks carries insurance and has agreed to cover damage to the car owned by Mr. Panek. State Policeman Henry Albright of the Groton barracks investigated the accident and took measurements, after which he placed Franks under arrest, charging him with reckless driving.

PRESIDENT MARSHALL SPEAKS TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

President Benjamin T. Marshall of Connecticut college brought an inspiring message when he spoke Monday night at the Wauregan house to the September membership meeting and supper of the chamber of commerce which had an attendance of over 100.

Dr. Marshall, who had substituted at the last minute for Bishop Freeman of Washington, who was detained by illness, was given a rousing welcome as he entered the room a little after the members had been seated for supper at 6.15. His address followed a brief business session in which it was voted to adopt an amendment to the by-laws regarding the election of directors which was explained by Secretary John J. O'Rourke after President H. M. Lerou had called the meeting to order.

President Lerou introduced Dr. Marshall with an expression of regret that Bishop Freeman could not be here but satisfaction that so acceptable a substitute had accepted the invitation to speak, although at a time when he was particularly busy with the opening of college.

Dr. Marshall opened his address with a humorous reference to the busy day he had had in connection with registering about 150 of the 175 freshmen who are to enter college this year, among whom he said were some Norwich girls. The college is always glad to receive girls from the Norwich Academy, for it knows that they come with a background that is the equal of any.

His topic, he said, was suggested by what he had understood Bishop Freeman would have spoken upon, and he proposed to speak of the possible complete co-ordination of a man's religion and his business practice. Such a practice is much more evident today than it used to be and we can largely thank Theodore Roosevelt for this. He brought fresh life and red blood into big business relations more than ever before.

Speaking from the Scripture reference in which Jesus likened the kingdom of heaven to the man who sold all he had in order to secure the pearl of great price, Dr. Marshall said that the question was whether we cared enough about righteousness, honor, justice, brotherhood, neighborliness and kindness to promote them as our big purpose in life. Jesus knew that if he could get men to thinking of the kingdom of God as an investment into which they would put their best endeavor he would bring them into the kingdom. Business and religion are vitally co-ordinated, but the best kind of religion in the world is not the kind that is detected, but is a permeating quality, like the leaven in the meal, that shines out in the grip of the hand, the walk, and the goods that pass over the counter, giving the impression of fairness and justice and right.

Dr. Marshall spoke a word about the observance of Sunday, which he said was too often spent in indifference, in laziness, in mere play, or in a lot of unprofitable reading. It ought to be a day for the whole man. The man is entitled to some recreation, there ought to be some neighborliness, some religion in church attendance. The day ought to build up every side of your life. Some six or seven hundred years before Christ one of the old prophets spoke words that can well be listened to today: He hath showed thee, O man, what is good, and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God. This is not an impossible programme. The kingdom of God is the biggest thing we can be engaged in. There is no joy like it.

Following the applause that was given Dr. Marshall as he concluded, President Lerou expressed the thanks of the chamber of commerce to the speaker and the meeting adjourned.

The music during the evening was by an orchestra directed by John M. Swahn and Joseph C. Worth was the song leader.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Charles F. Geer of West Town street, had as motor guests Saturday afternoon, to Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parson of Elizabeth street Norwich, and Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Town street.

The party visited the greenhouses and saw the beautiful plants, also inspected the several attractive flower beds outside the Horticultural building, as well as the dahlia garden. A tour of the Gymnasium building disclosed a magnificent entertainment hall and gymnasium combined. Below was the swimming pool, where a large company of boys and girls were hav a frolic in the water. In the adjoining room others were engaged in target practice, while on the campus outside, football practice was going on. The severa; dormitories are to be thrown open the middle of this week, to the 500 or more students enrolled for this school year. Every one connected with the college in any way, when approached, was most courteous in giving information.

One of the interesting features to Norwich visitors was the stable where about 50 fine bred cows were housed This happened to be just at milking time and to those who had never seen milking by machine it was of interest. Two or three of the sleek high-grade cows, it was said, are milked from three to four times daily. In his thirty-eight years as a veterinarian, having been a deputy under the late Cattle Commissioner Herman O. Overill, for fifteen years, visiting many stock farms and examinips hundreds of cattle, Dr. Lamb declares this the finest herd of cows he had ever seen.

The college grounds, beautifully laid out afford an excellent sight seeing outing for tourists from all over the country who visit there daily during the summer. The homes of the professors, instructors and officials, give the impression that the place is a little city by itself.

The dairy houses, radio system, poultry farm, water tower with more than a hundred winding steps, library etc. all proved interesting.

Before returning to Norwich, Mrs. Geer and her guests motored to Windham Green and back to Willimantic a second time, reaching home about eight o'clock, after an enjoyable trip, through beautiful scenery all along the route.

Mrs. Lucian Beebe and sons Standish and Donald Beebe, of New London, motored to Norwich Town Friday and were callers at the home of Mr and Mrs. George E. Beebe, of Scotland road. Later they continued to Springfield and attended the fair, being accompanied by Mr. Beebe and is daughter, Miss Gladys Belle Beebe, of Hartford, also by Frederick Millard of Philadelphia, a guest at the Beebe home.

MRS. ARTHUR E. STORY TO LEAVE PARK CHURCH QUARTET

After 21 years as soprano soloist at Park Congregational church, Norwich, Mrs. Helen Kies Story has presented her resignation, to take effect Oct. 1st. Mrs. Story feels this decision imperative, in the interests of her health. With regret, the church trustees have accepted the resignation.

Mrs. Story is daughter of George A. Kies, now of Hartford, who, following his return from a long period of study in Germany, served as organist at Park church for 35 years. She studied with J. H. McKinley of New York, spending three years in intensive work, during which time she sang in oratorio, also did concert work, receiving complimentary press notices which warmly endorsed Mr. McKinley's opinion of her voice and method. Although she has always been very modest about references to these commendations, it has been known that some of them came from the most prominent metropolitan artists and leaders.

In addition to her vocal ability, Mrs. Story is a pianist of skill, having had her father's thorough instruction.

It is not her purpose to entirely give up her singing, but to continue it at home, and, as in former years, to give pleasure to her friends. She has done some teaching, but primarily her voice was devoted to her choir work, and her singing has always been a delight to the members of Park church congregation. Since the rumors of her resignation have reached the church attendants, many expressions of regret have come to Mrs. Story. Her well trained and smooth, rich soprano will be greatly missde in the church services.

DODGERS DOWN CUBS IN 12 INNINGS AND ARE WITHIN 1 POINT OF GIANTS

Brooklyn, Sept. 22.—Brooklyn defeated Chicago today 2 to 1 in 12 innings. Wheat's double in the twelfth scored Mitchell with the winning run. Doak and Aldridge were tied up in a pitcher's battle. The Brooklyn twirler had a bit the better of his rival. By virtue of this victory the Dodgers picked up a half game on the Giants, who were idle today on account of wet grounds.

Innings:

Neither team scored in the first although the Cubs got a man on first on a pass but he was out stealing. The Dodgers went out in order.

The Cubs opened the scoring in the first half of the second inning. With one away Friberg was passed. On the hit and run play, Grigsby singled to right, Fdiberg taking third. Grigsby was out stealing on the next play but Hartnett was out trying to stretch his hit into a double, Griffith to Mitchell.

A snappy double play killed Brooklyn's chances of scoring in the second. Fournier was passed with nobody out but Heathcote made a great running catch of Brown's short fly and doubled Fournier at first. Taylor closed the inning by fanning.

The Cubs went out in a row in their half of the third. Griffith got a life on Grantham's error of his hot grounder. Stock was passed, Griffith taking second. Doak attempted to sacrifice, but Griffith was forced at third on the play. Stock scored on High's single to center. The rally was over, however, when Mitchell and Wheat flied out.

The Cubs went out in order again in their half of the fourth.

Fournier opened the Brooklyn section of the inning by doubling to right. Brown hit to Adams and Fournier was run down between the bases. Brown died on first when Taylor lifted to short and Griffith fanned.

Friberg opened the fifth by singling to right. He rested peacefully there, however, when the next three batters hoisted out.

High walked with two down in Brooklyn's half of the inning but Mitchell ended it by lifting to Friberg. Aldridge had yielded but two safe hits up to this point, while the Cubs had gathered but three hits off Doak.

The Cubs expired in one, two, three order in the sixth.

Wheat singled to right to open the Dodgers' half of the sixth. Three straight flies which were swallowed up by the Cub outfielder killed the Dodgers' chances of scoring, however

It was three in a row again for the Cubs in their half of the seventh.

The Dodgers went out the same way in their half of the stanza.

Grigsby started the eighth with a single to center. Hartnett sent him to second. Cotter was intentionally passed. Aldridge sacrificed and both men advanced a base. Adams lifted to Brown and two Cubs were left stranded on the cushions.

High singled to left with no one down in the Dodgers' half of the inning. Mitchell sacrificed him to second. Wheat grounded out, High taking third. Fournier was intentionally passed. Brown ended it by forcing Fournier at second.

The Cubs expired in order in the ninth

In the Brooklyn half, Griffith walked with one down and went to second on Stock's infield single. Doak fanned. High grounded out and the game went into extra innings with the score one all.

High threw out Friberg to start the tenth. Grigsby struck out. Hartnett flied to Brown.

In the Brooklyn half Mitchell started by striking out. Wheat then singled to left. Fournier walked. Brown flied to Grigsby. Aldridge threw out Taylor.

Doak walked Cotter to start the 11th. Stats was sent in to run for him. Aldridge sacrificed, Stats taking second. Adams flied to Brown. Mitchell threw out Heathcote.

Elliott was sent in to play first for Chicago.

Grantham threw out Griffith to start the Brooklyn half of the 11th. Stock flied to left. Doak ended the inning by fanning.

Grantham singled to start the 12th. Weis attempted to sacrifice but Grantham was caught at second, Stock to Mitchell. Friberg injured himself in sliding to first and was carried off the field. High threw out Friberg. Friberg made a desperate slide to the bag trying to beat the throw and seriously injured his leg. It looked as though his leg was broken. The injury is not yet ascertained. Weis took second then Doak threw out Grigsby.

Barrett went to third for Chicago.

FAVORITES WIN ON CARD AT COLUMBUS

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 22.—(By the A. P.)—The King, $3,000 stake for 2:08 pacers, the feature event of the opening day's racing card at the fall Grand Circuit meeting here today proved the undoing of the only favorite to lose in the four races on the program.

The event was a four heat affair, with Colonel Bidwell, the favorite, winning the first heat and Margaret Spangler the second. Russell Ongale of the McDonald stables then won the third and fourth heats.

The horse review futurity for two year old trotters furnished a surprise in the first heat when the heavily played Sumatra, broke at the start and finished no better than sixth. She broke again in the second heat but recovered after losing ground and won the heat, trotting the final quarter in 30 seconds. The third heat was easy for her.

The favored Oscawanna won the 2:11 trot in straight heats. Henry Ford, the favorite in the 2:18 pace won the first two heats but lost the third to Bonnie Watts.

Plainfield All-Stars Win.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

Score 6 to 1 in favor of team in field. Runners on first and third. One out. A fast left-hand hitter at bat. Seventh inning. Ball is hit to second baseman.

To whom should the second baseman make the play?

Simple plays always seem to cause the most trouble in baseball. In this case when a team leads by five runs in the seventh inning, it should make sure of getting one man. Thus if the runner going to first is a fast man, the second baseman should field such a ball to the shortstop or second. That will probably let the runner score from third and the shortstop should not try for a double at first, as his team still has a four run lead, and the opponents have two out and a man on first.

BALTIMORE-WATERBURY SERIES OPENS TODAY

Waterbury, Sept. 22.—Lefty Groves, Baltimore Jack Dunn's strikeout ace will be on the mound for the Orioles and Manager Kitty Bransfield has promised Andy Rush as the Brassco's server in the opening game of the series to decide the unofficial eastern minor league championship which which opens here tomorrow afternoon, and will be continued Wednesday and Thursday. Governor Charles A Templeton will toss the first ball, in the three game series which promises to bring out some of the fastest witnesses here in years.

Groves has made a wonderful record in the International, his work has been largely responsible for the success of the Orioles, who this season won their sixth straight pennant. Rush has won 22 and lost ten games for Bransfield, being second only to Gary Fortune of the Springfield club who won 23 and lost ten. McCarthy or Green will be back of the plate for the visitors with Alex Schauffel holding down the Brassco end of the assignment.

Smudge Demoe and Carl Schmehl of the Hartford team will be in the Brassco's infield at second and short, respectively. Games will be called at 3:15 o'clock daylight saving time. J. Conway Toole, head of the International and Dan O'Neil, president of the Eastern will be the guests of President Herman Weisman, of the Waterbury club.

PALMER'S WILDNESS CAUSE OF WILLIMANTICS DEFEAT

The much touted "big" game between Willimantic and Manchester was played at Recreation park Sunday afternoon before one of the banner crowds of the season. It was a disappointment, however, to all except those who came down from Manchester. The Silktown team, aided and abetted by the wildness of one "Lefty" Palmer walked away with the contest by a 14 to 8 score. The Thread Makers outhit their deadly rivals by the ratio of 15 to 9 but Palmer's eleven bases on balls proved too much of a handicap to overcome.

Sharpe and Couillard were the hitting stars of the game with four hits apiece, Sharpe's including a double and a triple. Bronkie drove in five runs and scored three himself before taking himself out of the picture in favor of Hanna. He also collected a double and a triple. Others to hit safely twice were Massey, Wilson, and Sipples for Manchester and Harris for Willimantic. Wilson's triple cleaned the sacks in the seventh.

A fist fight between two or three local fans attracted more attention than the ball game did during the latter stages of the pastime. There were few good fielding plays. Sipples making a good catch for the visitors and Noel for Willimantic.

EPINARD SHOWS FAST TIME AT MILE DISTANCE

New York, Sept. 22.—Epinard, Pierre Wertheimer's French thoroughbred, impressed critics today with a speedy mile workout under colors between races at Aqueduct, and as a result may go to the post a favorite in the second International special to be run there next Saturday.

The French champion went the mile which is to be the distance of Saturday's race, in 1:38. Some watches clocked him even a trifle faster. The manner of the colt's work, as well as his speed, aroused favorable comment among trainers. Epinard showed no signs of distress, cooled out nicely and apparently is fit for his second big test.

Prospects now are that the field for the second International special will be smaller than that to the first at Belmont on Labor Day. Ladkin, Major August Belmont's crack which flashed remarkable speed in capturing the Edgemere handicap Saturday, and Wise Counsellor, conqueror of Epinard in the first race, loom as the French Colt's outstanding rivals.

Orange County Wins

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Jack Nelson, brilliant Argentine rider, led the Orange County Polo team to a 12-5 victory over Karl Hopping's Eastcotts today and earned for his team the right to meet Tommy Hitchcock's Wanders in the semi-final of the open championship on Wednesday.

PEERLESS FIVE WINS TWO FROM WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 22.—The Peerless Five after being outclassed in the opener by 39 pins took the final two games from Willimantic here this evening, the second game by a comfortable margin of 17 pins but the final was a tight squeeze for the Peerless and two pins separated them from the Willimantic five at the end of the game Belcher's spare in the ninth box of the third and last game with five on it and a ten box following, decided the game. Rivers had a chance to tie up but got a split in the final box and could only pin but 8.

Neither team hit the pins with consistency, both being off form. Although the scores were not exceptionally high they were hotly contested. Rivers for Willimantic was the only man on either team to hit 300 or better getting 320 for three strings. Belcher for New London, having two bad strings before the third, knocked out high single for the evening with 115 in the last string. Cooper's two spares in the final two boxes in the third game also helped out New London. Scores:

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 22.—After losing the first game by 47 pins, the Lawrence five of this city mended their ways and captured the final two games from the Palace five of Norwich, giving them two out of three. The Lawrence alleys, newly entered in the league found difficulty to hit the pins squarely in the first game, but made up this deficency in the next two games, winning each by wide margins.

Steve Tunisk, the pinboy bowler, was more than responsible for winning the final two strings for the locals, for his pinning was good. He tied Sistare for high single, and easily captured the high three honors with 315. Although the Lawrence five did not hit five hundred in any of the three strings, yet they came close in the last two games. In winning the initial encounter, the Rose City bowlers hit 514. CORKRAN WINS MEDAL IN AMATEUR GOLF Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 22.—By the A. P.)—Dudley Clarke Corkran of the Huntingdon Valley club, Philadelphia, today won the Qualifying medal of the National Amateur Golf tournament with another new record. The impetus of his unprecedented 67 of last Saturday carried him to a total of 142 for the 36-hole qualifying test, two strokes lower than Bobby Jones of Atlanta.

Bobby duplicated Saturday's 72 today and seemed to have the medal won with 144 when Corkran went to the turn in 42, six more than par, needing a par 34 to beat Jones. Corkran arose to the emergency and came home in one better than par for a 75. Jones had to be contented with the day's best score for 18 holes.

Corkran has the honor of making the lowest 18 hole medal score ever made in National Amateur golf and also the lowest qualifying score for 36-holes. The old 36-hole record was equalled by Jones today.

The most sensational qualifying test the tournament has ever had wound up in a play off by five entrants

The Social Workers' Council of New London and Windham counties will hold its first meeting of the year on Tuesday, September 23rd, at the Norwich Golf club. Luncheon will be served at one o'clock after which John B. Dawson, executive secretary of the organized charities, New Haven, will address the members and their guests.

The council had its beginning in an endeavor upon the part of the many departments of social welfare in these two counties to come together for the purpose of discussion on matters in which they hold a common interest with the state program. During the coming year monthly meetings will be held, and prominent men and women in the field of social service will address the members. A very interesting program has been planned for the year, and members are privileged to invite guests to participate.

CONSTIPATION —the Aggravation, if not the Cause, of most Diseases

When the bowels become clogged with poisonous waste matter, cleanse them at once, but avoid drastic purgatives; they make constipation worse by irritating the delicate linings of the intestines and digestive tract. Use Beecham's Pills, which are mild but effective, tone the stomach and liver and train the bowels to natural, complete functioning.

NURSE TOLD SANDY TO TAKE TANLAC

"Don't Stop on 1 Bottle but Try 5," She Recommended

"My wife is a nurse and she thinks Tanlac is without an equal; and, as for myself, I never lose an opportunity to recommend it for the good it has done me." This statement was made recently by John T. Sandy, 711 Sumner Avenue, Springfield, Mass.

"In March, 1923, I suddenly began to suffer from peculiar dizzy spells that would come on like a flash and almost strike me down. For a long time I had been going along without any appetite and could eat no meats or eggs and lots of other things. I also suffered from catarrh and was laid up for two months, absolutely all in.

"I told my wife to bring me a bottle of Tanlac. She said, 'Don't stop at one; take five,' and that is what I have done, with the result that my appetite is perfect, the dizziness is no more, and my strength is so good that I am working every day. My wife and I are both strong for Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

New York, Sept. 22.—Price movements in today's stock market lacked uniformity, bullish demonstrations in the public utilities and specialties being counteracted by the heaviness of a number of standard industrials and rails. Business was in moderate volume, the day's sales aggregating about three quarters of a million shares.

Heavy buying of the public utilities was largely a reflection of higher earnings. The accumulation of local gas shares was stimulated by efforts of an early termination of the rate litigation in the preliminary proceedings of which the companies have been succesful.

Twenty-five issues attained new peak prices for the year during the session, including Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Union Gas, North American Company, Standard Gas and Electric, Peoples Gas, Pacific Gas and Electric, Federal Light and Traction, American Tobacco and Liggett and Myers issues, National Biscuit, Cushman, Packard Motor common and preferred, Worthington Pump and Savage Arms.

Oil shares showed a temporary display of strength on the announcement of higher prices for heavy Smackover Crude, the first favorable market development in the oil industry in some time. Houston touched 74 on the rally but dropped back later to 72 1-2, where it was up one-half point on the day. Gains in the other oils also were materially reduced or cancelled later.

United States Steel, Baldwin and Studebaker all closed fractionally lower on a relatively small volume of trading. American Can, the most active member of the "big four" touched 130 in the early trading and then fell back to 127 7-8, off 1 3-8.

Most of the high grade rails lost ground, although Missouri Pacific preferred broke through their previous high levels, Rock Island, Reading, Lackawanna, Nickel Plate preferred and Northern Pacific lost one to two points.

Standard Plate Glass, which broke sharpley Saturday due to the confusion over the change of the corporate name, rebounded 6 1-2 points to 26 at the opening and then slipped back to 22 1-8. Active short coverings was reported in American Woolen, which closed about a point higher at 53 3-8. North American, the most active feature of the entire list, was bid up to 35 1-4, and then eased to 33, up 2 5-8, on the day.

Call money continued to hold steady, at two per cent. Time money rates were unchanged with business quiet. Prime commercial paper, which has been quoted 3 1-4 to 3 1-2, was on a flat 3 1-4 per cent. basis with some exceptionally good names quoted as low as three per cent.

Foreign exchange were reactionary, with speculative selling reported from European centers. Demand sterling ruled half a cent lower around $4.45 3-4, and French francs dropped 3 1-2 points to 5.25 cents. Argentine exchange was strong.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 22.—Heavy buying of the public utilitie featured today's irregular curb market. American Power and Light, old stock, jumped 50 points to a new high record of 500 and then slipped back to 485. The new stock, which was very active, touched a new high at 50 5-8 and then reacted two points. Commonwealth Power, Lehigh Power securities and a few other popular issues improved fractionally while American Light and Traction dropped 1 1-2 points.

Oils were mixed but most of the popular issues held steady in anticipation of favorable trade developments. Woodley Petroleum crossed 11 to a new high on the movement in reflection of an increase of 15 cents in heavy Smackover Crude Oil, of which th ecompany has a large stock on hand. Other oils stiffened in expectation of better prices for other grades of fuel oil.

Industrials also presented a curious mixture of gains and losses, strengthening of Gillett Safety Razor and Ware Radio being offset by the heaviness of Duz Company and Centrifugal Cast Iron Pipe.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 22.—U. S. government obligations and high-grade railroad issues led the bond market to higher ground in today's active trading. Steady investment buying by banks desiring a better return on their surplus funds carried a number of Liberty bonds to within striking distance of their 1924 peak levels and also pushed several gilt-eded corporation issues into new high territory.

Establishment by the new Belgian 6 1-2s of a new high record at 97, three points above the offering prices, marked trading in the foreign list. Attractive features of the sinking fund provisions, calling for monthly payments beginning Oct. 1, were held partly responsible for the rise in this issue. Cuba 4 1-2s also touched a new 1924 top price at 89 1-2. Mexican assented issues, however, were subjected to selling pressure, the 4s dropping to a new low at 19 1-2.

Predictions of increased earnings, combined with merger possibilities, contributed to heavy accumulation of the International Great Northern adjustment 6s, which sold today at a record high price of 65.

Predictions of better earnings also brought an upturn in St. Paul Railway liens and in the bonds of Pere Marquette, Union Pacific, Frisco, Denver and Rio Grande and other western carriers.

Brisk buying of Brooklyn Union Gas 7 per cent. issues, based on reports of an early settlement of pending litigation, sent these bonds to new 1924 high levels. The issue maturing in 1939 mounted five points to 15. Wilson and Company liens also were in demand.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Active general selling in the corn market today led to a much lower range of prices for corn. The selling was stimulated by enlarged receipts here and by continued absence of any heavy damage from frost. Corn closed weak, 2 7-8 to 4 1-4c net lower. December $1.03 5-8 to $1.03 7-8. In wheat, the closing was unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to 5-8c up, December $1.32 1-8 to $1.32 1-4 and May $1.37 5-8 to $1.37 3-4, with oats 1-4 to 3-4c down, and provisions varying from 7c lower to 15c gain.

For the first time this month, the arrivals of corn in Chicago today totaling 719 cars, were of sufficient volume to make deliveries on the current month's contracts, a desirable procedure. It was apparent that consignments of corn to this market were increasing, and this fact together with weather conditions that were looked upon as favorable in the main and indicative of better crop prospects were more of a handicap than holders could withstand. A good deal of speculative selling tended also to accelerate the downward course of the market.

An unofficial estimate that the 1924 yield of corn would be 66,000,00 bushels less than the government's September forecast failed to bring about more than a transient rally in the value of new crops deliveries. A prediction of light frost tonight over a large part of th ecorn belt was likewise almost ignored.

Wheat prices were upheld by export purchases both of wheat and rye estimated at 1,000,000 bushel or more of each grain. All deliveries of rye touched a new high price record for the season. Unfavorable weather for the domestic crop movement in the northwest tended also to strengthen wheat quotations despite corn weakness. Oats however, eased down with corn.

Provisions averaged higher owing to an upturn in hogs.

CANTERBURY GREEN

The conference of churches held at the Green last Wednesday was well attended, all the churches belonging being represented except the Central Village church. The program as previously printed was carried out, resulting in a pleasant and profitable day.

At a meeting of the church and ecclesiastical society Friday evening, it was decided to tear down the old sheds and possibly construct two or three new ones to be placed in a less conspicuous location behind the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink and Mr. and Mrs. William Wright were at Springfield last week attend the fair.

The family of James Appley attended the grange fair at North Stonington.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lathrop have been entertaining a relative, Miss Houston, of East Orange, N. J.

At the grange meeting Wednesday evening, Malcolm Wibberly had an able and interesting paper on the child welfare question. Ten members of the grange went to Pachaug to a neighbors' night meeting Thursday evening and assisted in the program.

Mrs. Lucy Davis spent Sunday with relatives in Putnam.

Prof. Pratt of the Hartford Theological seminary and Mrs. Pratt were recent callers upon Rev. Ralph Knight, at the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight and son Alan were in Norwich Friday and were also at Fitchville where they were entertained by Rev. Mr. Webb and Mrs. Webb. Mr. Webb was a classmate of Mr. Knight and is now pastor of the Congregational church at Fitchville. He occupied the pulpit here a few months ago in Mr. Knight's absence and will be remembered by many of the people.

Wendell P. Brown of Cleveland, while on a business trip east, spent the week end at the Brown home on Black Hill.

A young people's club, the O. G. S., has recently been organized under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Knight. The first meeting was held on the church green with about 40 in attendance when a weenie roast was enjoyed and games were played. The club met with Miss Helen Nelson on Monday evening.

A Mr. and Mrs. Davis, who have been living in the North Society neighborhood have moved into the lower tenement of the old store building recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Wiggins.

A large crowd was present at the auction at the Eaton place Friday, the 12th. Many pieces of old fashioned furniture were among the household goods sold. The place was bought by Hubert Graves who will occupy it soon moving from his present home in New London.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The past week in building lines in and about Norwich was one of marked activity as a number of the projects now on hand were brought to the completion stage. On the other hand there was an equally marked falling off in the number of permits filed for new buildings. At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton there were no building permits granted and only one application for permission to build received. The month of September, however, is well ahead of previous years and from indications so far it is expected that the number of new buildings erected in Norwich will far exceed the record. The total valuation, however, is considerably below the record of 1923, there having been so far very few of the large contracts of other years. There has been a large number of smaller buildings in the city erected.

New London

The contract has been awarded to Thomas Occhialini, 4 Chelsea street, for a garage for Isaac and Anna Hirsch, on Truman street, rear of 675 Bank street. The building will be 20x30 feet, one story high, of concrete block construction.

A garage, 30x20 feet, is to be erected for Mary Dorsey, at 109 Truman street. The building will be constructed of concrete blocks. The contract for the mason work has been awarded.

Work has been started on a dwelling for Gildo Minucci on School street. From private plans the dwelling will be 24x28 feet, of frame construction, and will contain six rooms. The cost will be $4,000.

The pews have arrived for the Ahaved Chesed Synagogue on Federal street, Wolf Strikovitch, president, and are being installed by Reuben Lubchansky, 217 Main street. Interior alterations are being made.

Plans and specifications are being prepared for a building on Main street to contain three stores and four apartments. The structure will be of brick and steel construction, 58x66 feet, three stories high, with artificial stone trim. The stores will have plate glass and copper store fronts and there will be a modern heating system and other improvements. Each of the four apartments will be arranged for six rooms. A basement will be subdivided for all the tenants.

Meyer H. Hollandersky, 108 State street, has taken the permit to erect an addition to his dwelling house at 36 Nathan Hale street. From plans prepared by Architects Payne & Keefe the addition will be 36x50 feet, of frame construction, two stories high. It will be arranged for four apartments and will cost about $20,000. The owner will award the sub-contracts.

Plans are being prepared for a fine residence on Hillside avenue for Frederick W. Mercer, 64 Huntington street. The proposed house will contain the latest features of residence construction.

J. M. Linicus, Colonade apartments has taken out a permit for a frame house on the Parkway. The proposed dwelling will be 24x24 feet, two stories high, arranged for five rooms. It will cost about $5,000.

Applications for Building Permits

J. M. Linicus, dwelling, Parkway, $5,000.

Isaac Hirsch, garage, Truman street, $300.

Antone Alexander, garage, 209 Howard street, $300.

Ethel E. Beckwith, addition, 94 Blinman street, $1,000.

Antonio Basilico, storehouse, 158 Shaw street, $400.

E. C. Ford, filling station, corner Jefferson avenue and Garfield avenue $200.

Mary Dorsey, garage, 109 Truman street, $1,000.

Gildo Minucci, dwelling, School street, $4000.

Meyer Hollandersky, addition, 36 Nathan Hale street, $20,000.

Number of permits issued for the week, 11; estimated cost of buildings, $32,800.

Storrs

To provide a community house and an enlarged plant the Connecticut Federation of Churches has started to raise funds. A sum of $250,000 will be needed. The federation will work in conjunction with the trustees of the Storrs Congregational Church.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were 13 sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week as compared to 12 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $38,065 and $33,380.

POETRY

THE RUINED GARDEN.

This was an old-time garden—once most fair!
Now but a net of motley meadow grass—
Low-dipping swallows cleave the languid air,
And fitful shadows pause and dream and pass.

The clinging myrtle riots where the blooms
Of larkspur swung like airy stars of blue;
Ragweed and fennel flaunt their waving plumes,
And thistles nod where spicy clove pinks grew.

A tattered ivy clambers down the wall
In haste to press her ardent, trembling lips
To the cool bosom of the waterfall
Which from the broken fountain steals and slips.

And here and there a slender sapling grows—
A vampire stem, which draws its eager breath
From tangled thicket, where once bloomed the rose
Before she listened to the lure of Death!

The solemn dial, where Time's warning hand,
Swift and remorseless, traced the fleeting day,
Crumbles, half hidden, in the shifting sand;
A sheltered nook, where witless comes play!

And over all an eerie stillness charms
The weary heart to slumber soft and deep—
As though the Ages cradled in their arms
This ruined spot, and brooded o'er its sleep.

Lapped in the whispered hush of lisping leaves,
Lulled by the murmur of the wind's low croon,
No far, faint echo of the world-cry grieves;
All peace, it dreams, beneath the dreaming moon.

—Hillyer Eastman.

SINGING WATERS.

There's a place that's sweet and secret
Down below the forest glade,
Where the busy little river
Stops to loiter in the shade.
All day long the tall trees, bending,
Watch the surface, mirror clear,
And a faint, far sound, like music,
If you listen, greets your ear.

Tinkle, tinkle, over pebbles,
All the sleepy summer day;
Tinkling slowly through the grasses
Goes the river on its way.
It's a lovely place to linger,
Just to linger, rest and dream,
Down beside the Singing Waters,
Where the sunbeams dance and gleam

All the birds within the forest
Come to drink there at the pool,
For the water in the shallows
Is like crystal, clear and cool;
There's a spirit of enchantment
Seems to hover in the air;
It's the place of Singing Waters
And my heart my heart is there!
—Edith D. Osborne, in St. Nicholas

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Grandpa," asked small Elsie, as she watched the old gentleman feeding the chickens, "do all hens eat with their noses?" — Chickens News.

And you and your wife have decided to do it?

Not exactly. My wife decided. I agreed.—Good Hardware.

Wife—I don't feel like myself tonght.

Husband—Then we ought to have a very pleasant evening. — London Opinion.

Caller—Your daughter is an equestrienne, isn't she.

Proud Mother, Either that or a valedictorian. These classe affairs are so confusing, don't you know?—Boston Transcript.

Isn't it disgusting the way they permit things like this in the theatre?

Yes—but it attracts the public.

Doesn't it, indeed! I had all sorts of trouble getting this box for tonight.—Le Ruy Blas, Paris.

Teacher—James, give some quotation you've learned from the Bible.

James—And so Judas went out and killed himself.

Teacher—Good; give another.

James—Go thou and do likewise.—Exchange.

Bryon wished Dr. Alexander to accompany him to Greece, but the physician explained that he could not go, as he was married.

"Ah," said Byron bitterly, "how different it is with me! I'm going because I am married."—Living Age.

From art articles in Scotch paper—The Arrested Sacrifice, a representation of Moses on Mount Moriah with arm uplifted and the angel arresting his action to kill Isaac.

This would make a good companion picture to the well-known representation of Abraham on Mount Sinai carving the tablets of stone.—Boston Transcript.

TWO SUMMONED TO COURT AFTER CRASH AT PARK CHURCH CORNER

Two automobiles collided at the Park church corner Monday night about 8.30 o'clock with a crash that startled the neighborhood and the drivers, John J. Shea, Jr., of 472 Boswell avenue and Thuer W. Dahl of 215 Boswell avenue were summoned to the police court for Tuesday morning to answer charges of reckless driving.

None of the occupants of the cars was injured, although the ambulance from the Backus hospital was summoned immediately after the accident when a witness to the smash rushed into a nearby house and telephoned to police headquarters, thinking someone must surely be hurt.

Shea in a Ford coupe, accompanied by James McKelvey, was driving up Broadway and struck the side of a Willys Knight coupe which Dahl was driving across Williams avenue towards the Academy grounds. As the Ford hit the other car a witness stated that it shot up into the air and toppled over on its side in the street. The Dahl car was whirled around until it came to a stop with its rear wheels on the grass of the park and one front wheel over the trolley track at the Park church corner. The occupants of the Ford crawled out through the door, unhurt, immediately after the crash.

The Ford had its radiator and front end smashed in and the Willys Knight showed the right running board smashed back of the center line of the car and the right rear fender crushed in. The windshield glass also was broken.

When making their report at police headquarters, Dahl admitted that he saw the other car approaching and he slowed up slightly but then "stepped on it" to get out of the way. Shea admitted, according to the police, that his speed was from 28 to 30 miles an hour at the corner and said he did not see the other car before he hit it.

NORWICH SCOUTS' EXHIBIT WINS FIRST PRIZE

Scout Executive F. A. Benton and his son returned Saturday from Springfield, where the latter constructed a merit badge booth in the shape of a bee hive of primitive type of straw rope. This construction occupied four days and the exhibit was awarded a first prize. Insects and butterflies in cases were also exhibited as well as a hive of bees, honey and other products.

Fred C. With of the National Red Cross Life Saving Corps, Henry Jordan, Maine guide, B. T. Hyde, national history specialist, Arthur O. Marston, Indian lore, W. L. Van Sicklen, camp director, and many others contributed their special knowledge to the success of the village.

Connecticut was represented by the councils of Norwich, New London and Stamford. Archery, bee keeping, insects, forestry, stalking, winter camping, signalling and other activities were represented.

The Delaware, Montgomery, Pa., council set up a model camp of red cedar. Jersey City, New Jersey, had an excellent forestry exhibit and Rome, N. Y., an instructive archery booth.

Harry Jordan who was at Camp Tippecan this summer constructed a canoe and set up an Adirondack lean-to in which he had his sleeping quarters during the exposition.

The executive, Fred C. Mills in charge and W. L. Van Sicklen conducted a regular camp and the 55 scouts present slept in open tents during the week.

The expenses of the scouts are paid by the exposition directors and transportation to Springfield as well.

Pine tree patrols, Indian pageantry, fires and cooking, life saving, fire by friction, signal towers, swimming, first aid, forestry, archery, lariat throwing by Stroud, the world's champion roper and rider, and many others too numerous to mention formed the program for the scouts.

Part of the insect exhibit at Springfield sent up by Norwich council will soon appear in one of the local windows.

This is the fourth time that the Norwich council has sent scouts and exhibits to Springfield.

MISS FULLER IN ENGLAND SEES FAMED WAR MEMORIAL

Writing from Cheshire, England, where she has been visiting relatives during the summer, Miss H. Louise Fuller of Washington street tells of having a most enjoyable holiday, motoring in those northern counties and in Wales, seeing the beautiful country, great cathedrals and hearing wonderful music.

Miss Fuller tells her friends: "I am impressed more and more by the brave spirit of the people here and by the fact that we, in the States, know nearly nothing of the war. Every town has its memorial. In the wonderfully beautiful cathedral in Liverpool (it was begun twenty years ago and it may be twenty years more before it is completed) there is the War Memorial Transept and a volume containing the named of 40,000 men of the Liverpool diocese who were killed in the war. The volume is inscribed:

"They whom this volume commemorate were numbered among those who at the call of king and country left all that was dear to them, endured hardships, faced danger and finally passed out of the sight of men by the path of duty and self sacrifice giving up their own lives that others might live in freedom.

"Let those who come after, see to it that their names be not forgotten."

Camp Ground Cottages Sold.

Six cottages at Willimantic Campground have changed owners this season. The Morrill Currier cottage on Haven avenue was purchased by Mrs. Sykes and daughter of Worcester, the Goddard cottage by Mr. Lincoln from Willimantic, the Rev. George Stanley cottage by Clarence Jeffers of Plainfield, the Goff cottage by Mrs. Nellie Saunders Wheaton of Jewett City, the Hawkins cottage on Simpson avenue by Mrs. Helena S. Richardson of Boston, Mass., and the Edith Mathews cottage by Rev. Robert Williams of Michigan.

Was Norwich Town Visitor.

Frederick Millard of Philadelphia, formerly of Norwich, who has been spending some time at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Millard, of Montauk avenue, New London, returned Sunday afternoon. Mr. Millard, who for several weeks was in a New London hospital for treatment, spent a few days with Norwich Town friends before returning to Philadelphia.

APPEALS HIS SENTENCE ON LIQUOR VIOLATION

The week end produced the usual busy Monday morning session of the city court. Olive M. Young, New Haven, William Mitchell Newark, N. J., William M. Powers, New London and Abe Saparstarre, Bozor, were charged with violations of the traffic law. They were each fined $5. The case against Theron B. Woodmansee of No. 9 Bushnell place was nolled. He was arrested Saturday night on a charge of failure to stop after his machine had hit the motorcycle of Jeremian Fish on West Main street. Woodmansee claimed the noise of an approaching trolley car made it impossible for him to know that he had hit the motorcycle. He agreed to settle for the damage done to the motorcycle.

The court again continued the case against Charles Yankowski this time until November 1st. He is charged with using an automobile without the owner's permission. Alexander F. Funker, Submarine Base, and Howard Barton of New London, were fined $5 on a charge of parking their machines on crosswalks.

Two men were sent to jail on charges of intoxication and a third man paid $19.50 on an intoxication charge. John Sanko, No. 16 Shipping street, was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to jail for 15 days on a charge of violation of the liquor law. He appealed and was released on bonds of $500.

The cast against Mrs. Angeline Carboni of 270 Main street, charged with violation of the liquor law was continued until Wednesday morning. Peter Falvey of New London was given a fine of $5 and costs on a charge of kicking a Jewett City girl during an argument at Hill Top dance hall Saturday night. Intoxication charges against two men were continued until Tuesday morning.

SUES TYLER CRUTTENDEN FOR INJURIES TO BOY

Tyler Cruttenden, proprietor of the Moose Hill Inn, in Guilford, formerly of this city, has been made defendant in two suits in which damges aggregate $25,000 are claimed for injuries received by Joseph Iannucci, the four year old son of Louis Iannucci of 607 Chapel street, New Haven. In addition to suing Cruttenden for $20,500 for his son's injuries, Iannucci claims $5 000 damages for himself for medical expenses he was put to as a result of the injuries his son received.

The accident occurred on the evening of July 16 at the corner of Chapel and Olive streets, New Haven. The boy was crossing the street when Cruttenden's car came along and knocked the boy down. The writ says that Innucci's right leg was broken in several places, that his eye was pushed from the socket and he suffered other injuries. The father of the boy, in bringing the action claims that the hotel man was driving the car at an excessive rate of speed and that the accident was due to carelessness and negligence on the part of the driver.

Besides making other service upon Cruttenden, Constable Maley went to Hartford and garnisheed money in the possession of State Highway Commissioner Macdonald. These funds it is claimed are due to be paid to Cruttenden in settlement of damages claimed by the hotel man alleged to have been caused by the state highway depastment widening the post road in front of Moose Hill Inn.

BROUGHT HERE TO FACE FALSE PRETENSE CHARGE

Michael Sacks, 34, who was arrested in New York city last week for the local police, who had a warrant for him on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, was brought here from New York late Monday afternoon by Officer Charles Smith and is held for appearance in the city court.

It is alleged that Sacks induced Jacob Bukovetski last June to lend him $150 on the representation that he owned a large farm in Preston and was spending much money on it, all of which, it is claimed, was false and fraudulent.

Officer Smith did some fast work in order to get to New York Monday in time to present extradition papers, as he left here Friday morning and had to go to Hartford and Albany to get the necessary signatures at the offices of the governors of Connecticut and New York.

THOUGHT RED FLAG MEANT GO FASTER

A curiosity in woman automobile drivers came to light Monday on the East Side, where the Peck-McWilliams Co. is at work moving a house from one side of the street to the other.

The firm had two constables employed with red flags to direct traffic during the moving operation, as the house had the street blocked. What was the surprise of one of the constables who was signalling with his red flag to have a woman drive her machine past him.

"Here! here!" he shouted at her as he managed to bring her to a stop. "What do you mean, driving past a red flag?"

"What is that for?" she asked.

"Don't you see the street's blocked?"

"Oh, I thought the red flag meant to go faster," came the answer that nearly knocked the constable over.

Exhibits Unique Tapestries.

At the third annual women's activities exhibit at the Hotel Commodore, New York, this week Miss Elizabeth Kempton has entered some very unique Batick tapestries which she designed and colored during the past year, executing several rare designs inspired by research work abroad. Among her other exhibits are to be found hand colored batick scarfs, negligee and dress patterns in connection with the styles interpretation exhibit. Miss Kempton, who spends the greater part of her time in New York, has been spending the summer in Yantic at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kempton, and has been seen frequently making sketches of interesting places of that picturesque section of Norwich. Her artistic abilities are unusually varied and a source of pleasure and inspiration to many.

Escaped from State Hospital.

The New London police late Monday afternoon were requested to be on the lookout for Mollie Snyder, 45, who escaped from the Norwich state hospital earlier in the day. The woman is described as being about five feet eight inches in height and weighing 220 pounds. When the woman made her escape she was attired in a brown dress, dark green shawl, but did not wear a hat.

DEATH COMES SUDDENLY TO BRIGADIER GENERAL SAWYER

Former Personal Physician to the Late President Harding Expired of Cerebral Hemorrhage While Reclining in His Office at White Oak Farm, Marion, Ohio—Had Complained of Not feeling Well—Had Resigned as Personal Physician to President Coolidge to Become Chairman of the Harding Memorial Association.

Marion, O., Sept. 23.—Brig. Gen. Charles L. Sawyer, former personal physician to the late President Warren G. Harding, died suddenly at White Oak Farm, his home, here today.

Dr. Sawyer died of cerebral hemorrhage while reclining in his office where he was waiting for his son, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, to bring him some medicine. He had returned to his home early in the afternoon, complaining of not feeling well.

Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, wife of the late president, who has been making her home at White Oak Farm since his death, was with Dr. Sawyer when the end came. He died while sleeping.

Slightly more than a year from the time Dr. Sawyer stood by the bedside of President Harding in a San Francisco hotel and watched the end come the president's wife performed the same service to the physician.

A close friend of President Harding Dr. Sawyer was appointed the latter's personal physician soon after Mr. Harding was inaugurated. He was later appointed a brigadier general in the army. He accompanied Mr. Harding on his trip to Alaska and was a constant attendance upon him during his illness.

General Sawyer remained for a time personal physician to President Coolidge but resigned to become chairman of the Harding Memorial association which plans to erect a memorial here to the memory of the late president.

Arrangements had not been completed tonight.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE SENDS MESSAGE OF CONDOLENCE

Washington, Sept. 23.—Word of the death of General Sawyer was received at the White House and war department officials there with expressions of sorrow. President Coolidge immediately sent a message of condolence to Mrs. Sawyer.

Coming to Washington with President Harding at the beginning of his administration, Dr. Sawyer was commissioned a brigadier general in the medical reserve of the army and was given a succession of assignments, serving both as the president's physician and with the war department and veterans' bureau. He was for a time in charge of the general board for the hospitalization of World war veterans, and he continued his labors after President Harding died through the first part of the Coolidge administration.

One achievement which brought widespread praise to the Marion physician was his successful treatment of Mrs. Harding during a critical illness prior to the trip made by President Harding to Alaska.

Mrs. Harding, who had barely recovered when the Alaskan trip was started, required his continuous observation in Alaska and to a more marked degree, on his return to Washington with the body of her husband.

General Sawyer also cared for President Harding's health during the Alaskan trip and personally attended him when the first evidences of his fatal illness were noticed, treating him practically without aid until he was taken to the hotel in San Francisco where the services of other expert medical advice could be obtained.

President Coolidge retained Dr. Sawyer as his personal physician when he took over the office of the president. Later, however, Dr. Sawyer extended his work under the veterans' bureau and was given charge of the station at Perryville, Md., but more recently was placed on the inactive list of the army at his own request in order that he might give undivided attention to the affairs of veterans treatment for the government, and the Harding Memorial.

VICTIMS OF TROLLEY CRASH ON SOUTHINGTON MOUNTAIN

Waterbury, Sept. 23.—Four of the victims of the trolley crash on Southington mountain at 8 o'clock this morning are improving rapidly at St. Mary's hospital here and no fatalities are expected. The cars were operating over the Waterbury-Mildale Tramway company line. Martin Dwyer, 55, who was more seriously hurt than any others, suffered head injuries and general body lacerations when he was thrown through a window by the shock of the crash. Terrence Mulligan, 37, a passenger on the car coming toward this city, sustained several abrasions and many teeth were loosened. Earl Diiger, the motorman of the same car, has head injuries, and Frank Curley, the other operator, has a broken rib and body lacerations.

The two cars crashed together at a curve on the Southington mountain 200 feet west of the Merriman switch. It is believed that Diiger either disregarded or did not see a signal denoting the approach of the other car. Both motormen jammed on their brakes too late to lessen the impact and the passengers were thrown to the floor and out on to the ground. An investigation to determine the blame is being made.

Germany to Apply For L. of N. Membership

Delegates in Geneva Discuss Unanimous Action Taken by the German Cabinet.

Geneva, Sept. 23.—(By The A. P.)—Germany held the centre of the stage in Geneva tonight, and held it dramatically. Members of the council of the League of Nations and scores of other distinguished delegates formed little groups in the corridors of the league palace and discussed the big news from Berlin that the German cabinet had unanimously voted to apply for membership.

The string, which according to press despatches, Germany would attach to her application did not seem to worry overmuch the the members ofthe council with whom the correspondents of The Associated Press talked. The prevailing view was that the explanatory note issued by Berlin was chiefly intended for home consumption and as a sop to the nationalists, who are said to be fearful that Germany will be made to suffer new humiliations.

There seems to be no desire whatsoever here to humiliate Germany, but, on the contrary, practically everybody tonight was voicing deep satisfaction over Berlin's decision, coupled with words of hearty welcome.

The delegates have interpreted the news from Berlin as meaning that Germany will insist on a permanent seat on the council of the League of Nations, with perhaps some instance also that any military investigation of armaments, would not be conducted in such a way as to wound national dignity. It is understood that the Berlin oreign office will continue the diplomatic negotiations already begun in the capitals of the great powers so as to be certain that the reasonable conditions attached to the application for membership will be met.

League leaders said they were convinced that German adhesion would immediately reinforce the league as an international organism, and financial experts expressed the opinion that, it would contribute greatly to the operation of the Dawes reparation programme. The presence of Germany, they added, would greatly improve the running of the entire machinery of economic and finance, and hasten world reconstruction, not to mention improving the chance of success of the conference for the reduction of armaments.

Like the United States, Germany co-operates to a considerable extent with the league already; she is a member of the international labor office and takes an active part in opium, health, transit and other activities of a technical and humanitarian nature.

Presumably the United States' vacant chair will be maintained indefinitely, so strong is the conviction in league circles some day the United States will fill it, if only conditionally. Hence, there is no intention of turning over the American seat to Germany.

PRINCIPALS IN POISON PLOT ROMANCE IN JAIL

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 23.—With confessions in the poison plot romance in the hands of State's Attorney Thompson, Rev. Lawrence M. Hight and Mrs. Elsie Sweetin were taken from Mt. Vernon jail for confinement elsewhere, Salem and Belleville respectively.

Not so much the fears of Sheriff Holcomb that a threatening crowd might assemble, prompted the move, the sheriff said, but because there are no quarters here for women prisoners. So the two principals in this striking love story of a mining town circuit rider were separated after a brief but fervid farewell, each under charges of murder.

The two were together almost three hours this morning and this meeting furnished the missing link in the double murder, namely Mrs. Sweetin's. Their meeting was filled with affection, part in the confessed poison plot, as was their separation tonight.

Only Sheriff Holcomb and a few of his deputies witnessed the short, but impassioned farewell of the two. Looking down into her eyes, the clergyman approached the woman for whom he had confessed his love, grasped her hand and pressing back the tears from his eyes, murmured in a depressed tone:

"Goodbye, my dear. I hope, some how, we meet again."

No response came from the woman who still showed outward effects of an all night vigil, during which she was dressed for her confession.

DISCOVERY IN CASE OF DEFAULTER CHRISTIAN

New York, Sept. 23.—The handwriting of George R. Christian, missing treasurer of the Day & Heaton stock exchange house which went bankrupt last week with losses approaching $1,000,000, was discovered by detectives today in the books of the firm under date of last Sept. 4.

This was twenty days after Christian left New York, ostensibly for a point remote in Canada. It was four days before his fellow partners received the letter in which Christian is alleged to have admitted defalcations that had wrecked the business. It was twelve days before the firm, after an heroic effort to stave off a crash, went into voluntary bankruptcy.

Authorities declared that the discovery of entries in Christian's handwriting on Sept. 4 indicated that he had never left New York; that while his partners thought him in the wilds of Canada on strenuous vacation, he had secretly visited his offices at night to juggle the accounts.

MRS. TELL'S CASE TO COME UP IN MIDDLETOWN TODAY

Middletown, Sept. 23.—Calling of a grand jury was requested of High Sheriff Bert Thompson of Middlesex county by Superior Court Judge Arthur F. Ells this afternoon, and arrangements were made to have one in session tomorrow morning at 9 a. m., standard time. The presentment to be made to the grand jury is one drawn by State's Attorney Ernest F. Inglis against Mrs. Johanna Tell, self-confessed slayer of her employer, Charles F. Blair, chicken raiser, of Killingworth.

Mrs. Tell has been in Haddam jail since she was brought here from The Bronx in April. She had kept herself busy on embroidery which, through the aid of a woman's aid society here, she has sold. She is said also to be cheerful in mental condition and has had no complaint to make over her confinement in the jail.

Mrs. Tell was before a grand jury in May which failed to return an indictment. Mr. Inglis will ask the grand jury tomorrow to find a true bill either in first or second degree murder.

Mrs. Tell left the Blair or Blaha farm on April 8th last with her young daughter, going to New York, where two days later she told the district attorney, Mr. McGee, of The Bronx, that she had slain Blair and buried his body in a fertilizer pit. The body was found in the place described by hre. She was brought back and placed in Haddam jail.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY IN CONNECTICUT OCT. 9

Hartford, Sept. 23.—In co-operation with Fire Prevention week, Governor Templeton issued a proclamation today designating Thursday, Oct. 9, as Fire Prevention day in Connecticut. The proclamation is as follows:

"Waste is a principal element of cost. America's fire waste is af wartime magnitude, with no war to excuse it. Last year $500,000,000 in buildings and forests vanished in smoke, following $500,000,000 the year before Each citizen helps pay this enormous bill. It is reflected in the price of every article of use.

"Most of this loss is as preventable as the destruction, through negligence, of property and human life on our highways. There can be only one cure in either case, and that is care.

"The general assembly having so provided, I designate Thursday, Oct. 9th, next, as Fire Prevention day, and recommend that an earnest effort be made on that day to teach and practice ordinary care with respect to fire and all other matters affecting our mutual safety and well being. I further recommend that these efforts do not stop with Fire Prevention day."

COUNSEL KING TO PRODUCE GILPATRIC IN COURT, OCT. 6

Agreement Made After Assistant District Attorney Cohen Had Protested Failure of the Accused to Appear in Court in New Haven Yesterday—Judge Thomas Has Assigned the Case For Trial at Noon October 6—Counsel King Said Bullet Wound Has Not Left the Banker Totally Blind—Believes That Gilpatric Will Be Able to See, Eventually.

New Haven, Sept. 23.—G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer, and cashier of the First National bank of Putnam, closed after he had attempted to commit suicide August 7, was physically unable to appear in United States district court in person today to face charges of embezzlement, but his attorney, William King, of Willimantic, agreed to produce the banker in court on October 6th.

The Gilpatric case was not called until late this afternoon. Assistant District Attorney George Cohen in a statement to the court, said that Gilpatric's counsel had told him that Gilpatric would be physically unable to appear.

"He has a medical certificate from Dr. S. D. Overlock, of Putnam," Mr. Cohen continued, 'stating that the physician believes that it is not advisable for Gilpatric to come here and incur the fatigue of a trial. I do not think this certificate is sufficient. I think he ought to come here. He is not to be tried now but would only be put to plea. He could plead either guilty or not guilty. He should be here either today or at the earliest day that your honor feels should be set."

Mr. King after presenting the certificate from the Putnam physician, said:

"The district attorney is technically accurate, but the doctor wrote the certificate hastily. It does not say that it would not be advisable to have the accused stand the fatigue of a trial, but more than that Dr. Overlock meant that he should not incur the fatigue of a trip here. PHILA. TO DISMISS DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC SAFETY BUTLER

Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—Mayor Kendrick's communication to Director of Public Safety Butler, reported to contain a request for the director's resignation, was still in the mayor's hands tonight, awaiting the director's recovery from a severe cold General Butler was reported convalescing.

Nevertheless, what was taken by City Hall frequenters as a positive indication that the mayor would ask the general to resign was reported by a delegation of ministers who visited the mayor in hope of effecting a reconciliation between him and the director.

The "communication" Mayor Kendrick prepared yesterday, but withheld due to the director's illness, probably will be laid upon the director's desk Thursday morning, when General Butler is expected to be well enough to come to the City hall. Even today he arose from his sickbed, ordered his car, and prepared to don his uniform, when Dr. Hubley R. Owen, chief police surgeon, arrived and ordered him back to bed.

"If you go out of this house, I will not be responsible," the doctor told the general. "It would be suicidal for you to think of going to City hall."

"I don't want a lot of people to think Im running away from a fight," replied the veteran marine. "I'm going to face the music."

Eventually he was persuaded to remain at home.

NORWICH TOWN

Callers Sunday afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, included Dr. Lamb's sister, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd, her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Gremley, of Mystic, who with Mr. Gremley's mother, Mrs. Charles Gremley also of Mystic returned recently from a motor trip to Montreal.

In connection with their visit, which covered a period of five days at the home of Mrs. Brainerd's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Norton Brainerd, the tourists spoke of Montreal as being called "The City of Churches," because of its many costly edifices, wherein religious services are held. Notre Dame (Catholic) church, with seating capacity for 15,000, is magnificent.

The Mount Royal hotel, recently built the largest hotel in the British Empire is like a palace, so beautiful in every way. The visitors were privileged to go all through and inspect the elegantly furnished rooms.

Montreal which has a population of 950,000, is also noted for having the most wonderful trolley service in the world, as one can get a car every minute.

One afternoon while there Mrs. Brainerd's eldest son, who is service manager in a large automobile establishment took his guests for a ride on the outskirts of the city following the St. Lawrence river on one side and the Ottawa river on the other, while passing through several suburban towns.

A visit was made to Father Andre's Shrine, where it is said hundreds of cripples are healed through prayer, and crutches and canes discarded.

Still another very interesting feature was a visit made to the Midget Palace. Here each person was expected to buy a souvenir booklet, which entitled him to go through the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Nicholl. In every room all furniture, receptacles and everything needed to make a home complete, was in comformity with their size. In the living room was a very small piano, although a full keyboard, on which by special invitation, Mrs. Lawrence Gremley an accomplished musician, played a selection, to the delight of the midgets.

Mr. Nicholl, although twenty-five pounds heavier is three inches shorter than the famed Tom Thumb. The entire residence of this couple had the appearance of a doll house.

When visiting the large furriers' places of business, where the pelts are made into garments of all sizes and styles, it was noted how much more reasonahl they were priced than are garments purchased in the United States.

Very noticeable was the friendly spirit on the part of tourists. Whether known or not known, every driver with Connecticut registration would salute every other, blowing his horn, when passing in either direction.

The Mystic party went through the Adirondacks on the out-going trip and returning by way of the Green Mountains and Vermont. When driving through Vermont they passed four divisions of mounted cavalry about 400 strong, either going to, or returning from camp.

While crossing Lake Champlain on the return, they came to the Isle of Motte reputed to have temperature in the winter as low as 40 below zero. Ice on the St. aLwrence river is three feet in thickness when cut.

The water o fthe St. Lawrence river is green, and that of the Ottawa river brown, and when coming together they do not mix.

After reading the Mystic news about the line storm 100 years ago, as told in Tuesday's Bulletin, Mrs. Charles F. Geer recalled the story told by her father in later years, concerning his birth on that date September 23rd, 1815. Captain J. Cleveland Geer for many years one of the most popular captains commanding craft on Long Island sound, was born during the severe storm referred to. He was the son of Captain Wheeler Geer and Sally Roath Geer, then residing on lower Thames street, Norwich, in a house which stood where the Richmond Stove Works annex now is located.

When the physician was summoned, he was obliged to go to the house in a row boat and climb a ladder to get into the bed room window, because of the flood.

Of Captain Geer's six children, three are living, Mrs. Charles F. Geer, (formerly Mary Geer) of West Town street, Albert Platford Geer and Mrs. Frank, Case Victoria M. Geer)

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Butts of Washington street, have as their guest, Mrs. Charles S. Strong, of Colchester.

Having returned from several days' stay in New York, Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Johnson left Saturday to pass ten days in the White Mountains.

Grosvenor Ely, Jr., left last week to enter Hotchkiss school, Lakeville.

Palace Theater

One striking scene of contrast — When a Girl Loves, the newest Victor Hugo Halperin Production is the showing the effect of the Revolution on the Royalists.

At the opening of the picture one sees the music room in the Czar's palace, with all the nobility assembled. Gorgeous costumes and marvelous work of art crowd the set. The people are gay and haughty.

Then—the Revolution.

Important roles are capably portrayed by Agnes Ayres, Percy Marmont, Kathlyn Williams, Robert McKim, George Siegmann, Mary Alden and the Rex Ingram protege, John George, who plays the hunchback.

Added attractions, educational comedy, Ain Pockets, Sport Light, Secrets of Life and Palace orchestra.

Breed Theater

One of the most beautiful bits of staging has been shown and occupies an important place in the mystic melodrama, The Lion's Mouse, the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and Thursday.

This is a specially constructed garden set with a miniature lake in the center. The front view of the house in the background, is approximately three hundred feet from the camera. In front of the house there is shown beautiful flower beds, arbors, stone benches and statues. In the center of this occurs the lake which is about 20 feet square.

During the entertainment and lawn fete, which is used as a background for the capture of the criminals and the final clearing up of the mystery a Russian ballet appears on a small stage covering the center of the lake.

In order to emphasize the bigness of this artistic set, it required photographical perfectness. The result was astounding, thus giving motion picture patrons a chance to see something distinctly out of the ordinary in the way of artistic photography and superb stage setting.

The Lion's Mouse, is a mystic melodrama featuring Wyndham Standing and Marguerite Marsh. It was produced by the Holland Film Corporation and directed by Oscar Apfel.

For the second feature Shirley Mason will be seen in the brilliant comedy drama Love Letters and the Fox news complete the bill.

Broadway Theater

Five real big acts are on the Broadway program today and a Paramount picture.

The final showings of the Paramount picture, Lily of the Dust, which opened at the Broadway theater on Sunday will be held there this afternoon and evening. Pola Negri is the star of the production, directed by Dimitri Buchowetzki. Ben Lyon, Beery and Raymond Griffith appear in the strong supporting cast.

On Thurs., Fri., and Sat., there will be a complete change of Keith vaudeville and pictures and from all advance reports it promises to be another banner program.

Palace Theater

What is conceded to be one of the most interesting and valuable motion pictures ever made, Abraham Lincoln, has been booked by the Palace theater for showing four days starting Sunday Sept. 28.

Abraham Lincoln was more than two years in the making, and at times as many as 2,500 people appear in the cast. It deals with the life of Lincoln from his birth, through his boyhood to manhood, and unfolds his romance with Anne Rutlege, carries him through the presidency and the stress of the Civil war.

George Billings, portrays the role of Lincoln, with Ruth Clifford as Anne Rutledge and Nell Craig as Mrs. Lincoln. These are the principal figures in a remarkably fine cast.

Abraham Lincoln was directed by Phil. Rosen. Frances Marion wrote the scenario and supervised the editing. The completed production has been hailed by critics wherever shown as an historical and artistic masterpiece.

Exhibition of Paintings at Converse Art Gallery

During the twenty-nine years of its existence the Norwich Art Students' Association has afforded the people of Norwich many opportunities to attend interesting and noteworthy exhibitions.

Probably the most important of these has been the exhibition of paintings by Lyme and Mystic artists, which for the third year in succession is to be held in the Converse Art Gallery from Sept. 29th to October 8th inclusive.

Many of the pictures have never been shown before and among the exhibitors are names of some of the greatest painters in the country.

The Art association incurs heavy expense to bring the pictures here and if the Norwich public fails to show its appreciation by a large attendance, the exhibition cannot be continued. Why not come early and often and bring your friends.

The Chrysler Six throttles down to 2 miles an hour in high. When you "step on it" the Chrysler shoots from 5 to 50 miles an hour in less than 19 seconds. In its speed range from 2 to 70 miles an hour there is no "vibration point". At all speeds and under all conditions it is remarkably easy to handle. One of the reasons for this is because it has pivotal steering, with ball thrust bearings on the king pins. Special design six-ply, high-speed balloon tires are standard.

The Chrysler Six

Pronounced as though spelled, Crif-sler

The Chrysler Six is the dawn of a new day in conservation and application of power, utilization of space, unexampled economy combined with absolutely even, consistent performance.

No one engineering feature among the score or more responsible for results never before achieved can be justly emphasized as the real secret of such revolutionary achievements. Like the crankshaft, whose seven bearings, instead of the usual three or five, prevent destructive and costly engine vibration, there are a dozen features that effect unusual economies.

Still others, like the low center of gravity, the perfect weight distribution, the new practice of spring suspension and the Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes, have much to do with the car's superiority in riding comfort, roadability, steering ease and safety. But the best way to understand these things is to ride in and drive the car.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The hundreds of Danielson people who know him and admire him will join today—September 24—in congratulating Deacon A. C. Greene of 187 Main street on having arrived at his 95th birthday. As he remarked this week, it is among the score of events and anniversaries that have been of interest to him during the month of September.

A kindly, cheerful man—a Christian gentleman—his friendship is valued by all who possess it as something to be cherished. Father of a splendid family, a church man for three-quarters of a century, veteran of the Civil war, sterling citizen splendid neighbor and worthy friend he has today the most ardent wishes of all who know him that he may live on to be a centenarian—and more.

Deacon Greene is the oldest man in the town of Killingly, though not the oldest resident, being surpassed in this respect by one other person.

Deacon Greene's span of life reaches back over the years to 1829. He has lived through the most marvelous period in the world's history. His has been the privilege of witnessing wonderful changes and developments. He has lived through all the nation's war excepting alone the Revolution and the conflict of 1812. Of keen intelligence and breadth of vision, a wealth of experience has been crowded into his years and assimilated and pondered upon. Few mortals are blessed with such a harvest of life's offerings. Few attain to his richness in years.

George A. Williams of Dayville has filed a request for compensation for the loss of sheep from a flock that has been raided by dogs. Four of the sheep were found in a pond near their pasture, where they evidently had hopelessly taken refuge after being torn ad chased by the dogs. Three more sheep are missing, making a total loss of seven. Some of the sheen killed were registered animals and more than ordinarily valuable. Mr. Williams has had sheep for a number of year on land near Dayville but never before has lost any through attacks of dogs.

Two dogs, apparently roamers have been seen about Dayville for several days, and it is believed that these may be responsible for killing the sheep.

New time schedules for passenger train on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. through Danielson become effective Sunday next. Then and thereafter the northbound week day train service will be as follows: 6.48 a. m., 9.39 a. m., 4 p. m.; southbound, 10.43 a. m., 2.06 p. m., and 7.47 p. m. On Sundays there will be northbound trains at 6.48 a. m. and 6.01 p. m.; southbound on Sundays trains will leave here at 10.43 a. m. and 8.56 p. m.

At the offices of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company, Tuesday, it was stated that the new high tension line between this place and the sub-station at Central Village has been completed. This is a 22,000 volt line. From it service will be stepped down for transmission over the lines that service Central Village, Moosup and Plainfield. It is anticipated that this new line will relieve the communities mentioned of difficulties that have been experienced while the improvement was being brought about. With a few further improvements that the lighting company contemplates to its service lines through the communities of the town of Plainfield the equipment of the company there will have been advanced to a high state of efficiency.

New and powerful street lights that were provided for the business section a few weeks ago are now equipped with the glass globes originally intended for use with them. Since the installation of the lights, temporary globes of a type not suited for the particular kind of light have been in use. These globes made the light glary and did not diffuse it properly. This is overcome with the new equipment, giving the lights their full effectiveness.

The warning of the annual town meeting has been prepared by the selectmen and will be published Thursday, that all citizens may familiarize themselves with the matters that will come up for action at the annual gathering. The warning lists the annual routine matters that require action and the petitions having to do with various matters that citizens wanted acted upon, as referred to in news items in this column of late.

Tuesday was entry day for the Brooklyn fair, an event always of prime interest to thousands of people throughout eastern Connecticut, western Rhode Island and southern Massachusetts towns.

Activity about the grounds during Tuesday indicated that there is the same enthusiasm as has marked preparations for the fair far more than two generations. A wealth of exhibits were brought in during the day and busy hands were engaged in arranging them. Race horses fill the stables, assuring interesting performances in the track events. The cattle entries will all be on hand early this morning. There will be exhibits of automobiles and many other special features. With everything spic and span about the grounds, the fair association is prepared for another successful exhibition. All roads lead to Brooklyn today (Wednesday.)

County Investigator W. E. Jackson of Willimantic was in Danielson Tuesday on a business trip.

Mrs. Ida Newell of Salem is visiting her mother, Mrs. George Stone of Academy street.

To lend as much support as possible to the Windham County Agricultural society, the Windham County National bank of Danielson, Conn., will close today Wednesday, Sept. 24th at 2 o'clock, so that all its clerks and customers may attend the fair.—adv.

Miss Alice Monohan was at Hart-ford Tuesday visiting her aunt, Miss Elizabeth Riley, who is improving after undergoing a surgical operation at St. Francis' hospital, where she is a member of the staff of nurses.

A conference was held here between the administrator of the estate of Michael Zbyr, who died as the result of injuries received in a motorcycle accident at Arctic, and counsel for the former Mrs. Zbyr, who had been divorced by her husband, the conference relative to the disposition of $2,000 in life insurance. Though Zybr, who lived in Dayville, had divorced his wife, he had failed to remove her name as his beneficiary in his insurance policies and she is claiming the money.

Postmaster E. H. Keach has receiv-ed a communication setting forth what the postoffice department has done recently to give better and faster service, at the same time providing for the rapid and, at times, uneven, expansion of the postal business. In achieving this thousands of new posts employes have been brought into the service, more rural routes have been established aeroplanes have been employed to speed up mail deliveries and many other things done in the way of improvement. Perusal of all the information as to what has been done cannot fail to impress one with stupendousness of the mail business, and Danielson and all the territory served from the local office benefits from this increased efficiency.

After having been so mad that he couldn't say things, a man begins to boast of his wonderful self-control.

PUTNAM

G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National Bank, indicted by a federal grand jury, Monday, on charges of embezzlement in many counts, remained at the home of his parents on Fremont street, Tuesday. He was not in New Haven when the U. S. district court opened, Tuesday, as was stated some weeks ago he might be.

Bald Hill, in the town of Union, one of the most sightly spots in eastern Connecticut, has been chosen as the destination of Elizabeth Porter Putnam Chapter, D. A. R., for the annual pilgrimage, Thursday. From the top of Bald Hill can be seen Long Island sound on the south and the White Mountain range on the north. On the top of the hill is the house occupied by Mrs. Harvey Lawson, a paid fire lookout for the government. She also conducts religious services there, her husband being a minister. Comparatively few people know of Bald Hill nor realize the beautiful view to be seen from it.

The large mills of the Grosvenor-dale company at Grosvenordale and North Grosvenordale are operating on a full time schedule, but with a reduction of 15 per cent in wages, which went into effect, Monday.

During many weeks operations at these mills have been curtailed 50 per cent and resumption of full time is only made possible, it is stated by mill officials, by the acceptance on the part of the operatives of the wage reduction. The mill in the upper village has been operating on an every-other-week schedule, with a part-time schedule in the lower village, making practically a half-time basis.

The operatives of the large cotton manufacturing plant had anticipated a reduction in wages and have accepted it without protest apparently, as all the workers were in their places Monday and Tuesday.

The cut in wages follows action by mills throughout New England, and which is expected to be general throughout the cotton textile industry of the north.

About 1100 operatives are affected by the new wage schedule as these mills are the largest cotton mills in this section. The mills have the reputation of running steadier than any mills hereabouts and when this plant was forced to a half-time schedule it emphasized the fact that the cotton industry of the north has been hard hit.

No comment on the reduction has been made at the company's mill other than to say that the cut was absolutely necessary if the mills were to continue to operate and that the Grosvenordale company had simply been forced to adopt a schedule that has already been adopted by many mills in New England and which would be adopted by every cotton textile plant. Every person familiar with the cotton textile situation realizes that a reduction in wages was inevitable.

The attitude of the employes appeared to be that a full-time schedule even at a reduced wage scale was better than a half-time schedule. The long period of depression with its half time work has brought this attitude about added by the general knowledge of conditions in the industry.

Putnam is only indirectly affected by the wage reduction. Where this city formerly had several cotton mills producing goods similar to that made in North Grosvenordale, now there is not a cotton textile mill operating in the city. There has been a rumor that the Putnam Manufacturing company was to resume operation, but this has not been confirmed.

Wednesday, Oct. 8, on the calendar does not show in red ink, nor is there anything to attract attention to the date. But to every sportsman the eighth stands out above all other days of the fall month. On October 8 the lid is off and the season is on and one may, if lucky, take partridge quail and cock pheasants with a few minor game birds in addition, including the flighty woodcock of the strong dark meat.

Partridge and pheasants are reported as especially numerous.

A contest for the office of tax col-lector appears on the horizon, as the town election draws near. This means that there will be an effort in behalf of both the democrats and republicans to get out the vote next month.

There was a concerted effort on the part of certain republicans to oust Tax Collector Miron, republican, at the caucus a week ago, but this was unsuccessful. It is believed that at least some of these same republicans will support the candidate for tax collector on the democratic ticket, Captain John J. McGarry, ex-mayor of the city.

Captain McGarry is the strongest candidate that his party could advance for any office, city or town. He is strong with his party and generally popular. However, Putnam is normally so pronounced a republican stronghold that it is not believed that he can overcome the handicap under which he starts.

Attorney Irving H. Miron, the republican nominee, has just concluded his first year in office. It is admitted on all sides that his conduct of the office left nothing to be desired. He collected a large percentage of the taxes at an early date and his record in the office has been excellent. Those members of his party who dfeat him at the polls next month will do so for personal reasons and not because they have any fault to find with his conduct of the office.

There are no other contests due on election day but as both candidates for the office of tax collector are hard, earnest workers, a large vote will be brought out.

WESTERLY

The Packard touring car, 59-735, driven by Harold H. Lihme, of Watch Hill, up School street Tuesday afternoon, about 3 o'clock at a rapid rate of speed collided with the Harley Davison motorcycle, B-1344 R. I., operated by Edmund Vennard, Surfman No 2 of the Watch Hill coast guard station. Vennard was thrown onto the running board of the touring car and rendered unconscious. He was placed on the lawn of the Elm street school grounds and later was taken in charge by Dr. Edwin R. Lewis, medical officer in charge of coast guard men. It was found when the man had regained consciousness that the muscles of the left arm were badly ruptured, if the arm was not broken. There was a possibility that other bones may be broken and cuts and body bruises were also sustained.

The accident happened at Dead Man's Curve, junction of Elm and School street, near the property of Westerly Town Treasurer James Pendleton. Vennard was proceeding toward Westerly at what was said not to have been a rapid rate of speed. At the time of the accident Lihme was reported to have admitted that he was to blame. Officer Michael Curtin of the Westerly police force was called for investigation. Later Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Highway Engineer Leon visited the place in the presence of Mr. Lihme and made measurements. From the point here the machines struck to where the touring car rested was 100 feet, it being about 80 feet from point between the machines where each stopped. Capt. Amos E. Broadmeadow of the Watch Hill station came to Westerly to look into the accident. Lihme was held by Westerly police on a possible reckless driving charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Henry Lang-worthy are to observe the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage with a reception on the evening of Monday, Oct. 6th at their home 33 Elm street, Westerly.

SECRET OF KEEPING YOUNG.

Why is it that some women look older at 35 than others do at 50? Why is it that so many women are always run down, weak, pale, nervous, irritable and unhappy? Health, vitality and freedom from pain and disease alone can prevent the signs of age from fastening themselves upon women. All over this country women are awakening to the fact that the ills, aches and pains of women may be relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the result is renewed life, energy and the glow of health. In fact, the secret of keeping young is to ward off all internal ailments that cause premature old age, which is easily accomplished by this remarkable root and herb remedy.

Have You Ever Driven A Rickenbacker—6 or 8?

No?—then you just resolve to do so before you consider any other car

THERE ARE SOME THINGS that cannot be told in an ad.

MERE WORDS are not sufficient to convey a true conception of some things.

NOR CAN PICTURES—such as we can print on ordinary newspaper stock—do justice to beauty of design, color or finish of this product.

SO YOU WILL REALIZE that it is impossible to give you any adequate idea of the many qualities—the great superiority—of Rickenbacker cars.

STILL LESS can we express in words the sensation of riding—or the exhilaration of holding the wheel yourself.

YOUR STANDARD for comparison is naturally limited to those cars you have driven or ridden in.

YOU MUST DRIVE a Rickenbacker yourself, to acquire a new and higher standard.

AFTER YOU HAVE once held the wheel of this car—sensed the silent power of the motor—the matchless riding qualities—the wonderful way she "roads"—and finally tested the 4-wheel brakes—you will demand more from a motor car than you had ever thought possible.

WE CAN—AND WE DO TRY—to tell you about these things. We try to express in words the advanced engineering features and excellent construction.

BUT WE FEEL ALWAYS we have told you less than the car itself can tell.

SO, AGAIN, WE SAY—you must drive a Rickenbacker in order to appreciate all its fine points.

CONTROL IS STANDARD and so simple any 14-year-old girl can handle it as well as her father.

JUST SAY WHEN you would like to enjoy an entirely new sensation in motoring, and we will have a demonstrator at your door.

IF YOU PREFER, a salesman will go along, to explain as well as he can how Rickenbacker engineers have achieved the phenomena you experience as you drive.

THEN YOU WILL REALIZE what we are now trying to tell you—how weak are words to express that which you yourself must feel in order to understand and appreciate.

THEN WHEN YOU TRY to tell your friends the difference between a Rickenbacker and any other car you have ever known—you will agree with us that language has its limitations.

DRIVING THIS Rickenbacker Six is argument that is irresistible—especially to one experienced in fine motor cars.

THE CAR ITSELF is the best salesman we have ever known.

ROBBING THE FARMERS.

There are those who look upon anything in the country that isn't locked up, tied or otherwise fastened as belonging to those who want it and are able to take it away when no one is looking. There are those who go into the country for the purpose of raiding the crops for profit and those who are attracted by the fruit and vegetables as they appear in season and proceed to appropriate them. Perhaps they would not take such liberty with the property of a neighbor, but when they get into the country the situation seems to change. Because someone's watchful eye isn't to be encountered or the bulldog isn't on guard many consider themselves at liberty to help themselves, not simply at what may be picked by the roadside but what grows over the wall and around.

Gardens are looted trees are stripped and broken, crops are trampled without thought of what this means to the man from whom the goods are taken or upon whom the damage is inflicted.

How extensive this practice is was revealed by the arrest Sunday of six automobile parties at Somers, in Tolland county, for stealing apples. Confessing the trial at which they were each fined $5 and costs it was reported that the people didn't seem to realize the seriousness of the offense and Justice Thatcher read the statute and they found that they could have been fined $500 or three months in jail and have their licenses revoked.

Much American money has been invested in Mexico. Some of it has brought good return. Some of it has not. There are those who have made what they considered investments in Mexico which have been great disappointments for various reasons. There have also been those where it was known a chance was being taken and the results have varied greatly.

The character of the government which exists in Mexico has much to do with the situation. If there is a proper protection of the subjects of other countries and a resistance to the confiscation of property of other nationals there is a good chance for Mexico to experience the development which it seeks. The present government is desirous of convincing the American manufacturers that such a condition exists and to impress upon them that it will be followed by the succeeding administration.

The visitation is therefore one that holds out large possibilities for all concerned. Mexico has its hopes, while the visitors can no doubt see where there is a chance for doing more business and possibly placing more capital with the neighbor to the south.

THE STRUGGLE IN CHINA.

Thus far the fighting in China is a war among the Chinese, similar in character to many that have occurred, with a great part of the Chinese not knowing there is a war. But while it is a civil war the other nations are watching it carefully because it is China, the country which has not the stable government that one of its size should have, and which each nation is watching carefully to see that others do not obtain greater advantages there.

Efforts among the powers to have Chinese leaders refrain from an open clash failed. They are now engaged in a struggle for the control of Peking. That government is far from what it should be but it is what other nations must deal with and consider. Already attention is being given to the effects of victory by one side or the other.

With the Manchurian leader hanging away at the gates of Peking it is possible to discern an outcome that would be regarded with favor by Japan, and result in Chinese government that would be in keeping with Japanese ideas. Should the Peking government be successful in defending itself and putting down its opponents it will be possible to regard it as an outcome from which there will come a strengthening of soviet Russian influence, since Peking and soviet Russia have recently come to a new understanding.

Neither of these results would please the powers as a body. They would prefer that there should be a a joint influence exerted over China, that neither Russia nor Japan should be in control but that all nations should stand in the same relative position with opportunities for trade uninterrupted and peaceful conditions maintained. China has had many ups and downs but it will be most unfortunate if its present struggle results in its coming under the control of any nation which plans to use it for its own ends.

THE COMPLETED CIRCUIT.

Getting back to San Diego means that the world fliers have completed the circuit of the globe. They have accomplished what it has been believed they would ever since the crossing of the Atlantic was completed.

Marked attention has been bestowed upon them at every landing place in this country and they will continue to be showered with honors and recognition for a long time to come. They have done what no other has previously accomplished, and what several others have failed to do. There will be due naval and government recognition of their feat for it cannot be overlooked that they have been under a constant strain and more or less hardships have been encountered on their trip begun in the spring.

Reaching San Diego does not complete their flight. They will now proceed to Seattle, the official starting point and the arrival at which will mean the reduction of the time requiring in circling the globe since considerable time was lost between leaving San Diego and actually setting out from Seattle.

That they are glad to be so near the finish goes without saying. There was no misapprehension on the part of the fliers concerning what they faced when they started. They have encountered all kinds of conditions, some that were anticipated and some that were not. To the men and the machines must the success of the flight be attributed, but in no small degree was it due to the careful manner in which it was planned and the elaborate provisions for receiving and aiding the aviators at their various stopping places. It has been demonstrated that the circuit in the air can be made. Others may make the flight and in time lower the time but there is no such thing as taking away the honors that go with having shown the way.

WHERE DISCRETION IS NEEDED

All too frequent are the instances where auto drivers recognize the danger ahead and yet figure on escaping it through speed instead of slowing down and avoiding it by waiting.

There are many instances on the highway where common sense prevents collisions because the person who has the right of way gives way to the one who insists upon having it. It doesn't make the person who is deprived of his rights feel any happier to think he has been forced to yield to a breaker of the rules of the highway but there comes to him a feeling of satisfaction over the fact that serious consequences were avoided and damages and possibly injuries were prevented.

It is this same determination to disregard danger and to force others to get out of the way which prevails in too many instances where people are struck by machines, where autos collide and where crossing accidents happen. Speed without due regard for conditions which are sure to be encountered invites trouble.

Organizations which are keeping a careful tabulation of the accidents and fatalities point to the rapid increase that is taking place in the number of both. The fact that there is a steadily increasing number of autos furnishes little consolation for with conditions in the highways what they are the menacing situation calls for greater instead of less safety and that will never be obtained or assured until the reckless are curbed or otherwise eliminated.

Those who chafe over existing regulations may as well realize that the time is rapidly coming when unsafe conditions on the highway will force restrictions and more stringent enforcement before there is less. A little discretion would prevent much of the trouble.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

These are the days when baseball pennants are being won and lost.

Nothing emphasizes the need of the right kind of a congress more than the La Follette-Wheeler policies.

Lewiston, Me., has been presented a watering trough. It can't be that the horses have been crowded out of the Maine city.

The big question of the day is whether the fighting now going on in China is going to develop more interest in mah jong.

The man on the corner says: Getting the sun across the line is quite as much of a job at times as scoring in a football game.

President Coolidge is tending faithfully to the nation's business in Washington. That is more than has been done during some campaigns.

The registrar of motor vehicles is declared to be supreme in Massachusetts when he makes decisions. La-Follette will have to start another campaign when he hears of that.

Connecticut roads are being used by a Worcester to Providence bus line which has no license in and pays no taxes to the state, but takes away the business of a railroad which pays heavy state taxes every year. And it is a bus line which Connecticut people cannot get aboard.

BRIEF INDEPENDENCE

"The main trouble with women," said the spoiled bachelor to his pretty dinner partner, "is that they won't let a man be comfortable! And girl who realizes how important it is for a man to be comfortable would have to hire a secretary to handle her proposal list!"

"Of course, this is terribly interesting and vital news," the pretty dinner partner assured him, letting him have the full benefit of her eyes. "And I hope you will give me all the points you can, Mr. Flyback, because competition is so fierce these days a poor girl has to take advantage of every shred of knowledge that comes her way."

"Well, you girls seem to have a pretty good time whether any men are concerned or not!" the spoiled bachelor declared gloomily. "You can't imagine how completely lost the men feel, realizing as they do how casually they are considered in the scheme of things! The girls just take you and leave you nowadays and the leavetaking is unusually abruptly short! What I am objecting to is being made to do things I don't in the least want to do. The women don't plead or argue or even order—they just mention absently what we're to do—and we do it.

"Charming women who haven't entertained me at dinner and lovely maidens who have condescended to dance with me mail me $5 and $10 tickets to their pet charities and I'm lucky to escape having to buy a box. I'm glad to help the charities, but you see I have to use the tickets and go to the entertainments to help fill up the seats. And if you'll find me a man who voluntarily will climb into evening clothes and go downtown to listen to a violin recital of chamber music or see an exhibition of rhythmic dancing or listen to a bunch of amateurs recite poems I'll endow him for life.

"I'd rather go to a prize fight; but I never have time. I am using the tickets sold me by Mrs. Plutus Gold Rocks, Miss Platinum Bond or the Sapphire family and I'd like to see any man dare ignore the order of one of those ladies.

"As for me I learned bridge for the same reason that a drowning man grabs a life preserver hurled to him. I don't like games. Something was left out of me when my tendencies were dumped together. I would be quite happy on a planet minus a single deck of cards—but you women made me play the thing!

"I ruined just two dinner parties in the days before light entered my ivory head. The first time, after the hostess had fed us exquisitely, she said brightly as the tables appeared that now we would have a game—and I said nonchalantly that oh, it was too bad but I didn't play! I shall never forget that evening—she was one of those sweet creatures who can smile and coo and slam you over the head at the same time—and she sat and faithfully entertained me with pictures of her last trip, while one table did bridge and the two left-overs, her husband and a meek soul who always did as she was told, played double solitaire and yawned in one another's faces. I was battered to a pulp when she finally turned off the lightnings of her gaze and she dropped me from her list till I reformed.

"The next time the hostess was peppery, and she let me sit alone all evening with Pilgrim's Progress or some book like that while one table played three handed—and you know that when bridge addicts have to play three handed they go loco and never are the same again.

"So I took a course of lessons and learned to play bridge. I liked it just as much as I did boneset bitters in the spring when I was a helpless child. Eventually I got kind of resigned to it, and then what did you do but drag in mah jong! Mah jong! to me means just as much as caramels do to a man with false teeth—and when invitations always said 'Bridge and mah jong' I bucked up and said ho, that's all right, if there is a choice I can, of course, stick to bridge—but you won't le me! There is always a man short at some mah jong table and sometimes there's nobody at all who wants to play bridge. If you're on earth you've got to travel with the crowd and the sickening way the crowd surges to the mah jong tables has got me!

"But I'm going to draw the line and assert myself at last. I'm old enough now so I don't care a hang whether folks like me or invite me or not—and if I'd rather play bridge, doggone it, I'm going to play bridge and your old Chinese game——"

"Oh, Mr. Flyback!" the hostess murmured in his ear as she passed by on her way to the living room. "I depend on you to make up a mah jong table with Miss Banger—won't you? She likes a lively game and you play so well!"

"Well," the spoiled bachelor said bitterly to his pretty dinner partner, "I guess I have just as much chance on earth as a mosquito in a room with eight people with fly swatters!" —Chicago News.

King Faced Hunger and Want

When William L. M. King was graduated from college, he took up he vocation he thought he was fitted for, found that he had made a mistake and endured hardships and self-denial to follow the calling he next chose.

After attending the schools of Berlin, Ontario, Canada, his native city, he completed a course at the University of Toronto at 21. His parents and he himself thought he would be a writer, and he joined the editorial staff of a Toronto newspaper. A year later he saw his mistake.

Having a penchant for social and labor problems, he obtained a fellowship in political economy at the University of Chicago. Living in a small room and with funds running low one night, he wondered if he could keep on. Then came a check that had followed him over the country. It was a large payment for his articles on political economy and accompanied a request for more.

He won a scholarship and fellowship in Harvard and was offered a professorship but returned home to investigate labor conditions there. He ran for parliament and won a hard campaign, was appointed Secretary of Labor, made a good record, but went to defeat with the Laurier government.

Thrown on his own resources, he obtained a position as investigator for the Rookefeller Foundation. He settled the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company's labor troubles, was offered a position at high salary with one organization, and refused.

When the World War began he was sent to the United States to adjust labor disputes in some factories turning out war essentials. His brother was taken seriously ill and he helped support the struggling family. Then his father went blind, his sister died and soon afterward his father passed away. King took his bed-ridden mother to live with him, but she lived only a year.

After the war he became head of the industrial department of a large corporation, earning $15,000, but threw up the position and returned to Canada, was elected a member of the House of Commons and then chosen leader of the Liberal Parliamentary Party.

And now he is Prime Minister of Canada.

Gen. Nolan "made his way into the town of Apremont and personally directed the movements of his tanks under a most harassing fire of enemy machine-guns, rifles, and artillery." For his services he was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal and received honors from the French and British governments.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Needless Loss By Fire

A preliminary survey recently completed shows that, according to reports made to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the destruction of during 1923 was $508,000,000. This fig property by fire in the United States ure is based on reports of 406,000,000 to which 25 per cent was arbitrarily added to cover uninsured and unreported losses.

These figures do not include forest fire losses, and, inasmuch as they represent largely the burning of buildings, they mean that for every ten new buildings erected in this country one is destroyed by fire. The best authorities agree that 75 per cent of fires in this country originate in preventable causes, and it pays therefore be set down that last year through sheer carelessness we burned up more than $375,000,000 worth of buildings. For every 15 new buildings erected one was needlessly destroyed.

Herein lies one of the most impressive lessons of our day on the need of thrift. And this point has special bearing on the greater need for thrift education.

A more alert and intelligent general understanding of the value of being careful and systematic would save our country millions of dollars annually, which, if saved, would be reflected in lower rents and lower general living costs.

And there is a more important aspect of this matter still, namely, the loss of human life and the permanent crippling of thousands of persons as a result of our national carelessness in the matter of fires.

The saving of life and protection through the exercise of greater care and more systematic and scientific methods of fire prevention are of so much importance to our nation that every possible means should be employed to arouse public co-operation.

It is a mark of national thriftlessness that our annual fire losses run in excess of half a billion dollars.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

His Inspiration.

He was well dressed, about 25 years old and under conditions would have passed as a perfect gentleman. But evidently he had been in too close contact with the stock in trade of the bootlegger. As he picked his way along he spied a mail box at the corner.

Possibly he thought of "her" and had an inspiration. Going instead up to the mail box, he lifted the covering over the opening into which letters are dropped, placed his left hand to his ear and asked for Central.

A spring balance in which the "spring" consists of a solid metal bar more than an inch in diameter, is used by the United States bureau of standards as an aid in calibrating testing machines.

I AM CLEAN

One reason for my beauty

By Edna Wallace Hopper

This is to the millions of women who wish to know how I have kept my youth and beauty after 35 years as a stage star. And how at a grandmother's age I manage to look like a girl.

Edna Wallace Hopper
Photo 1923

One thing is this: I never use soap and water on my face. Soap removes just the surface dirt, and that has nothing to do with the skin.

Lucie Lantelme, the famous Parisian beauty, told me how she kept her skin so absolutely clean. Then I went to her experts and secured the same method.

Since then the method has come into world-wide use, but only through beauty experts. The results were so marvelous that all of them charged high prices for the product. Some charged $2, some $5, for the formula, so only the few know how much it can do.

Now I am placing this formula at every woman's call. I have named it my Facial Youth. It contains no animal, no vegetable fats, so the skin cannot absorb it. It simply penetrates the pores to the depths, then departs. All the grime, all the dead skin and clogging matter comes out with it.

Wash your face in the best way you know, then apply my Facial Youth. You will be amazed at the extra grime and clogging matter which comes out with it.

This is the first step in fine complexions an absolutely clean skin. This method is the only way to get it. Once you know what it means you will never go without it.

I have placed this formula with all druggists all toilet counters. The price is 75c, despite the fact that others charge ten times as much.

You need my Facial Youth. It is impossible, they tell me, to look your best without it. It is the only facial cleanser which really cleans.

Write me for my Beauty Book and I'll send with it something else to please you. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

CAUGHT WOMAN ON ROOF OF BUILDING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 23.—Mrs. Mollie Snyder, 45, who escaped from the Norwich State Hospital, Monday, was taken into custody here this forenoon when she was attempting to throw herself from the roof of the Fitzgerald building, a three-story brick structure on State street. That the woman was not successful in her attempt to destroy herself was due to the diplomacy displayed by Traffic Officer William Corcoran, who persuaded the woman to leave her perilous position and accompany him to the street.

Monday afternoon the police received information from the hospital authorities that the woman had made her escape and were furnished a description, also as to the attire of the woman. The description was poor, but the description of the woman's clothing was accurate. This morning about 10.30 o'clock Officer Corcoran observed the woman standing in front of the Salvation Army building, State street, and noticed that her clothing answered minutely to the description of the attire of the missing woman. As the officer approached the woman she hastily retreated to the Fitzgerald block, ascending the stairs leading to the living apartments. Officer Corcoran followed her and finally located her on the roof, where she was attempting to climb over the cornice. The officer engaged her in conversation from a distance and assured her that he would place her aboard a Hartford-bound bus (in which city she resided prior to being committed to the hospital) if she would accompany him to the street. This the woman finally assented to and upon reaching the street, she was placed in a bus and driven to the police station. She was held there until this afternoon when Purchasing Agent James J. Moore of the asylum and a nurse came to this city and took charge of the patient.

SAMUEL TUBER IS INSTANTLY KILLED AT BISHOP'S CROSSING

Samuel Tuber, of 50 Fairmount street, a Hebrew chicken dealer, was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock at Bishops crossing near Plainfield when the motor truck he was driving, carrying a load of chickens in coops, was struck by a northbound passenger train on the Worcester branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

His motor truck was torn to pieces and its fragments scattered along the westerly side of the track for a distance of 200 feet, mingled with the broken coops and a score or more of white chickens, all dead or dying, which had constituted the load on the truck. Tuber's body was carried along the wreckage for about 100 feet where it was cast off to the southerly side of the track near a telegraph pole. The rear trucks on the rear car of the train were derailed, ripping along the ties for a distance of several hundred feet until the train was brought to a stop. No one on the train was hurt.

Tuber was returning towards his home here after one of his trips into the country to collect chickens which he sold in Norwich. There are double tracks at the crossing, which he approached from the east, crossing one pair of tracks before he was hit by the train which was running northerly on the westerly pair of tracks. Apparently his motor truck must have been caught squarely in the left side by the engine and carried along the tracks, ground to bits and tossed off in pieces alongside the track. Nearest to the crossing lay the motor, a little farther along lay a wheel and bits of frame and beyond these more wheels and more fragments of the frame and the body, with pieces of the broken coops and the dead chickens scattered along for several hundred feet north of the crossing.

Coroner A. G. Bill and Medical Examiner George M. Burroughs of Danielson who arrived at the scene of the accident about 4.45 were unable to find any eyewitnesses of the accident except the fireman and engineer of the train whose statements they had not secured Tuesday.

Officer George L. Gardner from the state police barracks at Danielson was dispatched to Bishops crossing as soon as news of the fatal accident was received and he took charge of the body until the arrival of the medical authorities and kept the highway from being blocked by the score of machines that stopped as they came along.

Medical Examiner Burroughs found that the left side of Tuber's skull was crushed, many ribs broken, right leg broken in several places and left leg cut off below the knee. Coroner Bill took charge of the papers and other effects of the dead man, including about $85 in one of his pockets and gave permission for the removal of the body to the rooms of a Norwich undertaker.

Mr. Tuber, who was 54 years old, had been a resident of this city for many years. He is survived by his wife and several children for whom much sympathy was expressed in their sudden bereavement.

The crossing where he met his death is one that is well known to motor drivers in this section of the state and one where a number of accidents have taken place in spite of the precautions that the railroad company has taken to make it as safe as possible by placing traffic fences on each side of the crossing that separate the road into right and left sides.

The train which struck him was the northbound passenger, No. 712, in charge of Conductor R. M. Brockett, with F. E. Webb engineer, Philip Farbell fireman and G. Johnson brakeman.

JUNIOR MECHANICS HELD THEIR STATE CONVENTION

The Junior Order of United Mechanics held its annual state convention Monday evening at Odd Fellows hall. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Milo R. Waters and the response was made by State Secretary Douchy of Stamford. State Councillor Layman of Stamford presided over the meeting which lasted until a late hour.

At 9 o'clock Tuesday morning the convention reconvened for an important business session. This was followed by a roast beef dinner at noon, served by the members of the Daughters of America, the auxiliary of the order. After dinner the business session was resumed and the election of officers took place as follows:

State councilor, H. B. Marshall, of New London; state vice councilor, F. W. Pinkerton, New Britain; state secretary, J. W. Wellington, Baltic; state treasurer, F. C. Purell, New Britain; state conductor, C. Wolverton, Noank; state warden, J. H. Wellington, Baltic.

Former State Secretary Douchy, who is to leave Connecticut within the near future, was presented a diamond stickpin and a pair of gold cuff links. Resolutions were passed expressing appreciation to Mayor Waters for his address of welcome, to the people of Norwich for their kindly reception to the delegates, and to all those who in any way assisted in making the annual convention a success.

CLEVER CAST REHEARSING LIONS' CLUB MINSTREL

Rehearsals indicate that the Lions club Minstrel Serenade, a Harring-Adams production will take its place at the top of Norwich's long list of amateur successes.

The men in the circle have taken up the various routines like old timers and will soon be ready for public appearance. There will not be a dull moment in the entire program.

The ballads are unusually tuneful and are sure to please the public. They will be sung by Norwich's most talented musical entertainers. The comic songs offer a great variety, there being everything from a "Talking Song" to "Shoutin' Coon Song." Each one is a hit and it will be up to the audience to make its own selection as to which one they like best. The public is assured of seeing some of the struttiest strutters that ever strutted a strut in Norwich.

There will also be a beauty chorus of fifty of Norwich's most talented singers and dancers in the second act that will rival a follie chorus. They are already doing their dances and routines with the ease and grace of the professional.

The principals in act two are displaying unusual histronic ability in the manner in which they are doing their parts. The funny situations in this act will keep the audience in an uproar from start to finish. Miss Rosanna Peloquinn will be seen as Beatrice; Miss Eunice Taft as Alice; Miss Iona Disco as Mary; George Madden as Angus; Tyler Stanton as Duncan; Lyle Fillmore as Jack and William Mitchell as Dick.

COMPLETE EXONERATION FOR CAPT. PETTIGREW

Complete exoneration from liability in the death of John P. Nolan of Tiverton, R. I., who was drowned from the decks of the steamer Richard Peck on July 24 off Point Judith, is given Capt. James D. Pettigrew, of New London, master of that steamer in a finding made public by the U. S. steamboat inspection service at Washington, D. C.

In its statement of decision the inspection service declares that the death of Nolan "was in no way attributed to any act of misconduct, carelessness, or unskilfulness on the part of the licensed officers of the Richard Peck."

The steamboat department which arrived at its decision following an official hearing held at the New London inspector's offices has dismissed the case entirely.

Little Mary Louise received many pretty presents, and games were played and prizes were won by the children. Mrs. Manchester was assisted in serving the children by Mrs. Harry Blackburn, Mrs. A. Harris Vetter, Mrs. Leon Billings and Miss Elizabeth Eckstein. Those present were Elizabeth Dick, Mary Counihan, Edith Blackburn, Gertie Eckstein, Dorothy Diachyatyn, Lorna Hoffman, Hubert Lang, Bobbie White, Freddy Dick and Junior Vetter.

Westerly, Sept. 23.—Albert Thompson, 71, who lives alone in Potter Hill and is employed in the dye shop of the Pawcatuck Woolen Mill, was badly beaten up on Tuesday evening by some one who made a hasty getaway.

Thompson, who is a man of slight build, was in company with Hugh Eccleston, most of the day, according to Eccleston's story told Chief of Police Brown of Westerly at the police station on Tuesday night and together with John Pendleton they had imbibed to some extent during the day until about dark. Thompson was left alone in the first Hopkinton cemetery while liquid refreshments were to be secured. As the story was told Eccleston had not got beyond hearing distance toward Westerly, when his return was prompted by loud outcries made by Thompson. As he hastened his return a man passed him who he thought worked with the construction gang which is building the new state highway near this place.

Thompson was found insensible on the ground in the cemetery and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called, who, with Mr. Eccleston's help, got the injured man into an automobile and brought him to the Westerly police station where Officer Kessel and Chief of Police Brown assisted Dr. Scanlon in dressing Mr. Thompson's wounds. There are four scalp wounds, which had bled freely, inflicted by some instrument with an edge, two and one-half inches long and through to the bone.

One was over the right eye while the three others were behind the right ear. Over the left eye was a dirty irregular cut. Procured near the scene was a piece of yellow pine planking over two feet long and four inches wide with the end covered with blood which was brought to the Westerly police station, it being undoubtedly the weapon used.

Mr. Thompson claimed that he had been robbed, but examination showed that he still had in a purse inside his clothing $2.45 and down inside his trousers was his watch of which he thought he had been relieved. The motive for the cowardly attack on the old man is thought to have been robbery as he had been credited with carrying large sums of money but the assailant was apparently scared away before he had accomplished his purpose. Chief of Police Frank Brown of Hopkinton was called to the Westerly station as the assault was committed in the town of Hopkinton and with the Westerly officers visited the scene late Tuesday night for the purpose of arresting persons thought to be connected with the attack on the old man. Albert Thompson has a son, Barnes Thompson, who also resides in Potter Hill.

DANIEL DESMOND DIES SUDDENLY AT HOME

Daniel L. Desmond, 48, a well known painter, was suddenly seized with a heart attack Tuesday morning at his home, 24 Lafayette street. While preparing to go to work, and before medical aid could be summoned, Mr. Desmond had apparently been in his usual health Monday night and said nothing about not feeling well when he arose Tuesday morning until he was seized with the attack.

Mr. Desmond was born in Norwich, December 28, 1875, the son of Dennis and Eliza Callahan Desmond, and after graduating from local public schools and the Norwich Free Academy, he took up the painters' trade, which he had since followed. In Norwich, on December 29, 1903, he was united in marriage with Marie McDade at St. Mary's church by the late Rev. James Smith.

Mr. Desmond was a man of fine qualities his main interest being centered in his home and he was also interested in his city. He was a member of St. Patrick's church and besides being a member of the local painters' union was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose. In his death his family has lost a beloved member and the Falls, where he had long made his home, a respected resident.

He is survived by his widow, three sons, Leonard, Gerard and Charles; two daughters, Marie and Helen, all of this city, and four sisters of Hartford.

SAILOR INJURED WHEN HIS AUTOMOBILE UPSETS

Charles Gifford, sailor at the submarine base, was severely injured on Monday night on the Colchester highway about a mile north of that town when his automobile rolled over three times after it had skidded on the road.

Gifford was picked up by C. A. Kramer of Colchester, who took him to the Hartford hospital where it was found that Gifford had sustained lacerations of the head, chest injuries and several fractured ribs.

His wife, who lives at 52 Lee avenue, Bridgeport, was notified of the accident by the hospital authorities.

10 FINED $25 ON RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

In the city court Tuesday morning Judge Arthur F. Libby on the bench, John Coughlin, of New London, was presented on a charge of driving an automobile without having his operator's license with him and was also charged with going to the left of a traffic beacon. The case was nolled on payment of $8. One man was fined $18.50 on a breach of the peace charge and another was fined $5 and costs on a charge of intoxication.

Michael Sacks, 24, of New York, arrested in New York for the local police, and brought here by Officer Charles Smith of the local force, was presented on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. The case was continued until Wednesday morning. He went to jail as he could not obtain bonds.

John J. Shea, Jr., of No. 472 Boswell avenue was fined $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving. The case resulted from a collision between a Ford coupe driven by Shea and a Willys-Knight coupe driven by Thuer W. Dahl, of No. 215 Boswell avenue Monday evening on Broadway near Park Congregational church.

Both drivers were in court on reckless driving charges, and both entered pleas of not guilty. Dahl was also charged with failure to grant the right of way. John J. Shea, Jr., was the first witness called. He testified that he was driving north up Broadway. Near Park church the Dahl machine loomed up in front of him on Williams avenue, headed towards the Academy grounds. He applied his brakes but his car hit the other machine and turned over. Shea stated he was traveling at a speed not greater than 30 miles an hour. James McKelvey, of No. 11 Elm avenue, corroborated Shea's testimony.

George Turner, Jr., Lincoln terrace and Arthur B. Connor, Academy boys, told of being under the arc light in front of the Academy and of seeing the collision. They saw Mr. Dahl driving along Williams avenue at about 20 miles an hour. A trolley car was also approaching them. They saw the Shea car come up Broadway at a rate which the Turner boy said was 40 miles an hour. Dahl stepped on the gas and the Shea car crashed into Mr. Dahl's car in the rear. Otherwise, they claimed, Shea would have hit the Dahl car broadside.

Thuer Dahl, the final witness, told of driving up Washington street and proceeding down Williams avenue alongside the trolley car tracks. When he looked down Broadway he saw Shea's machine coming toward him. Driving at about 12 miles an hour he got along about half way across the intersection of the street when he saw the Shea machine coming. He stepped on the gas with the result that he was hit in the rear. He stated he thought the Shea machine was traveling at better than 30 miles an hour. The impact forced his car ahead about 15 feet.

Judge Libby found Shea guilty of reckless driving and Dahl was discharged.

DODGERS LOSE GROUND WHEN THEY LOSE TO CUBS AND GIANTS BEAT PIRATES

New York, Sept. 23 (By the A. P.)—The New York Giants conquered Pittsburgh today, 5 to 3, in the first game of their three-game series and retained their grasp on first place.

Hugh McQuillan subdued the Pirates with a brilliant mound exhibition. He held them to seven bits. The Giants made only five off Lee Meadows and Songer, but made them count. O'Connell's home run, with Lindstrom on base gave the champions their winning margin in the fourth, although they added three more in the seventh when Gowdy singled with the bases full.

With one out in the first inning, Carey beat out a bounder to Kelly and stole second while Cuyler was watching a third strike curve over. He was stranded, however, when Wright popped out to Terry.

Meadows started impressively by fanning Lindstrom and O'Connell, and retiring Young on a weak grounder to the box.

The Pirates went out in order in the second, Traynor and Maranville on infield grounders while Grimm flied to Young.

The Giants also were easy, Kelly, Terry and Wilson going out on successive infield taps. Meadows was displaying a baffling change of pace.

Earl Smith opened the third for the Pirates by singling, but Meadows fouled out to Gowdy, Moore flied to Wilson and Carey lined out to Lindstrom.

The Giants expired in order for the second straight time. Jackson, who flew to Cuyler, was the only man to get the ball out of the infield.

McQuillan gave a brilliant exhibition of twirling in the fourth, striking out Cuyler for the second straight time and also whiffing Traynor after Wright flew to O'Connell. He was given a great hand as he went to the bench.

The Giants scored two runs, the first of the game, in the fourth. Lindstrom first up, bagged New York's first hit when he singled sharply over second. He scored ahead of O'Connell on the latter's home run drive into the upper tier of the right field stands.

Two startling plays checked the Giant rally, however. Traynor making a fine stop and Grimm a remarkable one-hand stab of his throw to first on Young; while Wright ran over in front of second base to grab Terry's grounder and threw him out, after Kelly popped out to Maranville.

The Pirates again were turned back quickly in the fifth, Jackson tossing out Maranville while Grimm and Smith bounded out to Terry unassisted.

Three snappy infield plays disposed of Wilson, Jackson and Gowdy in the Giants' half of the inning.

McQuillan retired the Pirates in order in the sixth for the third straight time. Meadows grounded out, Moore flied to Wilson and Carey fouled weakly to Gowdy.

The Giants also were easy, McQuillan grounding out, Lindstrom lining straight to Moore, while O'Connell struck out in response to an ovation in recognition of his previous homer.

Cuyler opened the Pirates' first serious threat in the seventh with a double against the left field wall, but fine defensive work checked the rally. Wright flied out to Terry and Jackson made a wonderful diving stop of Traynor's smash over second. It went for a hit but stopped Cuyler from scoring and Maranville ended the inning by hitting into a double play, Kelly to Jackson to Terry.

The Giants rushed over three runs in their part of the seventh and ran their lead to 5 to 0. Meadows walked Young and Terry and the bases were filled on Wilson's smash to right that Moore barely touched. Jackson fanned for the second out, but Gowdy singled sharply to right center, scoring Young and Terry while Wilson came in when Wright relayed wildly to the plate. McQuillan popped out to end the inning.

The Pirates came back in the eighth with their first run. Grimm singled, went to third on Smith's blow through Terry's legs and scored on Moore's grounder, which Kelly juggled but recovered in time to make the putout at first.

Meadows had been relieved for a pinch hitter and Smith for a pinch runner in the eighth and the new Pirate battery was Songer and Schmidt.

With two out, Young doubled to right and Kelly walked for the Giants but Terry skied out to Moore.

The Pirates went out quickly in the ninth. Cuyler fanned for the third time and Jackson threw out Wright. Traynor beat out a tap to McQuillan, who started after the Pirate when he was bumped trying to field it. But the pitcher was restrained by his team mates and forced Maranville to pop out to end the game. Score:

DODGERS LOSE HEART BREAKER TO THE CUBS

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 23. — The Brooklyn Dodgers lost a full game in their race with the Giants for the National League pennant today when they were beaten by the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 4 in 10 innings. Dazzy Vance, the Robins' star pitcher, yielded only four hits in the nine innings he worked, but three home runs off him accounted for the Cubs' tallies.

Innings:

The Cubs scored one in the first inning when Grantham, after two were out, sent a long drive over the right field wall for a home run.

Brooklyn tallied three times in its half of the first. After High had popped to Barrett, Mitchell beat out a bunt, taking third on Wheat's double to right. Fournier then doubled scoring Mitchell and Wheat. Brown scratched a hit to second and DeBerry walked. Griffith's sacrifice to Weis scored Fournier. Stock was thrown out by Adams.

The Cubs went out in order in their half of the second. Vance and High, the first two batters for the Robins, were easy outs. Mitchell singled to right, but was out at the plate when he tried to score on Wheat's double to right.

Chicago took the lead in the third when Grantham's second home run over the right field wall scored Adams and Heathcote, who had walked.

The Dodgers went out in order in their half of the third and the Cubs followed suit in the first half of the fourth.

The three Robins who faced Keen in the fourth were easy outs.

Chicago went hitless in the fifth. For Brooklyn, High singled to right, advanced a base on Mitchell's sacrifice and took third on Wheat's out. Fournier flied to Adams, ending the inning.

Vance retired the Cubs on strikeouts in the seventh.

After the Cubs had gone out in order in the eighth, Brooklyn tied the count at 4-4 when Johnston, batting for DeBerry, singled, took second on Griffith's sacrifice and scored on Stock's single to center.

The Cubs went out 1, 2, 3 order in their half of the ninth.

The game went into extra innings after the Dodgers had been unable to score in the ninth. Wheat, the first man up, walked. Fournier sacrificed him to second. Brown sent a long fly to center, but Taylor ended the inning by going out to Cotter unassisted.

Hartnett opened the Cubs' tenth with a run into the left field bleachers. Cotter flied to Brown. Keen was safe when Fournier dropped High's throw. Adams singled to center. Keen taking second. Heathcote popped to High. When Grantham came up to the plate Manager Robinson signalled Vance from the mound and Ruether took up the pitching burden for the fighting Dodgers.

Grantham worked Ruether for a base on balls, filling the bases. Miller batted for Weis, but was tossed out by High.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
(Fordham Star and New York Giants)

Score 6 to 0 in favor of team in the field. The bases are full and none are out.

How should the infield play?

When a team has a six run lead, it should play well back and make sure of getting one man. If a hard grounder is hit to the infielder, then they should try for a double play. Under these conditions a great many semi-pro teams cause unnecessary trouble by playing in and trying for a double. Then, if a hit gets through them, they have no possible chance of breaking up a rally. Now with a big lead your infielders should play back and make sure of getting any balls hit on the ground. Then they can always get the man at second and break up rallies.

WATERBURY TAKES FIRST GAME FROM BALTIMORE

Waterbury, Sept. 23.—(By The A. P.)—Waterbury's Eastern League championship baseball team won a decisive victory over the Baltimore Orioles, six-time pennant winners in the International League in the first game of a series for the minor league championship of the east here today, 5 to 1. "Andy" Rush, premier twirler of the Eastern League, was on the mound for the victors and he held the slugging Birds to five safe hits and, except for one inning, was invincible with men on the bases.

Dunn sent his pitching ace, "Lefty" Groves to the mound for the international Leaguers and while Groves gave away but five safe hits, his free tickets to first got him into trouble, these coupled with some timely hitting by the Brasscos gave them a decisive verdict.

A cold breeze swept over the playing field, keeping the crowd down and hampering the outfielders in the judging of fly balls. The breeze, however, worked to the advantage of the pitchers as it gave them both blinding speed, Groves fanning nine and Rush four.

The Brasscos started to score in the opening inning. Schmehl worked Groves for a pass. Demoe fanned and Solomon forced Schmehl at second but Maisel juggled Yordy's grounder long enough to allow the Waterbury outfielder to reach first safely and after a passed ball had advanced both runners, Graham came through with a stinging single to right which scored Solomon and Yordy.

Waterbury added a third run in the second on Burke's pass, Schauffel's single and Rush's infield out which was badly played by Boley. The final two runs came after Groves fanned the first two men to face him in the seventh. Schauffel, the next batter, walked. Rush scratched an infield hit and Schmehl was passed, filling the bases. Demoe crashed out a single to right which scored Schauffel and Rush.

The Orioles tallied but once in the eighth, when Maisel singled with two down and scored on Connelly's double. Burke's sensational fielding in center field featured.

SENATORS HOLD LEAD BY BEATING CHICAGO AS YANKS WIN FROM INDIANS

Chicago, Sept. 23.—The Senators defeated the White Sox 7 to 6 in a hotly contested game here today and retained their two game margin over the Yankees.

Manager Evers of Chicago, sent Charley Robertson against Washington, and Mogridge was sent to the mound to keep the winning streak of the Senators intact. Crouse and Ruel did the catching.

Washington got a man around to third in the first inning on McNeely's single, his steal of second and an infield out, but when Rice grounded to Collins, McNeely was run down between third and home.

Singles by Barrett and Elsh, Collins' sacrifice and a walk to Sheely filled the bases in Chicago's half. Falk grounded out, Harris to Judge, and Barrett scored. Elsh attempted to score but was doubled at the plate.

The Senators failed to score in the second although they got a man as far as third.

The White Sox scored two runs in their half. After one out, Davis singled and Crouse walked. Both advanced on a sacrifice and scored on Barrett's hit to right.

The Senators took the lead in their half of the third by scoring four runs. McNeely went to second when Davis dropped his high fly. Harris singled to right, scoring McNeely. Rice singled, it was the 30th consecutive game in which he had hit safely. Goslin singled, scoring Harris. Judge sacrificed, Bluege doubled to left, scoring Rice and when Falk threw wild to the plate Goslin scored.

The White Sox failed to score in the third largely because of sensational running catches by Goslin and Rice.

Robertson was driven off the mound in the fourth the Senators scoring three runs. Mogridge started with a single. McNeely and Harris also singled, filling the bases. Rice flied to Hooper and Mogridge scord after the catch. Goslin doubled to right center, scoring McNeely and Harris, Robertson was replaced by Blankenship.

Neither team scored in the fifth.

Washington failed to score in the sixth but Chicago got one on Davis' walk an infield out and Blankenship's single.

Marberry replaced Mogridge at the start of the seventh but the White Sox scored two runs. Hooper batted for Elsh and walked. Collins forced him at second and Sheely walked. Kamm sent both home on a double over Goslin's head.

Neither team scored in the eighth, although the White Sox had the bases filled.

DUPONT PITCHES NO-HIT, NO-RUN GAME AT STERLING

A. Dupont pitching for Voluntown at Sterling covered himself with glory holding Sterling hitless for nine innings during which time he struck out 13 men and passed 1. Only one reached 2nd base and that on a wild peg to first by Nap Liberty; only three men reaching that station in the game. The only sembance o fa hit came in the 9th when Blair drove a hot one to Nap at third who brought the crowd to its feet with a great stop and got his man to first. Dupont pitched masterly ball and received splendid support from the infield, the outfield were merely ornamental as there was not a ball went out there. Voluntown scored 7 runs in the first three innings and one more in the seventh. The score:

NEW LONDON SILK WEAVERS QUIT OBJECTING TO NIGHT WORK PAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 24.—The Edward Bloom Silk company, operating a mill on Garfield avenue, is having difficulties with its weavers and they are now idle. The trouble is over the operation of the works at night. The trouble started Monday when the weavers walked away from their looms. This morning a conference was held, but was fruitless in results. There are perhaps 150 weavers at the mills and of this number 28 are employed at night, they earning about $40 a week, while the day force is paid some $10 or $13 less, the night work commanding a higher rate of wages and more hours of labor. The conference ended just where it started though Mr. Bloom, himself a practical weaver, came here to reason with the dissatisfied workers. He represented the situation to the workers and made some concession, but what he offered was not satisfactory. It was a case of give in to the strikers or lose their services. Mr. Bloom took the latter alternative and the mill is partially idle as a result. It is among the probabilities that the mill will close down if the places of the strikers are not filled, and then some 400 toilers will be without employment. At this season there is not as much work in this city as there has been in other fall seasons.

Little mackerel have struck an early this fall and good catches are reported from the wharves, especially from the piers along the lower harbor.

The Stamford police today requested the New London authorities to interview A. A. Palmer, whose automobile, registery 24-912 collided with a [illegible] in the former city a few days ago and damaged it. They wanted to know whether the owner of the colliding car intended to pay the costs of repairing the Stamford machine, which were $18. Inquiry here revealed that the colliding car is listed in the name of Mrs. A. A. Palmer, Palmer Bros. At the plant of Palmer Bros. it was stated that Mrs. Palmer resides at 175 West 58th street, New York and that she owns a farm in Stamford. She could not be reached here and the Stamford authorities were acquainted with her New York address. It is alleged that the Palmer automobile was operated away immediately following the accident and without the driver stopping to ascertain the extent of the damage occasioned.

Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, considers the introduction of the Darwin text book in Williams Memorial Institute a disgrace and an insult to good living Christians. At the masses at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church Sunday morning the clergyman expressed his views emphatically. The text book, it is understood, was included in the studies at the institute a few weeks ago and theorizes that the human race originated from the monkey.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wainwright and three children, of Montauk avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Wall, Richmond street, have returned to their homes after having enjoyed a week's automobile trip over the Mohawk trail and in Vermont. The trip was made in Mr. Wainright's automobile.

The state convention of Young Judea, an educational body of the Zionist organization of America, will be held in New London Nov. 9.

William E. Sheldon, Jr., and Miss Jessie Carter, both of New street, were married last evening at the residence of the groom's parents, by Rev. Sinclair Grimstead, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church. Louis Sheldon, brother of the groom, and Miss Mabel Good were the attendants.

Miss Helen Rockefeller, Borodell place, has resumed her studies at Pennsylvania State college.

Charles Gifford, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, is a patient at Hartford hospital, suffering from injuries sustained last night when his automobile overturned on the New London-Hartford turnpike. Gifford's injuries consist of lacerations of the head, several fractured ribs and chest injuries. Gifford was driving his machine at a fair rate of speed and when Twin Hills was reached the car skidded and finally overturned. Gifford was thrown out and was picked up in a dazed condition by C. A. Kramer, of Colchester, who caused the man to be conveyed to the Hartford institution.

Charles Glassenberg, 387 Bank street, reported to the police this afternoon that while his automobile was parked on Methodist street, a thief stole a spare tire.

An automobile owned and driven by Walter Scott, employed on the U. S. lighthouse tender Hawthorne moored at the customs house, was wrecked this afternoon when struck by a machine owned and driven by Michael L. O'Connell, 561 Montauk avenue. Scott's car was overturned, but the owner escaped injury other than minor bruises. O'Connell's car was also damaged.

The automobile owned and driven by Roy McLaughlin, 29 Coleman street, struck an unidentified girl, who resides on Schoolhouse lane this evening on Main street, near Federal street. The child darted to the highway for the purpose of crossing the street. She ran directly in front of the automobile and was forced to the highway. McLaughlin placed the child in the machine and drove her to the office of a physician, where her injuries were discovered to be of a trivial nature.

John O'Neill, proprietor of the restaurant, 52 Bank street, was arrested late this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith on a warrant charging him with violation of the liquor law. O'Neil furnished in Frederick H. Gavitt a surety on his bond of $500 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

The restaurant has been suspected a long time of being a place where intoxicating drinks had been served. Sunday Sergeant Smith and John Cavanaugh entered the place and seized a quantity of beer that has been served to customers. This morning Sergeant Smith took a sample of the seized goods to the state laboratory at Hartford where its analysis showed that it contained an alcoholic strength in excess of one-half of 1 per cent. Upon the return to New London of Sergeant Smith the officer placed his information in the hands of Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin and the latter issued a warrant for O'Neill's arrest.

The fire department was called out this evening about 7 o'clock for a fire at the residence of Dr. Joseph M. Ganey. It was a case of early fall fire, for it originated from an open grate which had not been used for a considerable time. Soot had collected in the chimney and when the flame went up the flue there was a fire in the soot. Dr. Ganey called for assistance on the phone, but someone sounded alarm 27 and the department was out. Two tanks of chemicals—six gallons—were sufficient to subdue the fire. The recall sounded as soon as the fire apparatus showed up.

The power boat Jennie T., somewhat famous (or rather infamous) as a rum runner, was sold at auction this afternoon at the custom house. Fred Musante of Noank, a fisherman, was the purchaser and he paid $700 for the craft. He will use the boat in the fishing business hereafter. The craft is considered to have been sold very cheaply.

James F. Harding, of 15 Monument street, Groton, was driving his automobile down Main street at 6.57 this evening when Louis Conti of 23 Eris street, Middletown, crossing the highway, ran in front of the Harding car, No. 15058, Connecticut registration. Conti was bumped so hard that he fell in the street. Mr. Harding took him to the office of Dr. Soltz where it was disclosed that Conti was not seriously injured, but it was deemed the part of wisdom to take him to Home Memorial hospital, that he might remain over night for observation. He is bruised somewhat, but suffered no serious injury.

The work of laying a cement road over Town hill is being rapidly accomplished and a week or ten days more will bring the reopening of the road from the corner of Montauk avenue. The road is torn up now to that point, so that all traffic to the westward is diverted to Darrow street and to Ocean avenue. Guide boards direct the automobilists so that those who follow the street signs have little difficulty in shaping their course.

The new street sign by which traffic was directed for a day or two at the corner of Bank and State streets is out of order and travel there is directed by traffic officers.

Frank B. Wilcox, a depraved man in appearance, was in court this morning for intoxication. He is a charcoal peddler who hails from Montville. Had he come from the mountain regions of the south he could not have presented a more deplorable condition. He was dirty, ragged and unshaven, and his hair needed the attention of a barber. Wilcox admitted that he was drunk when arrested, but he seemed to think that as he did not purchase the liquor he absorbed he was guiltless of a violation of law. "Your family needs all the money you can earn," was the advice Judge Prince gave to the charcoal man. The accused admitted the truth of the statement and pleaded for a chance to show that he meant what he said when he promised to abstain from liquor for a year. Judge Prince did not believe the story that someone came along and offered Wilcox the liquor that made him intoxicated, but he suspended the execution of a jail sentence of ten days to test the sincerity of the man.

Walter Scott, employed on the Romer Shoals lightship, came here Monday, he said, to transact some business. He transacted business that he didn't intend to mix into when he arrived, for he was found so intoxicated that he could not take care of himself and was arrested. He said he got in with a party of friends and that what he drank soon took away his ability to navigate. He declared that his intention was to go to New York last night to go to his work this morning. He was fined $5.

John G., 10 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Kenyon, died at the home of his parents, 154 Allen street, Groton, last night after an illness of a month resulting in the development of pneumonia about a week ago.

J. H. Stanley, R. F. D. No. 7, Norwich, communicated with the police this forenoon, stating that youths had entered his property, corner of Crystal avenue and Rosemary street, and had stolen fruit, damaged trees and partially wrecked a fence. Later Sergeant John Cavanaugh caught eight youths, who admitted participating in the theft of the fruit and damaging the property. They will be in the juvenile court Saturday.

Jack Z. Burr, signalman, first class, stationed at the submarine base, where he was recently operated upon, and where he is now a patient at the naval hospital, informed the police this morning that some time during last night his watch and charm, which had been suspended from the bed, was stolen. Burr stated that the watch was valued at $60 and that he suspected a sailor stationed at the base of having committed the theft.

Donald Chappell and Lydia B. (Almy) Brown, former wife of Mr. Chappell, have sold a house and lot on Huntington street to Lucy Cole Smith.

Mary Branigan, administratrix of the estate of Mary Branigan, has sold a house and lot, corner of Bank and Summer streets, to Edward Clancy.

Patrolman William Manice has resumed his duties on the night force after having been ill at his home, Starr street, for several days with pleurisy.

Samuel M. Prentis is spending a few days in Boston.

Robert Landran of Groton, Mrs. James Donnelly, Connecticut avenue, and Robert Nott, Broad street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

The automobile owned and operated by Ernest Johnson of Quaker Hill struck Ray Lewis of Williams street, where he operates a farm, on that thoroughfare early this morning. Lewis, who is of advanced years, was knocked down, but escaped with bruises. Lewis had driven his team to a point near the garage of J. B. Getchell and as he alighted backwards from his vehicle, did not observe the approach of the Johnson automobile. Before Johnson could cause the automobile to come to a stop, Lewis was struck and hurled to the concrete pavement.

A party was held at the home of Arthur Barry in the new village Tuesday evening. Games and cards were played. During the evening refreshments were served by Mrs. Barry. STAFFORD SPRINGS

Allen McLagan of Stafford Springs was fined $100 and sent to the house of correction for two weeks, by Judge Ernest E. Hobson, in the district court in Palmer, Mass., Monday morning, after pleading guilty to the charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. MARKKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Sept. 23.—Constructive forces were at work in today's stock market with the result that the general list moved to higher ground, the net gains in the active issues ranging from fractions to eight points. A sensational rise in cotton futures, a further easing of money rates and the favorable showing made by the first batch of August railroad earnings statements all contributed to the bullish sentiment. Further accumulation of the public utility issues, six of which attained new peak prices for the year, was again one of the day's features. Buying of these shares has been based on reports of increased earnings and merger possibilities, together with expectations of special dividend distributions.

The Pittsburgh Utilities company today declared extra dividends on both the preferred and common stocks. Pacific Gas and Electric, People's Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas were among the issues in this group to break through their previous high levels.

Electric Manufacturing company shares have improved in sympathy with the strength of public utilities. General Electric and Allis-Chalmers each showing net gains of two points. Strength of Worthington Pump, which soared six points to 44 1-4 was attributed to reports of increased business resulting from its Diesel Engines and Locomotive Feeder departments.

Bullish demonstrations also were successfully conducted in the food shares, National Biscuit, General Baking, Cushman Sons, Postum Cereal Preferred, Austin-Nichols preferred and New York Canners all establishing new high prices. General Baking was run up eight points and National Biscuit, which is reported to be considering an increase in the present $3 dividend rate, closed 4 1-2 points higher at 76 1-2.

Standard industrials made good recovery from recent heaviness. United States Steel common closed nearly two points higher at 109. Baldwin advanced 1 1-8 to 123 1-4, and American Can showed a net gain of two points at 1.30. United States Cast Iron Pipe touched a new peak at 1.10 1-4, and then eased to 1.09 3-4, up, 2 1-4.

Active buying of Lehigh Valley, which closed nearly 4 points higher at 68 1-4, was in anticipation of developments looking to the merger of that road with the New York Central system. Northwestern carriers were aided by reports of increased carloadings. Rock Island, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific and Frisco preferred closing a point increased carloadings. Rock Island, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific and Frisco preferred closing a point or so higher.

Some of the other outstanding strong spots were Mack Truck, All America Cables, Commercial Solvents B., International Shoe, Manila Electric Railway, Nickel Plate, Rutland preferred, and American Chicle certificates, up 3 to 5 points.

Call money was unchanged at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady but the rate on 90 and 120 day acceptances was reduced 1-8 to 1 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling ruled around $4.45 5-8 and French francs were quoted just above 5 1-4 cents, each at slight concessions from yesterday's final quotations. Brazilian Milreis advanced 30 points to 10.50 cents and Canadian exchange, which has been quoted at a slight discount, was back at par.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 23.—The bond market continued its march to higher ground today despite a burst of profit-taking in United States government obligations, railroad issues led the advance, with activity about evenly divided between high grade and speculative descriptions.

Although individual movements of any importance were lacking steady investment buying lifted the general average of the high priced railroad liens. Demand was centered principally in the 4 per cent bonds embracing those of the Atchison, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Atlantic Coast Line, Delaware & Hudson, Louisville & Nashville, Kentucky Central, and Central Pacific railroads.

Trading in the speculative group was more spirited with Missouri Pacific, International-Great Northern Frisco, Denver and Rio Grande, and Katy mortgages conspicuously active. Norfolk and Western convertible 6s, underwent one of their periodic declines.

Conclusion of hearings in the Brooklyn Union Gas company's rate litigation, which success predicted for the company, was the signal for another buying movement in the 7 per cent. bonds. Both issues crossed 151 to new high priced for the year.

Reports that the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean railroad was seeking $20,000,000 additional capital here led to some selling of its 6 per cent bonds. Several important banking groups were organized to bid for New York state's $12,500,000 bond issue tomorrow. Bankers announced that $3,531,000 Arkansas and Memphis Railway Bridge and Terminal 5s had been placed privately.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Big export buying of breadstuffs, including 4,000,000 bushels of rye in the last two days had much to do with a steep upturn of values both for wheat and rye. Wheat closed strong, 2 3-4 to 3 3-4c net higher. December 1.35 1-8 to 1.35 1-4 and May 1.40 7-8 to 1.41. With rye up 2.78 to 4 1-4. Corn finished at 1 1-2c lower to 1.78c gain, oats 5-8 off to 1-2c higher, and provisions varying from 5 to 7c decline to 15 a 17c advance.

7.yDUa now is the time for algood

Wheat and rye showed surprising strength throughout the day, but especially in the final dealings. Houses with foreign connections were active buyers of wheat as soon as the market opened and it was said there were 1,000,000 bushels sold inside of a few minutes. The European demand was associated with reports of stormy weather and severe new crop damage in France and Great Britain and also with an estimate that the wheat crop of Italy was but little more than half of the 1923 production. It was also estimated that the increased requirements of France would alone equal the entire surplus looked for from Australia.

The fact that the United States visible supply of wheat is the largest since 1919 ha dsome transient bearish influence on the wheat market and so too, did early weakness of corn values. Indications of European shortage of breadstuff, however, especially the huge purchasing of rye that appeared to be in progress led to rallies and made the upward pace of all grains a rapid one in the final dealings with all deliveries of rye finishing at a new high price record for the season.

Favorable weather and enlarged rural offerings to arrive led to pronounced weakness in the corn market, until wheat strength forced a rally. At one time the September delivery of corn in which, however, trading was very small, showed a setback of six cents compared with yesterday's finish. Oats followed corn.

Provisions averaged higher owing to an advance in hog values and the bulge in grain.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 23.—Irregular price movements took place in today's curb market, which was featured by the improved demand for the oil shares. Prairie Oil and Gas, Vacuum and several of the pipe line shares moved up one to two points. Pierce Oil corporation, the most active issue, dropped nearly a point to 4 5-8. Standard Oil of Indiana and several of the other popular oils, which have been under pressure lately, held steady.

Activity in the utility group was marked by narrower movements, while the baking group supplied wider fluctuations. American Power and Light developed weakness on small transactions, losing about 8 points. United Bakeries sold at a new high of 119 1-2, but closed a few points lower for a net gain of more than nine points.

Industrials shares were fairly strong, Gillette Safety Razor adding three more points to its recent gains. Radio issues were mixed and less active, Dubilier advancing fractionally in contrast to a slight decline by Hazeltine.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Invited for a Ride -

Sometimes when you're feeling blue,
And you don't know what to do,
Everything seems all askew,
Troubles just about to brew,
Drift away on Memory's wing
To a half-forgotten spring.
You will hear the bluebells ring
You will hear a bluebird sing.

"Dearest me!" sighed dear Uncle Lucky the old gentleman rabbit, laying down the Bunnybridge Bugle, "that is a lovely poem. Somehow it seems to say just what I feel," and he hopped over to the bookcase and took out the old family album. Carefully turning over the pages, he looked long at the picture of a pretty bunny lady in a big bonnet and silk mitts.

"Dear Long Ago, when I was young,
A happier song no birdie sung
Than I in jeans and old straw hat,
With fishin' pole or baseball bat.
But now I'm full of the rheumatiz,
And needs must ride in my little Tin Lizz."

Then with another big sigh, dear Uncle Lucky closed the album and walked over to the open window. Mr. Merry Sun was shining from the sky, making little shadows dance here and there over the lawn under the big elm tree.

"Wonder what Little Jack Rabbit is doing," all of a sudden said the old gentleman rabbit, right out loud, but nobody heard him. Of course not, for Little Miss Mousie was off on an errand in Rabbitville and the Old Red Rooster had gone to see Mother Hen down at the farm.

"Heigh ho," exclaimed Uncle Lucky. "Might as well call up my nephew. Maybe he's home, and then again, maybe he isn't, but I'll try just the same," and taking down the telephone receiver, he asked Central to give him:

"One, two, three, draw the latch, Rail Fence Corner, Bramble Patch!"

"Who's calling little me?" all of a sudden asked a voice.

"Your old Uncle Lucky," answered the old gentleman rabbit, with a smile spreading over his face. Then he began to laugh right over the 'phone until his bunny nephew asked:

"What's the joke, Uncle Lucky?"

"No joke. Just happiness," replied the happy bunny uncle. "Want to go for a ride in the Luckymobile?" If you do I'll glide over as fast as an eel."

"I'll meet you half way," shouted the bunny boy, and hanging up the receiver, he picked up his little khaki cap and kissed Lady Love goodbye. Down the winding path through the bramble bushes he hopped, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, and out on the Sunny Meadow where the daisies winked their eyes at Mr. Merry Sun up in the skies.

GRACE CIRCLE MEETING AT GROTON LONG POINT

Members of Grace Circle, King's Daughters, held their first meeting of the fall, Tuesday, at the cottage of Mrs. Eliza Maguire at Groton Long Point, being guests of Mrs. Maguire and Mrs. John O. Peckham. About 10 members were present, leaving Norwich on the 8.45 o'clock trolley for the shore.

The morning was spent in a social time and at noon a fine clam chowder was served, also pickles, olives, crackers and butter, apple pie, coffee, tea and candy.

The business session was held during the afternoon in charge of President Mrs. Lucy Perkins. Considerable routine business was transacted and a vote of thanks tendered the hostesses for the enjoyable time.

During the meeting a tribute was paid in honor of Mrs. Grant Troland, a member of the society who passed away in this city last week. Through the death of Mrs. Troland the Circle lost a member for the first time in many years, one who has always worked for the good of the organization and who was held in high regard by every member.

The members returned to their homes in Norwich early in the evening, the day having been an enjoyable one for everyone.

BODY IS BURIED WITHOUT IDENTIFICATION

The body of an unidentified man, found floating in the Thames river between Gales Ferry and Allyn's Point about 10 o'clock Saturday morning by William McKnight of Gales Ferry, was buried Tuesday afternoon by Cummings & Ring, undertakers, of this city, no one having appeared to claim the body as that of a relative or friend.

One party appeared Monday in search of an uncle who had been missing for the past year, but as no one could identify the body burial became imperative.

It was hoped that identification would be made possible because of a woman's head enclosed in a wreath, a tatooed piece on the left arm.

LIEUT. HOWARD PECKHAM RETURNING TO FORT HAYES

Lieutenant Howard L. Peckham, corps of engineers, U. S. army, who has been spending a short leave of absence at his home on Corning road, will return this morning to Fort Hayes, Columbus, Ohio. He has been on duty there, at headquarters, Fifth Corps Area, as aide-de-camp to Major General Amar Bundy, since his return, in July, from foreign service in the Philippine Islands.

The man who was born to be hanged may escape by way of the electric chair.

ARMSTRONG IS GRATEFUL FOR NATIONAL HONORS

"I am deeply appreciative of the honor that has been conferred upon me. As in the past, I will need the loyal support of every Conn. legionnaire to carry on the duties of the state commander's office and those of national vice commander. My heartfelt thanks to the members of the Connecticut department, American legion, who have assisted me in my work and through whose efforts this recent honor has been conferred, both upon me and the Connecticut department."

Such is the message sent back to Waterbury by Capt Eugene P. Armstrong, state commander of the legion and former commander of the Waterbury post, who was unanimously elected one of the five national vice commanders at the national convention, which closed Friday at St. Paul.

Capt Armstrong, who is the son of Eugene B. Armstrong of 64 Peck street, this city, was elected to the national office as the result of his fine work for the legion in this section of the country during the past year, when the membership of the organization was increased so that the state stood second on the list of states, where formerly it stood 48th.

Capt Armstrong was twice elected commander of Corp. Coyle post, Waterbury, thus establishing a precedent, as no man was ever elected to the office before his time. He was elected state commander in 1923, and established a precedent in the state department by being reelected to the office at the state convention held recently. Although a fight for the office threatened, and although Armstrong withdrew his name twice, the Connecticut legionnaires literally forced the office upon him.

He served as a captain in the ordnance corps during the war, first at Washington and later overseas with the First Army corps. Prior to the war he was employed by the Scovill Manufacturing company, in Waterbury, to which position he returned after the war. Upon being elected state commander, however, he found that the duties of this office would command all his time, so he obtained a leave of absence from the company and thus gave full time, without any compensation, to the Connecticut department of the legion.

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER COMPLIMENTS NORWICH WOMAN

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university, in a press interview with the New York Herald-Tribune, printed in Sunday's issue, stated that the student registration at the university this year will exceed 32,769, the number of students of last year. President Butler adds that the capacity of the university will be taxed in every part, as applications are pouring in from every state in the Union and from almost every country on the globe.

Johnson hall the residence for graduate and professional school women students, will not be ready until after Thanksgiving, and Dr. Butler further adds that it has been no small task to make suitable temporary provision for all the women students who have been assigned rooms in Johnson hall. In this Herald-Tribune interview President Butler gives high compliment and praise to a former Norwich woman in stating that "by the devoted and energetic labors of Mrs. Juliana S. Haskell, adviser to women graduate students, and the members of her committee, arrangements have been made to care for all who have been assigned rooms in Johnson hall in either Tompkins, Morris or John Jay halls on Claremont avenue."

Mrs. Haskell is a Norwich Free Academy graduate and holds a doctor's degree from Columbia university for her learning.

Physical exercises, including Walter Camp's "daily dozen" have been started at Bacon Academy, Colchester. The exercises are taken indoors under the supervision of the faculty.

TO CONSIDER PLANS FOR SPECIAL MEETINGS

A joint committee of the ministers' association and the religious work committee of the local Young Men's Christian Association will be held at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday afternoon of this week to discuss the matter of special meetings for next spring. It will be remembered that Dr. C. J. Jefferson of New York conducted a series of meetings in the spring of 1923 and Dr. Robert Speer was the speaker at the series last spring.

It is the intention of the joint committee to endeavor to secure the strongest possible speaker for the series to be held in the spring of 1925, and already several nationally known clergymen have been suggested.

POETRY

BACCHYLIDES.

Fair star, new-risen to our wondering eyes,
With brighter glory from thy lone eclipse!
Poet, imprisoned in dead centuries!
Some god unlocks thy music now, and strips
The seal of envious silence from thy lips;
And we are fain to hear thy wakening melodies.

Thou comest from the darkness of the tomb
To sing once more the happy olden time,—
Victor and heo, youth and youth's fair bloom.
The joy of life in manhood's golden prime;
And I, of alien tongue and harsher clime,
Listen, and lose awhile life's endless fret and fume.

Thus in a sunset isle, long years ago,
Some shepherd, telling 'neath the lea trees
The straying sheep that browsed on upland lawn,
Marked with wide eyes across the purple seas
Odysseus' long-lost bark from the breeze
Glide ghostlike from the glooms of ocean toward the dawn:

And straight forgot his silly flock and fold
In marvel of the strange return from death,
While to the harbor-mouth he ran and hid
To hear their tale with wistful drawn breath:
"And aye mine eyes are dimmed with dreams" the saith
"Of that far land where bide the heroic race."
—George Meason Wheeler.

SUBJUNCTIVE.

(There is a tradition in Wiscasset that a house was bought there as a present for Marie Antoinette.)

Suppose Marie Antoinette had come to Wiscasset,
Escaped from Paris, escaped from patience, escaped from fear
Would she have lived, suberbly, quietly,
Talking to the women in the sewing circle
White House here?

Where they saw gray water, she would have seen steel flashing,
Where they saw autumn leaves blown she would have seen
The shivering white birches would have seemed like frightened people
Where the Wiscasset elms found moving green.

And when she saw the women going into the barnyards
Then she would have felt her heart fail,
Remembering the Trianon and a dozen flowered satin,
And herself going milking with a milking pail.
—Elizabeth Coatsworth, in the Review.

MORRIS CONCEDES COOLIDGE FINE TYPE NEW ENGLAND MAN

Democratic Nominee For Governor Declares the Republican Party Aims to Ride to Success in the National Election on the Sterling Character of Calvin Coolidge—Opines that in Federal Political Campaigns the Party Should Outweigh the Man, in State Campaigns the Candidate Should Outweigh the Party—Addressed Democrats at Barbecue at Lake Compounce.

Bristol, Sept. 24.—Three hundred and fifty prominent democrats from the Fifth senatorial district and from Hartford, Waterbury and New Britain were at Lake Compounce today for a barbecue and political rally. Former Mayor Joseph F. Dutton acted as toastmaster, and the speakers were Governor John H. Morris, candidate for governor, Congressman P. B. O'Sullivan of Stamford, and Senator Henry F. Ashurst.

"This is the first time that many of the members of the party had met the candidate for governor, and Mr. Morris in his speech reviewed the various issues of the campaign and gave a resume of his own record.

Mr. Morris pointed out that in a state campaign the party usually is of more importance than the man but in a state campaign the reverse is often true and the man is more important than his party. Speaking from a national standpoint, he characterized President Coolidge as the type of New England man, who has been consistently flouted by his party, and it requires no great prophet to foresee that if he should be elected he will still be flouted by the same forces in his own party that flouted him before. They hope to ride to success on his name and character.

"Character of his own record, he said that his acts had the care of other people's property as my business. My work has always been constructive." He reviewed the question of taxation, declaring that while the republican party is for centralized government, the democratic party is the party of individualism, the party that believes that the government was established for the good of all the citizens, the party that believes that government is a burden, that taxes are a burden; that every public office holder is a burden on the citizens of this country. But they are burdens that we must bear to some extent for our own protection, just as clothing is a burden. But most of us realize that the lighter the weight of the garment, provided it furnishes the needed protection, the better. A sweater, on occasion, has advantages over a great coat. Now the republican theory is like that of the knights of old who wore steel armor for their protection. The more government we have, the more taxes we have, the more public office holders we have, the safer we shall be. Do you agree with them?

Mankind as a whole discarded armor as a garment for protection long ago, because, though it was efficient in its own way it hampered the individual who bore it intolerably. They found that lighter garments gave the individual more freedom, less burdens to carry, less interference with the personal initiative and energy that made in the long run for success.

Nations have in the last few years been discarding at a rapid pace the burdens of highly centralized government, one by one the nations of the world are coming to be democracies. Every tradition of the republican party is toward centralized government. It is usually more efficient, than democracy. But what did we or our fathers come to this country for? To get away from the burdens inherent in centralized and efficient government and to be able to wear the political garments of less government, lighter taxation, fewer office holders. Read the declaration of independence and you find these purposes. Yet under republican rule we have reverted in this state and nation to a centralized government, to heavy taxation and to an army of office holders which shame. In their percentage of numbers to our population those that George the Third imposed on his colonies.

I will leave you with just one thought, one set of statistics at the present time. The governments of this country require to pay their office holders and for other purposes and actually take by taxation one day's work a week from each and every citizen of the United States. Think that over.

Congressman P. B. O'Sullivan spoke of public life as one of the issues in the present campaign and discussed the work of the last session, referred to what he called the extravagant session in which Progressive Lund himself on every possible occasion.

Senator Ashurst said that the whole campaign centered around the letter K. Look at the little green house in the rear, Washington" he said, "and see what the corruption in the republican party for the last few years has centered on, where the politicians are trying to get favors to corrupt parties and to themselves.

"The second K he mentioned was the K in the tariff act, "the act which gave special privileges to the few as he described it. The third K he described was the K. K. K. The speaker mentioned the various scandals in the president and secretary, the Teapot Dome investigation, praised the integrity and record of Calvin Coolidge, but said he lacked leadership to cast out the corrupt members of his party."

Other prominent democrats present at the rally were Edward M. Yeomans, chairman of the democratic state central committee; Judge William E. Hamm of Waterbury and William R. Comer of Oxford.

Mr. Morris said in part:

"There are always two main centers of interest in any political campaign, the candidates and the party issues. In a local campaign the candidates usually do and properly overweigh the party name. In a state campaign the candidates may be more important than the party they represent or they may be less so. In national affairs the party is almost invariably of far more importance than the candidate. That is especially so in this campaign. Coolidge is a fine type of New England man, who has been consistently flouted by his own party ever since he became president, said it required a great prophet to foresee that if he should be elected he would also be flouted by the same forces in his own party that flouted him before. They hope to ride to success on his name and character and after the proceeding has been typified by an old saying:

"The devil was sick, the devil a monk would be,
The devil got well, and devil a monk was he."

During the campaign they are sick. Will the country find them morally improved if they get well?

In this campaign I can say of the head of the republican state ticket that he is a fine man. Beyond that I do not care to go at present. To any audience as this, the personal question is: "What has the head of the democratic ticket to say as to his own fitness. It is not a grateful task for a modest man to describe his own work, but I believe it is a necessity.

I have always had the care of other people's property as my business. My work has always been constructive. When my father died in 1895 I was just through college and I had the care of a few of his clients' funds and of my mother's property from the beginning. The fact that they increased in my care is a matter of public record in the probate courts. When the New Haven Dairy company was started I had no capital and I increased every cent I put into it. Much I was taking care of other people's money and property. The fact that it has been successful is a matter of record in financial circles. So much I may say of one center of interest in this state campaign, of one of the candidates of one of the two major parties.

The other center of interest is in the party principles. What is the fundamental point of difference between the two old parties? The democratic party is the party of individualism; the party that believes that the government was established for the good of all the citizens, the party that believes that government is a burden, that taxes are a burden; that every public office holder is a burden on the citizens of this country. But they are burdens that we must bear to some extent for our own protection, just as clothing is a burden. But most of us realize that the lighter the weight of the garment, provided it furnishes the needed protection, the better. A sweater, on occasion, has advantages over a great coat. Now the republican theory is like that of the knights of old who wore steel armor for their protection. The more government we have, the more taxes we have, the more public office holders we have, the safer we shall be. Do you agree with them?

Mankind as a whole discarded armor as a garment for protection long ago, because, though it was efficient in its own way it hampered the individual who bore it intolerably. YALE UNIVERSITY IS TO BROADEN FIELD OF ENDEAVOR

New Haven, Sept. 24. — Changes which mark the broadening of the field of endeavor of Yale university at the opening of the 223th year tomorrow will be the inauguration of an Institute of Psychology and completion of the new Peabody Museum to house Yale's collections and natural history specimens. A group of research specialists will be associated with the institute.

Building operations will include the opening of two additional dormitories for freshmen, completion of Weir hall of agriculture, completion of Lapham field house, and renovation of a stately residence on Hillhouse avenue, for occupancy by President and Mrs. Angell.

The university dining room hall reorganized last year by Miss Cora C. Colburn, of Chicago university commons, will be continued under direction of Miss Marion D. Dana of Chicago, and a staff trained by Miss Colburn. The cafeteria for upper classmen has been enlarged to accommodate an increased number of students. Freshmen will continue to eat together.

Several new courses have been instituted notably those in building construction on the Thompson-Starrett foundation by Associate Professor Theodore Crane; in Classical civilization, required of all students in Yale college who are candidates for the degree of Ph B; and in political science given for the first time this year by Professor Edgar S. Furniss, and Milton Conover, formerly of New York university.

N. H. ROAD ANTICIPATES NO DIFFICULTY IN REFUNDING

New York, Sept. 24. — Assurance that refunding of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad's obligations falling due early next year would entail no difficulty, was given today by J. Edward Pearson, president. The $23,223,125 European loan debentures 7s are due April 1, 1925. Maturities this year amount to only $1,566,000 of which $817,000 comprise equipment trusts, all of which are being paid off. Operating economics had enabled the road's earnings to keep pace with the territory served, he said, and September's figures might exceed those of the same last year. The road's business was now sufficiently established on a profitable basis to warrant hope of a 1924 surplus of at least $2,000,000 after charges, he asserted.

TESTING MRS. FERGUSON'S ELIGIBILITY TO BE GOVERNOR

Austin Texas, Sept. 24.—(By The A. P.)—A charge that the plaintiff had not come into court with "clean hands" in bringing the suit against Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson's eligibility to be governor, was made by Beeman Strong, attorney for the state democratic committee, in arguing for Ferguson this afternoon.

Standing within a few feet of the plaintiff Charles M. Dickson, Mr. Strong charged that the case had purposely been delayed until it would be too late to name a democratic nominee, should a temporary injunction be granted.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

Great Damage by Flood

Helsingfors, Finland, Sept. 24.—Great damage is reported to have been done at Viborg and Kotka by gales and floods. The water level in the Gulf of Finland reached [illegible] to 12 feet above normal, which is said to be the highest in a century.

REP. HILL INDICTED FOR HAVING CIDER AND WINE

Baltimore, Mr. Sept. 24.—Representative John Philip Hill was today indicted by the federal grand jury on a charge of manufacturing and unlawfully possessing cider and wine at his home here, and with maintaining a public nuisance thereby.

The indictment, which contains six counts, is a result of his avowed efforts during the past two years to obtain a definition of the term "non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices" in Section 29 of the Volstead act. Mr. Hill contended that under it farmers were allowed to make cider with an alcoholic content of more than one-half of one per cent. while city dwellers were restricted to beer of just that percentage.

In September, 1923, Representative Hill manufactured fruit wine at his residence on West Franklin street after notifying Prohibition Commissioner Haynes of his intention and requesting that he be informed when to stop fermentation. Following this, a temporary injunction upon his home was secured. No date, however, has been set for a hearing on the petition of District Attorney Woodcock for a permanent injunction.

Experimenting again, Mr. Hill several weeks ago decided to make cider. He did so, from apples grown on his property, he said, and allowed it to attain an alcoholic strength of 2.75 per cent. This cider was served to severall hundred friends at a "party" last Saturday night and the indictment today is the outcome.

The congressman has not been arrested, and will not be federal authorities said, until the day of his trial.

When informed of the grand jury's action today, Mr. Hill expressed himself as "delighted."

FARMER KILLED WHEN HE FELL FROM WAGON

New Milford, Sept. 24.—Walter G. Morris, 65 years old, a prominent Bridgewater farmer, was killed this afternoon when he fell from his wagon. It is believed that his head was crushed by one of the wheels. The police are hunting for a man, whose identity is not known, who is said to have been riding with Mr. Morris.

Mr. Morris was returning home with a load of potatoes and was last seen by Thomas Gray at one o'clock. At that time, according to Mr. Gray another man was riding with him. When the team of horses reached home with no driver, Mrs. Morris started a search and the body of Mr. Morris was found on Mine Hill road. The body was first discovered by Mr. Gray and he notified Medical Examiner Frederick King of New Milford.

It is believed that in some manner, Mr. Morris pitched forward from the seat, and the wheel passed over his head. He was dead when found.

Coroner Samuel Herman was notified and he will send state police to Bridgewater tomorrow in an effort to find the man who was riding with Mr. Morris who disappeared after the accident.

Mr. Morris leaves a wife and two sons.

WILLIMANTIC PLUMBER IS STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Willimantic, Sept. 24.—Maurice M. Welch, local plumbing contractor, sustained a cut across the nose shortly after 9 o'clock this evening when he was struck by a Ford car owned and driven by George H. Stimpson of 40 Union street, this city. Mr. Welch was crossing Main street near the junction of North street when he was struck. Stimpson brought his machine to a quick stop. The accident was investigated by Officer Orlando and Stimpson was exonerated of all blame. Welch was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where four stitches were required to close the wound. He was retained at the hospital over night and will be discharged tomorrow morning.

150TH ANNIVERSARY FIRST CONTINENTAL CONGRESS

New Haven, Sept. 24.—Connecticut will be the only one of the original 13 states that will not be represented by its governor at the celebration in Philadelphia tomorrow of the 150th anniversary of the first continental congress. This was due to Governor Templeton's misunderstanding of the invitation.

Lieutenant Governor Hiram Bingham is ill at his home with the grip and he also will be unable to attend. It is expected that Major Edward Judge, of the Second company, Governor's Foot Guard of this city and the First company of Hartford, will be in the parade.

The Carpenters company, which loaned the hall in Philadelphia for the sessions of the first congress, will observe its 200th anniversary in conjunction with the other exercises and this caused the confusion which led to the governor's non-attendance. It was explained by the governor that when he received the invitation from Carpenters hall, he mistook it for an ordinary invitation and directed his secretary to reply that he could not attend. Since then he has learned what the invitation really meant and he regrets that three engagements tomorrow will make it impossible for him to attend.

SHAPING NEW YORK STATE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The republican state platform began to take shape tonight in the hands of the committee on resolutions of the republican state convention.

During the open hearing the committee heard arguments involving proposed and recommended planks pledging the party to the enactment of a state prohibition enforcement statute to replace the Mullan-Gage law repealed by the 1923 legislature, naming the Ku Klux Klan, ratification of the child labor amendment of the federal constitution, equal rights legislation for women, protection of labor, and the direct primary.

Canon Willis mSheafe Chase, of New York Civic league and the Rev. O. R. Miller of Albany, superintendent of the same organization, opposed naming the klan.

Clue to Recent New York Gem Robberies

Thefts Ascribed to the "Soup and Fish Gang" of Apartment House Bandits.

New York, Sept. 24.—Police today lifted the veil of departmental secrecy so far as to reveal that detectives had been working surreptitiously on four new gem robberies believed to have been accomplished by the "soup and fish gang" of apartment house bandits.

Confirming unofficial reports, the authorities admitted that on the night of September 5, Mrs. Karl Hoffman, estranged wife of an Albany jeweler, was the victim of Beau Brummel gunmen as she returned from the theatre to her fashionable studio apartment near Fifth avenue of Fifty-first street, accompanied by William A. Walling former city attorney.

A limousine waited at the curb as Mrs. Hoffman and Walling entered the apartment building. As they moved toward the elevator two other men in full dinner dress, drew pistols upon them, struck down Walling's fists, and while Mrs. Hoffman's screams brought a crowd to the door, snatched a platinum-diamond neck ornament from her, dove through the crowd into the limousine and made off.

Another theatre-hour robbery was reported by William F. Kenny, contractor, and father of the Polish Countess De Prorok, whose 14-room apartment at 820 Fifth avenue was ransacked last Sunday evening. Kenny's son and four servants were in the house at the time, but all they heard were "minor noises" to which they attached no significance until the work of the burglars was discovered.

In this same exclusive residential section, police admitted, bandits had looted the home of Francis Danforth, manufacturer of 2,000 worth of silverware, and had jimmied a child's bank for the $20 it contained.

For five days detectives have been secretly investigating the robbery of Mrs. Logan Clendenning of Kansas City, of $50,000 worth of jewels while she was absent from her New York home in Hotel Plaza. This job also is believed to have been perpetrated by the "soup and fish gang."

EDGE HAS 62,000 MAJORITY IN NEW JERSEY PRIMARY

Newark, N. J., Sept. 24.—With returns from yesterday's primary election practically complete, United States Senator Walter E. Edge tonight had piled up a majority of nearly 62,000 votes on National Committeeman Hamilton F. Kean, his opponent for the republican senatorial nomination.

Marking the climax to one of the hardest fought battles in the state's political annals, the result came as a distinct surprise to impartial observers who had predicted the margin of victory would be small.

Of the state's total of 2,559 districts only 47 tonight had failed to report. The available unofficial figures were:

Edge 239,352
Kean 177,394

A four-cornered senatorial battle in the state is now a certainty.

Dr. James K. Shields, republican, former superintendent of New Jersey Anti-Saloon league, who has publicly expressed dissatisfaction with Senator Edge's record on the "wet and dry" record, independently entered the race last week, explaining he would withdraw only in the event of Mr. Kean's nomination.

Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly, of Trenton, will be the democratic opponent, while George L. Record, of Jersey City, styling himself as an "independent-progressive" will also have to be reckoned with.

WEALTHY ALBANY MERCHANT BECOMES VIOLENTLY INSANE

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Joseph W. Ripka of South Deerfield, Mass., who came to this country from Poland, penniless, 27 years ago and is now a wealthy produce merchant, became violently insane in this city today. He destroyed practically all the fixtures in a Broadway barber shop, attacked Francisco D'Anza, court interpreter, when the latter came of the rescue of the terrified barber, and set fire to his own clothing after he had been subdued and taken to a police station. Later he was sent to the psychopathic ward of the Albany hospital.

The merchant, with his wife and two sons, were motoring to Orange county to negotiate for the purchase of an onion crop. According to Mrs. Ripka, her husband is rich and operates one of the largest produce farms in western Massachusetts.

MRS. COOLIDGE CLOSELY FOLLOWING BASEBALL RACE

Washington, Sept. 24.—Interest at the White House in the pennant fight of the Washington baseball team extends to Mrs. Coolidge, who during a visit at the executive offices today followed closely reports reaching there on the progress of the game between Washington and Chicago.

Mr. Coolidge is planning to accept the invitation to throw out the first ball at the opening game of the world series if Washington wins, and he also was invited today to review a parade next Wednesday in honor of the team on its arrival home.

TWO BOYS ESCAPE FROM DETENTION IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Sept. 24.—Two more boys, one of whom was waiting to be taken to the Meriden reform school, made a successful escape from the children's building today.

Joseph Tiernan, of 109 Plymouth street, who was to have been taken to Meriden today, could not be found when an officer called for him. The other boy, Salvatore Marroccio, 14, of New York city, was found here a few days ago after he had run away from home. His parents were reached and they were to have called for the boy today.

Only a short time ago two other boys made a successful escape from the building by climbing out of a second story window, walking along a ledge and then dropping to a small roof which was only a short distance from the ground.

As a rule popular subscriptions are in the unpopular class.

Jury Failed to Indite Mrs. Tell For Murder

State Attorney Inglis Has Decided to Try the Woman on a Charge of Manslaughter.

Middletown, Sept. 24.—A grand jury for the second time today failed to indict for either murder in the first or second degree Mrs. Johanna Tell, who in April last, voluntarily called upon District Attorney McGee, of the Bronx, in New York, and confessed to the killing of her employer, Charles Blair, a farmer of Killingworth, Conn., and burial of the body in a fertilizer pit.

The body was found in the place described by her.

Mrs. Tell is now bailable and the state's attorney, Ernest A. Inglis, announced that he would proceed to try the woman on a charge of manslaughter probably week after next.

The grand jury was sworn in in Middlesex county superior court this morning and after instructions from Judge Arthur F. Ells, it retired and was in session five hours before making a report. The state's attorney had laid before the jury a presentment of murder in the first degree.

Some sixteen witnesses were called, many of them neighbors of Blair who lived on a chicken farm in a remote part of Killingworth. Others were officers who searched the farm and found the man's body in the pit.

The jury reported that it could find neither an indictment in the first nor second degrees of murder. Judge Ells thanked the jurors for their attention to the case and dismissed them.

Later Mr. Inglis said that while Mrs. Tell was bailable it was doubtful if any one would come forward to offer a bond for her. Mrs. Tell, who had sat quietly in the court room most of the day attended by Mrs. Thompson, wife of Sheriff Bert Thompson, showed some nervousness just before the jury came in but after hearing the report she exhibited no emotion. She was returned to the jail.

Mr. Inglis said that he was satisfied with the action of the grand jury. In May a grand jury failed to return an indictment. Mr. Inglis said that the failure of a grand jury for the second time to find an indictment for murder cleared the way for the state to prosecute Mrs. Tell on a lesser charge.

OBSTACLES TO NEW CITIZENS' NATIONAL BANK IN PUTNAM

Putnam, Sept. 24.—Obstacles have arisen that may make it impossible to open the new Citizens' National bank, organized after the First National bank had closed its doors following the attempt at suicide of its cashier, former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric, as soon as it was expected.

According to Judge M. H. Geissler, chairman of the citizens' committee, the promoters of the new bank have been in conference with bankers of high standing and it has been pointed out that many of the provisions laid down by Comptroller of the Currency Dawes for the new bank will be difficult to execute.

It is pointed out that it may be advisable for the new bank to secure modest quarters for the first few years and not attempt to take over the old First National bank building valued at $104,000. It is also said that if the deposits of the old bank are taken over, it will be necessary to secure the signatures of 11 of the depositors, including many school children and then would take considerable time.

The committee will communicate with the comptroller in an attempt to have the provisions for a charter modified so that a commercial bank can be established in Putnam at the earliest possible moment.

AT WORK ON PROTOCOL OF ARBITRATION AND SECURITY

Geneva, Sept. 24.—(By the A. P.)—If the league of nations wants to conserve the hope that America may some day rally to the protocol of arbitration and security it ih now trying to get adopted, then the drafting committee must not make the sanctions provisions too binding. This warning was voiced by Sir James Allen, of New Zealand, before the disarmament commission this evening at the close of a rather fruitless day of wrangling over the details of the protocal text.

Speaking for the British dominions, Sir James said, they would regard it a moral obligation to lend-aid to any attacked state as far more binding than any mere legal obligation, and they were sure that America would feel the same way if the protocol were put up to her.

If the jurists in the league commissions persisted in framing a text would tie the hands of the member states unduly as regards bringing sanctions to bear, he declared that New Zealand would have to make serious reservations, and he indicated that the other dominions might well do likewise.

PHILA. MAYOR DETERMINED TO DISMISS DIRECTOR BUTLER

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—President Coolidge was urged tonight by the Law Enforcement League of Philadelphia to intervene in the controversy between Mayor Kendrick and the director of public safety, Brig. Gen. General Smedley D. Butler. In a telegram signed by William R. Nicholson, Jr., the secretary, the league asked M. Coolidge that he shame the city Philadelphia from further [illegible] and humiliation, and asked that he act to avert this calamity when he comes to Philadelphia tomorrow.

The president is coming here to deliver an address at the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the meeting of the first Continental congress and the 200th anniversary of the founding of the Carpenters company.

"The Law Enforcement League" added the message to the president, "possesses signed documentary evidence charging political corruption at home, the line in Pennsylvania to federal office holders and [illegible] spot in the Union [illegible] Both known to date and the [illegible] of Director Butler, whom [illegible] to come here will demonstrate the public [illegible] our duty to the nation [illegible] ment is signed [illegible] offenders in your administration."

"In the last analysis," said Mr. Kendrick, "I am a mayor of Philadelphia, and I am going to be mayor, and will not be intimidated nor coerced by anyone. If I can't have a man in my cabinet who will co-operate with me I'll have another even if I have to change them every day. COLLAPSE OF THE BRITISH AND GERMAN NEGOTIATIONS

Berlin, Sept. 24 (By the A. P.)—The negotiations between Great Britain and Germany on the proposed treaty of commerce have collapsed.

The negotiations had been proceeding three days between representatives of the British Board of Trade and the German trade ministry. It was said that the negotiators found it impossible to discover a common basis for the promised trade treaty.

Strict secrecy was maintained on both sides, but it is believed that the main reason for the breakdown of discussions was the German refusal to grant concessions Great Britain demanded respecting the exemption from taxation of British goods exported to Germany. On these goods, under the new German tariff now in course of preparation, virtually prohibitive duties will be imposed.

Upon being advised of a statement which appeared in the state papers Wednesday morning and attributed to him as saying that F. H. Gilpatric of Putnam was not totally blind, Attorney William A. King, counsel for the defaulting cashier of the Putnam National Bank, immediately took exception to the article. Don't wait for time to heal that itching rash

NEGLECT of even the slightest skin rash, roughness, chafing or soreness may have serious consequences. Painful, disfiguring complaints like eczema, ringworm, etc., all start in a small way.

The safest plan is to keep a jar of Resinol Ointment ready to use at the first sign of skin trouble. It promptly stops itching and reduces inflammation and burning. The tiny pores readily receive this soothing ointment, and its healing influence is carried far below the surface of the skin.

Resinol Soap is a favorite with thousands who like its generous lather, so refreshing and cleansing. At all druggists.

Palace Theater

Victor Hugo Halperin has welded more drama into his production, When a Girl Loves, for Associated Exhibitors, than is to be found in a half dozen average pictures.

Particularly intense is the sequence wherein Grishka, the hunchback played by John George, kills Rogojin, as portrayed by George Siegmann, when the latter stages his sister's lover.

This intriguing scene occurs when officials go to arrest Grishka for the murder, and he, with an idiotic grin on his face, plays with a big black cat. Merely a simple-minded cripple, who could accuse him of murder? True, there is blood on his face—but couldn't the cat have scratched it? And Grishka still grins idiotically as they go away, leaving him in safety.

Broadway Theater

The Alaskan, James Oliver Curwood's stirring novel of the far north, which Willis Goldbeck adapted to the screen, forms the basis of Thomas Meighan's brand new stirring picture. This widely heralded film will be the main feature at the Broadway theater beginning next Sunday.

As a story for Meighan, it is undoubtedly the strongest in which this favorite screen star has even appeared. Herbert Brenon, who produced the picture for Paramount, made a very careful selection of the supporting cast. Estelle Taylor, John Sainpolis, Charles Ogle, Frank Campeau and Anna May Wong are featured in Meighan's support.

Breed Theater

Can a woman make a good detective? Can a woman depend on womanly intuition for the solving of mysterious problems? These are questions that are plainly answered in the feature film production, The Lion's Mouse, the attraction at the Breed theater today.

In this case one lone girl takes it upon herself to procure some valuable papers for her girl friend. While making efforts in this direction the girl detective also falls upon a clue which leads to a stolen pearl necklace. The problems she is forced to meet and the wonderful ability shown in detecting crime and unravelling clues, proves conclusively that a woman's mind when properly trained, can equal a man's ability in this direction.

The Lion's Mouse is the story of a young girl who, wishing to show her appreciation for a kindness done her by another girl, promises to regain possession of valuable papers which means life or death to her benefactor's brother. As she starts out on this quest she gets into all sorts of complications including the stealing of a valuable string of pearls. The gang of criminals, through the girl's efforts are finally captured in one of the most exciting climaxes witnessed in a film drama for some time.

The Lion's Mouse is a Hollandia Film Production directed by Oscar Apfel and features Wyndham Standing and Marguerite Marsh.

Shirley Mason will also be seen in Love Letters a delightful comedy drama and the Fox news will complete this big double bill.

Broadway Theatre.

A scintillating revue of B. F. Keith vaudeville, consisting of youth, beauty, melody, comedy, song and dance, fully describes the program scheduled for the Broadway theatre the last half of this week, in addition to a fine photo play.

Raymond Pike opens the bill. He is an acrobat of a different type, a singer, dancer and a comedian as well. He certainly is versatility personified.

The Jesters, Lawrence and Beasley offer a fast routine of comedy and songs.

May McKay and Sisters are Scotch lassies and are the last word in entertainment.

Sammy Howard and Lillian Nixwood in "Esther from Pittsburg" have a unique comedy skit.

The Dancing DuBrowns close the vaudeville program with classic and whirlwind dancing featuring a whirlwind finish.

Picturegoers who like thrills or who have a penchant for real rough and tumble fighting—on the screen—have a genuine treat in store for them, according to advance reports, in Selznick's "The Right of the Strongest," E. K. Lincoln's latest starring vehicle which is coming to the Broadway theatre.

Besides George Siegmann and Miss Ferguson, the balance of the cast supporting Mr. Lincoln are of stellar calibre and includes such headliners as Tom Santschi, Tully Marshall, Nile Welch, Robert Milasch, Winter Hall, little Coy Watson and June Elvidge.

Palace Theater

Abraham and Mary Todd Lincoln were blessed with four sons—Robert Todd, Thomas (Tad), William Wallace and Edward Baker. Of these only Robert Todd, former ambassador to the Court of St. James, secretary of war in Garfield's cabinet, and former president of the Pullman Palace Car Company, is alive.

Robert T. Lincoln is the only son of the president who lived to an age sufficiently advanced for marriage and of his alliance only one son was born. This boy was named Abraham but he, too, passed away in his youth and the hope of perpetuating the line of the great President passed with him.

His children were the delight of Lincoln's life and the loss of them by death his greatest trial. Many new sidelights upon the character of Lincoln have been disclosed through research into the records of his life and times by the Rockett Lincoln Film Company, producers of Abraham Lincoln soon to play at the Palace theater.

LIVE MODEL SHOW

Matinee and evening live model shows at Tubridy-Weldon Co., Willimantic next Thursday.

By virtue of the unprecendented success of Style Shows and Fashion Promenades conducted last year, The Tubridy-Weldon Co., management have completed arrangement for a third Live Model Show in Fall Styles for Thursday afternoon and evening at 2:30 and 7 o'clock, respectively. Both shows are to be of two hours duration and all women at leisure during the afternoon are requested to attend the matinee showing to allow the employed to witness the evening show. The idea of the double show is to avoid the extremely crowded conditions which prevailed at the establishment of the company on the previous showings, when the entire store and sidewalk fronting, were packed by a milling crowd. With the slogan, "Come in Stout and Go Out Stylish," and a most complete display for the slim the promenade promises well to exceed in success introduced in Willimantic by The Tubridy-Weldon Co., as an innovation. Live Model style Shows and Fashion Promenades have now become permanently established by young and old as a most ideal means of witnessing the styles for the coming seasons and making [illegible] from gowns, costumes and [illegible] tually displayed. A group of [illegible] els from New York City will [illegible] newest in Fall Modes for the [illegible] stout ranging in sizes from [illegible] to 46. The display will include an elaborate array of styles for the flapper and young misses in sizes from 16 to 20. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

State officers from the Daniel barracks did patrol duty on the highways leading to the Brooklyn fairgrounds Wednesday, keeping the heavy traffic under good control, and also were on duty on the fairgrounds.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy have returned from a motor tour through New York state.

Gasoline, on the downward trend in price, was selling in Danielson on Wednesday for as low, at some filling stations, as 19 cents the gallon.

There is an improved market for tire fabric, a fact that is keeping Killingly's plants engaged in the manufacture of that material busy just now. Incidentally, on account of the advance in the price of crude rubber and the high price of cotton it is not unlikely. It is said in the trade, that tires will advance in price in the near future.

Radio equipment displayed at the Brooklyn fair by local agents attracted a great deal of attention, being of special interest to residents of rural communities where winter evenings are made more cheery by radio service.

Follow-up notices requesting immediate repair of sidewalks are being sent to delinquent property owners by the borough. It so happens that sidewalk builders have been so busy of late that some who have wanted work done have not been able to secure the workers to do it.

Where the tracks of the line swing around the corner of Franklin and Dyer streets the Connecticut company is now putting in new rails and ties this week, this being another improvement of the extensive amount of that sort of work done on the local lines of the road this season.

The project of the state of Rhode Island building a state highway from North Scituate over the old Hartford pike to a point on the border of this town, near East Killingly, appears to have been abandoned for the time being, though it is one of the improved routes sure to come eventually. Carrying on, Connecticut would extend the route through Killingly Center to Dayville and then from Goodyear to Pomfret, where it would connect with the present state highway between Hartford and Putnam. The proposed route is an old stage coach line.

These are the days when the men [illegible] the wood sawing machines are now busy, some of them, working until late at night to keep pace with the demand for their services.

Curtis Wheeler of the Mashentuck district of this town had fingers on one hand badly mangled by a circular saw about which he was working.

Rush work is being done on a number of dwellings under construction to close them before the cold season holds up work that may proceed on the interior at any time.

A week from next Monday brings the annual town election. All the voters of Killingly who participate will come to the town hall to cast their ballots. In the national election in November the town will vote by districts—at Danielson, Dayville and East Killingly.

J. Carl Witter acted as starter of the horse races at Brooklyn fair on Wednesday.

Nathan Eccleston of Worcester, formerly of Putnam and Willimantic, was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday afternoon.

Excavating is under way, preceding the construction of a filling station building to be built on the site at the southeast corner of Main and Academy streets.

F. A. Soldberg of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

PUTNAM

Judge M. H. Geissler, chairman of the citizens' committee in charge of organizing the Citizens' National bank of Putnam, who returned Tuesday night from a trip to Boston, stated Wednesday afternoon that serious obobstacles, both of a legal and practical nature, had appeared in the pathway of organizing the new banking institution. While not giving any details of what has traspired, it is believed that the obstacles are in the way of meeting the conditions imposed by Comptroller Dawes contingent to granting the bank's charter.

Judge Geissler said that a subcommittee has been in constant touch for the past two days with several bankers of high standing and conditions have been freely discussed and that the advice of the bankers has been invaluable to the committee. They pointed out objections to the requirements exacted by Comptroller Dawes that demand most careful consideration.

These objections, both of a legal and practical nature, will be taken up with the comptroller and a satisfactory agreement is hoped for at an early date.

Judge Geissler said: "As members of the committee and citizens of Putnam we of course realize that Putnam needs a bank and needs one soon and we will not lose sight of that for ainstant in our efforts to reach an agreement with Mr. Dawes that will permit the establishment of a bank on a sound basis and safeguard the interests of stockholders and depositors."

At a special meeting of the common council, Tuesday evening, so quietly called and convened that few outside of the members of the common council knew of it, the resignation of Prosecuting Attorney J. F. Carpenter was accepted. Also the resignation of Thomas P. Ryan, city clerk, who was elected assistant prosecuting attorney in January, but who has never considered himself a legal incumbent of the office.

Attorney E. H. Johnson was elected prosecuting attorney and Attorney Carpenter was elected assistant prosecuting attorney. Mr. Johnson has held the office at different times since the city was organized. He stated Wednesday that he had served in all 14 or 15 years. Attorney Carpenter has also filled the office at different periods for many years. He was elected to succeed Attorney E. C. Morse in 1922 and was re-elected last January for another two year term.

It was at the February meeting this year that Attorney Carpenter first tendered his resignation. His action was due, he said, to the fact that his private practice demanded his attention; to the fact that the duties of the office had grown more arduous and that he felt the need of a rest. At this time it was stated that it was believed that Attorney Carpenter might be induced to reconsider and the resignation was placed on the table.

At the July meeting Attorney Carpenter again sent in his resignation but it was not acted upon, and he continued to perform the duties of the office. The meeting of the common council and its action Tuesday evening came unknown and unexpected to all except those conected with the city government.

Attorney Carpenter has waged war on the liquor traffic in Putnam and the city court has been a self-supporting institution with a large balance beyond the expense of the court and its officers. Some of the largest fines in the history of the court have been paid and in a number of months the total fines and costs have passed the thousands dollar mark. The result has been that liquor is not being freely sold in this city.

The salary of the prosecuting attorney is the same today that it was when the city was organized back in the '90's, $500 a year. This is but a few dollars a year more than the city pays for janitor service. There is no way of remedying this, except by a charter amendment by the legislature.

In insisting that his resignation be accepted, it was stated on behalf of Attorney Carpenter that he was willing to do what he could to assist the city and would accept the office of assistant prosecuting attorney if it was the wish of the council.

Thomas P. Ryan, who was elected to the office of assistant prosecutor to succeed Attorney H. C. Bradford, is city clerk and is not an attorney-at-law. It was claimed on behalf of Attorney Bradford that no layman could hold the office as this was decided in a former Putnam case when a layman was elected to the office. When Mr. Ryan was asked what he was going to do about it he replied that he wasn't going to do anything. There the matter has stood. Attorney Bradford put in a bill for the first six months' salary as assistant prosecutor but the bill has never been approved by the council.

The new prosecuting attorney was sworn into office, Wednesday morning by Judge M. H. Geissler and immediately a session of court was held. There was no observance of any kind in the change of prosecuting attorneys. One drunk was given 30 days in jail and a wanderer was given a like sentence, after pleading guilty to vagrancy.

There are very few domestic grapes on the vines in and about Putnam. Early in the spring it looked as if the yield was going to be large, but the long dry spell set the grapes back and they did not develop. Some of the wild grape vines are hanging full of well developed fruit and are being gathered for "various purposes."

Howard James is attending the Radio World's fair which is being held in New York. Before returning to Putnam Mr. James will go to Jersey City to take a course in radio work.

John J. O'Neil, formerly of Putnam, now in business in Dayville, has been appointed postmaster in that village. Mrs. O'Neil was Miss Minnie Kearney of Putnam.

The Putnam evening school will open in the high school building Monday evening, October th. Sessions will be held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Free courses are offered in English and commercial branches. A class in Americanization affords an opportunity for those wishing to become American citizens to qualify to pass the necessary examination.

Invitations have been sent out for the wedding of John Peterson of Putnam Heights and Miss Laura Warren of Attleboro, Mass. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's sisters, Mrs. Arthur Schofield, Attleboro Monday, September 29, at 12.0 o'clock.

Owing to poor road conditions the D. A. R. pilgrimage which was to have taken place today (Thursday) has been postponed without another date being fixed upon.

John Slattery of Pomfret, formerly bookkeeper for the Manhasset Mfg. Co. is now with a contracting firm in Webster, Mass.

The Woman's Board of the Day Kimball hospital held its September meeting in the chamber of commerce rooms, Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Esther Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon T. Wilson, has returned to her studies at Wellesley college.

GILPATRIC IS BLIND— HIS COUNSEL MISQUOTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Sept. 24.—When The Bulletin arrived Wednesday morning Putnam people were astonished to read, in an Associated Press dispatch, a quotation of Attorney William A. King of Willimantic, counsel for G. Harold Gilpatric, in which Gilpatric's attorney was said to have stated, following the court session at New Haven Tuesday, that his client was not totally blind and that Gilpatric would be able to see eventually. This was contrary to the announcement in The Bulletin, the first newspaper to carry the story that Gilpatric would be blind, that Gilpatric's eyesight had been hopelessly and permanently lost through the bullet which he fired into his head on August 7th, injuring the optic nerve.

During Wednesday, inquiry disclosed that Attorney King had been misquoted. It was also reiterated by doctors who have examined Gilpatric, Dr. S. B. Overlock, of Pomfret, house physician of the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, and Dr. George M. Burroughs, eye specialist of Danielson, that in their opinion Gilpatric is hopelessly blind.

In denying the statement sent out by the Associated Press that he had stated that his client was not blind and would eventually see, Attorney King said: "What I did say after the hearing was that I did not believe Gilpatric knew that he was blind. From what physicians have told me I have no reason to think otherwise than that his sight is permanently gone." Attorney King said that Gilpatric will be arraigned October 6th and the date for the trial will then be set.

Dr. Burroughs of Danielson said that he was greatly surprised to read the statement attributed to Attorney King that Gilpatric was not blind. "I never saw Gilpatric but once," said Dr. Burroughs, and at that time I was convinced that his sight was destroyed." It was about three weeks ago that Dr. Burroughs made hi sexamination.

Dr. Overlock also said Wednesday that he had no occasion to alter his statement that Gilpatric is blind and said further that Attorney King told him over the telephone, Tuesday evening, that he had been quoted incorrectly.

While the friends of Mr. Gilpatric would have been glad to learn that he had not lost his sight they would have considered it, at least peculiar, if they had been led to believe he was blind all these weeks when it was known that this was not the fact.

Attorney King says he stated that he did not think Gilpatric realizes that he is blind. This is what the people of Putnam have been led to believe. Gilpatric is said to be continually making statements to relatives who visit him as to what he hopes to do when he gets so he can see. It is this that leads those close to Gilpatric to believe that the fact of his blindness is unknown to him as yet.

GOOD WEATHER, FINE EXHIBITS AS BRROKLYN FAIR OPENS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Brooklyn, Conn., Sept. 24.—As they have done for years, in ever increasing numbers, patrons of the Brooklyn fair, the annual show of Windham County Agricultural society congregated here Wednesday for the first big day of the fair.

Perfect weather brought out the crowd, which may have not been record-breaking, but was exceptionally large, crowding the parking space within the grounds with cars and leaving long parallel lines of machines outside the gates along the highways leading thereto.

It was a happy, good-natured throng, on pleasure bent, enjoying to the utmost the splendid day, the exhibits, the racing and the opportunities for renewing friendships and talking over old times—the reunion feature taking second place only to the agricultural importance of the fair.

There is little change in the general arrangements of exhibits and displays. There is a marked change—for the better—in the quality of field crops, fruits and dairy products shown, this largely due to the influence of County Farmers' association and the improved methods it has introduced through its agent and expert corps of lecturers and demonstrators who go from town to town throughout the year bringing their culture and experience to benefit the oldest and most important of industries.

Brooklyn fair this strikingly demonstrates that Windham county agriculturalists are progressive; that they have made the most, in many instances, of the things that science has achieved to help them. Their exhabits of the products of the farm of splendid live stock and other things is striking and would be more so if these exhibits coul dbe placed beside those shown at Brooklyn a score of years hence, when the showing also was very good.

Impressive is the development of the apple growing industry in county towns. Splendid fruit such as was shown at the fair will most certainly make the reputation of county orchards and bring bountiful financial returns to the owners.

Particularly attractive in the exhibition building were the exhibits by Brooklyn, Woodstock, Canterbury and Plainfield granges. These organizations have vied in the making of elaborate displays that include preserves, fruits, dairy products and a score of lines of other products of the farms in the towns they represent.

Individual displays of farm products occupy all the available space in the building, including a good showing of vegetables and grains.

Of special interest is an exhibit of Connecticut broad leaf tobacco, grown on the farm of Capt. Hugh L. Mason. This modest display, shown in the southeast corner of the exhibition building, is especially important because it suggests—it points the way—to a field of endeavor in which farmers in territory hereabouts can make much money.

The Mason farm is just in the rear of the fairgrounds. Tests having demonstrated that land on the farm was suitable for tobacco culture, a field of it was set out to plants last spring. Jules X. Charbonnier, who gained his experience in tobacco growing in the tobacco fields about Hartford, was in charge of the work and has made a fine success of it. Representatives of a number of tobacco concerns doing business in the Connecticut River valley have seen the crop grown at the Mason farm and have been unanimous in declaring its quality excellent and above the average as to size and color of leaf. Prices offered for the crop would amaze one not familiar with the value of such products. Upwards of an acre of the tobacco was grown on the farm.

Discussing tobacco growing at the fair Wednesday, Mrs. Mason said that the experiment shows there need be no abandoned farms in Brooklyn. Tobacco culture will make them pay and pay well. Experts say that the soil in and around Brooklyn is very good for tobacco growing. Perhaps what has been done on the Mason farm will stimulate further effort along line.

As is the unfailing rule the building occupied by the women's department of the fair was a center of interest all day Wednesday. Many beautiful pieces of needlework were shown there and many other wonderfully pretty things, the products of clever fingers trained in needlecraft.

This year the poultry exhibit is not as it has been in some other years, but the showings were of a high standard.

The cattle pens held the attention of hundreds of men who visited the fair. A number of county towns were represented by exhibitors, indicative of the county-wide scope of the fair.

Grandstand space was at a premium during the afternoon, when the races were held and the vaudeville exhibitions given. Every available foot of space in and about the grandstand and along the rails leading down the stretch was jammed with humanity. The afternoon program appeared particularly pleasing and entertaining.

This year the mid-way was not so much of a feature as it has been in some other years. The barkers were fewer and less vociferous. There was plenty to amuse however, and ample number of ways to be entertained.

Exhibits of farm machinery and devices for use on the farm made an interesting section of the fair. A health bureau tent had much to interest the hundreds that visited it. Members of the W. C. T. U. representatives of the League of Women voters found the fair a happy opportunity for interesting numbers in the work their organizations are doing.

About an acre of space was given over to the display of new models of various makes of automobiles. The beautiful machines evoked many an expression of admiration and expressions of wishes to own one. Dealers from several towns of the county were represented.

The crowd was orderly in the most desirable degree. Officers on duty found very little to claim their official attention. Hosts of children from the schools of Brooklyn and surrounding towns that made fair day a holiday enjoyed themselves immensely, especially those who were so happy as to have rides on some one of the group of ponies awaiting their pleasure.

The fair is continuing today (Thursday) with an interesting program of racing, vaudeville, displays of horses and other interesting events.

GAS HEATER 5c PER HOUR

REMEMBER THESE 7 POINTS

1.—A burner of easily removed, cleanable units. Each unit can be quickly taken out, cleaned and replaced.

2.—An open sheet flame, not confined in separate flues or mantles. Every particle of gas and air mixes freely.

3.—A beautiful incadescence, resulting from the flame reaching and filling the entire glower surface.

4.—Removable unit construction. Glowers, grills and crowns all made of demountable units, making repairs easy—inexpensive.

5.—Special high-heat insulation, that throws the heat all forward into the room.

6.—Wider distribution of radiant energy. Superiority in heating widest possible space in the room.

7.—Positive acting lever cock approved by highest technical authorities. Gas can be turned off with one movement of the foot.

These are the outstanding features of the KENNEDY RADIANT HEATERS. The operation cost is 5 cents per hour.

NO GROUND FOR LENIENCY.

Probably no little surprise will be occasioned by the statement which has been made by the state attorney in Illinois concerning the prosecution of the couple who poisoned wife and husband, in which he said that he would not ask for more than life imprisonment out of respect for the church in which one of the accused has been a minister.

This is another case from Illinois that has aroused the indignation of the entire country. It is a case where the crime was premeditated, where careful arrangements were made for causing two deaths, where it has even been said that the minister has deplored the fact that he had not delayed giving the poison to his wife until he had been transferred to another place, since less suspicion might have been aroused had he waited. And this is not a case where minors are the principals.

It isn't believed that the church of which the minister was the head will share the view that is taken by the state attorney. It isn't believed that it would seek to have him shielded from the full penalty of the deliberate crime that he committed or from the part which he played in connection with the double crime. So far it does not appear that there are any extenuating circumstances whatever that would call for the display of leniency regardless of the denomination he represented.

Because of the position which he held, it was to be expected that he would have given greater consideration to the enormity of his act, sufficient even to have restrained him from doing it. He is the last one that would be expected to be harboring any such ideas, but because he has been found to be a wolf in sheep's clothing there doesn't appear to exist any grounds for penalizing with any greater leniency than would have been done in the case of another in a different position. There is no more reason for keeping these individuals from trial for first degree murder than there was in the Loeb and Leopold cases. Justice and protection to the public is not to be lost sight of in dealing with murderers.

A BAD LOOPHOLE.

New York is a state where there are many automobile fatalities and accidents. It is likewise a state where there has been too little attention paid to motor vehicle regulations. It has watched conditions develop without giving the same attention to them that other and neighboring states have. The accident and fatality lists are therefore no more than what could be expected under the circumstances.

At the last session of the New York legislature it was supposed that provision was made for the examination of all seeking licenses to operate motor vehicles. The large number of irresponsible, under age and inexperienced drivers in that state was laid to the fact that no regulations were established in this respect, and with anyone driving who desires it can be appreciated what the great contributing factor to accidents in that state has been. But the New York legislature failed to do what was expected or else its edict is being disregarded if the statement as made is true that the new law calls for such tests only when "special circumstances" in the opinion of some official requires it.

That of course leaves the situation practically unchanged, or puts it in the hands of officials to do as they please. If it was a case of leaving it to a commissioner of motor vehicles who shouldered his responsibilities as does the commissioner in Connecticut or the registrar of motor vehicles in Massachusetts there would be no question as to the enforcement of the provision, but when it is left to the say of an official, who has no desire to make extra work there is little surprise that New York feels that it has failed to get the protection it sought.

The situation if correctly represented, means that the next legislature will be given a chance to wrestle with and correct the trouble. The idea that only a part of those seeking licenses should be examined and that any can be passed without examination that the officials wish isn't going to operate to the reduction of accidents or increasing the safety of the highways. It encourages incompetent drivers.

RADIO SHOWS.

It was only a comparatively few years ago that an automobile show was unheard of. They are quite the rage at cetrain periods of the year now and most every city of any size has them. Changes have taken place and automobiles have their appeal for about everybody. It is only natural therefore that there should be automobile shows for the display of the latest models and the newest devices for pleasure cars, business cars and trucks.

But while the auto has been steadily climbing into prominence there has also been development in other lines. While there is an automobile for about every ten persons it might be learned if a census should be taken that just about as many are possessors of radio sets.

With such a large number listed as radio fans, and probably most of them owners of sets of one kind or another it is fitting that there should be a radio show such as that now being held in New York city. There are all kinds of receiving machines ranging from that built by the owner to the much more costly ones which stand the owner in several hundred dollars. The various types make a long list. The many devices and attachments an even longer one. But there is an interest in these quite the same as there is interest in automobiles. Every improvement has its attraction, each new device and the various hitch-ups awaken attention.

Radio oncerns a very large number of people. There are those who listen, those who operate, those who sell, those who manufature, those who invent. This whole list is interested in what others have done and are doing. They seek to know about the latest even if they cannot obtain it.

There are likewise many problems connected with radio and it is not improbable that much help in the solving of them can be obtained from such gatherings. One thing is certain, the radio show is so big that it cannot be housed under one roof and there are certain to be other cities which will follow the New York example.

THE CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

While there is a general feeling of opposition to child labor conditions such as have been disclosed in some communities and some states, it is being shown that there is a strong opposition to the so called child labor amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Not only is there opposition to the idea of taking away the rights of the states and centralizing power in the federal government, but there is an unwillingness to confer such an authority upon congress as is provided for under the proposed amendment. The broad and sweeping amendment doesn't mention children. By it congress would be given "power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age."

There might be certain lines of employment in which the labor of minors would be detrimental, and it is remembered that in other days it was against the law for them to be about saloons, but that condition as well as others was taken care of by state laws. By the proposed amendment congress would have the authority, however, to say that no one under 18 could work. That isn't the purpose of the amendment but that is the authority conferred on congress, and it is the unwillingness to give congress the right to do what no one wants done that has developed so much opposition to ratification. The amendment goes farther than the federal laws that were declared unconstitutional. Any constitutional amendment such as is proposed is bound to encounter opposition but when drawn on such broad lines that opposition is certain to be multiplied and even supported by those who are sincerely opposed to the exploitation of child labor.

ALMSHOUSE INMATES.

According to a report of the census bureau there are 78,030 persons in the almshouses in this country as shown by the latest survey. That represents an increase of less than 12,000 in the past 43 years during which time the population of the country has more than doubled.

In Connecticut, according to the figures there were 1162 persons in almshouses January 1, 1923, and it is noteworthy that this number is a marked decrease from the enumeration in 1910 when the total was 2244. At that time there was a slight increase in this state over the 2067 in such institutions in 1904 but not only has that increase been changed to a decrease but the number has been practically halved.

Conditions in the various states vary concerning the almshouse inmates. Each state uses such institutions for different purposes and it is not so many years ago that there were many insane placed in the almshouses of Connecticut for lack of other accommodations. With the new policy of Connecticut concerning the care and treatment of the insane the almshouses were relieved and the insane were, especially those mildly afflicted, extended the hope of care or improvement.

It is not such a favorable showing which some of the other states make in regard to the almshouse population. There are 21 which show an increase in such population, some others which show little change while the remainder show slight decreases. New Mexico being the only state without almshouses.

The reduction in the pauper poor from 132 per 100,000 in 1880 to 71.5 per 100,000 in 1923 throughout the country indicates effective results in tackling a hard problem.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Getting a straw vote on the pennant winners doesn't mean anything.

It seems to be a weakness with Al Smith of New York that he likes to be teased.

The man on the corner says: In baseball this is a week of doubt and excitement.

Next to a warm September, Norwich greatly missed having a chance to see the Prince of Wales.

The movement which set New England week in motion ought to keep the spirit alive throughout the year.

Those who eat toadstools in Connecticut have quite as serious a time as those who try the same poison in Massachusetts.

"Bootleg Liquor Goes Up," says a headline. According to all reports and some observations there's a large quantity going down.

The Prince of Wales has had such a good time and got such a good impression of the country he may want to come again some day.

The fact that the state of New Hampshire is out of debt imposes no small obligation on the people of that comonwealth to keep it so.

IMAGINATIVE GIRL

"I've just left Imogene Butler," said the round-eyed caller, foogening the clasp of her fur chocker as she sank into the comfortable armchair. "She said—"

"Mercy!" exclaimed the pretty young matron who was being called on. "Don't mention Imogene Butler's name to me! I think I shall scream if ever I hear the name of Imogene Butler again. I'm really getting perfectly hysterical on the subject."

"My goodness!" answered the round eyed caller in surprise. "I didn't know you even knew Imogene Butler."

"That's just it," said the pretty young matron. "I don't; I've never set eyes on her when I was conscious of it. But for the last month I've been simply persecuted with that girl's name.

"It started early in the spring while I was visiting mother. My husband had asked Bill MacKintosh in to stay with him while I was gone. It seemed that Bill was a friend of this Imogene Butler's and so one night she called up the house and told Bill that her mother had taken a box at the theater for that night but was unable to use it. She was asking some people to fill it up. She asked Bill to bring the man he was staying with. That was, of course, my husband.

"Well, my husband and Bill climbed into their dinner coats and staggered down to the theater only to find that little Imogene was the only person in the box. So they sat through it and my husband wrote me that he had been very bored. And I thought no more about it.

"However," continued the young matron, "I wasn't going to be allowed to forget it. About a week after I got home Bill MacKintosh said to me jokingly one evening, 'I hear you've been high hatting Imogene Butler.'

"'And who in Scotland's name is Imogene Butler?' I asked.

"My husband explained that she was the girl who had invited him to the theater party.

"'She told me she saw you on the street and you cut her dead,' went on Bill—he's a dreadful tease—'I told her you were probably furious because she took your husband to the theatre.'

"'You didn't, Bill,' I said. 'Why, I've never seen the girl! How could I cut her dead when I've never met her?' But Bill only laughed and I thought it was just another of his jokes until one day Angela Tripp, my most intimate friend, came to see me. She was looking worried and puzzled. This Imogene, it seemed, had been seriously going around telling everybody that I refused to speak to her since my husband took her to the theater. When I assured Angela that I had no idea whether Imogene Butler was long or short or fat or thin or old or young or dark or light, Angela merely told me that she thought I ought to stop the gossip by making a special effort to meet Imogene and be nice to her.

"Well, then began a perfect nightmare for me. I'd walk along the street with my eyes cast down for fear I'd be looking into the eyes of Imogene Butler and cutting her dead.

"Yesterday it seems that she went to my husband's office on some business not even connected with him, and met me just as she was coming out. I have no recollection of the incident.

"I was so preoccupied that I can't remember meeting a soul. But of course the underground system of gossip got busy at once, and as soon as I got home one of my dearest friends called up to tell me that she heard I had met Imogene Butler coming out of my husband's office and had simply looked her up and down and glared.

"I was perfectly weak with surprise when I heard this. But I have made up my mind to dismiss the whole thing from my thoughts at once and forget that there is any Imogene Butler."

"Well," said the round-eyed caller, "I don't blame you, but anyway Imogene Butler just told me something that I think you ought to know. She's just found out that it's your husband's brother's wife she'd been accusing of cutting her all this time."

"My husband's brother's wife!" exclaimed the pretty young matron, breaking into laughter. "She is a crazy girl. My husband's brother isn't married."—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Major General Hunter Liggett, U. S. A., retired, who has been elected president of the Association of the Army of the United States, first loomed big in the public eye as commander of the first American army corps organized in France. Gen. Liggett grew up in Berks County, Pennsylvania, and won an appointment to West Point, from which school he went in the infantry arm. He did service in the Indian campaign in the Northwest under General Miles, and during the next two decades developed in a way to insure responsibility being put upon him in the war with Spain, he commanding and fighting in both Cuba and the Philippines. In the archipelago he had a chance to act and to prove his capacity for leadership, which he improved; and in due time he entered the War College in Washington to perfect himself in the technique and theory of his vocation. During the Mexican border troubles General Pershing had a chance to study General Liggett and his methods, and as a consequence he was among the first chosen to accompany his chief to France.

CHILD TRAINING

SHALL WE LISTEN TO BOBBY?

Ora A. Clement

As Bobby and Mother reached the conclusion of a confidential talk, Aunt Ellen came into the dining room and caught a few words of the conversation. She looked mildly disapproving, and as soon as Bobby was off for school she remonstrated with her niece.

"When I was young, Alice, children were never allowed to bring home tales about school and the teacher."

"You mean, don't you, that they were never allowed to repeat them to their elders? I'll warrant the children discussed the day's events among themselves and not always to the teacher's credit, either."

"Oh, well of course children will—"

"To be sure they will," laughed Bobby's mother. "As long as they are creatures of intelligence they are going to think about what happens in school, and as long as they think, they are going to talk to somebody about the things they are thinking of. Refusing to listen to a child's comments and questions does not stop his thinking, it only leaves him to draw his own faulty conclusions."

"Just the same," the older woman protested, "I think it is wrong to encourage a child to find fault with his teachers."

"So do I, and I am sure I have never been guilty of doing that. But when I see that some problem is puzzling Bobby I do try to help him solve it, whether it concerns school or other things."

"This noon he told me that Miss Larson had been unfair. I suspected one of those cases in which a child does not perceive all that lies back of a punishment or reprimand, so I encouraged Bobby to tell me the whole story. I do not think he felt that he was being encouraged in fault finding.

"It was as I had suspected. While I could see the reasons for Miss Larson's action, Bobby in his inexperience could not possibly be expected to. If he noticed the incident at all, he could not have done otherwise than misjudge his teacher. I talked with him a long time about it and at last his manly little soul caught the larger vision. For the first time he has sensed the truth that there is something bigger and more important than the individual—that is, the welfare of the group. He went back to school satisfied with his beloved Miss Larson again and with something added to his ideals. If her and the other children discuss the incident of the morning among themselves Bobby will, I am sure, present Miss Larson's side of the question and stoutly defend her. So I am well pleased that Bobby brought his little grievance to me, and if Miss Larson could know the whole story, I am sure she would agree with me."

Aunt Ellen was only half convinced but hesitated to say so.

"Well," she remarked at last, "I don't think you have a very easy task ahead of you if you are going to try to help Robert solve every problem that troubles him all through school."

"Oh, as for that," replied the young mother, "I never for a moment imagined that being Bobby's mother was going to be an easy task, but I am finding it one that is truly worth while."

Stone, the Small Town Performer

When Fred Stone gave his first performance in public no one displayed the slightest interest and after he started his "career" he had to go back to school, and he did not see a musical comedy until he was 27. Son of a barber in the frontier town of Valmont, Colo., he was taken to Wellington, Kan., where he attended school.

With boyish ambition to be a circus performer, he learned the tricks of contortionists, wire walkers and tumblers. When Cole's circus came to town, he donned his home-made tights and performed as the parade passed, but all eyes gazed the other way.

Later he started with the Kirby circus as "Mlle. d'Arcy, the Human Doll," giving as many as 15 exhibitions on the slackwire a day. At the end of six weeks he was called home and put into school when his parents moved to Topeka. With his brother he appeared with circuses and in small variety houses.

In Galveston, Tex., with a stock company, he met "Dave" Montgomery, and joined him in a blackface act with Haverley's Mastodon Minstrels. The show "busted up" in New Orleans and the two appeared in a local theater, where they received $40 the first week and all the oysters and drinks they wanted the second.

Just as the outlook was darkest they got an engagement in Chicago at $50. They made a success in vaudeville, and went to London. Receiving an offer to appear in The Girl From Up There, Stone saw his first musical comedy, and they accepted. Soon afterward came their success in The Wizard of Oz and for four years Stone appeared as the Scarecrow and Montgomery as the Tin Woodman.

Next they started The Red Mill, then The Old Town and other successes.

While they were appearing in Chin Chin, Montgomery died. Stone then appeared by himself as star in musical comedies. He has been very successful. He constructed a business building in New York and is well-to-do. He is highly respected in his profession, is happily married and his efforts to further Christianity have won general commendation.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

FAIRIES

"Where are you going, little Four Feet,
Over the clover tops, pink and sweet,
No one at home I hope is sick.
Why are you going so quickerty quick?"

asked Timmie Meadowmouse, peeping from the front door of his tiny grassball house near the Old Cow Path.

"I'm going to meet Uncle Lucky. Nobody's sick. Mother never is. She hasn't time, she says. She's wearing three red roses today, one in each cheek and one in her hair," and away went the bunny boy, hipperty hip, hipperty hop, clipperty clip, clipperty clop, across the Sunny Meadow until he came to the Old Rail Fence. Climbing through, he hurried into the Shady Forest, when all of a sudden, "Honk, honk!" went the horn on Uncle Lucky's car, and the next minute the dear old gentleman rabbit stopped beneath the Chestnut tree, in the top of which Squirrel Nutcracker had built a comfortable bungalow.

"Where are you going so quick?"

"Ha, ha," laughed dear Uncle Lucky, taking off his old wedding stovepipe hat to wipe his forehead with a blue silk polkadot handkerchief, "how's my little nephew today? Glad you were in when I called on the 'phone, I didn't want to go riding all alone."

"I had just finished helping mother shell the peas," answered the little rabbit, hopping into the Luckymobile beside his nice old uncle. "Where are we going?"

"Don't ask me, ask a fairy," answered Uncle Lucky, with a smile.

"Don't put foolish notions in your nephew's head," snapped a voice, all of a sudden, quick as a whip, and looking up, the two nice bunnies saw old Grandmother Magpie on a limb above them.

"Pardon me, my dear Ladybird," replied dear Uncle Lucky, taking off his old wedding stovepipe hat, "one is never too old to believe in fairies."

"Stuff and nonsense," again snapped Old Grandmother Mischief, as she is often called by the little people of the Shady Forest, "don't you want Little Jack Rabbit to grow up practical?"

"Certainly, yes three times," laughed dear Uncle Lucky "but we must all believe in fairies,—fairies are wake-up dreams," and, with another bow he turned the Luckymobile down the path to Whispering Glen. Just in front of them, flitting from fern to flower, flew a beautiful butterfly.

"Let's make believe she's a fairy," whispered dear Uncle Lucky, "maybe she'll lead us to the Fairy Queen," and carefully guiding the Luckymobile, he followed the lovely butterfly in and out among the trees, until by and by, after a while, she settled on a tall fern that grew close to the edge of the Bubbling Brook.

Just then a sweet voice began to sing:

If a bunny met a fairy
Coming thru the wood,
Would the bunny think it funny
If she wore a hood?

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable All the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?—The Doctor Gave Some to Susie Smith's Mother and She Was Worse Off Than You Are and Now She Looks Just Fine

Nuxated Iron Will Increase the Strength and Endurance of Weak, Nervous, Careworn, Haggard Looking Women in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances

"There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy cheeked women without plenty of iron in their blood," said a prominent New York physician and medical author recently. "I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, rundown, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of the anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, brain fags and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks. They become weak, irritable, and nervous because food for the nerves can only be supplied through the blood and when the blood is thin and anaemic, the nerves are improperly nourished. The nervous mother or housekeeper is highly irritable, forgets where she puts things, and often cannot remember what she started to do. At night she often has a "good cry" and excuses it by saying it is a relief for her nerves, when it means a high state of nerve force exhaustion. Often her nervousness and irritability is a strain on her children and may help to wreck their delicate nervous systems. Medical science and chemistry have proven that NERVE FORCE IS A DISTINCT SUBSTANCE, SIMILAR TO YOUR BLOOD. It is the most important fluid in your body. It gives life to your nerves and force to your brain. If you cannot think right, if your memory fails, if you are irritable and easily upset, if little things annoy you, look into your nerve force. When your nerve force becomes weakened, all the vital organs of your body lose their normal strength and vigor, and as a result all kinds of alarming symptoms may appear. From the pains across the back one woman thinks she has kidney trouble; another may think her spine is injured because of the tender spots which may occur thereon. The dull, heavy pain in the lower part of the head or the back of the neck leads another to think she is going to have paresis. Sleeplessness and nervous irritability, heart palpitation and indigestion are very common symptoms. Some people are born with a very small amount of nerve-vital fluid, because the nerve force has been squandered by the lives led by their ancestors. Others use up their nerve force faster than the body can make it but in every case, your nerve force is your capital in life, and when it is gone your capital is gone, the same as if you had lost or squandered your capital in business. When you lack nerve force there is only one thing that is going to help you, and that is more nerve force. IN SUCH CASES IT IS WORSE THAN FOOLISH TO WASTE YOUR TIME TAKING MERE STIMULATING MEDICINES OR NARCOTIC DRUGS. Your starving nerves must have nerve food or something to supply increased nerve force, the same as a starving man must have bread to make new flesh and muscle. For centuries science has searched for a nerve force food. At last a celebrated French physician brought to the attention of the Paris Academy of Medicine a remarkable product which contained the principal chemical constituents of active living nerve force, in a form which most closely resembles that in the brain and nerve cells of man. This wonderful product was later combined with organic iron and other valuable ingredients under the name of "Nuxated Iron," so that today true artificial nerve force ready to be transformed into active living nerve force, the moment it enters the body, may now easily be had, simply by taking two tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day, with or after your meals. ORGANIC IRON, CONTAINED IN NUXATED IRON, IS LIKE THE IRON IN YOUR BLOOD, and like the iron in spinach, carrots, lentils and apples. It not only quickly enriches the blood, but it also stimulates the blood to manufacture a greatly increased supply of new nerve force, so that Nuxated Iron not only feeds artificial nerve directly to the nerve and brain cells, but it indirectly increases the production of nerve force through the medium of the blood.

Stories That Recall Others

Hard to Discourage.

Recently a fox terrier, trailing along with its master, darted into the street to chase an auto. The machine was headed uphill. The driver was stepping on the gas to make the grade. The dog leaped aside as the car approached him and then dashed between the wheels. He meant business. In another instant the tables were turned. A part of the mechanism of the underside of the machine had caught his collar. The terrier got a flying ride with feet hitting only the high spots and was pulled along at 25 miles an hour. Women and children from the yards and sidewalk screamed "Stop! Stop! You'll kill him!"

The driver stopped at the top. The dog automatically released himself, dashed from under and barked defiantly. Returning to join his master he was met in the street by a couple of Airedale. There was a fight. The terrier won. "You can't kill a dog like that," said the owner. "He has more lives than the proverbial cat."

Conclusive Proof.

Bill believes not only that "bread cast on the water" will return but that it also has a commercial value of its own. Some weeks ago a stray dog drifted in. Bill wouldn't permit him to be kicked out and gave it something to eat.

One night when it was cold and rainy he made a bed for it on the back porch. His surprise was great the next morning to find eight healthy little puppies in the bed. That brought the dog a promotion to a place in the basement, and imagine his consternation when the next morning disclosed four more puppies.

Bill decided to display this happy family and at the end of the week he had disposed of the entire group at a good sum and the mother dog as well had found a good home.

The meeting was similar to many others that have been held among the Connecticut hills and dales, with speakers to explain klankraft, after which a number of kandidates for the Ku Klux Klan were initiated while a fiery cross burned over their heads as a symbol of light.

There were two speakers of the evening who spoke from one of the many automobiles which had been parked in the form of a hollow square about the large enclosure.

In speaking concerning the history of the Ku Klux Klan the principal speaker opened his remarks by asking "Who is God?" What answer would you give if someone were to ask you? he demanded. Demonstrating by various movements of his hand, he explained the difference between force and motion. Without mind, he said, there could be no motion. The grass that grows, the stars that shine, everything that moves upon this earth, is a determining fact of God's presence. Who among you has ever seen the real man? You cannot, because the mind is the real man.

We stand for God, Christianity and Americanism and it is our aim to preserve the constitution of our country as it stands today. This is a man to man and shoulder to shoulder type of battle to keep the flag of our country always floating above all others. In our flag there is nothing that stands for theft or violated treaties. The history back of that emblem has reached to the outermost parts of the world and many today are living in freedom because of its inspiration.

We stand for a united nation—America for Americans. The foundations of our country were laid by the Puritans, yet today there are many who speak of them with scorn, call them old fogies. This is not so. They laid the foundation of this great country in prayer and faith and the public schools were an outcome. We need more Puritans in this land today to preserve the principles for which they gave their life blood.

Every man who joins the klan becomes more of a man when he lives up to the principles of the order: he learns to face God and follow Him, not afraid to fight for the truth.

Purity in the home is the foundation of the nation, for without pure homes there can be no pure nation. For this we must see what our children are being taught in the public schools. Why must much good history be cut out from those books which we older Americans studied, simply because some other people dislike it? It is good American history and should be there. It is time for us to look to the schools to see what our children are being taught.

Can we expect clean men and women if we allow obscene books and pictures to be printed? Yes, and we should see to it that the moving pictures are purged of the rot many of them carry, for they are not good for our children's morals.

We have been hearing bad things said of us by candidates on both sides in the coming election, but we know why this is done. Look into the future, for when that time comes our work will be easier. Every big movement has been opposed. They opposed even Christ Himself and crucified Him, and in this country there are people who would crucify this great Protestant movement.

The second speaker briefly explained where the klan stood. "For the negro, he said, we are his friend. The menace today is not from the negro but from the low down white men who seek to destroy both races, for when these races intermarry they only destroy themselves. We simply ask the negro to keep to his own people.

For the Catholic we have no hatred. We are not even quarreling with them as individuals. We have no quarrel when they appeal to the Virgin Mary and we to Christ Himself. But when any church seeks to secure a political hold on our land, we say, as a klan, we stand for the eternal separation of church and state.

For the Hebrew we have no hatred and no quarrel with him. Let him be a Christian as some Hebrews have done and he may be admitted to this order, and I say that we have Jewish men in this order who are Christains. We as a klan stand simply for Christian supremacy, just as the Jew for 2,000 years has stood for Jewish supremacy.

Immediately following the speaking, the initiation ceremonial was carried out. There was no disorder and the only robed men were those having charge of guarding the gates or having a part in the initiation.

TELLS OF MEASURES TO HELP CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Dr. Paul P. Swett of Hartford one of the most prominent surgeons in Connecticut, was the speaker at the largely attended luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Dr. Swett was the guest of Dr. R. R. Agnew, chairman of the Boys' Work committee of the club, and it was at his invitation that Dr. Swett addressed the club.

Dr. Swett in his opening remarks said that this was the second time that he had addressed a Rotary club and he was very glad to be here. He said that the uestion had been asked him what Rotary could do for the crippled children in the community and that he would endeavor to show what a club could accomplish. There are three classes of cripled children, said Dr. Swett, the first class — the child who is so crippled as not to be able to attend school. This class may be sent to the Newington Home for Crippled Children at a very small cost. Here the children are cared for, given medical and surgical treatment; given a thorough schooling even while they are in the hospital. This is done for a very small cost. The second class —the child that requires corrective treatment such as a surgical operation in the general hospital. This will be done in your own community or at the office of a surgeon and the cost will only be the hospital bill and the bill of transportation.

The third class is the child whose crippled condition can be helped by proper direction and supervision and by the use of braces. There is only a small expense attached to this method, which is for braces.

The treatment for the second class of crippled children should be started during the summer vacation which gives them relief without loss of time in school. One of our concerns must be the attitude toward the crippled children. Do not pity them, they do not want our pity. They may need our help but they do not ask for our pity. These crippled children seem to be able to get an outlook on life that is denied us who are in good health. The crippled child, if you watch him, usually does just about as he wants to regardless of his handicap. They have the spirit to accomplish things even though they have to overcome many handicaps that the average child does not have. At the home for crippled children in Massachusetts the children have a real baseball team that gives some of the high school teams in that vicinity much competition although all the players are crippled.

Speaking of the Newington Home, Dr. Swett said that several new buildings are in the process of construction and when completed it will be possible to house 200 or possibly 250 children. These children are given medical and surgical care and a thorough schooling and several courses in vocational training. They have their alumni association and there is absolutely no feeling of inferiority among the graduates who are proud of having been to the institution.

Present at the meeting were six crippled children from this city who were brought in by Miss Reid and Miss Murphy, two of the United Workers' nurses. These children were examined by Dr. Swett and recommendations made for their treatment. Dr. Swett explained that a large proportion of cases of crippled children was due either to infantile paralysis or tubercular trouble. At the conclusion of his talk Dr. Swett was given a hearty vote of appreciation and Dr. E. J. Brophy cited a case right here in Norwich where a child had been practically cured by an operation performed by Dr. Swett.

Guests of the club besides Dr. Swett were Dr. E. J. Brophy and Dr. William T. Driscoll. At the business session Hugh B. Campbell presided and Frank P. Welch was the song leader. There was one pleasing vocal selection by six doctors, two nurses, an undertaker and a florish who sang "Till We Meet Again."

The birthday of State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown was fittingly observed by the club, announcements of club interest were made by Secretary J. Nelson Weymouth and plans for the October meetings were outlined by Programme Chairman Herbert B. Cary. Next week's meeting will be on Thursday, a joint gathering with the Lions club, when William G. Park will act as song leader for the Rotarians. October 8 will be National Fire Prevention Day, the meeting being in charge of James L. Case with John J. O'Rourke as song leader. On October 15 Rev. Dr. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London will be the speaker and Grosvenor Ely song leader. The meeting of Oct. 22 will be in charge of the Education Committee, Lucius Briggs, chairman, with George L. Ingalls song leader, and Oct. 29 will be the monthly business meeting with Clinton E. Lane song leader.

Ex-Mayor Herbert M. Leroy called attention to the coming local celebration of Armistice Day, Nov. 11, which it is planned to make a day long to be remembered in Norwich. The new Roll of Honor at Chelsea parade will be dedicated and a civic parade will be a feature of the occasion. The support of Rotary and other organizations was urged.

RheumaticPain Ended by Treating Inflamed Nerves

In Every Case of Rheumatism, Neuritis Sciatica or Lumbago, the Actual Pain is caused by Irritation or Pressure on the Nerves in the Muscles or Joints

Pain in all forms of rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago or sciatica is always due to an irritation or inflammation of the nerves. When you feel pain in a muscle, it is the nerves of the muscle that hurt; when the pain is in a joint, it is the nerves of the joint that are affected. Just as everyone knows that in a toothache the pain is in the nerve of the tooth. The reason so many sufferers fail to get any real relief from liniments and ointments is because these are surface applications only and do not reach the nerves where the pain is. Just as a dentist treats the nerve to end toothache, so must a remedy reach the pain in the nerve of the muscle or joint before it can give you relief.

German science, which has long specialized in the relief of pain, has now produced a remedy known as Buhler Oil which when applied to a painful joint or muscle penetrates right through the skin, reaches the inflamed or irritated nerves—no matter how deep seated—so that relief from pain is quickly obtained from the first application.

Buhler Oil can be had from any of the druggists named below with a written guarantee of sure relief or money back: Lee & Osgood Co., Andrew McLaughlin, G. G. Engler, Geo. R. Rathbone.

GIANTS PRACTICALLY PUT PIRATES OUT OF RACE FOR NATIONAL PENNANT

New York, Sept. 24.—(By The A. P.)—Batting forward with an irresistible rush with their fourth straight pennant in sight, the New York Giants today sent Pittsburgh down to defeat for the second successive time 4 to 2. It was a crushing and probably defensive blow to the pennant hopes of the Pirates, who now are three and a half games behind the champions. They have a mathematical chance only to catch the leaders, and it's a slim one.

The makeshift team, again covered itself with glory. Behind the fine twirling of Virgil Barnes, young righthander, the Giants played in sparkling fashion on the defense and made the most of their opportunities on the attack.

The Pirates were outgeneralled and outgamed at every turn.

Pittsburgh outhit the Giants for the second straight day but again failed to make their blows count, with the exception of Earl Smith, who accounted personally for the invaders' brace of tallies with smashing home runs to the right field stands on successive times at bat in the seventh and ninth innings. Here again, however, the Pirates were unlucky, for on neither occasion was there anyone on base to help swell the total.

Giant rookies, plugging up their caps left in their machine by injuries, again were heroes of the victory, for Wilson scored the first run with a circuit drive to right field in the fifth, while Bill Terry, substitute first sacker, came through with a telling single in the sixth, scoring Lindstrom with the second run after the Pirates had purposely passed Irish Meusel to get the recruit.

This piece of strategy that went away proved the turning point of the game, for the Giants went on to score three runs altogether in the sixth and clinched the game.

Lindstrom opened this inning with a single and was sacrificed by Young, McGraw switching tactics after the hit and run twice had failed to develop scoring opportunities. But Kelly flied out and things looked dark for the Giants when Meusel was purposely walked, Terry, however, came through and walloped the first ball to right for a single, scoring Lindstrom. Meusel went to third and scored when Traynor threw wild to first on Wilson's twisting grounder. Terry reached third and scored a moment later with the third run on an attempted double steal, on which Wilson was caught between second and third after the run-scoring purpose had been fulfilled.

Three lightning double plays, all engineered by Maranville, checked the Giants in the third, fourth and fifth innings. Wilson's homer coming in the latter inning just after Meusel and Terry had been erased. Score:

WATERBURY WINS SERIES FROM INTERNATIONAL CHAMPS

Waterbury, Sept. 24.—(By the A. P.) Waterbury walked in with its second straight triumph over the Baltimore International league championship team here today, blanking their rivals, 5 to 0 in a game marred by the ragged play of the celebrated Orioles. Today's triumph gives the Brasscos a victory in the series, the third straight annual triumph Eastern league teams have won over their International opponents.

"Moose" Fuller, on the mound for the Waterbury team, hurled unbeatable baseball when hits meant runs and he was sensationally backed up by brilliant fielding on the part of the Eastern leaguers. Ogden was on the pitcher's mount for the Orioles and while he pitched in good form during most of the game he was touched for hits frequently with men on bases and this coupled with the ragged fielding of the Birds contributed largely to the Brasscos' victory.

The Waterbury victory was decisive, only one Baltimore player reaching third base in the nine innings. In the second inning Sheedy doubled with one down and took third on an infield out but not another Bird fluttered past second base. And only two others got as far as second.

Waterbury won by bunching hits when they counted and by taking advantage of the loose play of the Orioles. In the first inning the Brasscos scored on a triple and two singles. In the second an infield error and two singles scored another while in the eighth two passes, a single, a double and Maisel's throw which went over Sheedy's head to the grandstand, accounted for a trio of counters.

The third game of the series will be played tomorrow despite the fact that Waterbury has already won the series. The score:

YANKS WIN THIRD GAME FROM CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Ohio., Sept. 24.—New York made it three straight from Cleveland today, winning 2 to 0. While Cleveland batted Jones as hard as the Yankees did Uhle, each making nine hits, bad baserunning by the locals spoiled a chance to score in the seventh while a double play killed them off in the ninth when they had the bases filled with only one out.

Uhle's pitching was so effective the Yankees scarcely threatened until the seventh when they scored the only runs of the game. With one out, Meusel lifted a pop double to short center that fell safely between Summa and Fewster. Ward followed with a low liner to centre. Summa tried to make a shoe string catch and the ball went by him for three bases, Meusel scoring. Scott's bounding single through the draw-in infield scored Ward.

It was the only inning in which the Yankees made more than one hit. Score:

GIANTS AND SENATORS NEED THREE WINS TO TAKE FLAGS

New York, Sept. 24.—The Giants and Senators, by winning today, need only to take three of the four games each has to play in order to clinch the pennants in their respective leagues even the Robins, Pirates and Yankees win their remaining contests.

New York maintained its one-game lead over Brooklyn and shoved Pittsburgh to three and one-half contests from the box in beating the Pirates back of first place by driving Yde today 4 to 2. Pittsburgh must now win its six games to play while the Giants are losing two of their four, to take the flag. Brooklyn, by winning its two with Boston, could tie the leaders if they lost two of four but cannot win unless McGraw's team loses three of their four. The Robins won from Chciago today 6 to 5.

Washington maintained its two-game lead by beating Chicago 6 to 3 while the Yankees defeated Cleveland 2 to 0. The world champions can now win the pennant only by taking their four games while Washington loses three of four. The Senators can tie by winning two.

DODGERS WIN ANOTHER TOUGH GAME FROM CUBS

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Brooklyn won the final game of the Chicago series today 6 to 5 after a third strenuous battle. Grimes went the route but was always in difficulties, the Cubs making thirteen hits including a home run by Adams off his spitballs. He pulled himself out of several tight holes by fanning the third man to retire the side and faultless fielding helped him at other times.

Alexander started in the box for Chicago but was taken out in the fourth inning after the Dodgers had scored four runs, three in the second on the three errors and two outs and two in the fourth on a pass to Lotus, a single by Grimes and High's sacrifice fly. Pinch hitters and new pitchers followed rapidly, Wheeler being charged with the defeat when Brooklyn scored two runs off him in the seventh after his team had tied the game. High opened the seventh with a triple and Mitchell walked. Wheat's scratch hit sent in High and two force outs scored Mitchell. Grantham hit four singles. Score:

How It's Done in the Majors

By Frank Frisch
(Captain New York Giants)

Score 4 to 3 in favor of team in the field. Fifth inning. Team at bat has a runner on third. Two men out.

What play should the team in the field look for?

When a team at bat has a tying run on third base, the team in the field should study the batter. If the latter is fast and a good bunter, the third baseman should move in and be on the lookout for a squeeze play. It's a good plan to have the second baseman play in a little bit too, in order to prevent the runner from scoring, in case the ball is hit his way.

SENATORS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF CHICAGO SERIES

Chicago, Sept. 24. — Washington closed its American league season here today by taking the final game of the series from Chicago, 6 to 3, making a clean sweep of the series.

The victory enabled them to retain their two game margin over the Yankees, who shut out the Indians. The league leaders bunched their hitting in three innings off Hollis Thurston, White Sox ace and, playing Sensational ball behind Zachary had little trouble staying out in front. Chicago threatened to make things interesting for the Washington southpaw and Walter Johnson was sent to the bull pen to limber up, but Zachary's mates came to his rescue.

Sam Rice continued his record for safe hitting by getting a blow in the opening inning. He has now hit safely in thirty-one consecutive games.

The Senators travel tomorrow and have four games to play with Boston.

EIGHT VETERAN GOLFERS REMAIN IN FIGHT FOR NATIONAL AMATEUR TITLE

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 24.—(By the A. P.)—Experience counted in the second round of the National amateur golf tournament today. The eight survivors comprise a former open champion, the present amateur champion, the inter-collegiate champion, two former amateur champions, one of whom once held the open title, two former trans-Mississippi champions, and a former New York state champion.

In the feature match which attracted a gallery of hundreds, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, former open champion, defeated D. Clarke Corkran of Philadelphia, winner of the qualifying medal in the record breaking figures of 67-75-142, by 3 and 2. A spurt by Corkran when he was five down with five holes to play carried the match to the thirty-fourth green.

Rudy Knepper, of Chicago, who won the trans-Mississippi title when he was a student at Princeton and lived in Sioux City, eliminated Ellsworth Augustus of Cleveland, four and two.

Francis Ouimet of Boston, former open and amateur champion, defeated Eddie Held, of St. Louis, four and three.

Dexter Cummings of Chicago, intercollegiate champion, eliminated the last foreign survivor in the tournament, W. L. Hope, of the British Walker cup team by seven and six.

Max R. Marston of Philadelphia defeated his fellow townsman, J. Wood Platt, seven and five.

George Von Elm, former trans-Mississippi champion, who represents the Rancho club of Los Angeles, defeated Lawson Mc Watts, of St. Louis six and four.

L. H. Driggs, Jr., of New York, former state titleholder, eliminated C. H. Paul, also of the Metropolitan district, six and four.

Tomorrow's matches will be:

Jones vs. Knepper; Ouimet vs. Guilford; Cummings vs. Marston; Von Elm vs. Driggs.

Bobby Jones was out driven by Corkran, but superiority with irons and putting won the match to rhim. Corkran led after the first hole, where Jones topped his drive, but Jones immediately squared the match at the second. Thereafter Jones was never behind. He was three up at lunch. A par 36 for the first nine holes of the afternoon made Jones five up, an advantage he retained what six holes left to play. A spurt by Corkran involved two birdies by him and Bobby's only six of the day prolonged the match. Jones had only one three-putt green all day and on nine greens needed only one putt.

Accuracy with irons and better putting were likewise responsible for Francis Ouimet's victory over Eddie Held. Three up at the eleventh, Held then went over par on four holes in succession and Ouimet took the lead by shooting perfect golf. He led by two holes at lunch.

They halved the nineteenth with birdie threes but Held dropped the twenty second when he was short with a chip shot. Ouimet took three putts and dropped the twenty fourth and played one trap to another to lose the twenty eighth. Ouimet went to two up when Eddie became bunkered and picked up on the twenty ninth. Ouimet used one putt to Held's two to win the thirty first and took the match when the westener failed to recover from trouble in the thirty third.

Champion Marston easily downed "Woodie" Platt, his ancient rival in the afternoon, Platt traded his morning putting weakness for erratic woods and gained nothing by it, losing the last three holes in succession.

Marston played the morning round in 75, while Woodie took 81. At the turn in the afternoon they stood 38 and 37.

A small boy with a loud voice checked a closing rally by Augustus in his match with Knepper. Both shot ragged golf in the morning but Knepper was three up at the eighteenth. Seven down at the twenty ninth, Augustus started, clicking off four holes in succession.

Three down and three to go, he went to the thirty fourth four times he started his swing and was forced to stop as a runaway child behind him eluded a panting family chauffeur with cries of glee. Finally he topped the ball. Knepper sank a long putt for a birdie three and the match.

Kneppe had an appoximate 81 in the morning. Augustus had 84.

Guilford and Yates were even after the morning rounds in 80 each, during which the Bostonian's putter was not working as well as usual. Guilford went to the turn in the afternoon in 35, one under par, with two birdies, which gave him a lead of five holes.

Dexter Cummings had an easy time with W. L. Hope, a Scot, who yesterday eliminated Robert A. Gardner, of the American Walker cup team. A morning round of 72 by Cummings gave him a lead of eight holes. Hope's morning medal was 82. Each went to the turn in the afternoon in 38.

George Von Elm shot the best round of the day, a 71, one over par, in getting a lead of four holes on Lawson Watts in their morning round. Watts had a 75. A trip to the turn of the afternoon round in 37 one over par, increased Von Elm's lead to six holes.

The battle of Diggs and Paul, New York's representatives, was even at lunch, each shooting a 79 and winning three holes in the morning. In the afternoon Paul became wild, the match ended when he putt two tee shots out of bounds at the 32nd hole.

SUB BASE FOOTBALL TEAM REARRANGES ITS SCHEDULE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 23.—A complete rearrangement of the Submarine Base football schedule, which with its new additional teams and changes, makes the schedule of this team which was announced earlier in the season in The Bulletin obsolete.

The new schedule, which was announced by the Base officials today, shows that but two open dates are on the schedule. There are three new comers on the schedule, teams that have not been engaged by the Base in baseball, but were on the football schedule last season.

The three new comers on the gobs program includes the Hartford West Sides, the Worcester A. C. eleven of Worcester Massachusetts and Providence College. For reasons of their own, the games already definitely scheduled with Providence Steam Rollers and the Newport Training Station for a game earlier in the season, have been given more consideration by the aBse staff on gridiron mentors, and will appear later in the season. In fact the game with the Newport Training tSation which is expected to decide the aEstern States Service championship has been shifted to the last game on the schudule. The reason had a double motive, for it is understood that the Training Station is being coached by Tony Commerford, star end for Boston College for three years, and mentioned on Walter Camp's mythical All-American team two years in succession.

The schedule wil linclude but ten games instead of eleven as previously planned. The opening of the Base season against the U. S. S. Wright an Saturday, has shown the defects in the gobs system of play. The time did not hold up as well as it should have, and the holes for the backs to go through were not many. If the gobs aer to make any kind of a show this Saturday afternoon when they travel to Springefild to take on the Springfield College team they will have to bolster up their play in all departments. However, it must be considered that the game with the U. S. S. Wright was the first for the locals, and the team as a whole could not function as though in mid season form. There is considerable chance for improvement, and the gobs will have to fight hard to come out a victor against the fast Springfield eleven.

It is understood that the Worcester A. C. has several former college men in its line-up, and this team was given an open date which was made possible through the moving of the game with Newport Training Station to November 22. The Hartford West Sides, always in the thick of the race for professional football honors in this state will be played in Hartford on October 19. Providence College, which was thought by many would not be an opponent of the Base this year has been scheduled to play the gobs at Providence on November 15. The two open dates, which come on October 25, and November 8, will no doubt be filled before the week is out, for the Williams A. C. and the Blues of New Haven are sending for a game.

The players on the squad at present number thirty three and are numbered as foHows

FIRE COMPANIES' CONSOLIDATION IS EXPECTED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 24.—It is believed that the incoming city council will at once take under consideration the joining of four fire companies into two organizations, the plan being, it is claimed, to unite the Allen Hook and Ladder company and the Niagaras under one roof and the Nameaugs and Konomocs under a single roof also. The claim is that the maintenance of four engine houses for these companies is a waste of money and the claim is made that they would be more effectual as fire organizations if they were put into two houses. There would be a saving in expense of maintenance. There is a proposition before the council, and it has been endorsed, to widen Sparyard street, which would do away with the Niagara engine house. That the Konomocs and the Nameaugs could be consolidated there is no doubt. The companies are now located within 100 yards of each other. The whole matter of the consolidation of these companies is to be canvassed by the new council, if the wise politically are to be relied upon. Watch for the innovation early in the career of the incoming council!

Connecticut college opened the term today with a very large enrollment of students and with many new faces in the faculty. There was a throng at the opening, when President Marshall delivered an address on The Modern College and the Art of Living.

Pequot Hose company is to have new fire apparatus. There isn't any doubt about that, for such a proposal has passed the council and has been referred to the committee of the council for consideration with the budget. The apparatus will be a pumping machine and is badly needed in the section in which it is to be located. The Pequot company has a big section to protect and one in which the pressure of Konomoc water is not what it should be at times when there is a heavy draft upon it. There was consideration given in the city council for a new and larger main for that section, but the project was considered too expensive at present and it was believed that the city could get along for a while with a main of the size in use now. The situation makes the need of a pumping apparatus all the more imperative. When the Pequot company is supplied the Thomas Hose company will seek a new apparatus for the displacement of its obsolete Pope-Hartford engine. The apparatus does not fill the needs of the company and it has been in use a long time. Further, it is said that worn parts cannot be readily replaced when needed. Councilor Gragan did not favor the supplying of the Thomas company with the proposed apparatus at once and for that reason he was opposed at the recent election by members of that organization, it is claimed.

The police say that there were more automobiles parked along the streets intersecting State, Main and Bank streets this evening than in a long time. The temperature became milder in the evening than it was in the morning and there was no wind, so that riding was a pleasure after the sun went down.

Mrs. George Hilderbrandt, R. F. D. No. 1 Waterford, this evening notified the New London police that a black bag containing a New York bankbook was lost from an automobile between Hartford and New London by her aunt, Teresa Hilderbrandt.

Dorothy Sweezy, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged today.

Ralph W. Fistere, industrial secretary at the Y. M. C. A., has tendered his resignation, to take effect Oct. 15. Mr. Fistere has resigned to go to the Y. M. C. A. at Jersey City, N. J. No successor will be appointed to succeed Mr. Fistere, who has been connected with the local institution seven years.

Funeral services for Robert A. M. Dart were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, 9 Cutler street. Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church, conducting the services. Burial was in Starr cemetery, Groton.

The condition of George Haven, elected a member of the board of selectmen Monday, and who has been confined to his home on Blinman street for several days by illness, is considerably improved and it is believed he will be able to take out of door exercise the latter part of the week.

Mrs. J. H. Taylor and children of Franklin, Ky., have concluded a visit with Mrs. Taylor's sister, Mrs. Frank E. Hart, Division street, and have left for Elizabeth, N. J., where Mrs. Taylor will join her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cluett are taking two weeks' automobile trip to Niagara Falls, Washington and Philadelphia.

The funeral of John G., 10 months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Kenyon, 154 Allen street, Groton, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

At the election Oct. 6th the town of East Lyme will use voting machines and, if the devices prove satisfactory, two machines will be purchased at a cost of $700 each.

Arrangements are being made by Nonowantuc tribe, I. O. R. M., for the annual memorial exercises, which will take place in the lodge room on the evening of Oct. 14th.

An auetmobile owned by Dr. Tracy Farnam, 967 Pequot avenue, and operated by Robert F. Morris, same address, and a machine owned and operated by William W. Bailey, 182 Vauxhall street, were in collision this evening on State street. Neither car was seriously damaged.

The condition of Patrick Fogarty, who was found partially asphyxiated at his home, 58 Jay street, Sunday afternoon, has taken a change for the worse at Lawrence hospital and it is doubtful whether the man will recover. A change was noted in the patient's condition this afternoon. Fogarty was found unconscious in the kitchen of his home with the cock of a cooking range partially open. It is not known whether Fogarty attempted self-destruction or fell asleep while the gas was lighted; the flow being from a quarter meter, the supply becoming low, caused the flame to be extinguished, but the open cock allowed the balance of the supply to enter the room.

An unidentified woman was struck by an automobile owned and operated by Tony Ragonese, 25 Truman street, this evening, corner of Bank and Truman streets. The woman was crossing the street and did not observe the approaching automobile. She was struck by the mudguard and knocked down. When Ragonese had stopped his car and returned to where the woman had been struck she had been placed in a passing machine and carried away. It was stated that the woman had been taken to a hospital, but inquiry at Lawrence and Home hospitals brought the information that the woman had not been received at either institution.

James E. Barlow, former city manager, now employed as efficiency expert at the plant of the Whiton Machine company, is on his vacation.

Continued improvement is reported at Home Memorial hospital today in the condition of Attorney John C. Ingham and Judge A. C. Fanning, both of Towanda, Pa., injured in an automobile crash at Trail's Corner, Poquonoc, several days ago. Judge Fanning is suffering from bruises and lacerations, while Attorney Ingham has a fractured skull and several fractured ribs.

John O'Neill was charged in the police court this morning with selling beer that shows alcoholic contents of more than one-half of one per cent. O'Neill was located at 53 Bank street, in the old stand so long occupied by Jerry Twomey. There O'Neill furnished lunches and slaked the thirst of the dry. But the beer he sold was sent to Hartford and analyzed and then there was trouble. Mr. O'Neill, when he faced Judge Prince this morning asked for a postponement that he might get the lawyer he wanted. The case was then continued till Saturday next and O'Neill gave a bond of $500 to appear then.

Oliver E. Neff paid a fine of $25 for the reckless operation of an automobile in the streets of New London. He was taken into custody on Howard street yesterday, after his car had been in a collision. Neff was indeed reckless for he didn't seem to realize just what had happened, though he knew his machine had stopped moving. He knew it was to go to the repair shop, too, as was that of Charles G. Price of Adelaide street, which was at the other end of the crash. Neff is in the sewing machine business and his car is used in the business. He told Judge Prince that the cancellation of his license would deprive him of the means of earning a living. What he meant by that was not apparent for the court did not have the authority to cancel his permission to operate a car. Neff added that he intended to change his habits so that in the future he would not mix up with anything that would make him reckless.

James Floyd has sold his undivided half interest in a house and lot on Cape Ann court to Henry W. and Ella L. Stevens.

The Providence police this afternoon requested the New London authorities to be on the lookout for a Ford automobile bearing Rhode Island registration, 60366, stolen from Providence earlier in the day. When the car was taken, it was occupied by four youths.

E. E. Reilly, chief of police of Montclair, N. J., has communicated with the New London police in an endeavor to obtain information as to the identity of three sailors, supposed to have been drowned from the steam yacht Lady Bird, either off the mouth of the harbor or in Nantucket sound, a few weeks ago. Chief Reilly states that he was informed of the triple drowning by a friend who communicated with him from England a few days ago. The sailors were drowned off this port and nothing is known of the drowning having occurred in Nantucket sound.

Dominick Maggio and Hiram Donnelly, sailors aboard the U. S. S. Camden at anchor in the harbor, were dishonorably discharged from the federal service this afternoon. In dismissing the sailors from the government service, Captain M. L. Hersey, commander of the Camden, recommended to Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney that the sailors be ordered to leave the city. Acting upon the recommendation of Captain Hersey when Maggio and Donnelly were landed at the municipal pier they were met by Sergeant Hick and ordered to leave the city by the first train, which they did.

John Flynn, 41 East Main street, Mystic was arrested this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, charged with violation of the automobile law in operating a machine without being possessed of proper registration to do so. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Deeds transferring parcels of land on Bank street from Mary King, John M. Carroll, Daniel P. Carroll, Harriet A. R. Barrows and Jennie Brown to the city of New London, were received for record at the office of the city clerk this afternoon. The transfers were made in order to permit the city to widen Bank street, near Lee avenue.

The Title Guaranty & Trust Company, New York, executors of the will of James D. Lynch, has sold a parcel of land on Ocean avenue to Phoebe G. Howell.

Edward Nugent, of St. Louis; Mrs. Frank Babcock, Westerly; Mrs. James Brooks, Roosevelt street; Mrs. Leslie Reeves and infant son, Hamilton street, and Mrs. Richard Gray and infant daughter, Smith street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Attorney and Mrs. Arthur B. Calkins have returned to their home, Granite street, having spent a fortnight at Upper Dam, Maine.

Morris Litinsky, proprietor of a grocery store, corner of Huntington and Washington streets, reported to the police this morning that the store had been entered by thieves and that $8 had been stolen from the cash register. Sergeant John Cavanaugh visited the store, but could find no signs of the windows or entrances having been forced, it being the opinion of the police that if the store was visited by thieves that entrance was gained by a duplicate key being used.

Mrs. Alice Edson, 4715 Hamilton avenue, Chicago, has communicated with the New London police in an endeavor to locate her son, Ralph Edson, who, she claims, is residing in this city. Mrs. Edson states that she is in aid of financial assistance, as she is out of employment and without funds. The police have no knowledge of her son being a resident of New

Mr. Tuckerman, it is said has found the cost of doing business prohibitive. A bond of $500 for each passenger carried has to be filed with the Rhode Island state treasurer for the 21-passenger Reo bus which he planned to use.

Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception church, Miss Catherine Rogers Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Howard, 23 Grove avenue, and Geoffrey Lewis son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Moore of Moore road were united in marriage by Rev. Daniel F. Sullivan, S. M., who also celebrated the nuptial mass which followed the ceremony. The wedding marches and interludes were played by Mrs. Frank G. Ahern. During the service Martin H. Speilman sang, O Promise Me, and Gounod's Ave Maria.

The bride was attended by Miss Mae Doherty of New York. Cyril Moore, a brother of the groom was best man. The ushers were Dr. Joseph F. Howard of Courtland, N. Y., a brother of the bride, and Thomas Moore of Westerly, brother of the groom.

The bride's gown was of white satin with pearl trimmings and her court train and veil were caught with orange blossoms. Her cap was of rose point lace and orange blossoms, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid was yellow georgette over satin crepe with hat to match and carried yellow roses. The church was beautifully decorated with palms and gladioli. Following the ceremony at the church a breakfast was served to a party of about 30 relatives and friends at Stonington Manor Inn.

"No Parking" "N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R." is the sign which will meet the view of those motorists, who as commuters on New Haven steam trains, as well as the out of town shoppers, motoring here, and local residents who have been accustomed to park their automobiles to the eastward of the Westerly railroad station, on the railroad property next to Railroad avenue fence. The practice of parking here has grown by leaps and bounds from time to time when the late train arrivals dashed into the station yard just before his train left, turned the key in the switch if there was time—and sprinted for the train. On Saturday night until a late hour there have been times the past summer when parking space in this sizeable stretch was not to be had. It is not an infrequent sight to see a luncheon party busy in their automobile on the station property, previous to a shopping trip or visit to the movies. The practice is to be stopped, as has been the case in Danielson recently and at other railroad stations. Another precautionary move on the part of the New Haven road officials is said to be the sending of a railroad police officer to the Westerly station to prevent a practice to common —jumping on and off railroad trains by school children, before the trains are still at the station.

Fire in the awning above the windows of the Frank Coy offices, High street Tuesday evening about 8 o'clock caused by the careless droping of a cigarette butt from the windows above, caused a crowd to collect. Sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee completed the evening's repast.

For the past few days the republican women of Pawcatuck have canvassed that section of the town of Stonington, street by street, to obtain signers pledged to affiliate with Pawcatuck Women's Republican club. The leaders in the movement report that their efforts have met with much success. A marked feature of the canvass has been the number of questions that have been asked along political lines. To answer some of the questions raised it is planned when organization is completed to have speakers address the club members and a forum will be held, at which any and all questions asked will be answered by those who know and thus much helpful information will be secured. The total number of signers obtained to date approximates 300.

MARKET GAINED STRENGTH

New York, Sept. 24.—Stock prices made further recovery in today's market with sales exceeding a million shares for the first time in nearly three weeks. Easy money rates and the circulation of favorable political forecasts had a bullish effect on sentiment.

Professional traders continued to supply the bulk of the buying power although commission houses reported that the recent sensational advances in some of the specialties had resulted in an increase in public interest. The upward movement in today's market, unlike some of the previous session, embraced virtually the entire list, although early gains were modified in the closing transactions.

Two score issues, of which ten were public utilities and six rails, broke through their previous high prices for the year. The list included Laced Gas, People's Gas, Standard Gas and Electric, American Water Works, Frisco, Missouri Pacific preferred, Southern Railway, Studebaker, Nash Motors, United States Cast Iron Pipe common and preferred, the three Worthington Pump issues, General Baking, Texas Gulf Sulphur and Allis-Chalmers preferred.

The weekly steel trade reviews reported a slowing up of steel buying due to the abolition of the "Pittsburgh plu" price plan. The steel shares showed little change on the day. United States Steel touched 109 5-8, and then fell back to Tuesday's closing price of 109.

Merger rumors and the favorable showing made by August earnings statements and September traffic returns contributed to the strength of a number of popular railroad shares. Activity of St. Louis Southwestern, which was run up more than 3 points to 44 3-4 brought forth a flood of rumors including the early acquisition of that by the Southern Pacific and the placing of the junior issue on a divided basis. Net gains of one to two and one-half points were recorded by New Haven, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Chicago and Great Western preferred, Missouri Pacific preferred, Seaboard Air Line common and preferred, Texas and Pacific and Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred.

United States Distributing preferred jumped 7 1-2 points on two sales, American Water Works closed 6 1-2 higher at 124 1-2, and the American Chicle issues, United Railways Investment preferred, National Lead, Vivadou and United Fruit showed net gains of two to five points. General Baking touched a new top at 160 and then broke to 152. Jewel Tea, American Ice, and Union Tank Car were heavy.

Call money again renewed at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchange rates displayed a better tone, reflecting an oversold condition. Demand sterling ruled about 3-4 of a cent higher around $4.46 3-8 and French francs were active just above 5 1-4 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Sept. 24.—Special exhibitions of strength in Mexican government obligations and in individual public utility and industrial issues marked trading in bonds today. Prices continued to forge ahead although gains were limited for the most part to fractions.

Activity in Mexican bonds, which advanced one to four points on a sudden burst of buying was based on reports that Mexico might obtain a loan in return for certain oil concessions, these rumors, linked with the visit of a committee of oil men to Mexico City, lacked confirmation. Bankers in close touch with the situation expressed doubt that Mexico would be able to obtain funds through any arrangement until suspension of the Mexican debt agreement is lifted.

A strong underlying demand for railroad mortgages was again in evidence today although there was few individual features in this group. Predictions by the president of the New Haven railroad that the road would be able to refund next year's maturities without difficulty aided these bonds. The demand also included West Shore, Rio Grande Western, St. Paul, Canadian Northern and Northern Pacific liens.

Termination of the New Jersey receivership for Wilson & Company contributed to the recovery of the packing companies bonds. The convertible 6's advancing two points. Brooklyn Union Gas issues again broke through their previous high record.

Award of the $12,500,000 New York state hospital bond issued on a bid of 104.4167 or a 3.64 per cent. basis established the best price received for a state issue in ten years. The successful syndicate will offer the bonds on a basis ranging from 2.50 to 3.65 per cent.

Offering will be made tomorrow of $4,000,000 Temple Anthracite Coal Company 20-year 6 1-2 per cent. bonds at 99 and accrued interest to yield 6.55 per cent. Proceeds will be used to acquire common stock of the Temple Coal company and not less than 90 per cent. of the capital stock of the East Bear Ridge Colliery company.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Sept. 24.—With ideal weather prevailing and with crop reports auspicious, sellers became aggressive in the corn market today, and forced prices down, making wheat also decline just before the finish. Corn disclosed heavy, 2 1-4 to 2 5-8c net lower, December 102 1-2 to 102 3-4, with wheat easy, 1-2c to 1 1-8 off. December 134 1-2 to 134 5-8 and May 140 1-4 to 140 3-8, oats unchanged to 1 cent down and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 15 a 17c gain.

Corn closed at the day's bottom prices, according to current gossip the country has apparently discovered that the corn crop has been making steady progress toward maturity. Despite unfavorable conditions which at times were disheartening. Moreover reports at hand indicate that every day of fine weather was enlarging the probable yield of merchantable corn. Under such circumstances, bulges in price served only to bring about enlarged offerings which soon disclosed that the market was minus any adequate support from buyers.

Although unabated European demand for rye kept the wheat market upward most of the time today, the weakness of corn led to large realizing sales of wheat where holdings showed a profit. Somewhat increased offerings of wheat in the southwest were reported and domestic northwestern receipts were 1,229 cars against 704 a year ago.

Rye was the only grain to close higher with gains ranging from 1 1-8 to 2 1-4c. New export sales of about 1,000,000 bushels of rye were noted. All deliveries reached a new top price record for the season.

Oats averaged lower, governed by the action of corn. Packers buying of lard strengthened the provision market.

CURB MARKET

New York, Sept. 24.—Considerable irregularity developed in today's curb market, but the main trend appeared to be upward.

Oil shares made further recovery in anticipation of favorable trade developments in the next few weeks. Vacuum was bid up to a new high record at 71 1-4 while Standard Oil of Kentucky, Solar Refining, Cities Service and Buckeye Pipe moved up one to nearly three points. Southwestern Pipe was in supply, dropping 2 1-2 points to 87 1-2.

There were several outstanding strong spots in the industrials and public utility groups including Gillette Safety Razor, Singer Sewing Machine, Western Power, United Light & Power, Middlewest Utilities, National Tea and American Power & Light, up 3 to 8 points. Baking issues lost ground on profit taking. United Bakeries common and preferred and Ward Baking class B losing a point or so. Radio shares also were inclined to heaviness.

Revival of speculative interest in Hawthorne Mines, which advanced 4 points, was one of the few features of the mining group. Declaration of extra dividend of 3 per cent. on Nipissing mines was not made known until after the market closed.

SAVES WIFE WITH GLYCERINE MIXTURE

A merchant whose wife had catarrh of the stomach finally gave her simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. ONE bottle did wonders because Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and brings out all poisons. Helps any case gas on the stomach in TEN minutes. Excellent to guard against appendicitis and for obstinate constipation. Engler's Broadway Pharmacy, corner Broadway and Main, in Taftville at Benoit's Pharmacy.

LITTLE CHANCE OF DEMPSEY FIGHTING BEFORE NEXT SUMMER

New York, Sept. 24.—While there is scant likelihood of Jack Dempsey risking his heavyweight crown before next summer, in spite of the fact that the titleholder has started light training at a local gymnasium, Tex Rickard plans several light heavyweight bouts as features of the indoor ring campaign at Madison Square Garden.

Two outstanding matches now hanging fire promise to involve Mike McTigue, world's 175 pound champion, in a bout with Paul Berlenbach, hard-hitting New Yorker, and Gene Tunney, the American champion, in a contest with Tom Gibbons of St. Paul. The champions, in both instances, have proved the stumbling block in negotiations. Both Berlenbach and Gibbons have accepted Rickard's terms. McTigue also has indicated he is ready to fight on a date late in October but the Irishman has not yet signed. Neither has Tunney.

Dempsey's training activities have revived talk of a possible return bout with Gibbons here during the winter but financial prospects for such a fight indoors so far have not appealed to Jack Kearns, the champion's dapper manager.

LA PALOMA WINS FEATURE EVENT ON COLUMBUS TRACK

Columbus, O., Sept. 24.—(By The A. P.)—After falling and unseating Driver Wolverton while scoring in the first heat, La Paloma stepped out and won the first two heats of the Hotel Southern $3,000 stake for 2.11 pacers, the feature event of today's Grand Circuit racing card. Sparkle, the original first choice won the third heat. Ten dollar result ticket on La Paloma paid $4.50.

After Sarah Thomas had won the first heat of the 2.15 trot and lost the second to Hurry Up, Driver Stokes was taken down by the judges for the third heat and Valentine was substituted, but Sarah Thomas failed to get in the money while Hurry Up duplicated his performance of the second heat.

The horse review futurity for two year old lacers was a two horse affair, Marion C. winning from Sweeney's Pride in straight heats.

Sweeney's Choice, winner of the first heat of the 2.14 pace, broke in the second mile and was distanced. Hal Acme, the favorite winning. Three Socks won the third heat and these two raced off the fourth heat, the latter winning.

PALACE WINS THREE STRAIGHT FROM LAWRENCE

At the Palace Alleys on Wednesday evening the Palace Five walked rough-shod over the Lawrence team of New London in the return match. The Palace ran wild the first two strings and won easily and by big margins but in the final string only six pins separated the two teams at the finish. The individual honors went to the Palace team, Mike Morin taking high single with 128 and Freddy Aldi capturing high total with 320. The scores.

YALE SQUAD HAS TWO PRACTICE GAMES

New Haven, Sept. 24.—The Yale football squad had two practice games today, one between the first varsity and a scrub team and the second between the second varsity and another scrub combination. Captain Lovejoy was not in the lineup, remaining on the side lines to watch the players. His place in the varsity was taken by Burt who played on the scrubs last year.

During the first game Cottle kicked a field goal from the 25-yard line and Bench made two touchdowns. Bingham ran twenty yards for a touchdown.

ROSS LEADS FIELD IN NEWINGTON TOURNEY

Newington, Sept. 24.—Frank Ross, of Sequin, was the winner in a one-day golf tournament held under the direction of the Connecticut Golf association at the Sequin Golf club this afternoon. His new gross score for 36 holes was 76-78, handicap 12—152. Other scores were:

Dr. W. D. MacDonald, Woodway, 78-79—157-12—145.
W. K. Reid, Farmington, 158.
Robert Butler, of Hartford, James Kelly, of Sequin, and H. E. Anderson, of Sequin, were tied for first place for first low net for 136 holes, all turning in 139 cards. On the toss of a coin, Anderson was the winner with Kelly second and Butler third.

SINGLE FOOT WINNER OF $10,000 HANDICAP RACE

Harve De Grace, Md., Sept. 24.—Single Foot, son of Wrack-Virginia L., owned by J. E. Griffith, of Baltimore, captured the $10,000 Eastern Shore handicap, for two year olds, feature event on the opening day's card here, by covering the six furlongs in 1.13.

W. S. Kilmer's Saratoga Maje, took place position from Whitey Howard's Chink by a nose.

The field was fairly well bunched until the back stretch was reached. Here Saratoga Maje led, with Single Foot coming up under Jockey Fairbrother's urging. The pair furnished a thrilling race down the home stretch, where Chink came up with a rush and just missed nipping Saratoga Maje for second position.

Twelve years is said to cover the career of the average baseball player.

STONE WINS DECISIVE VERDICT OVER STRIBLING

Newark, Sept. 24.—By a furious finish in the final round during which he sent his opponent to the floor, without a count, Ad Stone, of Paterson, N. J., earned a newspaper decision over Young Stribling of Macon, Ga., in their 12- round light heavyweight fight tonight.

Stribling's speed and use of a lightning left jab had matched Stone's punches to the body during the first eleven rounds of fast action punctuated by frequent clinches. When they came up for the last frame the Georgian was atop of his opponent for the first few moments but St

TAFTVILLE

Jeremiah Peltier and Miss Lillian Plante were married last Thursday in Arctic, R. I., where the parents of the bride reside. Mr. Peltier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Octave Peltier of North A street and is a papermaker. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Plante, former residents of Taftville.

Mrs. Annie L. Goeweyn of Merchants avenue has had as recent guests, Mr. and Mrs. Hirshlog and Mr. and Mrs. Wobecky of New Bedford, Mass.

David Livingstone of the Ponemah house is spending a few days in New York.

The new iron fence in front of the mill property of the Ponemah company is receiving its second coat of paint.

Edward Kelley is ill at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kelley of South Second avenue.

Philbert Chicoine who has been confined to his home on Providence street as the result of an injury, is able to return to his work.

Mrs. Harriet Blackmar of Norwich was presented to the Taftville Congregational church a picture of her husband, George Blackmar, who was the first superintendent of the church school. Mr. Blackmar was drowned when his boat went over the Ponemah mills dam during the freshet of 1876. He is remembered by many of the local people.

Mr. and Mrs. John Blanchette and family of Plainfield have moved to the village.

There has been some talk about the village this week regarding a movement to organize the taxpayers and residents of the district to see if something cannot be done toward completing the road to Norwich Town over Merchants avenue. For many months this work seems to have been delayed and the good road runs only to the corner of Merchants avenue and the Canterbury turnpike. Because this is one of the busiest highways in the Fifth district and a big cut in distance from this village to Norwich Town and points farther north, is the reason why local people are anxious to see the work finished. If an organization is effected, a committee will probably be appointed to confer with town officials regarding the matter.

Miss Theresa Benoit has resigned her position with the Ponemah company.

Edward T. Fenley of Providence, R. I., was a business caller in the village Wednesday.

Napoleon Bellale was in Providence, R. I., on Wednesday.

PASSED RESOLUTIONS UPON DEATH OF THEIR PRESIDENT

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the New London county Agricultural society resolutions of respect were adopted in memory of Elmer R. Pierson, president of the society since 1919 and a member for many years. The resolutions call attention to Mr. Pierson's activity in the progress of the society. The committee in adopting the resolutions were most desirous of showing and expressing their appreciation of and certifying to his high character and value to the society.

It was voted that a copy of the resolutions be incorporated in the records of the society and that a copy be sent to Mr. Pierson's family. The committee on the resolutions comprised Simon Brewster, Griswold, vice president of the society, Charles D. Freeman, treasurer, and Edwin V. Sloan, secretary of the society.

At the same meeting John H. Curry of Yantic whose painstaking work for several years has been so valuable to the society in keeping proper records of the poultry department at the annual fair, was placed in line for permanent appointment to the executive committee at the society's annual meeting to be held in January. Fred A. Gelling was appointed superintendent of the grounds for the remainder of the year.

MOYES COMPANY NEGOTIATES BIG NEW YORK SALE

An entire block in the financial section came under the control of the American Trust company and the affiliated New York Title and Mortgage company yesterday through the purchase of the Washington Life Building at the southwest corner of Broadway and Liberty street and the Manufacturers Trust Company Building adjoining. The company has owned for years the adjoining property at the northwest corner of Broadway and Cedar street. The three structures, two of which are skyscrapers, and one only two stories high, comprise the block between Broadway and Temple street, Liberty and Cedar streets, a site of 19,000 square feet, which with the buildings, represents a property valued by the city at $[illegible].

The transaction was negotiated by the Charles F. Moyes Company and Pease & Elliman.—New York Herald-Tribune.

IN JAIL TO AWAIT SUPERIOR COURT TRIAL

Michael Sacks, 31, of New York city, was bound over to the criminal superior court Wednesday morning when presented in the city court before Judge H. H. Pettis, the charge against him being embezzlement and obtaining money under false pretenses. Bonds were fixed at $3,000, which he was unable to raise. He will have to remain in jail until the criminal court convenes in January.

Public Defender Charles L. Stewart represented the accused. A demurrer was entered but was overruled. A number of those alleged to be victims of Sacks' operations were in court to appear against him. The charge on which he was bound over involved $150 said to have been secured from Jacob Bukovetsky, but it is understood there are about half a dozen more complaints.

A demurrer was also entered in the case against Mrs. Angelina Carboni of 270 Main street, charged with actual sale of liquor. She was represented by Attorney Thomas J. Kelley. The accused was found guilty and a fine of $200 and costs was imposed and she was given 10 days in jail. The accused paid her fine and went to jail to serve the 10 days.

Edward S. Schall of the submarine base was presented on a charge of violation of the local traffic laws by driving to the left of a traffic beacon and of not having his operator's license with him. Both charges were nolled on payment of $8.

The continued case of Speron Bekris of Greeneville came before the court. He was charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses, and there was also a breach of the peace charge against him. He was given until October 10th to make restitution of $13 due on $40 worth of cigarettes. He was fined and paid $5 and costs on the breach of the peace charge.

One man was fined $5 and costs for intoxication and paid and another man charged with intoxication, was discharged. He was the witness upon whose evidence the conviction of Mrs. Carboni was secured.

SENATOR ROGERS AGAIN HEADS HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Senator Ernest E. ogers of New London was reelected president of the New London County Historical society at its annual meeting Tuesday afternoon in the Shaw mansion in Bank street, New London. Vice presidents elected were: George S. Palmer of New London; Daniel Phillips of Jewett City and Christopher L. Avery of Groton. Lee S. Denison, who for many years served as treasurer of the society, resigned at Tuesday's meeting and the office was voted to the Winthrop Trust Co. An expression of the appreciation of the society for his long and faithful service was given Mr. Denison, by members of the society following the acceptance of his resignation. Miss Elizabeth Gorton was re-elected secretary.

The following were chosen members of the the advisory committee Colin S. Buell, Miss Jane R. Perkins, P. LeRoy Harwood, Frank V. Chapell, Laurence W. Miner, Mrs. B. L. Armstrong, William H. Reeves Benjamin T. Marshall, the Rev. Edward M. Chapman, Arthur P. Anderson, Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers, Miss Alexandrine N. Trumbull, Miss Anna H. Branch, Richard B. Wall, Mrs. George Maynard Minor and Carey Congdon.

At the business meeting preceding the election of officers reports were read, by the various committees. Among chairmen making reports were Howard Palmer of the publicity committee; Miss Ruth Newcomb of the whaling exhibit committee; and Mrs. Herbert L. Crandall of the Old Town mill committee.

The meeting was concluded with an address by Henry C. White of Waterford who spoke interestingly on the Development of Art in Civic Life.

COURT HEARS ARGUMENTS OVER RENEWAL OF LEASE

Judge Leonard J. Nickerson in the superior court at New London Tuesday heard the petition for renewal of lease of Harold H. Norton of New London on a blacksmithing establishment at 635 Bank street, owned by Joseph McNamara, of New London.

Norton held a five year lease on the establishment which was operated by him. The condition of the lease provided for a five year renewal at expiration, if the tenant elected. The lease expired on June 10 this year and the plaintiff alleges he was unable to locate the owner of the building to secure his renewal.

Norton in court told of making several visits to the McNamara home before the lease expired but on no occasion did McNamara respond. Two days after expiration he said, he did locate McNamara, who told the tenant he would have to do business with his representative as the lease had already expired.

Norton claims to have expended money in the shop, the benefit of which he will be forced to lose if he is removed. McNamara claims he was never approached for the purpose of renewal by the plaintiff and decided that he would use the establishment for other purposes.

Testimony of a number of witnesses and arguments by attorneys were concluded at 2.45 in the afternoon and the court took the papers.

DR. G. S. ALLYN DECLINES HEALTH OFFICE APPOINTMENT

Dr. Gurdon S. Allyn has declined to take the oath of office as health officer for the town of Waterford to which he was appointed recently. His declination is made to County Health Officer Hibberd R. Norman of Norwich who expresses his regret in the following letter to Dr. Allyn:

"I am very sorry that you feel unable to take the office of town health officer of Waterford. It was only after a considerable effort that I was able to persuade you to consider it. I felt that your training and experience in sanitary work would be of great value to the town. Another consideration is that it has been thought advisable to appoint a local man wherever possible and you are the only medical man in Waterford available.

"In accordance with your request I will make other arrangements to take care of the situation."

PALMER COURT GIVES DRUNKEN DRIVERS JAIL

Two drunken drivers appeared on Monday in district court at Palmer, Mass., before Associate Justice Ernest E. Hobson and stiff sentences were meted out to them. James Tuock of Stafford Springs, Conn., who ran into two other machines in North Wilbraham, was sentenced to two weeks in the house of correction and was fined $100. William M. McLagan of Stafford, Conn., was fined $100 and was also given a two weeks' jail sentence. An automobile operated by him collided with another in Brimfield.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE ON CRUELTY GROUNDS

Suit for divorce from Walter L. Caughey has been brought by Ruth Ethel Caughey, both of this city, the plaintiff's name having been Ruth Jordan. She alleges intolerable cruelty and asks the custody of a six year old daughter and a two year old son. The couple was married June 5, 1917. The suit has been filed with the clerk of the superior court and is returnable in October.

MAKES ANNUAL REPORT ON PRESTON SCHOOLS

The annual reports of the selectmen, treasurer, town school committee, collector of taxes and town health officer of the town of Preston for the year ending August 31, have been printed in booklet form and are now ready for distribution.

With regard to the schools of the town, the annual report of the school committee prepared by Rossiter S. Willett, secretary, says:

In regard to the teachers, they have been very efficient, therefore both teachers and pupils have progressed wonderfully well. It has been the object of the committee to maintain the public schools at the highest possible standard efficiency at a cost as low as was capatible with good business form.

During the past year there has been 25 students attending high schools out of town, at a price that has exceeded all past records for both tuition and transportation, the loss of the trolley cars making the difference in the cost of transportation.

There has been 29 grammar school children attending schools in adjoining towns for which tuition had to be paid, the number of which was the equivalent of one good sized school.

There are nine paid teachers in town, making the equivalent of 11 schools all told, at a cost of $7,366.01.

The annual report of S. Hussey Reed, state agent, says:

The school year numbered 38 weeks and all schools maintained a good attendance record for the year shown by the following table:

School	Reg.	Avg Att.	Pc. Att.
Poquetanuck Gr.	31	23	.74
Poquetanuck Pr.	41	35	.86
Fort Point	22	21	.96
Crary	16	15	.94
Kimball	31	23	.74
Brown	17	15	.88
Preston City	31	24	.77
Palmer	15	14	.93
Haskell	21	18	.86
Total	225	188	.83

Teachers

The teaching force was one of ability and a high degree of efficiency was maintained in all schools. Of the nine teachers employed, only one was without previous teaching experience. The regular course of study was effectively followed and we feel that the pupils of the schools of Preston were well established in educational advancement. For the ensuing year the same corps of teachers will be employed with two exceptions. These two positions have been filled with experienced teachers of high rating. We are looking forward to another year of successful service.

One of the important factors in child development is a sound physical body. During the school year, two health surveys were made in conjunction with the state board of education.

A trained nurse of ability visited every school in town and a careful examination of each child was made.

This report was submitted to your board. After careful perusal it was discovered that much of the retardation in grade work was due to physical defects, such as defective vision, hearing, teeth and throat trouble. After careful consideration the board decided to take advantage of the statutory law allowing the employment of a regular health teacher with state aid. I consider this one of the most commendable steps in progressive education taken during the year. A regular school nurse will begin her duties in September and in conjunction with this board and the regular teachers will give careful attention to the physical needs of every child in the public schools of Preston.

Text Books

One of the drawbacks to educational progress of the town is the lack of sufficient suitable text books. As you already know, Preston is one of the few towns of the state not furnishing free text books and working material for her schools. We have found this a decided hindrance to the advancement of the school work. I want to urge upon you in the seriousness of this handicap and recommend very strongly the remedy which is the [illegible] of free text books. By thus doing, you will be placing at the disposal of every child an equal opportunity. The expense incurred will be infinitesimal in comparison with great gain which will come to all concerned. I sincerely hope this matter will be given your careful consideration at the next town meeting and that the problem confronting us will be solved by an appropriation sufficient to adjust this condition.

Buildings

All school buildings have been carefully inspected and needed repairs noted. These will be made during the summer so that when schools reopen all buildings will be in good condition. One new building is nearing completion in the Brown district which will be a splendid addition to the needs of the town in this district.

General

All schools have maintained membership in the Chelsea School Savings clubs during the year and a goodly amount saved. This splendid means of teaching thrift to the children is most commendable.

Work in industrial arts has been followed and the matter of book knowledge through practical application to hand work has proven most gratifying and satisfactory.

In conclusion I wish to express my gratitude to this board, the teachers, children and town's people for the loyal support accorded me in the administration of the educational work of Preston.

PARROT AND SPARROW LIVING IN HARMONY

Over a week ago, John E. Curry, residing at 52 Franklin street, picked up a baby sparrow which had evidently fallen or flown from some nest, hoping to save it from the cats. It was suggested that he try putting the fledgling in the cage with his parrot.

To his surprise the parrot made no objection and did not peck the new visitor, on the contrary, seemed rather glad of company.

Now the sparrow is beginning to chirp and the odd family combination appears very satisfactory and harmonious.

POETRY

THE RETURN.

A sun-sweet day in the sundown time
Where the great hills dip to the dusking dale,
And no sound breaking the silent chime
But a lonely wheeling curlew's wail
And the far bird's scream, and the glistening shine
Of a star on the far dim eastern line
Bring back far days and a dream once mine
Where the great hills dip to the dale

For the world-call came even here, even here,
Where the great hills dip to the dusking dale,
And the old road laughed at a young heart's fear
And lured young feet to its wandering trail,
And drew young eyes to the rosy sky
And the world grew wide as the heart climbed high.
But the young heart's dream was a dream gone by
With the hills dipping down to the dale.

Oh, the world was strange and the years less kind
Than the years with the hills and the dusking dale,
And the dale's deep calm that none may find
While the long road lures and the heart is hale,
And now in the chill of the wild bird's scream
I linger alone where the gleam is the gleam
Of a still, far star, with a far, far dream
And the hills dipping down to the dale.

—Thomas Moult.

SHADOWS.

How silent are the far-off hills! Such quiet folk are they!
Each in its proper, ordered place—none moves from day to day.
They fold vast marshes round their feet and when the tides are high
Watch, imaged there, the ruddy clouds that march across the sky.

Sometimes the layered piles of clouds make shadows come and go
That wrap dull purple cloaks upon the hillsides; but although
They darken somberly, and seem to take on shades of night,
I know that soon the clouds will pass—they'll glow with lovely light.

Our lives are often shadowed o'er with clouds of trouble, too;
But let our faith and trust hold strong
God's sunshine will gleam through.

—Agnes Choate Wonser

Japan's national debt totals 4,450,000,000 yen ($2,249,000,000.) according to an announcement by the department of finance. This figure does not include short-term indebtedness, as the temporary exchequer bonds and rice bonds, which, if included, would bring the total to more than 5,000,000,000 yen.

Cocklebur plants are poisonous to swine, cattle, sheep and chickens, according to the United States department of agriculture. This weed has long been suspected, but many persons thought that deaths reported from this cause were produced by the mechanical action of the burs rather than by the toxic effect of the plant. While the burs may produce some mechanical injury, and while the seedlings are very poisonous, stock poisoning, the department says, is caused by feeding on the very young plants before the development of true leaves.

What is believed to be the oldest juniper tree in the world is now being protected by the forest service, United States department of agriculture, according to word received from the Cache national forest in northern Utah. A careful examination of the tree by scientists from the Utah agriculture College and by Forest Supervisor Carl B. Arentson shows the age of the tree to be not less than 2,000 years, thus placing this tree on a par with some of the big redwood trees in California which have often been spoken of as the "oldest living things on earth."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE URGES CITIZENS TO MAINTAIN THEIR CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS

At Exercises in Philadelphia Commemorating the 150th Anniversary of the Convening of the First Continental Congress, Mr. Coolidge Condemned the Movement to Limit the Power of the Supreme Court—Advised the People to Resist Encroachment Upon Their Rights and Liberties—Would Leave the People in the Ownership of Their Property, in Control of the Government, Under the Protection of Their Courts—Asserted That the Government is Limited, Only the People are Supreme—Report of Dinners in the Early Period Indicates That Our Forbears Were Convivial.

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—President Coolidge and his party arrived here from Washington at 7.32 p. m. He was met at the railroad station by a reception committee and escorted by the First City troops to the Academy of Music, where he delivered an address.

No stops were made on the trip from Washington though crowds were gathered at all stations along the route.

Mayor Kendrick and city officials met the president and Mrs. Coolidge at the station here.

Cheering crowds lined the mile-long route from the station to the Academy of Music where the exercises were followed another enthusiastic welcome was given Mr. Coolidge as he entered the hall.

Mr. Coolidge was interrupted repeatedly in his discussion of the constitution and defense of the supreme court by applause.

Immediately upon the conclusion of the exercises President and Mrs. Coolidge set out again for the return trip. Automobiles were escorted by the First City troop of Philadelphia, an organization that performed similar service for George Washington and most successive presidents.

Address for George Washington at which 32 toasts were drunk was read by James M. Beck, solicitor-general, speaking in the presence of President Coolidge at exercises here tonight.

Mr. Beck also read an expense account of another official dinner in New York which detailed cost for "thirteen hogs, punch, sixty broken ice cream and eight broken decanters." He made a comment on the fact which was brought up in a review of the early history of the nation and which was enthusiastically received by the audience.

Proposals for government ownership of railroads and other public utilities were denounced here tonight by President Coolidge as "unconstitutional encroachments upon our rights."

Mr. Coolidge also renewed his assertion in suggestions to limit the power of the supreme court and urged that the people resist encroachment upon their rights and liberties guaranteed by the constitution.

"If we wish to maintain what our forefathers here established," he declared, we shall do well to leave the people in the ownership of their property, in control of their government, and under the protection of their courts."

Ownership of Railroads.

It is difficult, the president said, reasoning to government ownership of railroads, "to reconcile the American ideal of a sovereign people capable of owning and managing their own government with an inability to own and manage their own business."

Furthermore, he declared, it would mean a loss in public revenue estimated at $600,000,000 a year with a resultant increase in the tax on the farmers of from three to forty per cent.

Mr. Coolidge devoted most of his address to a discussion of early history of this country and the birth of the constitution after the organization of the First Continental Congress.

Referring to the deliberations of this congress, the president asserted that, "if we could better understand what they said and did to establish our free institutions, we should be less likely to be misled by the misrepresentations and distorted arguments of the hour, and be far better equipped to maintain them."

Rights of the People.

He drew a lesson from the declarations of the congress as showing the "superiority of moderation and candor over violence and deceit in seeking a solution of difficult public questions."

The constitution, Mr. Coolidge pointed out, "is a device for maintaining in perpetuity the rights of the people, with the ultimate extinction of all privileged classes."

"I have mentioned the desirability," he continued, "for the people to keep control of their government and their own property, because I believe that is one of the American ideals of public welfare in harmony with the efforts of the first continental congress. They objected to small infractions, which would destroy great principles of liberty. Unless we can maintain the integrity of the courts, where the individual can secure his rights, any kind of tyranny may follow. If the people lose control of the arteries of trade and the natural sources of mechanical power, the nationalization of all industry could soon be expected. Our forefathers were alert to resist all encroachments upon their rights. If we wish to maintain our rights, we can do no less. Through the breaking down of the power of the courts lies an easy way to the confiscation of the property and the destruction of the liberty of the individual. With railways and electrical utilities under political control, the domination of a group would be so firmly intrenched in the whole direction of our government that the privilege of citizenship for the rest of the people would consist largely in the payment of taxes. The fathers sought to escape from any such condition, through the guarantees of our Constitution. They put their faith in a free republic. If we wish to maintain what they established, we shall do well to leave the people in the ownership of their property, in control of their government, and under the protection of their courts. By a resolute determination to resist all these encroachments we can best show our reverence and appreciation for the men and the work of the first continental congress."

Reserve Power of the People.

Declaring it significant that the first congress "resulted from the voluntary effort on the part of the people to redress their own grievances and remedy their own wrongs," Mr. Coolidge warned that "we pay too little attention to the reserve power of the people to take care of themselves; we are too solicitous for government intervention.

Economic Problems.

"Everyone knows," he added, "that our economic problems are very far from being solved, but we are making constant progress, both in the field of production and distribution. When certain abuses arose, we adopted a policy of government regulation and control. I have no doubt that some action of that kind was necessary, and of course such a policy would be continued. But it has not been, nor can it be hoped that it will be, always wisely administered. While it provides some defense against wrong doing, its restrictions often hamper development and progress, retard enterprise and when they fail to produce the perfection promised tend to bring the government into discredit. The real fact is that in a republic like ours the people are the government, and if they cannot secure perfection in their own economic life, it is altogether improbable that the government can secure it for them. The same human nature which presides over private enterprise must be employed for public action.

"No doubt there are certain municipalities where some public utilities have been managed through public ownership with a creditable success. But this is very different from a proposal that the national government should take over railroads and other public utilities. What a strain this would be to our economic system will be realized when it is remembered that public commissions set the value of such utilities at about $35,000,000,000, and that they have about 2,750,000 employes. such an undertaking would mean about $1,750,000,000 annually in bond interest, and an operating budget estimated at about $9,000,000,000. These utilities are no longer in the hands of a few, directly or indirectly. They are owned by scores of millions of our inhabitants. It would mean a loss in public revenue estimated at $600,000,000 a year, and while in industrial states it might not increase the tax on the farmer more than 3 per cent. or 4 per cent. in many agricultural counties it would run as high as 40 per cent. When we recall the appalling loss and the difficulty in the management of $3,500,000,000 worth of ships, we should undoubtedly hesitate about taking on ten times that value in public utilities. But there is no occasion to discuss the details of public ownership.

First Continental Congress.

"The government of the United States is a device for maintaining in perpetuity the rights of the people, with the ultimate extinction of all privileged classes. It is a constitution which is the product of human experience with all its toil and suffering, its bloodshed and devastation, its oppression and tyranny, but likewise with all its wisdom, its love of liberty and its determination to follow the truth. The first continental congress met to redress grievances which were the result of government action. The revolution was fought to resist those same grievances. And finally, the constitution was adopted to prevent similar impositions from ever again being inflicted upon the people.

"They are all in that precious document, these priceless guarantees. The people do not propose again to entrust their government to others, but to retain it under their own control. No one can tax them or even propose a tax upon them save themselves and their own representatives. Instead of encroaching upon local assemblies, it guarantees each state a republican form of government. It regulates suspension of the writ of habeas corpus. It protects the home from the uninvited intrusion of the military force of the government. It guards the right of jury trial and undertakes to make judicial officers independent, impartial and free from every motive to follow any influence save that of the evidence, the law and the truth. These are representative of the great body of our liberties, of which the constitution is the sole source and guarantee.

Government is Limited.

"Ours, as you know, is a government of limited powers. The constitution confers the authority for certain actions upon the president and the congress, and explicitly prohibits them from taking other actions. This is done to protect the rights and liberties of the people. The government is limited only the people are absolute. Whenever the legislative or executive power undertakes to overstep the bounds of its limitations, and person who is injured may resort to the courts for protection and remedy. We do not submit the precious rights of the people to the hazard of a prejudicial and irresponsible political determination, but preserve and protect them by an independent and impartial judicial determination. We do not expose the rights of the weak to the danger of being overcome in the public forum by popular uproar, but protect them in the sanctity of the court-

A Broadway Success Arouses Resentment

Federal Action May Be Taken Against "What Price Glory" —Discredits Army and Navy.

New York, Sept. 25.—Federal action against the Broadway success, "What Price Glory" as a violation of the national defense act was talked of by the United States district attorney's office tonight.

General Robert L. Bullard, commander of the Second corps of the army, and Admiral Charles F. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, were declared to have demanded that immediate steps be taken against producers of the play.

According to members of the federal attorney's staff, the general and the admiral complained that the drama, with its profanity-besprinkled portrayal of life with the marines abroad during the war, "curtails enlistments and in that way violates the national defense act."

This was the latest development in Mayor Hylan's move to institute police censorship of all New York theatres, aimed at chasing "nudity, obscenity and indecency" from the local stage. It was indicated that the demands of Admiral Plunkett and General Bullard solved the mystery surrounding the motive for the Hylan move.

The day also brought forth the publication of a report signed by a naval intelligence inspector under the nom-de-plume "Peterkin" and purporting to be a rehearsal of objectionable features seen and heard by "Peterkin," who with Colonel James, justice of the army intelligence service and two departmental of justice operatives, attended a performance of the play.

That Major General Bullard and Admiral Plunkett had placed the matter in the hands of federal authorities was revealed by J. M. Wolff, assistant United States district attorney, whose chief, William Hayward, is at the republican convention in Rochester. Whatever action is taken, said Wolff, will await the return of Hayward to this city.

"This matter came to us on a complaint by General Bullard and Admiral Plunkett last week with a demand that we take immediate action," he said. "However, we decided not to be taken over by mob violence or to destroy anyone's property without making an investigation.

"So we sent department of justice agents to see the play. They did see it, and brought back excerpts which, if judged by themselves, condemned the play.

"If we proceed against 'What Price Glory,' we will do so under Section 125 of the national defense act, which in substance prohibits anyone wearing the uniform of the army, navy or marines but an enlisted man or an officer of the service.

"There is, however, an exception which permits the uniform to be worn upon the stage, provided there is nothing done in connection with its use which might tend to bring discredit upon those branches of the service.

"The claim is made by the chiefs of the army and navy in this area that the play curtails enlistments and in that way violates the statute. Last Saturday Arthur Hopkins, the producer, voluntarily gave me the manuscript at my request and asked that I give him a hearing before taking legal action. I expect to see him before anything is don.e"

TO RENOMINATE GOV. SMITH BY ACCLAMATION

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 25.—The democratic state convention, in a brief, harmonious session today, listened to a keynote speech by Francis E. Cullen of Oswego, adopted routine resolutions and adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow, when Governor Smith will be renominated by acclamation.

Mr. Cullen in his address attacked the republican administration at Washington, accused President Coolidge of having placed the welfare of his party above that of the nation, and highly commended the administration of Governor Smith.

He launched a vigorous attack upon the Ku Klux Klan which brought the delegates and spectators to their feet with resounding cheers. Praise of John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, was the signal for a three-minute demonstration.

Tonight all was in readiness to carry through the program tomorrow without a hitch. The governor will be placed in nomination by Senator William T. Byrne of Albany. No other name will be presented. It is expected that all the present elective officers of the state will be renominated by rising votes.

He added that "it is decisions such as this that undermine public confidence in the courts".

Lotta Crabtree, Actress, Dead at 77

Years Ago Miss Crabtree Was Reputed to Be the Richest Individual in Stage Life—Retired in 1891.

Boston, Sept. 25.—Lotta Crabtree, retired actress, who thirty years ago was reputed to be the richest individual in stage life, died tonight at the hotel which she had been made her home since her retirement at the height of her career in 1891. She was 77 years old.

Miss Crabtree had been in failing health since 1922. Up to that time she had taken active charge of her large estate and since then had continued to direct real estate transactions and investments through her attorney. She leaves no immediate relatives, her brother Jack having died several years ago. No services will be held in Boston. The body will be taken to New York where services will be held with burial at Woodlawn cemetery on Sunday noon.

At the head of her own company, at the age of seven, "La Petite Lotta" played one-night stands throughout the mining region and in those days scored her biggest night at a rough Nevada camp where, after a rather hostile reception, she finally so won the hearts of the miners that they pitched bags of gold dust and nuggets at her feet.

In the "Firefly," "Topsy", "Musette," "Bob" "Nitouche" and "The Little Detective" Lotta scored some of her greatest triumphs, although she appeared in a large number of other plays of the light comedy variety.

In London she met such a cold reception on her first and much heralded visit, that she never ventured abroad a second time.

Together with the fortune she made on the stage, the actress added to her wealth by shrewd investments in real estate in many cities, and by buying race horses with which she won large stakes at harness meetings. She was the owner of My Star, 2.03 3-4, once the world's champion green pacer, which died in 1909, and a string of other horses, which were in charge of her brother Jack Crabtree, at stables near Boston.

Although Miss Crabtree went to live in California directly after her retirement, she soon returned to the east. In 1916 she went abroad to study art and on her return became a prominent member of the East Gloucester, Mass., art colony where her work in landscape painting attracted much attention.

For the past seven years, however, her home has been in Boston where most of her expensive real estate holding were located. She owned the Hotel Brewster, where she died, the Park theatre and many down town parcels. Her estate was estimated tonight at more than $1,500,000 by her attorney.

"Lotta" was drawn repeatedly from her retirement during and at the war in aid of the soldiers and veterans. She appeared many times at benefits to raise cigarette funds or for entertainment of disabled veterans. Until her illness she was a welcome visitor at local veterans' hospitals.

ROOSEVELT HEADS EMPIRE STATE REPUBLICAN TICKET

Was Nominated For Governor on First Ballot of Convention, Rochester—Polled 565 of the 990 Votes Cast, 69 in Excess of Necessary Majority—Strong Anti-Klan Plank Was Adoption by Acclamation—When Introduced the Resolution Was Greeted With an Outburst of Cheering—Platform Declares For 48 Hour Week For Women and Advocates Ratification of Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 25 (By the A. P.)—Theodore Roosevelt of Oyster Bay, assistant secretary of the navy and son of the late president, was named by the republican state convention here today as the party's candidate for governor. His nomination came on the first ballot, where he polled 565 of the 990 votes in the convention, 69 in excess of the necessary majority. Immediately after the announcement of the result, the nomination was made unanimous and by acclamation upon the motion of Former Governor Benjamin B. Odell, manager of the pre-convention campaign of Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins of Nyack and seconded by representatives of the other two candidates, District Attorney Guy B. Moore of Buffalo and Col. William Hayward of New York.

The remainder of the ticket, nominated at an adjourned session late today, follows:

Lieutenant governor, Seymour Lowman, Elmira.

Secretary of state—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Syracuse.

Comptroller—Vincent B. Murphy, Rochester.

Treasurer—Lewis H. Pounds, of Brooklyn.

Attorney general—Albert Ottinger, New York.

State engineer and surveyor—Royal G. Finch, Albany.

The majority given to Colonel Roosevelt on the first and only ballot was a sweeping victory not only for the candidate himself but for U. S. Senator James W. Wadsworth, guiding director of the Roosevelt forces, who in the face of determined but uncoordinated opposition, not only maintained his lines intact, but gained recruits from the camps of the hostile forces.

When informed of his nomination, Col. Roosevelt said:

"The republican party has done me a very great honor and I am deeply gratified. Our platform is sound, constructive republicanism. I stand on it four square.

"President Coolidge has given the country an unequalled administration. We in this state will bend every effort to back up Colvin Coolidge."

Later Colonel Roosevelt was given a tremendous ovation when he appeared on the convention platform just before final adjournment.

"I am deeply appreciative of the honor you have done me here today," he said, "I thoroughly realize the responsibilities it entails. Both during the campaign and after the election—the successful election—I shall use every endeavor so to conduct myself that none of you will regret the choice you made. I thank you."

He was escorted from the stand to the accompaniment of a renewed acclamation as the gavel fell adjourning the convention.

Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, the nominee for secretary of state, is the first woman to be a candidate for state office in New York on the republican ticket.

"This has been a fair fight," Mrs. Knapp declared immediately after her nomination had been ratified by the convention, "and it has shown that when women want political office the men are willing to give it to them, provided they are fit for the job."

There was an outburst of cheering at today's session when Chairman Ogden L. Mills of the resolutions committee, read the plank in the platform denouncing the Ku Klux Klan by name.

Another outburst came when he read the plank declaring for strict law enforcement and the enactment of legislation necessary for such enforcement.

The platform was adopted by a voice vote, a thunderous chorus of "Ays" and a less vigorous and voluminous volley of "No," the latter from those delegates who objected to the naming of the Klan.

The anti-Klan plank, in part, follows:

"The republican party now as from the beginning of its existence, recognizes neither color, nor creed, nor race as a test of good citizenship or as a disqualification for any form of national service or national honor. It could not do this and remain either republican or American. We condemn and oppose any organization, whether it be called Ku Klux Klan or by any other name, that seeks directly or indirectly to weaken this fundamental American doctrine either in letter or in spirit. Moreover, we condemn any candidate or party that endeavors to make political capital out of such an issue, and, while posing as its champion, betrays the cause of liberty by a direct appeal to racial and religious groups."

Besides denouncing the Klan and declaring for enforcement of the Constitution and the laws, the platform endorsed the administration of President Coolidge and pledged the party in the state to the support of the Coolidge and Dawes ticket; assailed the democratic administration of state affairs, characterizing it as inefficient, insincere and lax; declared for a 48-hour-week for women in industry and advocated the ratification of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution.

CAREER OF REP. NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 25.—When Theodore Roosevelt today accepted at Rochester the gubernatorial nomination of the republican party, family history was repeating itself once more. Theodore Junior advanced one step into another of his late father's footprints.

"Teddy, the First," emerged from the Spanish war a hero, a colonel and a politician with a big following. "Teddy, the Second," was in the World war, won three medals, emerged a colonel and discovered that he, too, had won political popularity.

The elder Theodore served as assistant secretary of the navy. The younger Roosevelt will resign the same post to enter the campaign for the governorship.

Father served as governor of New York state before he became vice president, and then through the death of President McKinley, moved into the White House. Son is just reaching toward that rung in the ladder of political fame which is marked "executive mansion, Albany."

The Theodore Roosevelt of this generation was born at Oyster Bay 37 years ago. He was educated in New York, received an A. B. in three years at Harvard and entered the carpet business. Then he became third partner in a firm, as manager of the New York office.

He married Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander in 1910. When the United States entered the World war, Roosevelt entered training at Plattsburg. He went to France as a major, was gassed, wounded and decorated, returning home a lieutenant colonel and abandoned brokerage for politics. He was elected to the New York assembly.

For more than a year he sat at Albany. He was known as a listener rather than a talker. Only one bill of that session bore his name — a measure designed to allow $600 income tax exemption for each child instead of $200.

In 1921, President Harding named him assistant to Edwin Denby, then secretary of the navy.

DEMURRER OF GASTON B. MEANS OVERRULED

New York, Sept. 27.—Federal Judge Foster today upheld the indictment of Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent; his secretary, Elmer Jarnecke, and their attorney, Thomas E. Felder, on charges that they received money which they misrepresented was to be used in the bribery for former Attorney General Daugherty and other government officials.

The indictment was upheld when the court overruled a demurrer recently filed by Felder in which he contended that the three defendants were not charged with the violation of any statute of the United States and that the charges were vague and indefinite.

Means, Jarnecke and Felder were indicted by a federal grand jury last March on charges that they received $65,000 from officials of the Creager System and the Glas Casket Company of Altoona, Pa., for purposes of alleged bribery. They are accused of having represented to these officials who had just been convicted of using the mails to defraud in the sale of stock of the Glass Casket Company, that the money was to be paid to the then Attorney General Daugherty, United States District Attorney Haward and other government officials. In return for this money, they are alleged to have told the convicted men that the government officials would cause them to be leniently dealt with.

BROKER SECOR EXPELLED FROM N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 25.—Expulsion of George F. Secor, senior partner of the brokerage firm of Secor, Reynolds & Co., was announced by the New York Stock Exchange today for alleged irregularities in Southern States Oil stock.

The action came as an echo to the suspension of Southern States Oil stock from the curb market thading last winter, which led to the failure of another brokerage firm, J. M. Byrne & Company, and indirectly to bankruptcy proceedings against the Middle States Oil Corporation, which took over the Southern States stock.

Members of the firm issued a formal statement denying the charges made by the stock exchange. They asserted that its financial stability was unquestioned, but in view of the expulsion requested customers to transfer their accounts. Mr. Secor has been a member of the stock exchange since 1911, organizing his own firm in 1922.

Evidence obtained by the New York Stock Exchange in its investigation of the firm will be turned over to the district attorney's office, it was announced.

WILLIMANTIC

Superintendent of Schools Egbert A. Case gave his annual report before five of the nine members of the town school committee at a special session this week, with Chairman Dr. F. E. Guild presiding. The sum of $164,000 is called for in the budget for the year, with $41,500 of that amount to pay the state for the Windham street school. The costs of instruction is placed at $87,535; $51,235 of that amount is for teachers' salaries. The demand for the school appropriation will be brought before the electors at the coming annual town meeting by Committeemen John Reilley and H. Clinton Lathrop.

The school calendar follows Fall term begins Sept. 2, 1924, ends Dec. 19, 1924; winter term begins Dec. 30, ends March 20, 1925; spring term begins March 31, ends June 18.

The school holidays are: Teachers' convention, Oct. 24, 1924; Thanksgiving and the day following, Nov. 27-28; New Year's, Jan. 1, 1925; Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 13; Good Friday, April 10; Memorial day, May 30.

In the 27th annual report of the school committee to the citizens of the town an appeal is made for the development of the schools to meet the needs of the children, regardless of the fact that this may cause a small increase in taxes. Mention is made of the possibility of the schools being forced back to part-time schedules within a few years, due to increased registration. The excellent condition of the town schools is also brought to the foreground. It is expected that action will be taken at the next meeting of the legislature as regards the replacing of the burned Windham street school, which had been accepted by the state as a gift from the town, and for which the state collected the insurance.

The personal bereavement of the committee in the death of Mayor Hormisdas Dion, a member of the school board, is expressed in fitting tribute in the report, as is also the reluctance of the committee to accept the resignation of Walter R. King, at present postmaster of the Willimantic office.

In his seventh annual report Superintendent Case writes The cost of education is increasing because the schools are called upon to help more children to become happy and useful citizens. But in reality the money is not spent; it is invested in the greatest enterprise of this nation, and the returns justify the investment many times over. As part of the program of the modern school, the report states that the child is taught to do those things better in life which he must do; to establish habits which lead to good health; to earn a better living; to teach girls to become better housewives, and to teach children to spend money in a way the most beneficial to themselves. Although all school children are now attending classes on full time, the schools are filled to capacity, and there appears to be no provision for the future. According to the report, a good building could be erected with the money which the town has lost through unnecessary delays in providing proper school room.

After showing that the town reaps a gain in many ways through offering tuition to children from surrounding towns, the report sets forth the fact that tuition pupils not only pay their full share of the cost but they make the school of such size that it can be conducted both economically and efficiently, and proves the educational advantages of the large high school.

Suggestions made in the report for the careful consideration of the taxpayers are: 1. Secure adequate playground space adjacent to the Windham street school and request the state to erect a suitable building; 2. Secure a site in the Fourth ward for a complete school plant; 3. Dispose of the buildings on the town property adjacent to the high school; 4. Secure plans for a high school addition sufficient for a trade school and for 200 additional pupils; 5. Secure an appropriation and erect the high school addition.

With over 172 new students in the various departments of the freshman class, the class at Connecticut Agricultural college is the largest in the history of the institution. The entering class was addressed Tuesday night at Hawley armory by President Charles L. Beach, after which the members were taken in tow by the sophomores and put through the historic pajama parade.

Among Willimantic people who attended Brooklyn fair Thursday were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Desiorme, C. Hurteau and daughter, Miss Leona Hurteau, Joseph Bosse, Samuel Chesbro, E. D. Boss, Albert Fournier, Archie Veglard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Killourey, Louis Zechiel, Theodore Collins, Mrs. Arthur Lewis, Arthur Raclet, Harry Morrison, Frank Hevrin, Grant Bombria, Frederick Coriaty, Peter Gagnon, Morris Benedett, Alfred J. Lariviere, Rail Lariviere, J. Barney Davis, Leo Normandin, Albert Giroux, Arthur Treat, William Whiton, James Brown, Daniel Killourey, Jr., County Detective William E. Jackson and Federal Agents William S. Congden, Stanton L. Briggs and Harry W. Avery.

Basing expectations on the success of the project last year, the committee in charge of evening school this year is looking forward to an increased registration. The school will open Monday evening, Oct. 6, and classes will be held at Windham High school. Lawrence King of the high school faculty will be principal and dates for registration are fixed for Thursday and Friday, Oct. 2 and 3. The classes to be conducted along the same lines as last year are: Sewing, cooking, stenography, typewriting, bookkeeping, eighth grade subjects, beginners' English, advanced English and any others for which there is sufficient demand to warrant starting them.

TO GET MORE EVIDENCE IN APPLEBY CASE

In the city court Thursday morning the breach of the peace case against Robert Appleby was continued until Saturday morning. Appleby is charged with pushing Officer Charles McFadden onto a pile of earth on Franklin square about 7 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Officer McFadden testified that he was on duty in Franklin square Wednesday evening. He said he noticed a number of men standing in a doorway near the Mohegan restaurant and ordered them to move away. Appleby was among them.

Later while standing at the corner of Main and Franklin streets at the Young block somebody came along and pushed him and he fell onto the pile of earth by the curb. Getting to his feet he saw a man running away. He learned that the man resembled Appleby. Later Appleby was found in the Mohegan lunch room and he was taken to police headquarters.

Appleby claimed that he wasn't the man who pushed the officer. He said he was not in the vicinity at the time but had an engagement on Broadway at the time the officer was pushed from the sidewalk. The case was continued to allow time for both sides to gather more evidence.

A Taftville man charged with intoxication, was fined and paid $5 and costs, a total of $17.38.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Week's New Records

It is a pleasing choice which Harold Bauer has made for his Victor bow—a familiar Rubinstein melody and one of the most hauntingly melodious of Schubert's compositions. "Kammenoi-Ostrow" is the first composer's imaginative echo of island bells in the Neva. The second is a superb demonstration of the "semi-staccato" touch—but a thing of beauty.

Not strictly a coloratura number, nevertheless Galli-Curci's record of the "Slumber Song" (Si Carina) from "Dinorah" has some startling bits of display, shared by a flute and 'cello. Sir Henry Rowley, Bishop's lovely voice-and-flute song, "Pretty Mocking Bird" is its companion, a well-teamed pair of songs, of course brilliantly sung.

We never need a second invitation to hear a baritone sing, particularly such a one as De Luca. Our faith is rewarded this week with two fine Italian songs, sung with consummate beauty of voice and perfection of style. "Canta il Mare" (Song of the Sea) has a waltz-like rythm, with deft voice coloring. "Occhi de Fata" (Eyes of Fate) is dreamy and infinitely tender.

The Goldman band plays a march based on themes from Wagner's "Ring". With it is paired "Ronde d'Rmaur" (Dance of Love), exceedingly dainty like a gavotte, quite unusual for a band number.

Another new-comer to the Victor artist personnel is J. Foster Barnes, baritone, who this week records two fine hymns—"God Will Take Care of You" and "I Would Be Like Jesus." The organ accompaniment to his singing is a noteworthy piece of recording.

If you enjoyed as dance records "Mandalay" and "There's Yes! Yes! In Your Eyes"—you will like them as male quartet numbers, sung this week on a record by Peerless Quartet. They are cleverly arranged to make them real song numbers and not pure dances.

Something would be lost on a program without the salt of a love-song and Helen Clark and Elliott Shaw add the seasoning this week. They are called "sentimental fox-trots," and are quite charming, whether in close harmony or antiphonal effects. Waring's Pennsylvanians anticipate the so-called melancholy days with a fox-trot record which belies its title of "Dreary Weather." At least, there's a cheer where this record goes. The same organization brightens things further with "Any Way the Wind Blows."

Ted Weems and Jack Shilkret and their respective orchestras enliven things again, with "Who Wants a Bad Little Boy?" and "Susquehanna Home" respectively.

Completing the program the Benson orchestra of Chicago plays two melodious fox trots sure to please good dancers. "Sing a Little Song" and "I Adore You After All" are fine, smooth records, without crowding or undue din.

Breed Theatre.

Buck Jones heads the bill at the Breed theatre today and Saturday in Against All Odds. This picture mixes comedy and melodrama in about equal proportions. There is action aplenty and many stirring moments, fine backgrounds and a hard working hero.

William Duncan will also be seen in The Fast Express and the Pathe news and a roaring two-part Pathe comedy entitled Hit the High Spots make up the remainder of the bill.

Coming four days starting Sunday—D. W. Griffith's gigantic spectacle, The Birth of a Nation.

Broadway Theatre.

Another very highly satisfactory program of Keith vaudeville and pictures was presented at the Broadway theatre yesterday to a pleased audience. The same program continues through to Saturday.

Raymond Pike, that capering fiend, opens the show with a very clever variety of vehicles—acrobatics, dancing, songs and comedy is his forte.

Lawrence & Beasley followed in a comedy and singing offering. These two men are highly amusing.

May McKay and sisters, those Scotch Lassies, held down third spot with singing and dancing. They are very entertaining.

Sammy Howard and Lillian Norwood in Esther From Pittsburgh, carried off the comedy honors.

The Dancing Du Browns in classic and whirlwind dancing closed the program. Their whirlwind finish was a great surprise.

A thrilling fight between E. K. Lincoln, the star, and George Siegmann, in the role of the leader of a band of squatters, and a series of wonderful storm scenes, showing a wild night ride through the mountains, form the high spots in Selznick's, The Right of the Strongest, Mr. Lincoln's latest starring vehicle, which was shown at the Broadway theatre yesterday and will continue through Saturday.

Palace Theatre.

George A. Billings, creator of the role of Abraham Lincoln in the First National picture of the same name, wondered for a long time whether the famous president used tobacco in any form or not.

Mr. Billings' anxiety was set at rest when he met two men in Los Angeles who were able to assure him that Lincoln never used tobacco in any form—and this includes snuff—in a day when most people used snuff—and even many excellent women smoked pipes.

These two men are Cornelius Cole, ex-United States Senator from California, who celebrated his one hundred and first birth anniversary, Sept. 17, 1923, and Dr. Gilbert Ellis Bailie of the University of Southern California.

Senator Cole was an intimate friend and political associate of Lincoln for many years, while Dr. Bailey in his youth was a neighbor of Lincoln in Springfield, and is an authority on Lincolniana by virtue of his deep research in the interest of the production of Abraham Lincoln.

Senator Cole, the most distinguished as well as the most competent living link between Abraham Lincoln and these latter days, has lent his invaluable advice to the Rockett company in the production of their picture of Abraham Lincoln, which begins a limited engagement at the Palace of four evenings and three matinees, starting Sunday evening, Sept. 28.

Alaska—land of ice-clad mountains and towering glaciers! Alaska—where towns are born overnight and gold is sluiced from the rich earth! Alaska—mysterious, strange, colorfull World of the Midnight Sun!

This is the rugged setting in which The Alaskan, Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount production, unfolds its story of gripping, red-blooded drama. It is a picturization, based on Willis Goldbeck's adaptation of James Oliver Curwood's dynamic novel of the same name. Herbert Brenon, who produced it, Thomas Meighan and the entire supporting cast traveled more than four thousand miles by sea from Hollywood into the wilds of British Columbia to secure the proper locations.

A talented cast has been assembled that, among others, includes Estelle Taylor, John Sainpolis, Charles Ogle, Frank Campeau and Anna May Wong.

It will be shown at the Broadway theatre starting Sunday night.

To have loved a man faithfully—to have suffered unbearably at the news of his death—to have refound him in life—and then to have discovered that he is married to another woman!

This is the dramatic situation in which the heroine of Victor Hugo Halperin's newest production, When a Girl Loves, now showing at the Palace, for Associated Exhibitors, finds herself. As played by Agnes Ayres, this role, radically different from her lighter ones of the past, has immense possibilities. This clever actress misses no appeal to the sympathy of her audiences, and has made Sasha Boroff one of the most interesting characterizations ever seen on the screen.

Percy Marmont, remembered for his marvelous characterization of Mark Sabre in If Winter Comes, plays Count Michael, Sasha's sweetheart, in When a Girl Loves. Others prominent in the cast are Robert McKim, George Siegmann, Kathlyn Williams, Mary Alden, John George (by courtesy of Rex Ingram), Ynez Seabury, Rosa Rosanova, Otto Lederer, William Orlamond, and Leo White.

Educational Comedy, Air Pockets, Sport Light and Secrets of Life with overture.

Grecce's Ancient Washtubs.

Owing to the scarcity of wood and metals in Greece, washtubs are seldom seen. In the little village of Khasia, near Athens, the women have utilized stone sarcophagi that are more than 2,000 years old.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McEwen were engaged during much of Thursday in restoring to normal order the interior of Mrs. McEwen's former home—the Gardner place—on the state highway, just north of Wauregan. It was discovered Thursday morning that the house had been broken into during the night and things turned topsy-turvy. This is the second time that the house has been entered at night and so ransacked in about two weeks. The place has been unoccupied for some time. A careful checkup after the visitation of two weeks ago failed to establish that anything of importance was missing. Much the same kind of turmoil was created in the place during the recent visit. The entrance and the havoc wrought within the dwelling constitute a strange situation.

Skippo is dead. He was only a dog but a very good dog and his owner, Gurdon E. Withey, sincerely feels his loss. Skippo was let out for a run on Furnace street and a few minutes later was killed by the north-bound boat train as he was going over the Franklin street crossing. Mr. Withey valued the dog—a splendidly trained and efficient foxhound—at $150, but even that amount of money would not have bought him.

Dayville is puzzling over every angle of a visit from a woman representing herself as Mrs. Thomas Henley Gibson, said to be the wife of a Denver judge. Her visit to Dayville was concluded during Thursday, when she left to return to New York, whence she said she had come on a strange mission. Mrs. Gibson is said to be a disciple of a mystic cult dealing in health and other treatments. She came to Dayville to check up another reputed mystic cultist said to be resident in that place. It is said that the effort to interview the Dayville woman failed, for the reason that this woman is confined to her bed by illness and admittance of the New York visitor was refused. While at Dayville, Mrs. Gibson employed a stenographer to take down statements made in interviews with Dayville people who might be able to throw some light on financial transactions that the visitor represented as being important in her investigations. Mrs. Gibson was a stylish and efficient woman of about 35. She remained in Dayville during the period of her investigation.

Suggesting that a sneak thief may be at work here was the report on Thursday morning by a resident of Cottage street that he had found a skeleton key in a door at his home Wednesday night when he returned, about 9 o'clock. The key had become lodged and was removed with difficulty.

Everett Comins, in the stores department of the Connecticut company at Norwich, was in Danielson Thursday on a business trip.

Michael Braney of Providence, many years ago a resident in Brooklyn, was a visitor with friends here Thursday.

BROOKLYN FAIR CLOSES AFTER TWO SUCCESSFUL DAYS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Brooklyn, Sept. 25.—Brooklyn fair is over for another year. There was the usual closing day crowd Thursday, a few hundred people who enjoy a little more elbow room in seeing the annual exhibition than is possible on the first big day, those who like to attend the fair both days and those who could not get away to see it Wednesday. Excepting for live stock, the exhibits remained intact during Thursday. Splendid weather again favored the fair, which has experienced a very satisfactory success again this season.

For the races Thursday afternoon the grandstand was well filled and many others found places along the rails bordering the stretch. The races furnished good entertainment and held the crowd until their end. Entries were more numerous than in other years. J. Carl Witter again acted as starter, sending the horses away to finish in this order:

The dismantling of displays began at the close of the fair and likely will be completed Friday.

PUTNAM

Registrar of Voters Hermon G. Carver, who has held the office for over a quarter of century, says that never in his experience has there been so many newly made voters in Putnam as was made by the selectmen last Saturday. In all 246 were added to the voting list. Of these 136 were women and 111 men. This is the largest number given the franchise in the history of the town.

"It being a presidential year," said Mr. Carver, "there is of course more than ordinary interest. Perhaps the most surprising thing is what a large number of women are exercising their prerogative."

Thursday, October 7th, will be the last day to register except for those whose rights mature after that date. If after that date a person reaches the age of 21 he or she will be accepted up to election days.

The name Smith, has been distanced in Putnam and the Benoits are now leading. There are 16 women voters named Benoit and 24 male Benoits, while the total number of Smiths is only 26. The Johnsons run a close second to the Smiths, with 21. While no tabulation is available it is believed that the Dumases and the Dupres are still in the running. The Joneses never were numerous in this town.

At the next Well Child Conference in Putnam, to be held at the high school, Wednesday afternoon, October 1st. from two to four o'clock, a dental hygienist from the state department of health will be present to talk on teeth."

Clean, sound teeth are essential to health and decayed teeth are the frequent cause of such diseases as heart trouble, rheumatism, nephritis and indigestion. The conference, which is a part of the state department of health's well baby campaign is absolutely free, and will afford an unusual opportunity to acquire the best information on the care of teeth and their relation to diet and disease. Mothers are being urged to attend and hear the lecture: also to bring their babies for examination.

The Putnam Women's Coolidge club is to hold a meeting this (Friday) evening at 7.30 o'clock in the community room of the Putnam Saving's bank. The club now numbers over 300 members and is actively engaged in advance of the national election. It has also been instrumental in seeing that women registered as voters which accounts for the unusually large number registered this year.

Miss Prudence C. Paine of Thompson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Paine has entered Mount Holyoke college, South Hadley, Mass.

Mrs. H. L. Bease and daughter Miss Edith Pease are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Andem, at their summer home at Hampton Beach, N. H.

Miss Sarah Healey, daughter of L. H. Healey, secretary of the state board of agriculture, is recovering from an appendicitis operation at the Day Kimball hospital. Miss Healey started last week with her brother Ewart Healey and his wife from their North Woodstock home to attend the fair at Springfield. They had hardly reached the Massachusetts city when Miss Healey was taken violently ill. The party turned about and immediately returned home where Miss Healey's condition grew worse and she was brought back to the hospital in Putnam. While it was found that the appendix was diseased and the operation was serious, she is now on the road to recovery.

A rumor gained currency in the business section Wednesday evening, that a Putnam man had shot himself in the Quadic district of the town of Thompson. Investigation disclosed that it was not so and no one knows where the story started.

Clerks in Putnam stores had a beautiful day, Thursday, for their last half holiday. It wdas a farewell to the half a day off a week until next July. A year of such half holidays, except during the holiday season in December, has been concluded. The merchants of the city kept their agreement to try out the plan for a year. They found it unsatisfactory from their viewpoint and have voted to discontinue the plan. Hereafter the clerks will have half holidays during July, August nad September only.

The clerks, who in the first place requested the yearsly half holiday. Apparently they are acquiescing in the decision of the employers. Nothing has been heard from them since the merchants reached their decision. Beginning next week Thursday stores will be open all days, six days a week, until next July.

I have even helped take care of a sick neighbor recently, so you can see how fit I am. I highly praise your medicine and you may use my letter as you see fit. I hope it will help some other woman."—Mrs. OLE NORDLEIN, Box 23, Zahl, North Dakota.

NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITIES.

Opportunity, a magazine for "forward looking people" endeavors to show communities what they are neglecting and where there are chances for new enterprises. It has sent an investigator into New England and he dropped off at two small Massachusetts points, one a small city and the other a cape town with a large summer population. They were hit or miss selections but they were looked over with a view to picking out opportunities for business activity that were being neglected, for improving chances which were failing to get attention.

The man found opportunities for a kind of factory with surplus power available, filling and service stations for automobile tourists with excellent corner sites, retail stores dealing in nearly every kind of staples or specialties, a good motion picture theater, an up-to-date taxi service, a first class hotel, an electrician and an electrical specialty store, an agency for radio outfits and another newspaper.

In the cape town he found opportunities for building summer cottages, for furnishing and equipping them and the many chances for business to go with rendering service to the summer trade.

What this investigator spotted in the two communities, which he dwelt upon in detail, may be no different than could be disclosed in others of similar location and character. And give proof of the claim of one of the citizens in the larger communities that "the young men don't see the opportunities that lie right under their noses."

The service that has been rendered in pointing out these opportunities is of no small value. They have had their recognized handicaps but they have apparently done little to overcome them. They have continued along in the same old rut. They now have a chance to see themselves as others see them and above all have been told how to get out of the rut.

Opportunity has found that the idea that there are not as many opportunities in New England as in some of the newer states is not well founded. Perhaps it would be well for more New England communities to have the benefit of a similar appraisal of neglected opportunities, if in fact they cannot do it for themselves.

THE DRY LAW AGAIN.

From all indications the supreme court has not completed its work concerning the dry law. As different phases of the question have arisen they have been carried to the court of last resort. That seems to be the probable outcome of the situation concerning the carrying of intoxicants to the Philippines for beverage purposes.

It remains to be determined whether the Philippines, and likewise some other insular possessions, stand in the same position as the mainland in the 18th amendment. Because the act of congress does not particularly specify the Philippines it has been maintained that the islands are not included under the dry law. It was on such an interpretation that certain consuls were informed that they should permit vessels to clear for the Philippines when it was known they were carrying liquor destined for consumption in the islands.

It is a subject which the department of justice has been looking into with the result that the assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition law prosecutions holds that the dry law does include the islands and that vessels carrying liquor should not be allowed clearance papers.

Such an opinion may be right and it may be wrong. Coming from the department of justice it is to be expected that it will be heeded by the department of state in ordering such clearing papers withheld. That is the proper procedure and for a final determination of the question it is not too much to expect that it will find its way to the supreme court.

In view of the handicaps which have been encountered here relative to the enforcement of the dry law it can be expected that even greater trouble will be faced in the islands. It is possible that the islands are not included under the law but until the court's interpretation has been received the only logical course to follow of course is to set forth the law as interpreted by the department of justice and do the best to live up to it.

WHERE'S THE LEAGUE?

When it is impossible to find trouble anywhere else, even when peace seems to be the accepted thing, one seldom looks in vain if attention is turned to the Balkans. That is the region where a war cloud is always hovering, and if by chance none can be discerned it requires no time to manufacture one. The Balkans seem to like war and to thrive on it, and when they are not in conflict with their neighbors they can easily manage to stir up strife amongst themselves.

Just at the present time, according to reports which are brought home by F. R. Coudert, well versed in foreign affairs, there is much unrest in the Balkans and he doesn't hesitate to predict another war there unless something is done to prevent it. Mr. Coudert doesn't speak as an alarmist but from a close study of the situation and a knowledge of the facts. There is the spark that might be fanned into flame between Hungary and Roumania. There are Jugoslavs who are irritated by present conditions and Montenegrins do not like the authority exercised over them by the Serbs. With the assassin at work in Bulgaria it can be readily understood what the situation is likely to lead to.

There are certain internal conditions involved but in that region it doesn't take long to stir up fire around the entire circle.

With all this evidence of unrest and threatened trouble, the natural inquiry is as to where the league of nations is and what it is doing to prevent war. Here appears to be the very opportunity for action that is desired, the very situation where it is expected to function.

As for the internal troubles the league can be expected to keep hands off but when there is a likelihood of two or more becoming involved in a clash of arms the time for applying the work of prevention has arrived. Certainly the league is not unmindful of the unrest that prevails, and it is the agency to which attention naturally turns these days when it comes to forestalling war.

GERMANY'S MEMBERSHIP.

Membership of Germany in the league of nations is not a new thought. There are those who have urged it in the past quite the same as there are those who have opposed it. There has been a division of opinion regarding it in the league, quite the same as there has in Germany.

It doesn't mean that just because the German cabinet has approved the idea that it represents the view of all Germany. But there is opposition to anything constructive in Germany today that doesn't jibe with the views of the nationalists.

Membership of Germany in the league, however, seems the logical thing. As Germany is a part of Europe and interested in the problems with which the neighboring nations are concerned it is proper that it should be inside rather than out. Naturally there has been opposition to whatever has developed as the result of the war but Germany must look to the future as well as the other countries.

Conditions have developed to the most favorable point since the war. The relationship of Germany with Great Britain and France has improved. France bitterly opposed Germany in the league at one time but the situation which has been created by the Dawes committee has smoothed the way. Germany has helped itself by coming to terms, and made it easier for getting into the league, where it is no secret the British have been endeavoring to get it for a long time.

That Germany is experiencing a change of view is shown by the vote of the cabinet. Time may get it where it belongs.

WATCHING DENMARK.

While other nations are considering the subject of disarmament, or further limitation of armament, attention is halted by the proposal of the Danish cabinet to abolish its army and navy. Denmark is not a big factor militarywise. It remained out of the recent war but it would have been no great obstacle had there been cause for involving it.

Denmark's cabinet sees a chance to save many millions which are now put into the army and navy. It would maintain certain vessels for necessary purposes and would replace its army with guards along the frontier, but unarmed. Its idea seems to be that inasmuch as it would be impossible for so small a nation to successfully resist invasion or attack it is useless to spend the money that is required from year to year to maintain its defense forces. Likewise it would serve notice that it has no intention of aggressive action.

Because the cabinet favors it does not mean that Denmark has reached a final decision in the matter. That remains to be seen. Whether the plan will be endorsed awaits developments. It is certain to encounter opposition by those who recognize the danger of having no defense, and who understand how Belgium invited invasion because it had inadequate means of resistance.

Nevertheless the effort that is being made in Denmark will not lack for attention. Both those who favor and those who oppose such a policy will look on with interest for the outcome.

IT WAS MARVELOUS

Myrtle speaks over the telephone: "'Lo, good looking! How's the girl?

"Just dandy. Say, sweetie, listen. I phoned your place last evening. Ja ma broadcast it to you?

"Righty! She says you was just steppin' out with some party, but she didn't put me wise to who with.

"Say, kid, Mert's your best bet these days, what? Well, I got to hand it to him; he's a spiffy guy. All of that. Most as spiffy as—well—you know—well, anyway, he sure is spiffy, see? Absolutely.

"Righty! You said it. Well, say, hon, listen. Seein' you started to—you know—speak about the guy upstairs of us and everything—well, say, dearie, listen. We went.

"You know. Where I said we was going when I was phonin' you the other evening—up to his place to listen in on his radio—you know—radio and everything, see?

"Sure, we did. Ma and pa and me and the kids and everybody.

"And say, sugar lump, listen! Ja ever stop sometimes and get thinkin' about how—you know—awful marvelous things is, huh?

"Oh, you know—radios and everything.

"And say, sweetie, listen. I bet you'll think I'm some little dumbbell or something, but, honest, I couldn't help thinkin' how—you know—marvelous it would be if some time some person was to make a—you know—machine that it would holler right out what a person was maybe—you know—thinkin' or something, huh? Now wouldn't it?

"You know—be marvelous and everything. And, say, dearie, lookut. If any person ever should fix up a machine like that I don't know what ever I'd do. Honest, I don't. I bet I'd die, wouldn't you? And maybe it would—you know—be kind of cute some ways, too, because then you'd know what other folks was thinkin', too, see?

"And, say, kid, listen! You take it like it was last night, see? Not that I was—you know—havin' one person in my mind no more'n what I had another, but seein' how it was his radio and everything, I couldn't hardly help from thinkin' about him some. Now, could I? I ask you. And so I kind of got thinkin' how it be—you know—Fred could listen into what I was thinkin' about—like—you know—how nice his hair was slicked down back and what swell hands he's got and——

"Sure! New York and everything. Bedtime stories and how you could make marvelous things out of cold mashed potatoes and all—and ma she got a swell receipt for sandwiches. She certainly did all of that.

"Sure, I did. Swell jazz and everything. And, say, hon, listen. There ain't a thing he—you know — Fred don't know about radios. He can push all them little buttons and things around just marvelous—

"And, say, dearie, listen. He's got a swell education. If ever you'd hear him tell about all the books he's read. Oh, boy!

"Sure, I did! Some swell jazz and —you know—everything. Only seein' how there was only a coupla headpieces and ma and pa and the kids and all kind of—you know—wantin' to listen in—and him belongin' to the radio—and pa he was crazy to jazz around with the little buttons and all, so after a while he—you know—Fred he says how about him and me beatin' it out to a movie or something, so's the folks could listen in all the time and not get thinkin' we was waitin' and everything.

"And, say, sweetie, listen. That's just what we done—only we didn't go to no movie after all. We just kind of —you know—walked around and told each other what shows we'd saw—movies and everything—and ate a ice cream soda and had a swell time.

"And, say dearie, lookut. I gotta sign off now. You give me a ring next Tuesday or Monday or Something and we'll fix up a date for you to bring—you know—Mert over to our place and I'll have Fred over to our place and get ma to make some of them sandwiches she got over the radio and maybe we'll go up and listen in to a coupla pieces or something, because it certainly is marvelous, see?

"And, say, dearie, listen. Don't you forget to give me a ring now. You be sure and remember. Bye, bye, kid. So long. See you next week."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Lemuel H. Murlin, who has been offered the presidency of De Pauw University, has been president of Boston University since 1912, going to that institution from Baker University in Kansas, of which institution he had been the head for 18 years. Dr. Murlin is sixty-two years old and a native of Mercer county, O. He was graduated from Ft. Wayne College in 1886 and from the theological department of De Pauw University in 1892. He took post-graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania, Clark University and Denver University, and then spent a year in study and travel in Europe. He was made a member of the faculty of Ft. Wayne College on his graduation in 1886 and ordained a preacher the same year. In 1893 he was professor of modern languages at Cornell College, Iowa, and the following year he became president of Baker University.

Stories That Recall Others

Usually Happens Like This.

He had taken a carful of friends on an auto trip to the neighboring city and as they were rolling over the good places spoke in modest praise of his car. He referred to the fact that he had taken all the hills down on high, spoke of the easy running motor and called attention in a placid manner to the manner in which the car sailed up and down the hills on the return trip.

And then something happened. There was a slight knock under the hood. It became louder and more frequent. And then it became very loud and very frequent. All kinds of possibilities were suggested but the owner decided to pull up at a garage and find out.

The garage man looked under the hood wisely. It was something wrong with the carburetor he decreed, but he couldn't fix it. However, it would do no harm to drive on as it was. So the car was sent forward, taking the hills laboriously and finally home was reached with the driver completely disgusted.

The odd part of it was that the driver's own garage man fixed the trouble in about four minutes. And it wasn't the carburetor at all. It was some other thingumajig around the engine.

What Amen Means.

A small boy passing through the questioning stage of life (and this is not intimating they ever get entirely through) often asked his father many questions he could not answer and frequently so many in a given space of time that he could not keep up with them.

One Monday morning he came bustling into his father's study. "Father," he said, "What does amen mean?"

"Run along and play now," said the father as he continued the difficult task of determining who would win the pennant.

A few minutes later the lad came running into the house. "Father, I know what 'Amen' means. It means 'goodby until next Sunday night.'"

Sure of Long "Visit"

An old timer was brought up before the court on a charge of being a common drunkard. He went up, and as the turnkey gave him a look of familiarity he said: "Well, Joe, this makes the third time this year."

"Yes, so it does," answered the prisoner in a thick manner. "But there's one thing you haven't thought of," he said.

"What's that?" was the question.

"Why, I'm sure to be with you at least six months this time. Won't that be grand?"

"I guess so," replied the guard. And then the door clanged shut.

Death may love a shining mark—but shining marks are scarce

THE MAN YOU ARE

It isn't the man that you might have been
Had the chance been yours again,
Nor the prize you wanted but didn't win
That weighs in the measure of men.
No futile "if" or poltroon "because"
Can rowel your stock to par.
The world cares naught for what never was—
It judges by what you are.
It isn't the man that you hope to be,
If fortune and fate are kind,
That the chill, keen eyes of the world will see
In weighing your will and mind.
The years ahead are a chartless sea,
And tomorrow's a world away;
It isn't the man that you'd like to be,
It's the man you are today.
There's little worth in the phantom praise
Of a time that may never dawn,
And less in a vain regret for days
And deeds long buried and gone.
There's little time on this busy earth
To argue the why and how.
The game is yours if you prove your worth,
And prove it here and now!

Steinmetz, the Refugee Hunchback

When Charles P. Steinmetz tried to enter this country the immigration officials saw in him only a little hunchback, with defective eyesight and no money. Fearing that he might become a public charge, they decided to exclude him.

Steinmetzs career had been that of one who was handicapped and persecuted. Born in Breslau, Germany, the son of an employe in the government railway service, he had been educated in the universities at Breslau and Berlin and the Polytechnic in Zurich, Switzerland, his father realizing that because the little fellow's deformity he would need a thorough training.

Becoming interested in Socialism, he edited a Socialist magazine and became a leader of student Socialist clubs. Germany was trying to stamp out Socialism and planned to arrest him, but he escaped to Austria. Going to Switzerland, he continued his studies, supporting himself by his writings on scientific and political matters.

Abandoning his plan to return to Breslau, he joined an American who paid his steerage passage to New York. His companion's strong plea won Steinmetzs entrance into the United States. In this country Steinmetz was a stranger, and his letters of introduction were worthless in helping him find work. Finally he obtained a job as draftsman in the Osterheld and Eickemeyer electrical equipment factory at Yonkers, at a salary of $2 a day.

Becoming interested in electrical experimenting, he soon became known for his achievements. He worked on inventions for electric motors and generators for street cars. He was placed in charge of a research laboratory and specialized in magnic testing.

Entering the employ of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y., he eventually worked his way to the position of chief consulting engineer, and head of the Consulting Engineering department, which he organized. He had a magnificently equipped laboratory and the company permitted him to draw any amount he desired either for salary or for equipment. His inventions became famous and when he perfected a lightning generator capable of hurling a bolt of artificial lightning with the energy of 1,000,000 horse-power the world applauded.

Moderating his views on Socialism, he took an active part in local and national affairs and his death was mourned by this and other countries.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS CLAIM PAY TOO LOW

In order to support themselves and their families, rural mail carriers in this state are compelled to earn money outside of their regular occupation, it was disclosed Sunday, at the meeting of the National Federation of Rural Letter Carriers held at Branford Point. Seventy-five members attended the meeting. James F. O'Keefe of Middletown, president of the federation, presided.

In an address to the carriers and their families, James H. Smith, state organizer of the post office clerks' association, deplored the president's veto of the salary bill and urged the rural carriers to organize effectively and to urge congress to override the veto in December.

The meeting went on record as favoring the enactment of a law of similar import to Bill No. 1808 and will urge congress to pass it. Congressman Patrick B. O'Sullivan of Derby, in a letter read at the meeting, pledged his support in aiding the passage of the bill. After a luncheon served by the wives of the members, the meeting adjourned.

Indications early this morning, however, were that the Kiangsu generals were sending heavy reinforcements to the district east of Tai Lake.

RECRUITING IN NATIONAL GUARD IS STOPPED

The total strength of the National Guard on August 31, the announcement said, was 188,712 and appropriations provided by congress for National Guard use during the current fiscal year provided for a strength of only 177,000.

States to which notifications have been sent were California, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Adjutant General George M. Cole, of Connecticut said at Hartford Wednesday that at present the Connecticut National Guard had a strength of about 4,500, although the Connecticut quota under the National Defense Act was 5,200. ATTEMPTED ARSON AND SHOOTING AT NORTH STONINGTON FARM

Henry Wills, 79, of Westerly, was before Justice Leonard R. Main in North Stonington Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock on complaint of Grand Juror William Babcock, the charge being attempted arson. The defendant entered a plea of guilty, which he afterward changed to not guilty, and his son Albert asked that the case be continued one week. Bonds were fixed at $5,000 and Wills was brought by Sheriff Casey and Officer McMahon to the county jail in Norwich to await a hearing in North Stonington on Thursday next at 11 o'clock.

It was about 10.30 o'clock Wednesday night when Mrs. E. Everett Watrous, who is visiting at the farm of Henry L. Allen, situated on the turnpike, east of Pendleton Hill road, saw a flash and exclaimed "What's that light?" Mr. Allen rushed out of the door in time to pick up a bundle of burning papers which had been laid on the cellar door, and before the woodwork could be charred. Kerosene had been thrown against the side of the house and on the door. Returning to get his gun, Mr. Allen started down his driveway and when near the turn a shot was fired at him from the direction of George Randall's place. Mr. Allen fired back in the darkness to where he saw the flash. He was unable to telephone, as the wires by the side of the house had been cut. Going quickly to a neighbor's, Deputy Sheriff William H. Casey in Pawcatuck was told what had occurred. Sheriff Casey got in touch with Deputy Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell and they went to the site of the new Westerly hospital where Wills was employed as a watchman, but were unable to find him there. Three previous attempts at burning the Allen place had caused Wills to be suspected, one of the attempted burnings being on Saturday evening, May 31st, an account of which appeared in The Bulletin of June 2d. Last Saturday four shots were fired in the highway near the Allen place.

Westerly Traffic Officer George Madison was sent up Canal street to intercept Wills, who was thought to be returning to his watchman's duties at the Westerly hospital. Wills was met on Canal street by the officer and followed to the hospital grounds. Here Sheriffs Casey and Mitchell questioned Wills, who was reported to have admitted his part in the attempted arson and shooting. On his person was found a pair of lineman's pliers and in a box which was previously empty was found a revolver with one of the cartridges discharged. Sheriff Mitchell placed Wills under arrest and he was turned over to Sheriff Casey and lodged in the Liberty street lockup in Westerly.

About 2 o'clock Thursday morning, while Constable Adin R. Sheldon and Martin McGrath were at the lockup, they found that the prisoner had attempted suicide by hanging himself with his trousers belt. Discovered in time to prevent the accomplishment of his purpose, his belt and shoestrings were taken from him.

The Pawcatuck police officers report that Wills asked that he be kept confined, as he would attempt to kill Allen on sight.

The origin of the feud is said to be disagreement over money matters, as Wills claimed Allen owed him $50, while Allen states that a part of this sum is due him for services rendered Wills at the time of a previous court case in New London. At one time Wills lived with his son in the "Rock house," so-called, near the Allen place. Later the place was sold and he lived with Allen. When difficulties arose between them, Wills moved to Westerly and took up his residence there.

TOWERING WOODEN POLES WILL BE REMOVED

With the progress that has been made from Burnham square to the Wauregan house corner in setting the new steel poles for the White Way, some idea of the great improvement that will be achieved in the appearance of Main street can be gained, when it is realized that the new poles will eliminate the dozen or more lofty wooden poles that carry the electric light wires along this street. All the city electric light wires and the trolley wires that are now on these big wooden poles will be shifted to the new steel poles, which will also serve to carry the supporting wires for the trolley line over the middle of the street. When the wiring has all been changed the old wooden poles will be taken up.

Locations for 16 pairs of new poles have been prepared and most of them have been set by the trolley company which is doing this part of the work. Two locations come in the sidewalk in front of the post office, and the work here is being held up until formal permission from the government has been secured, although it is stated that the work could go ahead anyway without the government's permission as the common council has given permission after a public hearing in which no protest was made by the government.

Night photographs have been taken along Main street by direction of the gas and electric department, in order that it may be possible to show "before and after" views of this locality. James Sugden of West 42nd street, New York, the contractor who is to put in the special standards on Broadway and Union square, had a gang of his workmen arrive here on Thursday with apparatus and equipment that was unloaded in Union square Thursday afternoon. The work will go on there at once.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. William Munroe

After a short illness Elizabeth Fensley, wife of William Munroe, died Thursday morning at her home, No. 110 Fourth street. She was born in Greeneville October 23, 1849. Fifty-eight years ago she was united in marriage with William Munroe and October 23, 1923, Mr. and Mrs. Munroe celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary. For 40 years Mrs. Munroe was a member of the Greeneville Congregational church. She was a member of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, No. 16 and of Home Chapter, King's Daughters.

Surviving are her husband, a sister, Mrs. William J. Matthews of Greeneville, and three nieces, Mrs. Duncan A. McConnell of Montclair, N. J., Mrs. Andrew M. Baker of Minneapolis, Minn., and Mrs. Archibald G. Pike of East Pepperell, Mass.

Mrs. William P. Adams.

The death of Priscilla Manwaring, widow of William Pendleton Adams, occurred at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at her home, No. 174 Broadway.

Mrs. Adams celebrated her 92nd birthday on August 15, but about a week ago suffered a fall which resulted in a fractured hip and this terminated her useful life.

She was born in Essex, August 15, 1832, the daughter of Myrick and Lucy Manwaring. She received her education in the schools of her birthplace and some 60 years ago was united in marriage in New York with William P. Adams. Her husband died in 1895. Mrs. Adams had been a resident of Norwich for 45 years and had a wide circle of friends in the community. She was a member of Christ Episcopal church and in her earlier years she took an active part in church work. She was a woman of high ideals and one who will long be remembered in this locality. She is survived by one niece, Mrs. S. J. Hartshorn who lived with her, and by two nephews, Edwin S. and Samuel Hunt of Essex.

Mrs. Adams was one of the twenty-four survivors of the burning of the steamer City of New London in the Thames river off Poquetanuck Cove on the night of Nov. 22, 1871, when 17 lives were lost, including William T. Norton, Harry Aldrich and Mathias W. Baker, all of this city, the last named being first engineer of the boat. It is probable that she had outlived all the other survivors of that disaster.

At the time of her 90th birthday two years ago, Mrs. Adams related what she remembered of the fire on the steamer and the way she was rescued. She told the story as follows:

After the boat was discovered to be on fire, Mr. Norton took me onto the forward deck where Mr. Harvey met us. Another young man, Matthias W. Baker of Norwich, came up and put a life preserver on me. I lowered myself over the rail and stood on the side of the boat until Mr. Baker and the men with me made me jump, because the flames were already scorching our clothing and there was no other means for escape. I was in the water for one half an hour until rescued by Captain Smith and his mate, who carried me to the home of Captain Champlin on the west bank of the river. Here they did everything possible for my comfort, supplying me with clothing and necessities, for which I am deeply indebted. I saw no more of Mr. Norton after he left me on the upper deck, when Mr. Baker tied the life preserver on me and told me to jump, he jumped with me, saying before we jumped into the water, "I can't swim much, but with God's help I'll keep you up as long as I can." Mr. Baker was lost, having given me the only available life preserver on the boat.

His deed has no superior in the heroic deeds of history. Working at his post until impossible to remain he seized a life preserver and was safe. Seeing a lady on board with no visible means of support he took off his preserver and fastened it about me and then sprang into the water only to lose his life.

Mr. Norton, Mr. Rogers and Mr. Aldrich other passengers on board with me were seen no more, their bodies being found later by searching parties who scoured the river in hopes to find more survivors.

For many years Mrs. Adams kept the life preserver that no doubt brought her safely to shore, but she gave it to John H. Perkins, whose uncle lost his life in the wreck.

Henry Brayman.

Henry Brayman of No. 294 Laurel Hill avenue, died Thursday night at 5.30 o'clock in this city after an illness of a few days. He was born in Charlestown, R. I., 55 years ago and was the son of George and Mary Brayman. He lived in Westerly for some years but for the past 14 years had made his home in this city. He was a painter by trade and a member of Local No. 630 of the Central Union.

In Hopkinton City, R. I., 33 years ago, he was united in marriage to Lena Burdick, then of Westerly, who survives him. He attended the Central Baptist church. Besides his wife, Mr. Brayman leaves eight children, Bernice, Henry Jr., Esther, Jesse, Ethel, Joan and Peter Brayman, all of this city, Mrs. Mary Sinead, all of Norwich. There are four sisters, Mrs. Phebe Fecto, Wakefield, R. I., Mrs. Nellie Church, also of Wakefield, Mrs. Estelle DeWolf of Salem and Mrs. Jennie Moore of Hope Valley, and two brothers, Wallace Brayman of Wakefield, Stephen Brayman of Norwich and Daniel Brayman of Alton, N. H.

TWO HARVARD ATHLETES PLACED IN THE INFIRMARY

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 25. — Joe McGlone, varsity quarterback, was one of two Harvard undergraduates ordered to hospital today as diphtheria carriers. Henry Dunker, varsity track captain and football guard, was ordered in the infirmary Tuesday suffering from a mild attack of diphtheria.

Quarantined with McGlone today was Roger Magoun, '27, who has been employed at the Harvard A. A. Thomas Richards, physician in charge of the Harvard football squad, declared there was no reason to fear spread of the disease among the athletes. He said that steps already taken were merely precautionary.

Romance centered round the life of John Henry Blackburne, the famous chess player, who has just passed away in England at the age of 80. In his youth he was employed in a hosiery store, but was discharged because he overstayed his leave when chess-playing in London. He then devoted himself to his favorite game and when he toured the country his brilliance soon found reward, for he was hailed as a chess genius. While in his prime Blackburne met all the famous wizards of the board. Two years ago, when 80 years of age, he played twenty games simultaneously in London, winning nine, drawing ten, and being beaten in one by a woman.

I Never Burn My Skin

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I live in the sun and the wind in summer, but I never burn my skin. That is because the greatest of experts told me how to prevent it.

The sun is good for the skin—get all you can of it. Only certain rays—the ultra violet rays—do harm. Bar them out, and the sun will never burn.

Tan bars these rays, so tanned skins do not burn. But science has found a way to do this without changing the skin's color. It has found a substance, harmless and colorless, which bars out only those burning rays.

By my experts' advice I had that substance embodied in my Vanishing type of Youth Cream. I apply it before any exposure. After bathing I apply it again, for water removes it. I have never had sunburn, windburn, tan or freckles since my experts taught me this.

Now I am placing all my helps at every woman's call, and this one is among them. Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream is supplied by all druggists, all toilet counters. The Vanishing Type contains the substance which prevents sunburn. The cost is 60c per jar, and every jar carries my guarantee that it does what my experts claim. Also in 35c tubes. I promise you it will delight you.

I shall gladly mail you a trial tube. If you will send this coupon. Do that and see what it does.

JONES, OUIMET, MARSTON AND VON ELM REACH SEMI-FINALS IN AMATEUR GOLF

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 25.—(By the A. P.)—Two former national titleholders, the present amateur king and a former sectional champion who has long been a contender for the national honors are left in the national amateur golf tournament for the semi-finals tomorrow.

In the third round today, one former amateur champion, the present intercollegiate titleholder, and two former sectional champions were eliminated.

Robert T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, former open champion today defeated Rudolph E. Knepper, former Trans-Mississippi champion, by six and four.

In the semi-finals tomorrow Jones will play Francis Ouimet, former open and amateur champion, who today, defeated his fellow Bostonian, also a former amateur champion—Jesse P. Guilford. The score was four and three.

Forced to his hardest match of the tournament, Max R. Marston of Philadelphia, who is defending the national amateur crown, today defeated the intercollegiate champion, Dexter Cummings of Yale and Chicago. At Marston's request the score was officially recorded as two and one, although experts thought he won the last hole.

Tomorrow Marston will play George Von Elm of Los Angeles, former Trans-Mississippi champion, who today, by 7 and 6 eliminated E. H. Driggs, former New York state title holder.

Bobby Jones seems to be improving as the tournament ages. Today Rudy Knepper, three down after his morning round with Jones, started after his famed opponent right from the afternoon gun. Knepper shot the first five holes of the afternoon in two under par, by means of two birdies, and then was only one hole behind.

The putter that enabled him to win the play off in the qualifying round was working again after failing him in the morning. Knepper did the amazing thing of holding out on the last five afternoon holes by one putt on each green. Then he relapsed, and Jones, by shooting to the afternoon turn in 35, or one under par, had his opponent four down.

Wildness with wood and long irons then proved Knepper's undoing and he match ended shortly after he drove out of bounds from the 32nd tee. Knepper, choking all his clubs in contrast to most of the stars who grip at the end was never far behind Jones from the tee. His short approaches with irons were often better than the Atlanta star's.

Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford and their Boston rooters disliked immensely the draw that put them in the same half. They hated so much to defeat each other that they both putted poorly in contrast to their usual brilliancy in this department.

"Jesse, we ought to be in the second division," said Francis as they went to lunchall even. Guilford having had a medal of 81 and Ouimet 82, Ouimet was one up at the afternoon turn and then won three holes in succession, two of them because Guilford took three putts. Not even a close friend can spot Ouimet four holes with six left to play, and Francis regretfully took the hand of Jesse on the 33rd green after two par fours.

Weakness with a putter was Cummings undoing. His drives were as long as the champion's. Invariably his approaches were within Marston's cut with equal regularity he missed putts for wins or halves. Five down at the ninth, the Chicago boy shot par golf for seven of the second nine holes, going to lunch three down.

The breaks in the afternoon fell to Marston. His second on the 20th hole bounded out of bounds but hit a tree and returned to the fairway. Then he got a thirty-foot putt for a birdie four. A look to trouble on the short 21st lost him the hole, but he won the next when Cummings took three putts. Cummings captured the 24th hole with a birdie three and the 25th with par four when the champion mussed up five strokes in succession. Marston made it three up again with a birdie on the 26th.

They halved three holes, with Cummings fighting hard. Pleading to within a foot of the pin on the 415 yard thirtieth for another birdie he became two down and lost the next when he bunkered.

Over the 32nd green with his pitch he holed a forty foot clip for a birdie and the hole. The next two were halved.

Each took two shots to get on the short 35th. Failing to sink a long putt, Cummings conceded the hole and the match. Later Marston decided that he could not have sunk the short putt he would have needed for a par and requested that the hole be recorded as halved, making the score two and one.

George Von Elm, who has become one of the favorites of the gallery because of his good medal scores, did not do quite so well today, but did not need to. By shooting a 76 in the morning, only one stroke worse than the best medal of the day, made by Marston and Jones, the westerner had Eddie Driggs sit down when they went to lunch. Driggs was wild from the tee and through the green. He turned himself in the afternoon and by a succession of par fours cut Von Elm's lead to four holes at the turn. Then Von Elm proceeded to win three holes in a row, mostly with his putter, for the match.

WATERBURY WINS THIRD STRAIGHT FROM ORIOLES

Waterbury, Sept 25. (By the A. P.) Waterbury made a clean sweep of its three game series with Baltimore today by winning the third final game from the International league champions, 7 to 2. "Dutch" Ulrich on the mound for the Eastern league champions was effective throughout holding the invaders to five scattered hits. Bresnan alone accounted for the two runs scored by the invaders.

Thomas, pitching for the Orioles, was hit hard in spots, extra base hits swelled the Waterbury run total. Errors behind him also aided the Waterbury cause. Boley and Greenae combining a trio of misplays.

The batting of "Shorty" Long and Max Solomon, late of the New York Giants, battered the International leaguers into submission today. This pair accounted for five of Waterbury's eight hits and they were directly responsible for every run scored by the Brassos.

The Brassos have outclassed the Orioles in every way in the resent series, scoring 17 runs in the three games to our three for the visitors and playing better class baseball in the eight than their celebrated opponents.

The Waterbury team leaves tonight for Norfolk where they will engage the Richmond club, champions of the Virginia state league. Scores:

PITTSBURGH DROPS FROM NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE

New York, Sept. 25.—The Giants climbed from Pittsburgh from the National league race today and now need only two of their three remaining games with Philadelphia to clinch the pennant.

The Giants have 10 games scheduled in the National league where Washington is idle, a two- game lead over the Yankees and to clinch the pennant need to win three of their final four with Boston, even if New York cleans up the town with the fast traveling Athletics.

Brooklyn did not play today and the Giants increased their lead to one and one half contests over the Robins who, even by taking their two remaining games with Boston, can only win the flag if the Giants lose three with the Phillies. McGraw's team can tie Brooklyn by winning one of the three. Here Standing of the contenders.

FISHERMEN'S RACE TO BE SAILED NEXT YEAR

Gloucester, Mass., Sept. 25.—Indication that the American fishermen's race committee would abide by the decision of the trustees of the International fishermen's trophy in having no international schooner races this year, but to renew them in 1925, was given today by Wilmot Reed, chairman of the American committee. The American committee today received a telegram from Halifax, N. S., stating that the trustees believed the interests of the event would be best served by having no race this year and asked the cooperation of the American committee.

Mr. Reed said that he believed that, as a result of the telegram, the board would take no action relative to the renewal of the races pending receipt of further word from the Canadian trustees of the trophy. The telegram received stated that the trustees contemplate continuing the series in 1925. No reply has as yet been prepared by the committee here.

The race between the Gloucester schooner Columbia and the Canadian boat Blue Nose last year, the Canadian captain, Angus Walters, sailed away with the series unfinished after an unfavorable ruling by the judges. Sentiment had been growing here of late favoring a special match race between the two vessels in Gloucester waters in October for a purse.

"RABBIT" GETS PEEVED BY REMARKS OF FANS

New York, Sept. 25.—"Rabbit" Maranville, Pittsburgh second baseman, figured in a disturbance that marked the final game with the Giants today at the Polo Grounds.

Incensed by remarks directed at him by a fan behind the Pirate dugout, Maranville started into the stands at the close of the seventh inning. He was only restrained from reaching his objective by several of his team-mates. A squad of police arrived shortly afterward to prevent further disorder.

Soldier Jones, the Canadian heavyweight, is back in England looking for bouts.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham, New York Giants

Team in the field leads 6 to 1 in the eighth inning. Team at bat has a runner on first and another on third, and there is one out.

How should the infield play?

When the team in the field has a five run lead in the eighth inning, it should certainly play safe, and always make sure of one man. Therefore, the infield should play back. Then if the ball is hit hard to the infield, there is a possible chance of a double play. But the infield under these conditions should not make any unnecessary throws or take any unnecessary chances that may result in advancing runners on bases, otherwise the team at bat may stage a rally. Take your time and make throws accurately when you have a four or five run lead.

PHILLIES CLOSE HOME SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER CARDS

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—The Phillies closed their home season today by defeating St. Louis, 5 to 3. The visitors knocked Oeschger out of the box in the first inning, but were helpless against the hurling of Young Betts, who held them to four hits during the balance of the contest and twice fanned the mighty Hornsby. Shields held the Phillies in check until the eighth inning when Leach started a rally by lifting a homer out of the park. Two more runs crossed the plate before relief pitchers Stuart and Fowler could retire the side. Score

Rangers Play at South Manchester

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 25.—After losing its opening game of the season to the Scandia A. C. soccer eleven of Hartford last Sunday in the opening game of the new Connecticut league in this section of the state, the New London Rangers will furnish the opposition for the Manchester eleven at Manchester on Sunday. The game will mark the second Sunday of Connecticut soccer competition, and although the Manchester eleven were recognized leaders in this athletic line of endeavor last season, they are finding the going rather rough now.

GIANTS DISPOSE OF PIRATES AS CONTENDERS FOR NATIONAL PENNANT

New York, Sept. 25.—(By the A. P.)—The New York Gaints vanquished Pittsburgh for the third successive time today and advanced another step toward their fourth straight pennant on the wreck of Pirate hopes.

A crowd of 25,000 whose post-battle demonsration of enthusiasm left no doubt they considered McGraw's fourth straight flag as good as nailed to the mast, saw the fighting Giant clan batter out a 5 to 4 victory and crush beyond recall the last lingering chance of Pittsburgh in the National league race.

The Pirates, however, went down with colors flying in the ninth inning when with two out, they rallied and pulled up to within a run of the champions on Carney's home run drive, which scored Schmidt and Moore ahead of him.

But Art Nehf, veteran Giant southpaw, who had outpitched his portside rival, Wilbur Cooper, and put his team in the lead with a homer in the fifth, checked the belated rally abruptly by striking out "Kiki" Cuyler brilliant Pirate outfielder, for the second time.

By making a clean sweep of the series the Giants increased their margin over the Pirates to four and a half games. Since the champions have only three games more to play, they cannot be overhauled by Pittsburgh, even if the latter won all its remaining five games.

Brooklyn is now the only obstacle in the path of McGraw's fight to hang up a record pennant string for Modern baseball history. The Robins were idle today, so the champions stretched their margin over Robinson's crew to one and a half games. By winning two out of the remaining three with Philadelphia, McGraw can clinch the flag, even if Brooklyn wins its remaining two with Boston.

The Giants looked far more superior to Pittsburgh in the final game than the score indicates, for until their belated spurt in the ninth, the Pirates were held in check by Nehf. The invaders made only six hits off the diminutive southpaw until the ninth and they were scattered in as many innings. Their only run in that span came in the fourth when the Giants' makeshift inner defense cracked momentarily and Traynor, singling with two out, scored on successive errors by Lindstrom and Kelly.

Barnhart, batting for Grimm, opened the ninth with a single. he was forced by Schmidt and Cooper popped out, but Moore also singled and then Carney caught one of Nehf's inshoots and lofted it into the upper section of the left field stands.

Previously the Giants had rolled up a commanding lead, homers by Meusel in the fourth and Nehf in the fifth put the champions in the lead, but it still was a tight duel between the in the seventh, when the Giants scorrival south paws until Cooper cracked ed three runs after two were out and gained what proved the deciding margin.

With one out, Gowdy doubled and Nehf walked in the seventh. Lindstrom forced Nehf, Gowdy going to third, but Ross Young came through in the pinch with a slashing double to left center, that sent Gowdy and Lindstrom over the plate. Young scored a moment later when Carney stumbled going after Kelly's fly to short center and the blow went for a single.

The Pirates missed several good chances to score, especially in the sixth, when Cuyler walked and Traynor clouted one of his three singles, but three in field outs in succession stopped the rally. The score:

Moosup started strong swamping the locals by 51 pins in the first string but fell down in the second and the Aetna breezed in ten pins to the good. Moosup in the last and final string after a poor start pinned along and with the aid of a spare or two won out by 32 pins. The scores:

CHAPMAN TECH MAY NOT GET INTO ACTION SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 25.—It is doubtful whether the Chapman Technical High school eleven will open its 1924 grid season on this Saturday afternoon as planned. A game which was presumably definitely arranged with Plainfield High school fell through for some reason or other. Almost the same circumstances surrounding the game pending with Pomfret, but this game as well as the contest with Plainfield also fell through. However the Tech manager is hard at work attempting to schedule a team to oppose the Red and Black on the open date.

There is still a slight hope that St. Thomas' Seminary at Hartford will give the locals their first opposition of the year. This game if not arranged is the last hope for an opening game being effected, and word to that effect either way will be announced tomorrow. Meanwhile a game is being looked for to open the season for the first team, the freshman and sophomore elevens will take the field against each other in the annual field day between these two classes at the local institution. Much enthusiasm is being manifested in this coming game and it will be the center of attraction on Friday.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

APPLE BARREL GOOD CABBAGE CONTAINER

An apple barrel buried in the ground so that it will rest in a slanting position makes a good container for the late crop of cabbage. A cover for the top of the barrel will be required. The entrance should be trimmed and carefully packed in the barrel. The cabbages, be put in place and a small amount of soil thrown against it to shut out the heat. Leaves, straw or grass also provide good insulation. If the barrel is well covered, there is no reason why the cabbage stored in it will not keep all winter.

Where a large amount of cabbages is to be stored, and there are no storage houses, burying in the open ground has been found satisfactory. Dig a ditch about 1 foot deep and 3 feet wide in a well drained location. The length of the ditch will depend upon the number of cabbages to be stored.

The cabbage should be harvested with the root and leaves attached. In placing it in the ditch, the outside leaves should be folded about the head and the plant placed upside down with the roots in the air.

Three or four rows of cabbages may be placed in the bottom of the trench. It is best to first line the trench with a layer of straw or leaves. As soon as the cabbages have been firmly packed they should be covered with soil to a depth of six or eight inches. As the weather gets colder, soil should be added to prevent freezing.

It is best not to store cabbage until almost time for freezing weather. In many sections this may not be until well past the middle of November.

GOOD POINTS ON FATTENING BEEF CALVES

During recent years livestock markets have experienced a constantly increasing demand for well-fattened beef animals weighing from 800 to 1200 pounds and this demand, says the United States Department of Agriculture must necessarily be supplied by beeves from 12 to 20 months old. The fattening of this class of beeves requires more skill than is necessary in the production of animals marketed at more mature ages, on account of their tendency to grow rather than to fatten.

The various phases of the problem of fattening calves for market is dealt with in Farmers' Bulletin 1416, Fattening Beef Calves, just issued by the United States department of agriculture, including discussion on how to procure calves to be fattened as yearlings, type of calves suitable for fattening, breeds suitable, importance of good cows and bulls, management of the farm breeding herd, differences in methods of feeding fall and spring calves, feeding the calf from birth to weaning time, dehorning, castration, vaccination, equipment and shelter, and marketing.

Unless the cows in the herd are exceptional milkers, calves intended for fat yearlings should be started on corn, kafir, milo, barley, wheat, or oats, when from 4 to 6 weeks old, says the bulletin. Nothing so stimulates the growth and early maturity as milk fresh from the dam, but in all cases calves should be fed liberally on grain for at least one month before weaning time. Every effort should be made to get the calves through the weaning period without loss or their baby fat. The grain ration should be increased so as to permit as little change in their rate of growth and fattening as possible.

Some feeders build "creeps" in the pastures or lots so that the calves can get their grain without disturbance by the cows. Creeps consist of small pens with openings which permit only the calves to enter. These openings may have rollers on each side to prevent bruising the calves.

Calves from heavy-milking cows should be weaned gradually. If they are running with the cows the weaning should be begun by keeping them up and allowing them to suck only twice each day for five or six days, after which they should be allowed to suck but once each day for a similar period. Then one day's sucking may be omitted, and later two days. Thus the entire weaning take 10 to 15 days. The calves of cows giving little milk should be weaned abruptly by separating them as far as possible.

Fall calves should not be weaned until after the cows and calves are on grass. Spring calves should either be kept after weaning in the fall or be given some succulent feed, such as silage. It is advisable to provide them with winter pasture, such as wheat, oats, rye, or barley, when soil and climatic conditions permit.

CLEAN, DARK NEST IS NEEDED FOR POULTRY

A clean nest and a dark one are essential requisites for profit in the poultry business. Many do not realize it, but a number of people fail to secure a good profit in this business because they overlook one fact. If the nest is dirty the eggs will be dirty. If the eggs are dirty they must be sold as dirty or cracked eggs. This means, many times, 20 cents per dozen less than fresh, clean eggs. If they are dirty in the hatching season, a lower percentage hatch results, or many good fertile eggs will not be able to go into the incubator.

Besides being clean, the nest must also be dark. Hens will not usually eat eggs if their nests are sufficiently darkened, and generally speaking, egg eaters are found where the nests are brightly lighted.

To darken the nest one only needs to make an opening at the rear of the nest and to cover the front. Birds prefer to go to a dark place to lay; consequently, there will be less eggs laid on the floor, and thus less chance for an egg to be broken in the open. In this way the birds will not have the temptation to eat the eggs that they otherwise would.

MORE FARMERS USING RADIO

Rapid increase in the use of radio during the past year is shown in a special survey made by the United States department of agriculture. It is estimated that there are now more than 370,000 radio sets in use on farms as compared with 145,000 a year ago.

The survey was made among county agricultural agents. Reports from 833 county agents placed the aggregate number of radio sets in their counties at 108,710, or an average of 130 sets per county. Projecting the average of 130 per county for all of the 2,856 agricultural counties in the United States yields an estimate of 370,500 radio sets in use on farms throughout the country as a whole, as compared with a similar estimate of 145,350 sets a year ago.

Te radio market news service of the United States department of agriculture has been developed rapidly during the past three years until now it is possible for farmers in practically all parts of the country to receive daily market quotations and reports on agricultural conditions.

FALL PLOWING HELP TO SOIL

There are never dull days on the farm when the farmer can really say that he has little or nothing to do. The fall, after the harvest, instead of meaning a slackening of activity on the up to date farm means a multitude of duties in preparation for another year of successful tilling of the soil.

In the first place there is fall plowing to be done. This has long been recognized as good farm practice and, of course, can be continued until the ground freezes. The benefits of this practise are many, in that it renews to some extent the fertility of the soil for next year's crop. It provides a much easier ground for working in the spring, permitting early crops to be planted at once. It also has the advantage of destroying many grubs and soil insects which are notorious crop destroyers.

In regard to this plowing, the farmer should not lose sight of the fact that spring green feeds should be sown at once so that it will make a stand sufficient to protect the roots through the winter. They will find that the seeding at this time of winter rye and winter wheat will give them their two first crop for the spring, as well as providing a cover crop for some land which has been newly turned over this fall.

On days when fall plowing is not possible a few hours devoted to pruning the cane berries will save considerable time in the busy spring season. Likewise, pruning in the orchard of its broken branches and diseased limbs which have developed during the current season means easier work in the spring pruning season.

Silage corn will naturally be left for cutting until the first frosts occur. It often saves a delay if the silo is prepared ahead of time by scraping the inner walls free of all old silage and tightening the rods and making any other small repairs necessary.

AMERICAN WOOLEN CO. SHOWS FABRICS FROM 20 MILLS

Reductions on worsteds ranging up to 13½ per cent. and the pricing of woolens on a basis lower than was anticipated were the features of the opening this week of its women's wear fabrics for next spring by the American Woolen Company, with mills in Norwich and Moosup. Owing to the strength of raw wool in world markets the prices made were considered surprising. The line is one of the largest the company has shown for a spring season. The fabrics, which are highly varied in color and pattern are the product of twenty mills of the American organization.

Emphasis in the line is strongly directed to cloths calculated to sell in volume from the standpoint of price and fabric attractiveness. It is very strong numerically in polaires, chinchillas, and velours, new effects having been worked out that are held remarkable in cloths selling within their price limits. The range of "sheen" and staple twills is wide. Flannels form a most important division, the expectation being that their popularity will continue marked.

Suede duvetyns, the suede finished cloth type now leading for the more expensive garments, are outstanding features and form the highest priced group in the line, their prices ranging up to $6. The company is again showing pile sheen coatings of the bolivia type, reiterating its confidence in them as staples. They are priced lower than for the last spring season, but slightly above the stock prices recently prevailing. Border effects are outstanding in the leading sports coatings.

ATLANTIC BEACH TROLLEY HAS CEASED OPERATION

After having given service for the past twenty years, the trolleys on the Atlantic Beach branch of the Shore Line Electric Co., made their last trips last week and the work of junking the line will be started within a short time. On the 11.15 car out of Atantic Beach Friday night, the final trip over the line, not a single passenger was on board, quite a different situation from 20 years ago when the first car was packed with passengers who wanted to have the honor of taking the first ride along the route.

The Atlantic Beach line was originally a part of the Western Connecticut Street Railway Co., who secured a franchise to run cars from Pleasant street to the resort. This Western Connecticut company later became the Norwich and Westerly Traction Co. It was at first planned to run cars to Atlantic Beach by way of Granite street and the post road but later arrangements were made with the Pawcatuck Valley Street Railway Co., to run over the tracks of that company to Dock's switch. From this point, the line to Atlantic Beach was built by the Norwich and Westerly Co.

About 1907, all the local lines were consolidated into the Shore Line Electric Co., and the Atlantic Beach branch has been operated by that company since then.

The patrons of the Watch Hill line still have a few more days of trolley service, as this branch will not be closed until Saturday night.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Little Miss Mousie

"Listen!" whispered dear Uncle Lucky, as the sweet voice I mentioned in the last story ceased singing.

"Who can it be?" asked the bunny boy softly.

All of a sudden, the sweet voice began again:

"If a bunny met a fairy
Coming through the wood
Would the bunny think it funny
If she wore a hood?"

The next minute out from behind the tall fern jumped Little Miss Mousie, a pretty pink hood almost hiding her bonnie bobbed hair.

"Well, well!" cried Uncle Lucky, "here's my good little fairy. Everybody is not so lucky to have a little fairy in his home," and leaning down, he helped his tiny housekeeper into the Luckymobile. "Sit between Little Jack Rabbit and me," he said, "there's plenty of room for your pretty bobbed head." My goodness, how poetic dear Uncle Lucky gets when Little Miss Mousie is around. Or, maybe and perhaps, it was because he was looking for a fairy and found her instead.

"Where have you been?" asked the bunny boy, as Uncle Lucky steered the Luckymboile up the winding trial from the glen, through the Shady Forest, till he reached the road to Rabbitville.

"Just making a call on my cousin Miss Wood Mouse," answered Little Miss Mousie. "She has such a cute little bungalow."

"As pretty as our little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street?" asked anxious Uncle Lucky.

"No, no, three times," answered Little Miss Mousie, resting her bobbed head on Uncle Lucky's arm. "But it's very safe and comfortable. It was an old nest in a tall bush, but she roofed it over and made a little round doorway on the under side. She once lived in a hollow in a dead limb of a tall tree, but so much climbing upstairs tired her, so she picked out this old birds nest and made it into a nice bungalow."

"Very clever of her," said the old gentleman rabbit, "shall we stop at the Three-in-One Cent store for anything?"

"Oh, yes," answered Little Miss Mousie quickly, "I need a new potato masher. The Old Red Rooster split ours driving a peg in the clothespole."

"Well, we'll wait here while you choose one," said the old gentleman rabbit, lighting one of his famous cabbage leaf cigars. So into the Three-in-One-Cent store tripped his tiny mouse housekeeper, and while dear Uncle Lucky contentedly smoked and the bunny boy sucked a pink lollypop, she also bought a surprise for each of them. Then out she ran, the potato masher under her arm and two small packages in her hand.

"What did you buy two little new potatoes?" asked smiling Uncle Lucky chucking her under the chin that dimpled just over a bright diamond pin.

But what his pretty mouse housekeeper answered you must wait to hear in the next story.

There was an attendance of 26 at the meeting of the Garden club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Odell D. Tompkins on Pequot avenue. Mrs. Louis P. Allyn, the president, presided, and an outline of the proposed work on Baptist Hill was given by Mrs. Allyn. It is intended to begin the work on the hill this fall as soon as conditions there will permit. As much as possible will be done before cold weather, and the rest will be completed in the spring. The funds in hand and pledged for the work including the proceeds of $75 from the recent cake and candy sale and whist, amount to about $260, but it will doubtless require an amount in excess of this to carry out the work planned. An interesting article relative to "Lily Pools" was read by Mrs. Mark D. Stiles. Several poems relative to gardens were read by Mrs. L. P. Allyn. Miss Joanna Barnet read a timely article on Autumn Flowers, and Mrs. Esther Copp Smith read an article on Bird Sanctuaries.

Following the program there was an exchange of seeds and plants, an excellent assortment of seeds having been assembled by the members.

The next meeting of the club is to be held at the home of Mrs. George S. B. Leonard, at which time an exhibit of seeds, seedpods, etc., will be held, and prizes will be awarded for the best specimens, collections and arrangement.

The reports of officers and committees were read, the report of the secretary, Mrs. James E. F. SUFFERED FIVE YEARS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE

Rochester Man Says Tanlac Brought Relief

"What it takes to give a man muscle and strength to stand hard work, Tanlac certainly has it," recently affirmed Samuel Cooper, a well-known blacksmith, 1520 Lake Ave., Rochester, N. Y.

"Stomach trouble had caused me misery for five years. After meals especially I would almost double up with pain. I was also subject to bad dizzy spells and headaches that would hang on for days at a time. Nervousness and loss of sleep helped to drag me down and I felt tired out all the time.

"I have taken three bottles of Tanlac now and am feeling like a brand new man. In fact, my health is fine and I can say that Tanlac certainly does the work."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation; made and recommended by the manufacturers of Tanlac.

DOVETAILING FARM AND FACTORY LABOR

(Written specially for The Bulletin)

Can farm labor and factory labor ever be dovetailed in such a way as to benefit both?

That may seem to some like a purely academic question and of no practical moment. It may strike others as perhaps absurd on its face.

But let's you and I go off, half-cock. We are not, you and I, the only ones whose eyes are so keen they can see through a millstone where the hole is drilled. We like to look things over and look at all sides of them, about at different angles, with them made, different things, perhaps test them with a little or our own special acid before we decide whether they're chunks of fools' gold or the real thing.

Here's the country fenced off into ten or seven millions farms, on which the farmers can't work more than four or five months a year at their chief business, that of producing crops. They can't plow or seed or plant when the ground is frozen three feet deep and covered with a crust or snow. They have to work like the Old Scratch about a third of the year and then wait the other two thirds for the frost to thaw out and the ground to dry up, so they can do it again.

During that two-thirds of the year, they are sometimes rather "put to it" to find profitable occupation. During the other one-third they can't rake, scrape, borrow or hire help enough to do the work that needs doing.

On the other side are miles and miles of factories and shops, which alternate between busy seasons when they can't turn out as many goods as the market calls for, and dull seasons when they pile up surplus goods which the market doesn't want and won't take. Many of them run at such seasons on half or one-third time, and do that, not because it pays, but in order to give some work to operatives and hold them for the opening of another hoped-for busy season. I have read of factories running at full speed twenty-four hours a day and unable to get all the help they could then profitably use. I have also read of factories running at full speed or only three days a week more for the sake of tiding over operatives than for any other reason.

You'll observe, if you're half as "no- ticing" as I thank you are, that here are two industry, both needing help as they can get in their driving times, and both having more help than they can use in their slack periods.

Both are handicapped by the limitations of their own functions. The farmer can't work all the year 'round because the climate won't let him. The factory doesn't want to work all the year 'round because part of the time the market is closed, and work is unprofitable.

Looking at the situation purely from a theoretical standpoint, no one will deny that it would be a good thing for all concerned if the idling winter farmers could have an opportunity to do remunerative work at those seasons when they can't do anything on their farms. Likewise, it would be a similarly good thing if the factory operatives who are laid off part or all the time by manufacturing depressions could be given opportunity to earn something instead of idling.

If, for instance, the farmer, when his crops are all garnered and his year's fuel all cut, could find three or four months' work in a factory, he would at least be earning his way at a time when, as things are now, he is steadily drawing on his reserve. If, similarly, the factory operative, when a recession of business compels the factory to restrict its output, could find work for a few months on the farm, he, too, would be paying his way, instead of having to draw on his scanted pay.

Theoretically, some such arrange- ment would be a good thing, wouldn't it? It would be an amazing help to at least four classes of people; the farmers whose present production is sadly restricted by their inability to get help in the summer — the factory operatives whose total annual earnings are sometimes sadly reduced by the necessity of knocking off work to let the market recover its tone;—the factory owners whose justifiable profits are reduced by their inability to get sufficient labor in a busy season and by the moral compulsion resting on them to find at least some modicum of work for their employees when all work is unprofitable;—and the great consuming public, which, with some such automatic regulatory governor in effect, would find the markets in which it buys vastly steadier and more to be depended on.

So much for the idea, purely as a theory. A much more important question is whether it would work in practice. And that question can never be answered by argument alone. It must be tested by actual exchanges such as have been suggested. There are lots and lots of ideas which shine out like new revelations when put on paper, but fizzle out most ingloriously when subjected to the strains of everyday practice. Perhaps this is one such. But two or three incidents have come to my notice, at one time and another, which lead me to think such a scheme is actually practicable, to some extent and in some cases, at least.

I suspect a good deal will depend on the character of the farmers and factory operatives involved, and the thrift they are willing to use.

Some years ago, I was driving with the owner of a small Connecticut shop about eight miles from that shop. We passed a tidy little house, set in a glowing garden and surrounded by several acres of manifestly superior crops. The shop-owner called my attention to it. "The man who lives there," he said, "works in my shop. travels the eight miles to and from, every day. He has been working for me twenty years, and only once in all that time has been late of a morning. That was when a furious snow-storm delayed him. As the storm was bad enough to delay railroad traffic, I couldn't seem to find him to blame. He takes advantage of light at his command during the summer time to work on his place. When the shop is running light we always see that he is one of the first let off for a week or a month, as the case may be. He has bought and paid for that place, has made it what you see, gets practically all his living supplies off it, and has a good nest egg in the savings bank, in readiness for the time when age will prevent him from working."

I know that I have told you of my own neighbor who worked as barnhand for a big farmer all his life at wages never exceeding $300 a year, and who bought and paid for his home, and left a snug bank account at his death. He, too, took fullest advantage of all the scant leisure allowed him and of all the day "off" occasionally granted. He made his little place practically support him, and was able to invest nearly all his wages, month by month.

But by far the most significant item which I have to report in this connection is a recent development of one of Henry Ford's pet ideas. Now, I am not a Ford worshiper. He once said that all history was "bunk," and I'm inclined to think that some of his notions are pretty close to "bunk." But a man who, by sheer force of will and native ability, can raise from the bench of a seven by nine shop to the position of the greatest capitalist in America must have some gray matter in his brain-pan.

Mr. Ford is convinced that the city in this country has become top-heavy and is about doomed. The costs of keeping up a big city more than outweigh its advantages, in his opinion. At the same time, he thinks he foresees a constant growth of industry, manufacturing industry, if you please. Only, instead of bringing the man from the country to do the work, he sees the work taken out into the country. Listen to this:

"It is nonsense to say that because the cities are overcrowded everybody ought to move to the farm. There must be a balance between the two. The farm has its dull season, when the farmer can come into the factory, and the factory has its dull season when the workmen can get out on the land to help produce food. Transportation is the connecting link."

Mr. Ford has done more than think this out: he has made a start at doing it. On the River Rouge, which once turned a few mill-wheels to grind local grists, he has opened up four new plants for making certain minor parts of the automobile. All are in the small country villages employing from eleven to 380 men and girls. Take one as an illustration. The hamlet consists of fourteen houses and the plant employes eleven men. They are the same men who lived there before the plant was established. During the summer these men work in the shop four days a week. This enables them to attend to much of their former farm work. They were and are all small farmers, with from six to twenty-two acres. When one's hay is suffering for attention, he has no difficulty in getting one or two or three days "off" to attend to it. One raises berries and takes his off days in such order as to enable him to keep them picked and sold. In every case the wife has all the green vegetables she needs, right at her hand, and the children have the turf and woods to play in instead of alley sidewalks. Said one of the workmen to a questioner:

"I used to commute all the way from Northville to Detroit. Now instead of hanging to a strap twice a day, I walk across the street to work."

The workmen are nearly all mar- ried men who own their own homes and are with the shops the year 'round. Thus they become competent and skilled workmen. In a big city shop where more transient labor has to be employed the losses in training green hands are considerable.

The cost of parts made in these small, out-of-town shops has actually been cut from eighteen to fifty per cent by the improvement in work conditions and the more efficient performance of skilled and reliable workmen.

Now, as we have all heard and said many times, one swallow doesn't make a summer. But there are at least three things in this River Rouge tryout of Ford's which are worth thinking over, in view of the possibility of more swallows flying up.

First: Manufacturing and small farming have, in actual fact, been dovetailed together in such a way as to give the farmer an earning opportunity for all the year, without wholly abondoning his farm.

Second: It has resulted in the development of a more skilled and more efficient as well as more reliable sort of workmen.

Third: It has reduced manufacturing costs. This, anyway, ought to appeal to employing manufacturers.

Last but by no means least, it has restored to beneficent productiveness one small portion of that free water-power which is now going to wicked waste by millions of horse-power units all over the country.

PHILIP Z. HANKEY, NEW LONDON, HAS HAT IN RING FOR LAW DIRECTOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 25.—It became known today that Attorney Philip Z. Hankey is seeking the office of director of law, a position within the gift of the city council, which body, it is expected, will make the appointment at the meeting of the city council to take place the first Monday in October, at the first sitting of the newly elected members of the council. Attorney Hankey, it is known has the support of at least two members of the old council already. Attorney Frank L. McGuire is the present director of law and is seeking reappointment. Mr. Hankey was corporation counsel under the former municipal government and held the office of director of law under the present city government several weeks until Attorney McGuire received the appointment which he has held ever since.

The officers of Seaside Council, No. 17, Knights of Columbus, were installed at a meeting held in the rooms of the organization last evening, the installation officer being District Deputy Timothy J. Sullivan. The officers installed were: Grand knight, John J. Daly; deputy grand knight, Hubert W. Ryan; chancellor, Edward A. Dondero; financial secretary, Charles F. Cremins; recording secretary, Joseph N. Cranker; warden, Cornelius D. Lynch; treasurer, David P. Congdon; trustees for three years, Joseph J. Gaffney; trustee for one year, Michael L. O'Connell; advocate, John C. Geary; inside guard, James H. McIntinch; outside guard, Mortimer Duggan. At a business meeting following the installation, Grand Knight John J. Daly and Past Grand Knight, Joseph N. Cranker were elected delegates to the state convention and Past Grand Knights Michael L. O'Connell and Harry J. Kennedy were elected alternates.

Mrs. Ida Williams, 410 Pequot avenue, who sustained injuries two weeks ago by being struck by an automobile near her home, and Mrs. Charles Wilcox, 93 Hempstead street, were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital today.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil D. Spicer, Colver street, spent today in New Haven. They made the trip by automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Sherman have returned to their home, Federal street, having spent a fortnight at Brown's Camp, Kevar Lake, Center Lovell, Me. The trip was made by automobile.

Mrs. E. D. White of Washington, widow of Chief Justice White, closed her summer home, the Varicle cottage, Ocean and Glenwood avenues, today and went to New York.

Patrick Fegarty, found partially asphyxiated at his home, 58 Jay street, last Sunday, is reported today at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital as being slightly improved.

The young lady struck by an automobile owned and driven by Thomas Ragonese, 35 Truman street, at the junction of Bank and Truman streets last evening, was Miss Nora Sullivan, Warren street. She sustained severe bruises and contusions.

The fire department was called out this forenoon in response to a still alarm for a blaze at the residence of Francis De Gange, 28 Ocean avenue. The fire was on the roof and was quickly extinguished by the live use of chemicals and without damage of consequence. It is believed that the blaze originated from sparks falling upon the shingles for the fire was located close to the chimney.

Joseph Catalono, about 50, residing on his farm on Bayonet street extension, was fatally injured this noon when he was run over by his own team, sustaining injuries which resulted in his death at Home Memorial hospital.

Catalono had been engaged in farm work the entire day and used his team. Shortly after noon the horse took fright and started to run away. Catalono was nearby and running to the team, tried to board it in order to attempt to bring the frightened animal under control. As Catalono endeavored to climb to the seat the horse was gaining speed and the jolting of the heavy wagon caused Catalono to slip and fall. He landed in front of the wheel and the heavy vehicle passed over his chest between the shoulders and abdomen, crushing several ribs and producing a puncture of the lungs. Catalono was rushed to the hospital where he died within an hour.

Alexander Moutran, owner of the building at 153 Main street, occupied as residences and by stores, believes that an attempt was made early this morning to destroy the building by fire, although the police declare that the blaze was started by a careless cigarette smoker. Early this morning a cloud of smoke was observed issuing from the building and an investigation revealed that a young man until recently employed in a restaurant on the ground floor, was occupying the room and that some of the bedding was afire. The fire was subdued without material damage. Moutran reported his suspicion to the police and Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith learned that the former restaurant employe had not undressed when he went to the house last night and early this morning while lying on the bed had started smoking. The young man fell asleep and the cigarette dropped on the bed browning, causing the fire. Moutran declared that when the young man was discharged a few days ago he threatened that he would damage the building before he left the city.

Mrs. Mary Caracausa, 41, wife of Joseph Caracausa, died from heart disease at her home on Ocean avenue this morning. She and her husband had worked hard to get the home they finally possessed, he as a fruit dealer for several years and later as a farmer, and she as his associate in the store they had on State street. They acquired a large house in Starr street and later bought property on Main street. They persisted and worked on with the incentive of success just ahead. Then Mr. Caracausa became ill. But they did not let ambition desert them and they had their home and their farm. Two children, a boy and a girl, with their father survive the mother.

Passers along Bank street this morning at 9 o'clock, when the Allen Hook and Ladder company apparatus and that of the Niagara company were called out to subdue a slight fire at the residence of Francis Degange, on Ocean avenue, commented on the get away the truck made at the sound of the gong in the Allen house. The big apparatus rolled down past the Niagara house a minute before the big pumper was rushed into the highway with the dog yelling at the wheels. "Fat" Riley was on the seat of the truck and with arms spread he resembled a balloon floating down the street and banging the bell as the truck made its way through traffice on the road. The apparatus attracted a gallery of observers but it did not stay in sight but a scant minute for it was in a hurry. No other human being occupied the truck as it sped along on its errand of duty.

Miss Dora Snitkin, of Cutler street, Cecil Duerr, Mystic, Miss Margaret Hodgkins, Long Meadow, Mass.; Marion Winnicki, Winthrop street, and Miss Helen Nagle, Montauk avenue, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Darrow, of Ocean avenue, are spending a few days at Atlantic City.

Dr. Charles Kaufman, Montauk avenue, and Dr. Alfred Labensky of Blinman street, are spending several day in New York.

Willis A. Jones, 8, Ocean avenue, complained to the police this morning that youths, students at Nameaug school, have started their annual practice of destroying his fruit trees. He has requested that the acts of the boys be stopped.

Patrolman Howard Sloan early this morning discovered that entrance had been gained yesterday or last night to the office and bath houses at Butler's Beach, Pequot avenue. Entrance to the office was gained by using a duplicate key, the key being found in the lock and several windows of the structure were smashed. It is believed that the break is the work of boys.

The work of relaying the sidewalks on the east side of Bank street, below Howard, has progressed to a point nearly to Division street and by Saturday night will have been completed to that point. It is said that some owners of property in front of which sidewalks have been laid will refuse to pay for the work, on the plea that they are not compelled to go to the expense of new walks inasmuch as they have once laid walks and that is all that the law compels them to do. The walks are a positive benefit to all who use them as well as to the property which they are in front of. The same work needs to be done on the west side of the street.

All the department heads in the city are preparing their annual report now for the fiscal year ends with the first of October and they must render an accounting at that time.

Building is said to have been very slow in this city during the past year, but at that the building inspector declares that there has been more work thus far in 1924 than there was in 1923. There have been many garages built and additions and alterations made to buildings and this has added to the total of construction. There has been very little construction in brick work, however.

The police signal showing a light on Montauk avenue, at Willetts avenue, is again out of order as it has been much of the time for many months. The light flashes on whenever the street cars pass the corner and officers go there only to discover that the signal is out of order and that their services are not wanted. A small outlay would put the light in order, but that outlay does not seem to be made.

City Manager Holt, who has been absent from the city the past week in attendance upon a convention of city managers at Montreal, will return to New London Saturday.

Miss Lina Beckwith, who claimed that the city had taxed her on land that she did not own at the time the tax was levied and who declared in a letter to the council that she was "robbed" by the city, has not yet secured a settlement of her alleged claim. She is persistent in her efforts but the city authorities are not anxious to meet Miss Beckwith and adjust the matter to her liking.

The Hollandersky brothers seem to have reached the conclusion that they will demolish the so-called Rodewald building on Bank street and erect there a new structure that will be built in conformity with the fire regulations of the city. The Hollanderskys were in a discussion with the council for a long time, more than six months, during which period the building has had no revenue. Now they are demolishing the structure from the rear and will erect an up-to-date building there, it is said.

Following the selling of his home on Ocean avenue, a fortnight ago, William Schmauk, former treasurer of the P. Schwartz company, who became entangled in financial troubles several months ago, has moved with his family to New Bedford. The house was purchased by Francis De-Gabge. As a result of his financial troubles Schmauk is now at liberty on bail for appearance in the superior court on charges of forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses. Schmauk, it is alleged, diverted funds of the Schwartz company to his own use and also forged the name of P. Schwartz to a note for $600, which was negotiated by the New London City National bank. Schmauk is well known here and for a number of years prior to associating himself with the P. Schwartz company was a salesman in the employ of the James Hislop company.

Night fishing has become popular with local fishermen and almost every evening from the approach of sundown until 10 or 11 o'clock a score or more handlers of the rod can be observed at the municipal pier fishing for mackerel. Within a few days the fish have refrained from biting during the day, but with the night season appearing they are captured aplenty.

William Cole was turned over to the police this evening by Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, when Cole appeared, in an intoxicated condition, at the B. F. Learned mission, of which Mr. Mansfield is superintendent. Cole was locked up and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

An automobile owned and operated by Mander Payer, 168 Howard street, in passing through Montauk avenue this afternoon run down a cyclist, Roland Gorton, 123 Montauk avenue, near the residence of the cyclist. The wheel was smashed but Gorton escaped injury other than minor bruises.

A class of candidates was initiated this evening at a regular meeting of the Daughters of Pocahontas in the lodge room of the order, Odd Fellows building, Bank street.

Patrolman Michael Dorsey is absent from duty on the night force, being confined to his home as a result of a severe cold.

A settlement of the controversy between the 100 weavers in the employ of the Edward Bloom Silk company, Garfield avenue, and the management of the plant over a demand by the weavers for an increase in wages of three cents per yard, which resulted in a strike there a week ago, is no nearer a settlement today than when the strike occurred, although it is believed that the matter will be adjusted by next Monday. The wage question is in the hands of a committee representing the strikers and a compromise will probably be effected within a day or two. Edward Bloom, president of the company, who came to New London from Paterson, N. J., several days ago in an endeavor to settle the dispute, has returned home.

Good fishermen know when and where to draw the line.

"No matter where located—to get quick relief from the agony rub on penetrating Joint-Ease," says a New England chemist.

Of course, Joint-Ease is the one great external remedy for inflamed, swollen, stiff joints in ankle, knee, hip, shoulder, fingers or spine, and for that purpose its sale is tremendous.

But its power to give almost instant relief in neuralgia, neuritis and lumbago is becoming better known every day—Soaks right in with a minute's rubbing and it is very penetrating—A tube for 60 cents at Lee & Osgood or any real druggist anywhere.

WOMEN A BUNDLE OF NERVES.

"Everything irritates me—I am a bundle of nerves, I ache all over and cannot sleep and am so despondent." This extract from a letter written from one woman to another describes the condition of many women who suffer from feminine ailments. Nothing will relieve this distressing condition so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from roots and herbs. For fifty years it has been restoring sick and ailing women of America to health and strength.

Does Disease Prevention Pay?

That disease prevention more than pays for itself is exemplified in a recent statement from a Connecticut town of a population of about 5,000, acording to the state department of health. In 1902 this town had an epidemic of smallpox, due largely to the fact that its people were not protected by vaccination. This smallpox epidemic cost the town $4,400. In more recent years the people of the town have learned the lesson of wisdom. They have been taught the safety of vaccination as a protection against smallpox. They have swung into line with other [illegible] towns to protect [illegible] against disease.

In [illegible] contrasted prosperously [illegible] town $74,56[illegible] [illegible] each child attending [illegible] voluntarily for vaccination [illegible] that progress in [illegible] ing the lines of disease prevention [illegible] that the town [illegible] appreciates the fact that it costs far less to protect its citizens than to cure them after disease overtakes them.

When all the towns in the state adopt progressive health measures to protect against disease Connecticut will not only have a healthier people, but will appreciate the economic value of reducing [illegible] sick and saving lives.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Sept. 25.—Stock prices moved irregularly lower in today's market under a large volume of profit-taking sales. The recent reduction in the short interest had left many stocks vulnerable to selling pressure, although good buying was provided when prices approached their recent resistance points.

Apparently little attention was paid to the bullish trade news, which included the publication of record-breaking car loading statistics for the week ended Sept. 13, another batch of favorable August earnings statements and a decrease of 2,600 barrels in the daily average production of crude oil for the week ending Sept. 20.

Bullish demonstrations in the public utility and motor shares, which combined furnished 18 of the 30 new 1924 high records established during the season, featurde the day's trading. Among the new highs were American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, Laclede Gas, North American, Public Service of New Jersey, International Telephone, Studebaker, Maxwell, B. Nash and White Motors.

Most of the standard industrials lost ground. United States Steel common dropped 1-2 to 108 1-2, Baldwin sagged nearly a point to 122 1-2, and American Can showed a loss of 1 3-8 at 130 3-8.

Railroad shares offered better resistance to pressure than the industrials. Buying of the carrier stocks has been stimulated by the successful manner in which most roads have scaled down their expenses during August, net income exceeding that of the same month last year in many cases, despite a reduction in gross. Peoria and Eastern was one of the outstanding strong spots, rising more than 2 points to 20 1-4, the highest price since 1922. Chicago Great Western preferred and Pittsburgh and West Virginia preferred also attained new peak prices.

Specialties continued to provide a number of strong spots. International Combustion Engineering, International Paper, American Chicle certificates, Burns Brothers, A. Mallinson, McCrory Stores, B., and Wilson & company preferred were among the issues to show net gains of two points or more.

McGrory Stores, B, and Wilson and Company preferred were among the issues to show net gains of two points or more.

Independent steel stocks yielded readily to selling pressure, Bethlehem Steel pdipping more than two points to 48 and Republic, Gulf States, and Crucible falling about a point each. Some of the other weak spots included American Agricultural preferred, American Ice, General Baking, Natural Biscuit and General Electric, off two to 4 points.

Call money ruled unchanged at 3 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady with business dull.

Foreign exchange rates fluctuated within narrow and irregular limits Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around $4.47, and French francs held relatively around 5.2 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 25.—Bond prices continued to seek higher levels today with trading marked by active buying of several recently neglected issues. Profit-taking, which impeded the advance of high grade railroad issues, was counteracted by a diversion of interest to industrial liens, a number of which gave special displays of strength.

Announcement that deliberations were under way in London between allied bankers and German representatives over the terms of the international loan to Germany held foreign obligations firm. Indications of favorable progress in the negotiations promoted some fresh buying of European bonds. Accumulation of Mexican issues for which Wall street had been unable to offer any explanation continued despite official denials that the government of Mexico was negotiating for a loan.

Strength of Peoria and Eastern income 4s, which mounted 3 3-8 points to a new 1924 high at 38 3-8, was attributed to reports that a corresponding rise in the road's shares was based on buying of New York Central interests. Wabash 4s and second 5s responded with gains of two to three points to a favorable August earnings statement and predictions that dividend action of the company's preferred "A" stock would be taken before the end of the year. Other active railroad issues were the International-Great Northern first 6s, Rio Grande Western 4s, New Haven franc 7c, "Big Four" 6s and Pennsylvania 5s.

Approval of the Wickwire-Spencer Steel corporation's readjustment plan brought about a rally of 3 1-2 points in the company's 7 per cent. bonds. Liggett & Meyers 5s advanced 1 3-8 to a new top price and Rogers Brown 7s moved up 1 3-4. Wilson & company first 6s were firm following announcement that semi-annual interest would be paid on Oct. 1, but the company's 7 1-2s yielded to profit-taking.

Liberty bonds moved higher, on an expanded volume fo dealings.

An issue of $15,750,000 Pennsylvania railroad general equipmnet 4 1-2 per cent. certificates has been purchased by Kuhn, Loeb & company subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission. The bonds, maturing annually from Oct. 1, 1925, to Oct. 1, 1939, are being distributed privately at prices averaging an income yield of 4.70 per cent.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 25.—Price movements were irregular in today's curb market, several of the oils responding to the decrease in daily average production of crude oil reported for the week ended Sept. 20. Shares of Swan and Finch were active, gaining 2 1-2 points on the declaration of 4 per cent. in back dividends on the preferred.

Standard Oil of Kentucky also advanced 1 1-2 points.

Industrials were mixed. Natural Tea closed 11 points higher and Gillette Safety Razor 2. Duz corporation showed weakness and lost 2 points.

Public utilities displayed early strength but later yielded to profit-taking. American Gas and Electric closed 1 1-4 points lower.

The radio shares were featured by Dubilier, which spld up to 56 1-2, but in a reverse movement dropped to 53 and closed at 53 3-4, for a gain of 3-4 of a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Export purchases today totaling 2,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bushels of rye had much to do with bringing about higher prices for wheat today. Wheat closed firm, 3-4 to 1 3-4c up. December 1.36 to 1.36 1-4 and May 1.41 1-2 to 1.41 5-8, with corn varying from 1 cent decline to 3-8c gain, and oats showing 1-8 to 5-8c advance. In provisions the outcome ranged from 10c setback to a rise of 2 cents.

Guided by an unexpected advance in Liverpool quotations and by a report that Russia had prohibited grain exports, the wheat market here developed strength right from the beginning. Advices telling of continued demand from storms in Europe acted as a further stimulus, and then came increasing evidence that new export buying of breadstuffs on a large scale was in progress. Wet and cold weather in parts of the Canadian northwest added force to the upward swing of values, and with word late that snow was falling at Edmonton the market closed at the day's top figures.

Activity of the European demand more than offset in the wheat market the effect of a downward tendency which at one stage was very noticeable on the part of the corn values. On the other hand, the fact that Winnipeg wheat prices, which as a rule are depressed at this time of year, were continuing to advance despite enlarged receipts attracted particular notice as the day drew to an end.

Favorable weather for the corn crop was largely responsible for the wavering of the corn market until wheat strength became the dominating factor. Oats sympathized more with wheat than with corn.

Provisions were easy, governed by changes in the hog market.

PENALTY IS PROVIDED FOR ABANDONING ANIMALS

At this time of the year when the beach and lake resorts are being left behind by the summer dwellers who are returning to their homes, according to an agent of the Connecticut Humane Society, they recieve many complaints about stray dogs and cats. In pointing out that the cruel abandonment of any animal was a violation of the anti-cruelty laws in Connecticut he remarked that while the practice of leaving animals behind was growing less each year, there were still too many. It was his opinion that there was a better understanding of the rights of animals nowadays brought about through the children in the schools who have learned about the intelligent care of animals and their economic importance through nature study which now includes the right of animals, and through school poster contests which emphasize kindness, justice and mercy to all living creatures.

F. H. Wyant, Norwich agent of the Connecticut Humane Society says that he is frequently handicapped in dealing with the stray animal problem because he has not a motor car at his service but hopes to overcome this difficulty as soon as his work is better organized. Meanwhile Mr. Wyant states that the Connecticut Humane Society will pay a reward of $10.00 for information that will lead to the conviction of any person cruelly abandoning an animal.

NORWICH TOWN

Miss Ruth Beebe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe of East Town street, left Thursday morning for Athens, Alabama, where Monday next she will resume teaching at Trinity school, this being her third year as a member of the faculty. Miss Beebe returned to her home here on Saturday, May 31st, at the closing of the school year and after a stay of several weeks left for Boston where she was engaged in study for six weeks at Simmons' college. During this time, Miss Beebe took up preparatory study in domestic art and domestic science which is along her line of work.

Trinity school was established by the American Missionary association many years ago, for colored children. A part of the faculty comprises colored teachers.

The God-speed service for Miss Gertrude S. Avery, which is to be held in Hanover at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, is to be attended by many of the young people from the several churches in this vicinity. Those from Norwich and Norwich Town, who are planning to attend and expect to go by trolley, are to take the trolley leaving Franklin square for Baltic at 2.45 (daylight time). Transportation is to be furnished from Baltic to Hanover.

Miss Avery, who recently was commissioned a missionary to India, where she is to teach in a girls' school at Ahmednagar, was presented a gift of $40 Thursday afternoon, from the membership of the First Congregational church, of which she is a valued member. Miss Avery expressed appreciation for this gift which will enable her to perfect her plans preparatory to her leaving New York, Oct. 4, in company with several other young women.

Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown of Oneco street, returned Thursday from New York, where she attended the tenth annual exhibition and dahlia show, of the American Dahlia society, held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, at the 71st Regiment armory, 34th street and Park avenue.

Mrs. Woodbury O. Rogers and her daughter, Mrs. Ronald Nelson, and the latter's little son, Lloyd Steadman Nelson, of Washington street, left a week ago today (Friday) by automobile, to visit for several days at the home of Mrs. Nelson's uncle, at Jefferson, N. H., in the White Mountains. From there they were to leave Wednesday last, for Houlton, Me., to spend some time with Mrs. Rogers' husband, who is located in business there.

They will return home next week.

room, where the still, small voice will not fail to be heard. Any attempt to change this method of procedure is an attempt to put the people again in jeopardy of the impositions and the tyrannies from which the first continental congress sought to deliver them. The only position that Americans can take is that they are against all dispotism whether it emanates from a monarch, from a parliament, or from a mob."

Reason and Restraint.

"Almost all our history as an independent and united nation can be traced back to the assembling of the first continental congress, which we are met to celebrate. Our achievements have been wrought by adherance to its policies of reason and restraint, accompanied by firmness and determination. We are not likely to desert that course of action now.

"The case which the congress stated was unanswerable. One side or the other must give way or maintain its position by force of arms. That conflict for which the congress had laid the logical foundation was not long in beginning. Liberty never won a more substantial and far-reaching victory than that which resulted from our revolutionary war. It established the American nation, with all that it has since meant in the accomplishments of the world and all that it holds of future promise. A form of government was organized in harmony with what Franklin had proposed at Albany in 1754. But the constitution was not adopted until various experiments with unworkable systems showed some such action necessary. Whatever may be the reputation of that great instrument at home, modified and adapted to local needs it has been adopted as the fundamental law for republics in every quarter of the world. The influence of that great document, framed in Philadelphia in 1787, can be traced in every constitution on earth, from China to Peru, from the Australian commonwealth to the German republic. They all bear the same testimony."

SCENES AT 150TH ANNIERSARY FIRST CONTINENTAL CONGRESS

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—Representatives of the thirteen original states joined with citizens of Philadelphia today in celebrating the 150th anniversary of the meeting of the First Continent Congress and the 200th anniversary of the founding of the Carpenters' company, in whose historic hall the congress met. Tonight, President Coolidge was the central figure in the commemoration of events of 150 years ago, making the principal address at patriotic exercises held in the Academy of Music.

During the day, Carpenters' hall was the center of ceremonies in honor of the two memorable events in American history. Resplendent in dress uniforms by bygone days, historic military commands of some of the original thirteen colonies marched past the structure in a parade down Chestnut street.

Nestled in between skyscrapers at the head of its own narrow alley, the dainty bit of Revolutionary architecture was later the scene of a reenactment of the session in which Patrick Henry called upon the delegates to lay aside the distinctions of their several colonies, and become known as "Americans."

President Coolidge, represented by U. S. Senator George Wharton Pepper, was formally made an honorary member of that quaint organization at the conclusion of the exercises. George Kessler, president of the Carpenters' Company, in presenting the certificate of membership, emphasized that it was the first time an outsider had been admitted to the company.

The sitting of the congress was portrayed with utmost attention to detail, those taking the parts of the delegates sitting in revolutionary costume by the mellow light of tallow candles, and the interior of the building providing the original setting.

Radio icrophones on the presiding officer's desk and the table of the congress, furnished the only modern touch.

The episode closed when "George Washington" was pointed out as the Virginian who had offered to equip a thousand men at his own expense and march to the relief of Boston. The Carpenters' Company held a commemorative banquet tonight prior to attending the meeting at the Academy of Music. At the dinner, addresses were made by Senator Pepper and Solicitor General James M. Beck.

SCHEDULE FOR STATE SOCCER LEAGUE IS ANNOUNCED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 25—Although the New London Ranger Soccer team, Eastern Connecticut's only entrant in the newly formed Connecticut State league, dropped its first game of the league to the Scandia A. C. on Sunday afternoon, the locals are expecting to do better on succeeding Sundays. All final arrangements have been completed and a schedule covering the activities of the league in the first half of play has been released for publication. The league got under way officially September 21, with Ansonia engaging the Hartford Thistles at Ansonia; New London versus Scandia; Torrington vs. Clan Campbell of Bridgeport; Waterbury vs. Manchester.

The remainder of the schedule, which terminates on December 28, is printed below.

September 28 Ansonia vs. Torrington, Clan Campbell vs. Hartford Thistles at Hartford, Manchester vs. New London, Scandia vs. Waterbury.

October 5, Ansonia vs. Waterbury, New London vs. Clan Campbell, Scandia vs. Hartford Thistles, Torrington vs. Manchester.

October 12. Clan Campbell vs. Scandia, Hartford Thistles vs. New London, Manchester vs. Ansonia, Waterbury vs. Torrington.

November 16, Manchester vs. Clan Campbell, New London vs. Waterbury, Scandia vs. Ansonia, Torrington vs. Hartford Thistles.

November 23, Ansonia vs. Scandia, Clan Campbell vs. Torrington, Hartford Thistles vs. Manchester, Waterbury vs. New London.

December 28. Ansonia vs. Hartford Thistles, Scandia vs. New London.

Of the above named soccer teams which are included in the schedule, the teams are usually named after the city they represent. However to make a distinction between the Clan Campbell and the Scandia elevens which are not named after the city they represent in the state, it is pointed out that the clan Campbell eleven hail from Bridgeport, while the Scandia A. C. likewise the Thistles of Hartford both come from the state capitol.

BRISTOL CLUB TO PLAY AT MOOSUP ON SUNDAY

The baseball team representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Bristol will clash with the fast traveling Moosup team at the Carpet Grounds in Moosup on Sunday. The Bristol club is under the leadership of Dan Harrigan, who was a thorn in the side of all the semi-pro clubs in this section of the state about six years ago. In those days he was known as Iron Man Harrigan, the premier spit-ball artist of Eastern Connecticut, and was pitching for the State Hospital at the time. Harrigan was also known as "Saturday and Sunday Dan" because of his pitching for the hospital on Saturday and hooking up with some other club on Sunday. His exhibition of brilliant pitching for Plainfield against Jewett City when he fanned 24 batters and held them to one hit, is still fresh in the minds of local fans. Hal Chase was Harrigan's battery mate in this game.

Other players on the Bristol team will include Saunders, former Canadian leagues twirler recently sold to Springfield club of the Eastern league, who will probably pitch against Moosup. Ryan, who will do the catching is only 19 years old and has been stamed by the sports writers in the West as onep of the best players in the Western league. Ryan caught for the San Antonio team. Green, Sugg, Kloss and Marcotte are recognized in Bristol as being some of the best youngsters that a semi-pro club can boast. Kreider, Landry and Merrick comprise an outfield of fast fly-hanks.

Fans in Eastern Connecticut will see at Moosup Sunday one of the scrappiest and cleverest semi-pro clubs that has hit these parts this season.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

BLAMES DRIVER'S POOR EYESIGHT IN SUIT FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

A suit, brought by James W. Johnson, in behalf of his son, James W. Johnson, Jr., 10 years old, of Mystic, for damages of $10,000 against Chas. E. Wheeler, also of Mystic, went on trial in the superior court at New London Thursday morning before Judge Leonard J. Nickerson. Injuries received by the plaintiff when he was struck by an automobile operated by the defendant on Sept. 4, 1923, form the basis of the suit. It is claimed by young Johnson that Mr. Wheeler was operating his car on East Main street, Mystic, at a reckless and negligent rate of speed and that Wheeler was at the time and for some time previous had been operating the automobile under conditions of impaired eyesight. As the car turned from East Main street into Water street, the plaintiff who was crossing the latter street some distance ahead of the car fell down. He claims that Wheeler had ample time in which to witness his plight and to change the course of his car, but that he did not do so, and consequently struck and injured him severely.

Drs. Edward E. Bucklyn and Louis M. Allyn of Mystic and Dr. Winthrop E. McGinley of New London, the latter of whom aided in two operations performed upon the boy, testified for the plaintiff. Other witnesses appearing for the plaintiff besides himself were his father, James W. Johnson and James F. Watrous. Attorney G. Curtis Morgan for the plaintiff rested his case in the afternoon, and Attorney Benjamin Hewitt, counsel for the defense, went ahead with the evidence for the defendant.

Two cases specially assigned for hearing Thursday went off the list. They were those of W. S. Hill Co. vs. Sheridan, Inc., et al.; and the Broad and Market National bank of Newark vs. Wilson.

DECLINES TO TELL WHAT APPROPRIATION IS ASKED

Mrs. Whitefield H. Thompson of Hartford, president of the board of directors of the State Farm for Women at East Lyme, is declining to divulge the amount of the appropriation to be asked of the incoming legislature to provide additional facilities at the farm, now suffering from lack of accommodation. "The farm is wholly unfit to take care of the number of women and babies that should be there, and we have filed a report with the finance board asking an amount that will put up a building sufficient to meet the deficiency," Mrs. Thompson declared.

The directors met recently, Mrs. Thompson said, and discussed the situation thoroughly. The figures were fixed, and John H. Goss of Waterbury, treasurer, submitted the report to the state board of finance.

Mrs. Thompson said she would not give out any information because "it is unwise." Asked if any steps are being taken towards the erection of a building, she said she will not make any announcement until she has been informed of the recommendation by the state board of finance.

The conditions at the state farm are wanting of immediate attention as courts throughout the state are dismissing cases which require particular attention because the farm cannot handle them. No women except replacements have been received since Feb. 14, according to Miss Helen Hazard, superintendent.

At present there are 84 women at the farm and 29 babies; the facilities are designed to accommodate 80 women and 19 babies. As soon as one of the charges is dismissed, her place is quickly filled by one of the long waiting list. Other women prisoners must either be discharged or paroled because the accommodations are not enough.

FIFTY FRATERNAL SOCIETIES OPERATE IN STATE

Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham has submitted to Governor Templeton his report relating to fraternal benefit societies operating in this state. The number of these societies is 50, an increase of two for the year. These include six Connecticut societies. The total assets are $320,173,694, an increase of $36,545,886. The liabilities decreased from $71,356,596.68 to $12,470,061.53. Assets of the six Connecticut companies amounted to $20,987,105.42, an increase of $2,359,101.12 over last year. These societies had a total balance of $20,508,336.34, an increase of $2,335,326.55.

There was a decrease of $58,886,535.13 in the liabilities of the 50 societies. Commissioner Dunham explained this decrease by reason of the department's refusing to permit societies to carry tabular reserves as liabilities in the financial statements.

The total income for the societies for the year amounted to $117,482,922.16 and the disbursements to $86,025,626.02. The increase in the total income for the year was $6,503,134.17.

In his finding, Judge Nickerson gives the custody of four children, Florence 6, Donald 3, Phyllis L. 5, Harold W., 4, to the defendant, and starting from Saturday, Sept. 27, the sum of $12 per week is awarded to the defendant to be paid by the plaintiff, besides granting the divorce.

The plaintiff is allowed to visit and to see the children twice a month, Saturday afternoon being the date of visit.

MRS. ELDREDGE WILLING FATHER SHOULD ADOPT GIRL

There is Mystic interest in the following, in a New York paper of Wednesday:

Irving Swan Brown of this city has adopted Miss Nadia Germaine Sakakini, 32 years years old, who was formerly employed by him in his real estate operations in London. The adoption was approved yesterday by Surrogate John P. O'Brien.

Mr. Brown who is 5 4years old and a widower, holds a great deal of real estate in New York and London. Miss Sakakini, who is said to be of French extraction, has been the guest during a part of the summer of Mr. Brown's daughter, Mrs. Seneca D. Eldredge, at her place at East Hampton, L. I. Mrs. Eldredge who is at present at her city home, 405 Park avenue, gave her consent to the adoption and in an affidavit filed with the surrogate, she said:

"I have been advised and understand the effect that the adoption prayed for will have on my interest in my father's estate should he die intestate, but I approve of the happily consent to the adoption prayed for. I have known the said Nadia G. Sakakini since 1920."

Both Mr. Brown and his daughter, Mrs. Eldredge, declined to give any further information yesterday regarding Miss Sakakini. Mr. Brown has a residence at 75 Seymour street, Marble Arch, London and is an alumnus of Princeton, class of '92. He is a member of the Metropolitan, New York Yacht and Apawamis clubs, also belongs to the Sons of the Revolution and Society of Colonial Wars. His wife was Blanche Albertson. His daughter, Mrs. Eldredge, is well known in society and is a graduate of Miss Spence's School. Her husband is an investment banker at 14 Wall street.

NATIONAL A. O. H. PRESIDENT COMING TO CONN. THURSDAY

Plans are being made in several cities of Connecticut to greet Congressman Michael Donohue, of Philadelphia, national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who will make a trip through this state, starting Thursday. Congressman Donohue will be the guest of the state president, John Donnelly, of Bristol, during his sojourn in this state, and several open meetings of the order will be held.

Thursday night at 8 o'clock, a monster mass meeting will be held in Meriden, at which time Congressman Donohue, State President Donelly and other officers of the state and national order will speak.

Friday night the national president and state president will attend an open meeting of the divisions in Bridgeport, and Saturday night they will be present in an opening meeting to be held in Torrington.

Sunday, the officers will come to Norwich in the afternoon and will be in Willimantic in the evening, open meetings to be held in both places.

Besides the open meetings in the above named places, both the national president and the state president will attend meetings of other divisions, particularly the home division of State President Donnelly in Bristol. Divisions in other cities will also be visited by the officers, and the week will be spent in increasing interest in the order. At the present waging a membership campaign, competing with Delaware, the winners to pay the expenses of the losers at an outing at Atlantic City. Connecticut is thought to be a little in the lead at the last compilation, but advices from Delaware during the past week say that the state division there is creeping up on this state.

Miss Mildred Hammond Knowlton of Watertown, who spent the summer at her home on Gurleyville Hill, entered Connecticut College at New London this week.

JUDGE BROWN HELPS END RUM ROW AT BOLTON

In Rockville the other morning, a number of bench warrants were issued just before the opening of the superior court by Judge Allyn L. Brown, of Norwich, at the request of State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone. These warrants were the cause of demolishing "Rum Row" at Bolton. State's Attorney Noone turned the warrants over to Sheriff Fred O. Vinton of Eagleville, and before court adjourned for dinner, three prisoners were put to plea. In all seven prisoners, mostly from Manchester, were brought before the court for violating the Volstead act and bonds were fixed at figures ranging from $1,500 to $2,500 each.

The bench warrants were served by Sheriff Fred O. Vinton, assisted by the following officers: Federal Agent John J. Kelleher of Hartford, County Detective Gerald Bisley of Hartford county, Deputy Sheriff C. V. Benjamin, Deputy Sheriff A. S. Hulbert and Deputy Sheriff A. L. Frink.

There was an unusually large attendance at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President George A. Finn presided and the song leader was Fred Watson. He was assisted by Doc Crabtree, director of the minstrel show for which the Lions club is rehearsing. The meeting was opened with the singing of America and this was followed by the introduction of guests. NEW YORK STATE DEMOCRATS RENOMINATE ENTIRE TICKET

Governor Alfred E. Smith and His Co-Officials Were Unanimous Choice of Syracuse Convention—Proceedings of the Convention Were Harmoniously Conducted—Platform Openly Denounced the Ku Klux Klan and Called For Modification of the Volstead Act.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(By The A. P.)—Governor Alfred E. Smith and the entire ticket of democratic state elective officials were renominated unanimously and enthusiastically by the democratic state convention today, the ticket:

Governor—Alfred E. Smith, New York city.

Lieut. Governor—George R. Lunn, Schenectady.

Secretary of State—James A. Hamilton, the Bronx.

Comptroller—James W. Fleming, Troy.

Treasurer—George Kent Shuler, Lyons.

Attorney General—Carl Sherman, Buffalo.

Engineer and Surveyor—Dwight B. Ladu, Albany.

The convention, the first in many years that had not been marked by at least one bitter contest, was the epitome of harmony. From beginning to end it proceeded smoothly without a suspicion of friction and with the ease of a well lubricated machine.

What it lacked in combativeness, it made up in enthusiasm.

It was a Smith demonstration all the way, every reference to the governor provoking a renewed demonstration of enthusiasm.

One of the greatest demonstrations of a day of demonstrations came when the governor was escorted to the convention hall to address the delegates. The governor was visibly affected by the warmth of the reception. He finally obtained quiet but soon had the delegates cheering again when he promised that he would wage a vigorous campaign. Praise of John W. Davis, the democratic presidential nominee, as the ablest democrat in the United States, condemnation of the republican platform adopted at Rochester as the most dishonest document he had ever read and denunciation of the republican national and state administrations, brought thunderous applause.

"You cannot nominate a myth in Washington and a name in New York and get away with it," said the governor amid cheers, in referring to President Coolidge and Theodore Roosevelt, republican nominee for governor.

He declared the republican state platform "was the most dishonest document I ever read—and what I'll do to that." The delegates roared with laughter.

The convention adjourned sine die soon after the governor's speech.

The only other business transacted at the convention was the adoption of the party platform.

The document in the main follows closely along the lines of previous state platforms. It openly denounced the Ku Klux Klan, called for modification of the Volstead act so as to permit the sale of light wines and beer, and recommended equal representation of women on party committees.

HOWELL W. ST. JOHN, 90, WAS KILLED BY TRAIN IN HARTFORD

Hartford, Sept. 26.—Howell W. St. John, 90 years old, actuary of the Aetna Life Insurance company, was killed almost instantly late this afternoon when he was hit by a Hartford-Danbury train at the Sigourney street railroad crossing. The train, going not more than 15 miles an hour, stopped almost at once after hitting Mr. St. John, who was thrown about ten feet.

According to witnesses of the accident, Mr. St. John noticed the train coming and got on to the tracks just before the lowering of the gates. It is said that he was waiting for the train to pass, but approached too close to the tracks and was hit before he could retreat to safety.

Trainmen, however, said that Mr. St. John passed under lowered gates and was on his way across when the gate tender, Thomas Birmingham, shouted to him.

Mr. St. John kept on going and was hit by the train, which had left the Union depot a few minutes earlier. The train was operated by Engineer Thomas Phillips of Danbury.

Following the accident, Mr. St. John was taken to St. Francis' hospital, but expired before arriving.

Mr. St. John was the dean of the actuary staff of the Aetna Life Insurance company both in point of age and years of service. His employment with the company dates from 1867. He was graduated from the School of Engineers of Yale college, now known as Sheffield Scientific school. He was a charter member of the Actuarial society of America.

"VERY FOOLISH MOVE" BY LAW ENFORCEMENT SEC'Y

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—Joseph M. Steele, president of the law enforcement league of Philadelphia, tonight characterized as a "very foolish move" a telegram sent by William R. Nicholson, secretary of the league, to President Coolidge, in which it was stated the league had evidence of political corruption by federal office-holders in Pennsylvania and which urged the president to use his influence in averting the reported threatened dismissal by Mayor Kendrick of Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, as director of public safety.

Mr. Coolidge during the day directed Attorney General Harlan F. Stone to investigate the alleged charges referred to in the telegram and the attorney general immediately wired the league suggesting that its responsible officers confer with him at an early date in response to this suggestion, the executive committee of the league met late today and decided that "three responsible members" of the organization to Washington on Wednesday to confer with Mr. Stone. Mr. Steele and Mr. Nicholson are expected to be two of the delegation.

As a result of Mr. Nicholson's telegram Mr. Steele said he was seriously considering tendering his resignation as president of the enforcement league.

ROOSEVELT A STRONG NOMINEE, COOLIDGE SAYS

Washington, Sept. 26.—President Coolidge considers the selection of Theodore Roosevelt, as the republican candidate for governor of New York, a very strong nomination, he told friends today after Mr. Roosevelt had called upon the White House, once to present his resignation as assistant secretary of the navy, and again to confer for gestures with the president. New York and California political situations were gone into by the president in conference during the day with Mr. Roosevelt. Representative Hiram W. Johnson of California and Cornelius Vanderbilt, California publisher.

Mr. Roosevelt predicted an overwhelming majority for republicans in New York. Representative Free is said the California situation was clearing rapidly, with the president gaining strength as support for Senator LaFollette, independent candidate, waned.

Repeated references through various mediums here to the address prepared by Secretary Wilbur to be delivered at Denver and prevented by his recall to Washington, brought enquiries to President Coolidge today, but he said he had not read the speech.

VERMONT DEMOCRATS VOTE DOWN PLANK FOR L. OF N.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 26.—The democratic state convention here today refused to adopt a platform endorsing the League of Nations, although Bainbridge Colby, of New York, secretary of the United States under President Wilson, had declared in his keynote speech that the national convention "made a mistake in ducking this issue." The plank was introduced by Clarence E. Carr of Andover, apart from the committee report and provoked the only discussion on the platform.

The platform adopted scored the Ku Klux Klan by name, advocated abolishment of women's poll taxes, urged strict enforcement of the prohibition laws, "home rule" for cities, and lauded the past two years of democratic administration in the state.

Bainbridge Colby attacked the Ku Klux Klan, declaring that it had no place in American thought. He scored the scandals of the Harding and Coolidge administrations and at the same time upheld the administration of Wilson. Then turning to the La Follette-Wheeler ticket, he said: "The Constitution should and must be upheld. The proposition of La Follette to give congress power to rule upon the constitutionality of its own acts is foolish and should be given no thought.

DISCORD AT THE SWEDISH MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

Cromwell, Conn., Sept. 26.—Action of the Swedish Missionary conference which has been in session at New Britain changing the makeup of the boards of directors of institutions controlled by the eastern missionary association has led to the resignation of Rev. Clemens Mortenson, superintendent of the Swedish orphanage here, and Mrs. Mortenson, matron, and four members of the board of directors. Those who also resigned were Charles Miller, of New Britain, chairman; Paul Anderson of Winchester, Mass., secretary; Carl P. Linden, Providence, R. I., and John P. Swanson, Springfield, Mass. The resignations it is understood, are as a protest against the action of the central board which controls the institutions of the association in New England. New York and New Jersey, in deciding to replace business men on boards by clergymen. Mr. Mortenson says that he would rather have business men to handle the affairs of the institution, and that in his own case he had had greater success in management with a business man's board than when there were clergymen.

RESULTANT HARDSHIPS FROM GILPATRIC'S DEFALCATION

Putnam, Sept. 26.—Payment of the installments on the stock of the First National bank of Putnam, which has been called in by order of the comptroller of the currency to meet the shortage resulting from the peculations of G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier and also former state treasurer, are likely to result in hardship to many of the stockholders, it was made known here today. Among the stockholders is the First Baptist church, which came into possession of five shares, for which they have been assessed $500 along with the other stockholders. The church, which has trouble to maintain its finances announces that the sum will be raised. The Ladies' Aid society of the church has planned a sale to take care of the first installment of 25 per cent. due on the stock October 20 and has agreed to raise the money for the remainder of the assessment.

Another case which has come to light is that of a recent bride, who just before her marriage inherited ten shares of the stock from her mother, figuring it to be a snug nest egg of $1,850, with which to start married life. Within two weeks after receiving the stock she was called upon to pay $1,500 which it is said she may find difficulty in obtaining. The stock before Gilpatric's attempt at suicide, was valued at from $185 to $200 per share, was hard to obtain and paid dividends of 12 per cent.

NOTABLES AT FUNERAL OF DR. CHARLES E. SAWYER

Marion, O., Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—All Marion this afternoon suspended activities for the funeral of Dr. Charles Elmer Sawyer, personal physician to the late president Harding.

Funeral services at White Oaks Farm, the Sawyer home, near here, and at the Marion cemetery, at which Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, officiated, were of a simple but impressive nature.

Hundreds of persons from this community and nearby towns as well as notables from Washington and other cities were here paying their last tribute.

Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, who has been spending most of her time at the Sawyer home since the death of her husband, attended the funeral. Although grief-stricken at the death of one of her warmest friends, Mrs. Harding bore up well under the ordeal.

Fifty-seven employes of Dr. Sawyer's hospital were among the mourners, only three being left to care for patients.

Burial was in the Sawyer plot in the Marion cemetery, not far from where the body of President Harding lies entombed.

SENATOR PEPPER HITS AT MODERN REFORMERS

Valley Forge, Pa., Sept. 26.—"Modern reformers" who seek to "blow the foundation s from under the constitution" were assailed today by Senator George Wharton Pepper at memorial exercises, in connection with the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the meeting of the First Continental Congress in Carpenters' hall, Philadelphia.

"When things go wrong, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it is we who are at fault," he said, "and not our constitutional system. Our job is not to chop the constitution to fit our abnormalities, but to make ourselves worthy to live under the constitution as it is."

The hills of Valley Forge, once peopled by the ragged continentals, were today again alive with soldiery in the uniforms of a century or more ago.

Putnam Man Killed In Auto Accident

Three Other Men Injured When Car Crashed Through a Fence.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Sept. 26.—Joseph Caisse, 38 of Putnam, was killed, Thomas Ellis of Bridgeport, employed in Putnam, is at the Day Kimball hospital with a compound fracture of his right arm and a bad scalp wound, Joseph Miller has a badly cut right eye and minor bruises, and Earle Ballard escaped with a shaking up, when an automobile driven by Miller crashed through a fence and dove over a stone wall between Wilsonville and North Grosvenordale Friday afternoon, between 1 and 2 o'clock.

Miller, owner of the car, is one of the proprietors of a lunch cart on Front street. The three other men, passengers in the car, are employed in the lunch cart. Ballard works for the New Haven road at the Putnam railroad station, only working in the lunch cart evenings.

The four men had been to Worcester and were on their way back to Putnam when the accident happened. They had passed a bad turn near the Keegan mill, at Wilsonville, and while proceeding down a grade a short way south, the car suddenly swerved to the right side of the road hitting a fence and then across the road and through another fence and nosed itself off a wall a few feet beyond the fence. The rear wheels of the car remained on the wall while the front wheels rested on a pile of stone over the six to eight foot drop.

Caisse, who was on the front seat with Miller, was thrown forward head first and his skull was crushed in.

He was killed instantly. Miller's eye came in contact with some part of the machine and was badly bruised and cut. Ellis was thrown from the rear seat, but it is not known just how he got his injuries. Ballard was the only one to escape with little of no injury.

The ambulance from Webster, about three miles away was sent for and brought Ellis to the Putnam hospital. Ballard and Miller were brought to Putnam in a taxicab and Miller was treated by a doctor. The body of Caisse remained where it lay for some time until permission was given for its removal by Coroner A. G. Bill of Danielson.

The automobile, a Dodge sedan, was wrecked. Miller stated that he did not know how to account for the accident, but thought that either the steering gear failed to work or that a bad tire caused the car to become unmanageable.

Joseph Caisse was born in Putnam and has lived here the greater part of his life. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norrie Caisse, live on Woodstock avenue and the son lived with them. He leaves a brother, Philip Caisse and a sister, Mrs. Peter Duquette, both of Putnam. Caisse worked for a time in New Haven. He returned to Putnam six or seven years ago and worked in the Manhassett mill until it was closed. Since then he has been working for Miller in the lunch cart.

Caisse was a great friend of the late Captain Remi Delage and Alderman Magnan and spent much time in their company. The two friends were killed in an automobile accident north of Webster in May, 1923, while on their way home from Worcester. The car in which they were riding hit the abutment of an underpass. Magnan was killed instantly and Delage died less than two weeks later.

DAWES DISCLAIMS CREDIT FOR REPARATIONS PLAN

St. Cloud, Minn., Sept. 26.—Credit for success of the reparations settlement plan was disclaimed by Charles G. Dawes, republican vice presidential candidate, here tonight in this German center of Minnesota.

"While my name has been attached to the report of the experts committee, it was a group effort, for representatives, of five nations participated in the framing of that report," Mr. Dawes said. "It wouldn't be fair for me to take credit even this far from the scene of action.

"The efforts of the experts committee were successful and the plan as worked out will be successful because all of Europe was just about as sick of the politicians as are the American people," he continued.

America's problems, Mr. Dawes told his audience here could be solved through th esame proces or "through the exercise of common sense."

Only one horse-drawn conveyance passed through the gates of the Seneca county (New York) fair this year, while the number of automobiles amounted to more than 1,000 daily. Two years ago about the same number of both vehicles passed through the gates, while five years ago the number of automobiles was greatly in the minority, says the Dearborn Independent.

KEEP UP WITH THE TIMES

Courtly Sir Walter Raleigh had a unique way of self advertising. It produced results. Most advertising today is less spectacular, but it is also far more serviceable. It smooths out the everyday pathways of each one of us. It keeps us out of the puddles.

Because of advertising, luxuries and necessities that once would have been worth a king's ransom are yours at little cost. Advertising pits merchant against merchant, artisan against artisan, manufacturer against manufacturer. This competition brings out the best there is in everything for your personal benefit.

You wouldn't know about many boons of modern life were it not for advertising. That is why you are not taking full advantage of the better things of life today if you consistently overlook the advertisements in The Bulletin. Read advertising and keep abreast of the times.

IMMIGRATION DIFFICULT PROBLEM AT GENEVA

Geneva, Sept. 26 (By the A. P.).—A somewhat delicate situation has arisen in the peace discussions at Geneva growing out of a proposed amendment to the protocol of arbitration offered by the Japanese. This, in effect, called upon the council of the League of Nations to endeavor to conciliate and mediate in disputes between countries, even if the world court of justice previously had ruled that the disputes had arisen over matters which were solely within the domestic jurisdiction of the states involved.

The situation is dedicated because all the delegates interpret the Japanese amendment, which was subsequently withdrawn, as referring to the problem of immigration, and hence especially interesting to such countries as the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Three Men Held in New York on charges of Grand Larceny For Huge Swindle.

The others arrested, after an examination in the prosecutor's office, are Edward Feist, of Atlantic Highlands, N. J., and Thomas C. Thompson of Hempstead, N. At least a dozen complaints from holders of the forgeries were received today.

TAXPAYERS HAVE BENEFITED BY COMMON SENSE POLICY

Assistant Secretary Wadsworth of the Treasury Gives Credit to Secretary Mellon For Three Billion Reduction in Debt —Asserts That Mellon Has Brought Liberty Bonds Above Par—Treasury is Borrowing Money at Less Than Half the Interest Rate It Was Forced to Pay Four Years Ago.

Boston, Sept. 26.—The application of a policy of common sense to treasury affairs has netted the American taxpayers millions of dollars in annual savings, Assistant Secretary Wadsworth of the treasury declared tonight in a speech before the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank league. Mr. Wadsworth gave credit to Secretary Mellon for the three billion dollar reduction in public debt and for other accomplishments, all of which, he said, reflected to the benefit of the taxpayers.

When Secretary Mellon took the helm at the treasury, the speaker said, he found that the nation was doing little toward paying off the vast debt piled up during the war. He started in to correct that situation, and, Mr. Wadsworth added, he has succeeded beyond the expectation of the most optimistic. As one result, he asserted, Liberty bonds are above par and the treasury is borrowing money at less than half of the interest rate it was forced to pay four years ago.

Payments on the government's debt, Mr. Wadsworth said, also have put money back into the hands of bankers, life insurance companies, trustees and individuals, and interest charges on that money amounting to as much as 5 3-4 per cent. have been eliminated.

"What has been the result?" he continued. "First, the money which has been paid back has sought investment in other fields, and this has done much to revive industry.

"Second, it has been possible to steadily reduce the rate of interest on new issues of treasury notes and the value of Liberty bonds has constantly advanced as the government has brought them in.

"When treasury notes can be placed on a 2 3-4 per cent. basis and Liberty bonds sell on a 4 per cent. basis, the federal government has taken a long step toward getting relief for the wage earners, the farmers, of business and industry and in the money markets. In the broadest sense, this is the greatest benefit to the people of the United States resulting from the financial policy of the past three and one-half years."

MOVEMENTS OF MAN WHO DISAPPEARED WITH $100,000

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 26.—William J. Hanifin, trusted guard and custodian of the Union Trust company of this city, who disappeared Thursday with $100,000 cash, went to Hartford immediately after he secured the money from the Springfield postoffice and, after buying a suitcase, chartered a taxi. He was driven from Hartford to Fordham, N. Y., where he took an elevated train to New York city. This, in substance, is the result of police investigations in three states today.

Tonight Springfield detectives, assisted by metropolitan police, are scouring New York city for the missing guard.

Hanifin remained in Hartford for about 45 minutes. He paid for his suit case with yellowback $20 bills and also paid Julius E. Jepson, a taxi driver, who drove him to New Haven and later to New Haven, with the same kind of bills, Jepson using one to purchase fuel on his return trip. The police have secured the other bills he expended. The missing $100,000 was in $20 bills, but they were not new ones. The serial numbers were not recorded. Trace of Hanifin was found after the police had scoured rooming houses and questioned every taxi driver in New Haven and Hartford. Jepson, when finally located, readily related his drive to Fordham and identified his passenger from photographs.

MOTHER SLAIN, DAUGHTER WOUNDED IN CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Frances D. Rawson, 70, widow of Warren Rawson, former pork packer, was shot to death in her home here tonight. Her daughter, Miss Nina Rawson, 40, was shot in the left arm and neck. A second daughter escaped injury by fleeing from the house. The police are searching for Vinto Perrin, coal dealer.

The condition of Miss Nina Rawson is not considered serious. She was removed to a hospital. The shooting was done in the dining room of the Rawson home in the exclusive suburb of Clifton.

Ida Schlueter, housekeeper, who was in an adjoining room, said that a man whom she believed was Perrin, son-in-law of Mrs. Rawson, came into the dining room and made some mention of money. A few heated exchanges followed. Miss Schlueter said and then came the report of a gun.

Perin, who is 50 years old, is alleged to have fled from the rear door of the house, and could not be located by the police early tonight.

Miss Nina Rawson said she, her mother and her sister, Josephine, were chatting in the dining room when Perin entered. Without much parley he came direct to the point and demanded money, she said.

"You are trying to make my wife a slave to a bunch of bum college students. Now I need financial help and if you don't help me I will cause a scandal," Miss Rawson said he told them.

"We asked him what would cause a scandal and he replied by drawing a revolver and starting to shoot. He fired the first shot at me. Then he shot mother, who was sitting in her chair, a favorite lounging place of hers. The third shot he fired again at me. I called to Josephine to run out and get help and she ran out of the house. He ran out just behind her. I don't know where they went."

Perin, the police were told formerly was a member of the firm, Perin Brothers, millers. The firm was dissolved two years ago, following a fist fight between Perin and his brother. Since then Perin has made demands upon his relatives for financial assistance.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Miss Buchanan, noted sculptress, who recently completed a statuette of Lincoln as the young rail splitter, takes issue with people who apply such adjectives as awkward, clumsy, uncouth to Lincoln.

Miss Buchanan, who has to her credit at least four sculpture subjects of Lincoln, declares that she finds grace and charm in almost every line of his body, and she cites the photograph of his taken in 1860 at the time of his Cooper Institute speech in New York, at the age of fifty-one, to prove her contention.

This photograph, taken by Matthew Brady of New York, on that occasion, does indeed show Lincoln to advantage. Every line is graceful and expressive of dignity and power, especially the hands and arms and the poise of the head and body. It is a standing picture, straight as an Indian, the face benign and charming.

Every person who knew Lincoln testifies to his charm and dwells upon his engaging personality, and many of them tear out Miss Buchanan's own opinion that neither photograph, nor clay, nor canvas has ever yet caught him as people saw him nor ever will, for it was the godlike spirit of the man shining through his personality that made his personality that made him so engaging.

This spirit has been caught in a considerable degree by Mr. George Billings, creator of the role of Abraham Lincoln, which begins a limited engagement of four evenings and 3 matinees at the Palace tomorrow, Sunday, evening. It is this quality in Mr. Billings that caused ex-United States Senator Cole, the most distinguished living friend of Lincoln, to exclaim when he first met Billings: "Your likeness to President Lincoln almost shocks me. It is difficult to believe that so perfect a likeness could exist. You seem to be, not a player, but Lincoln himself.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

One-man cars will replace the present equipment of the Connecticut company on its local lines Sunday. The announcement was made Friday. This means the elimination of two-men crews that have operated on the main line between Central Village and North Grosvenordale since the road was built. For a long time, however, one-man cars have been in operation between Danielson and East Killingly and between Central Village and Moosup.

Three cars will maintain the hourly one-man service between Central Village and North Grosvenordale on exactly the same schedules as at present. The only change of importance will be as to the system of collecting fares. Upon entering a one-man car a passenger will be given a slip. This slip, establishing in which particular zone the ride began, will be handed to the operator on leaving the car and the amount due collected. There will be no collections en route. Many passengers will appreciate this, for there will be no repeated visits to collect fares during the progress of a trip.

Six operatives will be able to operate the regular runs, three during the day and three at night. At present 19 trainmen are on the payroll of the company in this division, including the men who operate the Central Village-Moosup and Danielson-East Killingly lines. It had not been established up to Friday afternoon how many men will be dropped on account of the change effective Sunday. The company expressed regret over the prospect of being called upon to allow any of its men to go, for their crews are excellent and are appreciated by the employers.

Incidentally, Sunday also brings a change as to cars connecting at Central Village for Norwich. During the summer period cars leaving here 20 minutes after odd hours connected for Norwich. Sunday and thereafter cars leaving here 20 minutes after the even hours will make the connection at Central Village for Norwich.

There are some signs of improvement in the cotton textile industry. These are not sufficiently forceful to warrant any announcement forecasting a boom, but they are encouraging in some degree. A mill supply concern with headquarters here has found the manufacturers inclined to be a little more liberal in their buying of late and this is reflected in the full time operation of the plant in Danielson. Another concern here making an essential device used in weaving is running full time and has plenty of business on hand. It has been remarked in other periods of depression that returning prosperity of the mills is first forecasted through their buying of supplies. If this is true things likely will be somewhat better in the cotton textile industry before long.

Mention made in this paper Thursday of the success achieved in growing a rarely excellent quality of Connecticut broad leaf tobacco on the Captain Hugh E. Mason farm in Brooklyn and the high revenue per acre to be derived from such a venture, has proved of more than passing interest to numbers of people puzzling over ways and means to make unprofitable farms in this territory pay a fair return for the time and labor spent upon them. Possibly tobacco growing may be the answer. It certainly is if quality like that produced on the Mason farm can be made standard hereabouts. Soil tests will establish the availability of any particular farm for tobacco growing. An experienced man in charge of such work and proper handling and curing after cutting is the balance of the proposition, and that should be as capable of solution in eastern Connecticut as in the Connecticut river valley territory, where hundreds of thousands of dollars have been made in tobacco farms.

Another flaming cross blazed on Orient Heights Thursday night and here was a quick rush of machines and people through Hawkins and Reynolds streets to see the show, staged about 9 o'clock.

PUTNAM

Judge William M. Maltbie held a short calendar session of the Windham county superior court at Putnam Friday morning and two uncontested divorce petitions were granted.

Hattie A. Byers of Sterling was granted a decree from Charles W. Byers of New London. The hearing was, in effect, heard in chambers, as the testimony was not given so that the spectators could hear. The decree was granted on the grounds of adultery after testimony had been offered that the defendant had frequented a New London boarding house with a woman other than his wife.

James O. Kelley of Danielson was granted a decree from Jennie Kelley, now of Pomfret. The plaintiff testified that he had served in the World war overseas and while in the army had received letters from home that his wife was running around with other men. When he returned in 1919 he found a Putnam man at his home. He talked to his wife about matters concerning other man and she promised to do better, and did do better for a short while. Soon she began to go out again and one night he found her at a dance in Putnam with a colored man named Harry Webster. He then told his wife that she would have "to take her pick." She left him and for the past two years, the witness said, had been living with the colored man in Pomfret.

Deep Phis of Danielson testified that he had frequently seen Mrs. Kelley and the Webster man together and that he had been told by a nephew of Webster that Mrs. Kelley was living with Webster.

Florence Stevens of Danielson said that she went to the Webster home in Pomfret Thursday. The home, testified the witness, consisted of a three-room house, and the rooms were small at that. Mrs. Stevens asked for Mrs. Webster and in reply met Mrs. Kelley, wife of the plaintiff. While Mrs. Kelley or Webster did not say that Webster was her husband, she appeared as Mrs. Webster and was living with the colored man in the house. Judge Maltbie granted the decree on the ground of adultery.

A case in which there is a considerable local interest, Edward J. Keegan vs. the town of Thompson et als., was submitted to the court on briefs. All of the facts are admitted by counsel. The case involves the right of the town of Thompson to pay members of the town school committee. This the town has been doing for a considerable period of years under a vote passed in town meeting. The plaintiff, who secured a temporary injunction restraining the town from paying out any more money to members of the school committee, claims that the members of the committee are public officers and as such can only receive such remuneration as is provided by statute. The statute only provides for the payment of the chairman and secretary of the board. Besides enjoining the town from further payment, the recovery of money paid as salary to members of the committee is sought.

The defendants assert that as the conduct and maintenance of public schools is a burden imposed on the town by the state, the town has the implied power to pay members of the committee as it has done. Further, it is asserted that if the town has gone beyond its authority in paying members of the committee, nevertheless as the members accepted the office with the understanding that they were to be paid, such sums as have been paid them cannot be recovered by the town.

Merton Johnson was in the city court Friday morning, charged with being a common drunkard, was found guilty and sentenced to the state farm for inebriates at Norwich. Johnson pleaded not guilty, but police officers testified to frequently seeing him about the streets intoxicated and taking care of him on a number of occasions. Johnson formerly worked in a local mill and inherited some money from a brother who died a year or two ago, since which he has done little if any work.

The Putnam division of the Connecticut company will on Sunday begin running one-man trolley cars. The Putnam line, according to officials of the company, has not been a paying proposition. It is to reduce the running expenses that the new system is put into effect. The company, it is understood, has had the matter of running the one-man cars on the Putnam division for a considerable time; the employes have been anticipating the change for a considerable time and it comes as no great surprise to the public.

The same cars now operated will continue to be used on the line from Central Village on the south to North Grosvenordale on the north. They have been remodeled to meet the requirements of the new system. There will be as much room for passengers as heretofore and the same running schedule will be maintained.

The plan is to have each passenger handed a slip as they enter the car. If at a village, the slip will contain the name of the village; if between villages, the number of the zone. When he is ready to alight from the car the slip will denote the place he boarded the car and the amount of fare between the points will be collected.

All of the men on this division are trained to act as either conductor or motorman so that they will have no difficulty in handling both jobs combined.

Dr. S. B. Overlock of Pomfret and Dr. Karl T. Phillips are attending the annual convention of the New England Surgical society at Hartford.

Norrie Hislop has moved his family from Laurel street, Putnam, to Webster, where Mr. Hislop has been employed for some time.

While at Crescent Beach, A. L. Mansfield suffered a heart attack, to which he has been subject, and is ill there, with Mrs. Mansfield attending him.

Miss Gertrude Warner has returned after five weeks spent at Campobello, New Brunswick, and will resume her duties as teacher in Israel Putnam school next week.

OLD MORSE MILL SOLD FOR A NEW INDUSTRY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Sept. 26.—The old stone mill on Church street, known as the Morse mill, formerly a part of the plant of the Nightingale-Morse Manufacturing company, has been sold and is soon to be put in operation. The selling agent is G. L. & H. G. Gross of Providence and the grantees are J. B. Strongman and Ralph C. Perkins, both of New Bedford. L. J. Harley of Springfield, Mass., who purchased the property a year ago at the time of the sale of the property by the Nightingale-Morse Mills company, is the grantor. While the sale has been admitted by those interested, the deeds have not been recorded at the town clerk's office, but they are expected within a few days.

No detailed information as to just what use is to be made of the plant is available, but it is known that the mill is to be used for manufacturing purposes and that a new organization is to be perfected to take title to the property and carry on the business.

Mr. Perkins is the manager of Stephen M. Weld & company, cotton brokers, of Providence. Mr. Strongman is treasurer of the City Manufacturing company, New Bedford. This concern manufactures cotton yarns. Mr. Strongman has been in Putnam more or less for some time, as he was one of the receivers appointed for the Manhasset Manufacturing company.

The City Manufacturing company manufactures carded and combed yarns, 20 to 100 warps. It is incorporated for $750,000 and sells direct to the consumer mills yarn on cones, cubes and beams and skeined yarn. The New Bedford plant has 59,064 spindles.

Already workmen are engaged in getting the Morse mill in condition for the installation of machinery. While the nature of the new industry has not been learned, it is believed that it will be a cotton mill in some one of the cotton industry's branches, either a yarn or a fabric mill.

About twenty-five people are working at the mill of Powdrell & Alexander, Inc. This concern is operating the No. 1 and No. 2 mill of the former Manhasset Manufacturing company. Cotton is now at the new plant and in process of being made into 30-warp yarn on beams. The material has reached the speeders and it is anticipated that within two weeks the spinning frames will be started up and that within a month 15,024 spindles will be in operation in the two mills, together with all other machinery in the plant. When in full operation, the company will employ about 150 people.

George F. Payne, widley known in the cotton textile industry in New England, is manager of the new company and has announced that Harold Kent of Putnam is master mechanic, Peter Carroll overseer of the card room and Martin Hogan overseer of spinning, spooling and warping. The two latter are also Putnam men and former employes of the Manhasset company.

The Good Maxwell—
The Good Friend of Its Owners

Tens of thousands of American families look upon their good Maxwell cars with a feeling akin to positive gratitude.

For the good Maxwell has enabled them to regard the motor car as something more than merely a means of transportation.

If you examine into the basic reasons for such performance, and for Maxwell's economical, care-free service, you discover that both the new transmission and new rear axle are strong and rugged enough for a truck; that the simple device of a platform spring under the front end of the motor, combined with the balancing of reciprocating parts to the fraction of an ounce, practically eliminates any sense of vibration; that in proportion to weight, it is actually stronger than cars costing two, three or even four times as much.

Takes Time to Mature Genius.

Thomas Jefferson is quoted as defending the charge that America had not yet produced a single man of literary genius: "When we have existed so long as the Greeks did before they produced Homer, the Romans Virgil, the French a Racine and a Voltaire, the English a Shakespeare and a Milton, we shall inquire from what unfriendly causes it has proceeded that the other countries of Europe, and quarters of the earth, shall not have inscribed any poet of ours on the roll of fame."

"War Paint" Flower.

One of our earliest flowers is the bloodroot or Indian paint. Break the stem of flower or root and you discover the reason for the name, for there immediately flows from the wound a reddish fluid which somewhat resembles blood and will stain, says Nature Magazine. It is said that this juice was once used by the Indians as a war paint and, mixed with sugar, by mothers as a cure for their children's coughs and colds.

DEFENDING THE CONSTITUTION

When President Coolidge spoke at the 150th anniversary of the opening of the Continental congress he made the most of the opportunity to defend the work of those sturdy patriots, those defenders of country against despots and those who, from the protection with which they surrounded the country through the Constitution, apparently anticipated just such attacks as are being experienced at the present time.

The work of that great document has been repeatedly set forth and President Coolidge has seen the wisdom of stressing the importance of preserving them in recent addresses which he has made. That he was giving some wholesome advice against yielding to the efforts of those who would dream it down and destroy were plain enough manifest. He was unmistakably voicing his opposition to the government experiment that is being promoted with such policies as advocated by the president denounced the movement for government ownership of [illegible] utilities as unconstitutional encroachment upon the rights of the people he was not [illegible] facts but he must [illegible] to the mind of hearers [illegible] deplorable experiences [illegible] when it took over the railroads as a war measure, and [illegible] being experienced [illegible] the operation [illegible] Both go to [illegible] operations are not a [illegible] business. The [illegible] position of utilities [illegible] too [illegible] recognized to [illegible] consideration being given [illegible] about any such [illegible]

We are the times when the people of the country have had reason to be thankful for the safeguards which were established by the forefathers, for building on a rock rather than on sand, and yet there are those today who would have the foundation of this government removed or so weakened that those very detrimental features which were successfully guarded against might be introduced and permitted to get in their detrimental work. Well does the president advise against any such possibilities, and in his defense of the Constitution the country must stand with him.

WHERE CONNECTICUT MUST STAND.

The republicans in the five congressional districts of the state have made their nominations for representatives in congress. In each instance there is named a man who has had years of legislative service, who is well equipped to represent the district and state, and whose experience and ability are recognized as worthy of being continued. Renomination means an endorsement of their service. It shows that they have given satisfaction, that there is a demand for the continuance of such representation and that they are regarded as the ones who will tender it. Congressmen Tilson, Freeman, Fenn and Merritt are now members of the lower house of congress. James P. Glynn a former representative of the Litchfield district for four terms is again nominated. This mean five who can be called upon to give Connecticut such representation at Washington as it desired.

In the coming election it is of the utmost importance that consideration should be given to the character of the congress that is elected. It is for the best interests of the country that President Coolidge should be given four more years in the chair of chief executive. His record and his policies justify it, but while the electorate is, as it is believed, committed to such action it is equally important that he should be given a congress that will stand with him.

For that reason it is the duty of the republicans and the supporters of good government in every congressional district of Connecticut to see that the republican candidates for congress are returned to Washington.

Connecticut has had four congressmen who have stood loyally back of the president since he assumed that office. They can be relied upon to continue that support. It is the wish of the people of Connecticut. There is an opportunity for increasing that support by sending a solid delegation from Connecticut for the next congress. After the farce displayed in the recent sessions and the work of the insurgents and radicals, who played hand in hand with the democrats, Connecticut should be more insistent than ever that its complete delegation must henceforth be administration supporters.

UNREASONABLE APPEALS.

It is getting to be a habit these days when it is impossible to get desired results otherwise to make an appeal to the president. That extends even to matters that have no connection whatever with national affairs, to state and community affairs.

The latest instance of it comes from Philadelphia where an organization much interested in the enforcement of the law has sought the aid of President Coolidge, or at least his intervention, in connection with the indicated plan of Mayor Kendrick of that city to fire General Butler of the marine corps who was loaned to Philadelphia for the purpose of serving as director of public safety and cleaning up the city.

It was clearly a case where the president would not interfere. It is entirely a local affair which must be handled locally, and the attempt to bring the president into it was absolutely unwarranted. The president's policy of "hands off" was no more than should have been expected.

Much interest prevails, however, in the developments which are scheduled over this matter. Mayor Kendrick brought Butler to Philadelphia to clean up the city. General Butler was to have free rein and he opened a spectacular campaign in which he promised results immediately. He has unquestionably done much in the way of bettering conditions. He has disclosed what difficulties are experienced in "cleaning up" such a city as Philadelphia and he has encountered strong opposition. He has disclosed the grip which politics had upon the police force, and its effect when it came to law enforcement, but the mayor complains of the lack of cooperation and consultation with him by the director, and has decided to make a change. He maintains that it will not mean any letup in his insistence upon law enforcement, but General Butler has won much sympathy because of the fight he has made in the face of the conditions and opposition and there is strong resistance to his dismissal.

How anyone should figure that the president could interfere in such a situation is hard to understand. There are evidently too many such instances where too little thought is given to what is being sought.

TEACHING SAFETY.

When it comes to the matter of protecting life there isn't anything of much greater importance these days than teaching children the importance of safety. There are many reasons for this, but that of the present day dangers of the streets and the highways is sufficient.

Reports of accidents and statistics show that it is not solely the children who are menaced by the street traffic, but it is through the children that it is possible to plant the seed that will bring about a greater observance of dangerous conditions. Too great a number of persons are killed every day in the streets, one way and another, but the proportion of children is large and the need of bringing them to a realization of conditions and the part they can play in avoiding the serious consequences of carelessness is obvious.

Children playing in the street face a different situation, than did those of a generation ago. The vehicles of today are more numerous and more speedy. They approach more silently and faster and it is not possible to stop a rapidly moving auto when a child dashes in front of it without warning, or to escape with as slight injuries in case of being hit or run over by an auto as was the case with the lighter horse drawn vehicles.

While the streets were once comparatively safe places to play they are far from it today. Safety lies in keeping out of them as much as possible. Grownups may show no greater regard for the danger than the children but if the idea of self protection is instilled in the young minds it is likely to remain there and be of much use as age increases.

A NEW AND NEEDED SERVICE.

The Salvation Army has undertaken many things. It has done a remarkable work along many lines and from the statement of Commissioner Estill, head of the organization in this country, it isn't at the end of its rope as far as new undertakings are concerned.

The list of services which are rendered by the Salvation Army is long but it sees the opportunity for educating incompetent housewives. That there is a need for it is not questioned. Where conditions exist with which this organization has to contend it is readily understood that the incompetency of the housewives must play its part and need correction.

What the situation is that prompts the new service can be gained from the commissioner's statement that "Our officers every day meet housewives who have never had a needle in their hands and know absolutely nothing about repairing their children's clothing; women who have never owned a toothbrush or nailbrush and make use of soap perhaps once or twice a week; women who haven't worn a neat, trim garment, but perhaps, ten or twelve times; women who know how to cook, perhaps two or three simple dishes that their husbands get weary of eating, and women who haven't the slightest idea as to how to treat minor injuries suffered by their children."

Tackling such a problem means facing no small amount of work, some resentment and perhaps much appreciation. Where such conditions exist there is need for improvement and great credit must be given to the Salvation Army for not only disclosing such conditions but for making plans to overcome them. Knowing the organization it is believed it will succeed.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

One of the most ingenious practical devices that the writer has seen for many a day is the "automatic directory" stationed on Asylum street, Hartford, a short distance west of the Bond hotel. It is so simple that it would seem that any person with ordinary intelligence could understand it. It is a diagram of the streets of Hartford about five or six feet square marking the location of the principal business concerns of the city by small pink bulbs. The names of these different business places are arranged alphabetically on the margin. A button is placed opposite these names and when pressed it lights up the pink bulb on the chart corresponding to the same name in the margin. The location of the chart itself is indicated by a large green bulb. It is quite easy to find the place desired from the green bulb to the illuminated pink bulb. This is another illustration of the present tendency to self help.

Preparation for a white way in the center of the city is very suggestive. Doubtless all of our cities need white ways as much as anything, and very likely Norwich is no exception. It goes without saying that we need a great many new ways that are white, and a great many of our old ways to be made much whiter than they are. When this new white way gets to working will it not be apt to confuse strangers? Will not the light be so dazzling that they will mistake the center of the city for Boswell avenue, or the upper end of North Main street or Fox hill and Hamilton avenue, or any other of the outskirts of our city? In a very ancient book we read, "And God said, Let there be light, and there was light." If the city fathers have said there ought to be more light, then let the light come. Pour more juice on those parts of the city that are now notoriously ill lighted!

You want to take the talk of some people about the decay of the church with considerable caution. Yes, you need more than the proverbial grain of salt—you need a whole box full. From the tone of many of these remarks one might easily infer that the golden age of the church is either passing or has long since passed. People who never go to church will tell you that in the good, old times the churches were always full, forgetting that church buildings have multiplied out of all proportion to the increase in population in the same period; forgetting that one hundred years ago the church was the only social center in many communities, and that all church attendants even in those palmy days didn't go to church for purely spiritual reasons. They also forget that many churches today—which they do not attend—are filled several times on Sunday which did not happen one hundred years ago.

As still further evidence of facts along this line let us remember the splendid work that is being done by institutions that do not have organic connection with our churches but have imbibed their spirit; institutions that did not exist one hundred years ago. For instance there is the Young Men's Christian Association that is making a practical demonstration of applied Christianity to an extent that our average churches cannot possibly do because they do not have the equipment. But the underlying spirit came from the church. No one will be disposed to underrate the importance of the Red Cross work. What it did in the World war has given it a well-earned immortality. It may be be that there is less interest today in dogmatic theology than there was a century ago. But that is a gain rather than a loss to the churches. The church never did so large a work for humanity as now.

"If a saying is hard to understand it is because we are thinking of something else." The name of the author of that statement is not known. It is true, of course, that our wool-gathering when we ought to be listened to what is said explains why we fail to get very much of what is told us. If this statement, however, were primarially true then it would not take into account a very obvious fact that much we hear is very obscure, first, because the idea that the speaker seeks to express is all muddled up in his own mind, and secondly, what is muddled in mind is usually muddled still more in expression. When we don't clearly understand what we are trying to tell we usually make a mess of it. When you don't understand what somebody is telling you, it may not be due to his profundity of thought, but to his attempts to cover up his poverty of thought.

Can one remember when the month of September has been more delightfully cool and invigorating? The most crabbed among us has no fling at this glorious fall weather! What is back of climatic conditions is not yet a wholly demonstrable problem. Possibly a pang of remorse came to the weather machine for giving us the intolerable heat of Labor day, and what we have been getting since is a sort of compensation on the compound interest plan. At any rate it has fully atoned for what it inflicted upon us as the calendar summer left us and the first autumnal day brought with it. What a bonanza it has been to those men who have used their muscles in digging cellars! In digging into the mystery of study, the teacher has not been compelled to use that modern classical expression so much as usual "now use your bean." To those of us who make a fad of walking how easily have we reeled off the customary five miles!

"Procrastination is the thief of time," says Young, the gloomy poet, in his Night Thoughts. Making a modern application of the idea means that the latter part of September finds you with empty coal bins, and the steam heater just about as it was when you let the fire out in early April. Of course you have gotten along quite nicely while the sun was in the northern hemisphere. By procrastinating you have just slumped along because tomorrow in your life thus far has managed to take care of itself. Possibly it will this year, but sometime and in some way you are going to get terribly left. You are going to pay more for coal now than you would have in early summer, and you don't know when a cold snap will swoop down upon you from the polar latitudes. There is nothing in all the world that is so easily stolen as time. There is always a certain time for doing a certain thing; no other time will do quite so well.

When the drama was first brought on to the American stage it was met with considerable popular opposition because of the grip Puritanism had upon the people at large. It greatest answer to the challenge of Calvinistic theology was seventy-four years ago today when Edwin Booth made his first appearance in a New York theater on September 27, 1850. Edwin Booth was undoubtedly the greatest tragedian that America has produced. He was a good illustration of the trend of heredity, as his father, Junius Brutus Booth, was an accomplished actor before him. As the younger Pitt far outstripped his father Lord Chatham in statecraft, so also did Edwin Booth surpass his father in all the features that enter into the making of a great actor. His deep musical voice has never been surpassed on the American stage; neither has his interpretation of Shakespeare. His life was also in consonance with his great acting.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Rest That Remaineth

When thou passeth through the waters I will be with thee, and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee, Isaiah, 43:2.

For forty years the children of Isreal had been shut out of the land which the Lord had promised to give them, because on first arriving at the southern borders of the land of Canaan, they had been afraid to enter. Their faith in God's care had not been great enough to make them willing to face the dangers of warfare against the dreadful giants they heard about.

God punished them for their lack of faith after all the evidences He had given them of His watchfulness and His power to protect them by sending them back into the wilderness to live there until a whole generation had passed away. God is always leading us on, always pointing forward, if we will but see it to new conquests. Over Jordan, so to speak, there lie lovely and fruitful fields, and new scope for our energies, and new trials of our faith.

The crossing of Jordan represents to us the act of cutting ourselves loose from our moorings to the things of this world and stepping out on the promises of God, determined to obey His commands and to trust Him unquestioningly. That act brings peace to the spirit, and in that peace there is restfulness for body and mind as well as for the spirit.

The writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews uses the promised land as a type of the rest that remain for the people of God. Let us labor therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief. Heb. 3:11

Postal Service Betterments In Past Three Years

Postmaster General New has issued a statement of facts relating to the operation of the postal system since March 4, 1921. During this period the postal service has witnessed extraordinary expansion and marked improvement.

The expansion has been so rapid and at times uneven that it has for short intervals taxed to the extreme all the efforts and energies of the postal organization and the existing appropriations. This expansion is measured by two distinct considerations;—one is the increase in postal receipts, there having been a total increase in three years of $188,508,725, so that the annual receipts last year reached the sum of $572,000,000. The other consideration is the spread of towns and cities due to the influence of the automobile. The same number of people doing the same amount of business are now spread over a far greater area than formerly. People are not residing so closely together in the cities. Because of this fact cities have grown in the last few years out into the country and suburbs to an extent not ordinarily appreciated. The mail carrier must go where they are. It is not possible to measure in exact terms how much this new phase in the spread of cities has cost the postal service in the number of carriers rendered necessary, the number of motor vehicle trucks required, and otherwise.

To meet this postal expansion and the service improvements, "regular" employees have been added to the service to the number of 17,994. These are dividde as follows: railway mail clerks, 1,469; laborers in post offices 1,389 motor vehicles employees, 372; carriers, 5,297; and post office clerks, 9,479.

Within the cities there have been established 191 "classified" sub-stations and 537 so-called "contract" postal stations.

New carrier service in 104 villages has been established, and new "city service" in 164 small cities.

In farming and rural districts, there have been established in three years 1008 rural routes, and many existing routes have been lengthened, so that the result is that the service has been extended during this time to 730,393 people who hitherto have had no delivery service whatever. At the present time, the number of families served by rural routes is 6,534,980, and the total population is 30,060,516.

The motor vehicle service now requires, in order to perform its part in the postal service, 8,758 motor vehicle trucks or its equivalent, which is 2,424 more than was required three years ago. Of this number 5,278 are government-owned. The remainder are employed under contract or under yearly, daily or hourly rental. It should be noted that the cost of maintaining and operating the government-owned trucks has been reduced from 81c to 63c per hour.

While this expansion of, and improvements in, the postal service has been met in the foregoing manner, it is to be noted that the postal "deficit" has at the same time been reduced from $83,400,000 to about $18,000,000. This has been accomplished almost wholly by the inauguration of better business methods, and the applications of a rigid system of economy. It has not been accomplished by unreasonable exactions from those who perform the work in the postal service. In fact, the conditions of labor have been very markedly improved.

In addition to securing a better and more prompt service to the people generally there are certain particular items of improvement which may be mentioned. Among these we note the following:

Daily air mail service on a route from New York to San Francisco has been established. The postage paid by the public is 8c per ounce for each of the three zones. The schedule is every day, including Sundays and holidays, and the time for the trip is 34 hours and 45 minutes going west, and 31 hours and 35 minutes coming east. New air mail stamps, 8c 16c, and 24c have been issued.

This is the longest air line in the world and is the only route upon which night as well as day flying is employed. Air mail was recommended by postmaster Generals Hays and Work and put in operation by me on July 1, 1924, by and with the approval of President Coolidge and congress.

An airplane service was established and run as an experiment in Alaska, covering a route from Fairbanks to McGrath which ordinarily takes the dog sleds 35 days in each direction. Larger cargoes of mail were carried than possible to accomodate in the dog sleds, and the round trip was made in one day, going out in the morning and back in the evening, 2 1-2 hours to 3 hours being required for each journey of the plane. Conditions for delivering mail in Alaska are difficult. We have there sixty-eight dog routes which are run in relays and which all together employ 3,000 dogs.

A substantial cure has been effected of a long-standing cause for complaint against delays in the transportation of daily newspapers, so that under the new plan and order they are dispatched in the same manner, and with practically the same expedition as first-class mail.

Post offices on trans-Atlantic steamers, which were discontinued during the war have been reestablished on the Atlantic, and similar post offices have been established for the first time on trans-Pacific ships.

In New York harbor a boat service has been established to meet incoming trans-Atlantic steamers, thus facilitating the mail from twelve to twenty-four hours.

This administration has inaugurated and scrupulously followed the policy of shipping all possible foreign mail in ships carrying the American flag. This has resulted in giving to American shipping much more business than it formerly had.

In accordance with new regulations residences have been equipped with mailboxes or door-slots for the safe reception of mail and its expeditious handling by the carrier; and apartment houses are being equipped with a system of boxes with a master key which will render greater safety to the mails and greater convenience to the patrons.

Public telephones have been installed in all of the larger post offices.

Insured parcel post which is lost or destroyed is paid for more promptly than formerly because of a decentralization policy by which it is settled in the filed instead of from Washington.

More stringent restrictions now surround the sending of obscene and scurrilous matter through the mails.

The work of the Dead Letter office has been facilitated by the establishment of sub-offices, and such articles as are impossible to identify or deliver are sold more promptly and to better advantage.

A constant campaign of publicity has been maintained for the purpose of securing better addresses and a similar campaign of publicity is maintained for the purpose of showing the public the advantage to patrons of mailing early each day. This also relieves the amount of night work in post offices.

Of inestimable value to the public is the work done by the post office department to prevent the fradulent use of the mails. Since March 4, 1921, there have been issued 851 fraud orders against as many companies or individuals. The solicitor of the post office department, with a corps of skilled lawyers and inspectors, is constantly engaged in this work. Growing out of this activity, there have been 2246 arrests, and under the criminal fraud statue 2870 indictments, and 891 convictions; under the conspiracy statute there have been 253 arrests, 346 indictments, and 78 convictions.

Under the fraud orders issued, it may be timely to note that 284 of the 851 were issued against syndicates or persons engaged in oil stock frauds. It is also to be noted that no such orders were issued during the preceding administration.

It has assisted the treasury department in the sale of war savings stamps, thrift stamps, treasury saving certificates and internal revenue stamps. The total revenue collected by the post office service for these amount to the sum of $389,828,057.50.

The post office department conducts a postal savings bank, which now has a total deposit of $133,000,000. Foreigners resident in this country are the largest patronizers of this institution.

There have been 34 holdups of mail trains, trucks, post offices, etc., resulting in over $7,000,000 in currency and securities having been stolen, but a large fraction of this has been recovered.

We will accept on DEPOSIT as CASH, LIBERTY BOND COUPONS due Oct. 15, 1924.

DEPOSITS made on or before Monday, Oct. 6th, will be entitled to INTEREST or DIVIDENDS from Oct. 1st.

Carrie Jacobs-Bond's Many Discouragements

All the heart throbs that are blended into her most popular song, A Perfect Day, have been experienced by Carrie Jacobs-Bond.

As a child in Janesville, Wis., she loved music but her parents thought her predilection was toward art, and she was given lessons in painting. At nine began the study of music but only as a pastime.

Married at 18, she gave up her musical education, and she was unhappy. Seven years later she married Dr. F. L. Bond, of Iron River, Mich., who was much interested in her verses and musical compositions.

Submitting some of her songs to a musical publisher in Chicago, she met with disappointment, but was told that children's songs were desired. In a few hours she wrote, Is My Dolly Dead? and it was sung in a Chicago theater. Soon afterward her husband was killed in an accident leaving an estate barely large enough to keep her and her eight-year-old son comfortable for a short time.

An invalid at 35 and without funds, she rented rooms but could not make the project pay. Then she painted china and copied her music manuscripts in her tiny apartment, while her son worked as a special delivery boy. She wrote songs and they were published but the revenue was so small that she decided to publish them herself.

Saving $300 and borrowing $200 more, she published Seven Songs. The financial returns were small, she did dressmaking to pay for advertising, sang in concert to make her compositions known and made heavy sacrifices only to find herself heavily in debt. A friend bought an interest in the business for $1500 enough to cover the deficit. Then Mrs. Bond opened the Bond shop in the dining room of her apartment.

Gradually her songs won popularity and the business grew. After a delightful day with friends she composed the words to A Perfect Day. Months afterward the melody came to her. The song won instant popularity and has been sung all over the world. Fame and fortune came to her at 48. Other songs, including O Haunting Memory, Today and Do You Remember? also won success and Carrie Jacobs-Bond today is one of the most popular musical composers in the world.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William Allen White, whose independent candidacy for the governship may complicate the political contest in Kansas this Fall, is the well-known journalist-ditor, since 1895 of the Empire Gazette, and a welcome contributor to the popular monthlies of articles dealing with social and political problems of the hour as they seem to the residents of the mid-west. Mr. White combines homely wisdom with ethical passion, and he knows how to tell o fthe aspirations and contentments of the mass of people who till the soil and make up the social structure of rural America. In his fiction he has sought to analyse the conflicts that ensue in a democracy when it is assailed by a plutocracy; and as an editor and contributor to the press he has fought for progressive political evolution. That he is something of an artist as well as a moralist, a man of letters as well as a political leader, is shown by the fact that he is a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Little Miss Mousie's Gifts

Now I wonder what Little Miss Mousie had in the two small packages—the two surprises I mentioned in the last story.

As dear Uncle Lucky drove away in the Luckymobile from the Three-in-One-Cent store, he glanced down sideways at little Miss Mousie, sitting beside him, her hands folded in the lap, half hiding the two little packages. But he didn't say anything.

No, siree. He just waited until Little Miss Mousie couldn't wait a minute longer to show her surprises. Smilingly, she opened one, very carefully, and then, drawing out a candy peppermint heart, she held it up and read aloud the little verse printed on it in red letters:

"Take this little candy heart
And tell me we shall never part."

But, dearest me. Instead of handing it to dear Uncle Lucky, Little Miss Mousie dropped it in the bunny boy's paw.

"Goodness gracious mesbus!" exclaimed the disappointed old gentleman rabbit. "I've got some smoke in my eye. Where's my precious blue silk polkadot handkerchief?" and he fumbled in his coat pocket.

"Here it is," laughed Little Miss Mousie, pulling it out of his coat tail, and carefully spreading it out nice and smooth, you know, with his paw. Then, opening the other little package, she drew out a peppermint stick. "You've smoked too many cabbage leaf cigars today. Smoke this one," she said with a lovely smile. But poor Uncle Lucky only answered, "Thank you," and slipped it into his leather cigar case.

"I'm going to take my candy heart home to mother," said the little rabbit, folding it carefully in his clean pocket handkerchief so it wouldn't get all stickery sticky.

By this time they had nearly reached the Sunny Meadow, and in a few moments they saw Lady Love, the little rabbit's pretty bunny mother, standing at the gate in the white picket fence, her paw shading her eyes as she waited for her bunny boy's return.

"Here he is," cried Uncle Lucky. "Can't stay to supper tonight as Peter Possum is coming to see me this evening," and with a wave of his paw, the old gentleman rabbit drove away with Little Miss Mousie. As soon as he had put the Luckymobile in the tiny garage in the rear of his neat white house, he hopped into the kitchen for supper. Little Miss Mousie had already spread the red tablecloth, dotted with little white roses on the table, a saucer of clover tops covered with cream stood at the old gentleman bunny's place, his arm chair, backed with a soft cushion was drawn up close and his comfortable carpet slippers waited for his tired feet.

"Well, well, well," he sighed, as he slipped into them.

"There's no place like home, I guess
My old cushion's soft carress
Easy slippers for my feet,
Everything so sweet and neat

And he smiled at Little Miss Mousie as she sat down opposite him to pour turnip tea.

Stories That Recall Others

Wanted To Be Popular

A farmer was talking to his 16 year old daughter about his desire for her to go through college. She listened and then asked: "Do I have to go to school?"

"Hadn't you planned to go through college?" he asked in amazement.

She shook her head, "I hadn't planned anything but to take just as little education as I could," she returned.

Absentmindedness Plus

A merchant was laughing over the absentminded customer who recently sent her little girl to the store with instruction to stay there until her mother telephoned an order. After the child had been there an hour or so the mother called and said she had forgotten all about sending her.

"It reminds me," said the merchant, "of the time when I was a boy. We lived about a quarter of a mile from the town. It was our custom to walk to the village in the evening to get the mail and loaf a while at the general store. One evening dad was very tired and instead of walking hitched up the old mare and drove into town. About 9 o'clock, just as I had taken off my shoes to go to bed dad came whistling up the front walk.

"Why, dad," I said, "didn't you drive to town this evening?"

A queer expression came over his face and in a tone of great authority he said, "Go right down there and get that horse." Then I wished I had kept still.

If frequent shaving irritates your skin use
Resinol
Perhaps the daily shave makes your sensitive skin burn and smart, or it may cause a rash which is uncomfortable and embarrassing. RESINOL OINTMENT helps greatly to relieve and clear away such ailments, but RESINOL SHAVING STICK tends to prevent them entirely. Its rich, generous, non-drying lather makes shaving a pleasure because no after-shaving lotions are necessary, and the face is left smooth, cool and soft. Resinol products at all druggists.

$500,000 FIRE AT STATEN ISLAND AMUSEMENT RESORT

New York, Sept. 26.—Damage estimated at $500,000 was caused by a five alarm fire tonight which destroyed more than half of Midland Beach, a Staten Island amusement resort.

The fire started from an unknown cause in the Richmond hotel and, fanned by a strong southwest wind, spread rapidly to a scenic railway and thence to the waiting room of the Richmond Light and Railway company and several small wooden buildings, all of which were readily inflammable.

An adjacent bungalow colony was saved from probably annihilation by the fact that the wind was blowing toward the ocean. Flames ate their way for a quarter of a mile along the beach before they were checked.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN PICTURE MADE PROFOUND IMPRESSION

The special and private showing of the "Abraham Lincoln" feature picture at the Palace theatre Friday afternoon after the regular scheduled matinee of the current attraction was an event that will prove a lasting and interesting memory in the minds of those who witnessed it.

The engagement here does not begin until Sunday evening, but the special showing was given for the mayor and common council, other city officials, the superintendent of schools and the various school principals and teachers and the clergy. Of seventy-five invitations sento ut, all but three were accepted and every one of the invited guests were in their seats when the performance started promptly at 4.15 o'clock, the time set.

Without formalities of any kind, the picture began to reveal vividly the scenes in anecdotal form in the life of the Great Liberator, from his birth in a log cabin during the intensity of one of the wildest blizzards imaginable to the last sad scenes of his momentous life.

At the finale there were few dry eyes in the little party and as they left the theatre therewas a decided unanimity of opinion that it was the most strikingly realistic and truly wonderful picture they had ever witnessed. It did, not seem that there was a single dissenting voice.

SELECTMEN RECOMMEND TOWN TAX OF 8 1-2 MILLS; SCHOOL TAX 12 MILLS

The town's business has been conducted this year by the selectmen so that all bills have been paid to date and a balance of $11,875.94 remains to be carried over to next year, according to the annual report which First Selectman William S. Murray and his associates have just completed.

The estimated expenses for the coming year are $224,700, of which $184,424.06 is to be raised by tax, for which the selectmen recommended an 8 1-2 mill town tax. A year ago the estimated expenses were $212,749.19, of which $154.99919 was to be raised by tax and a rate of 7 3-4 mills town tax was recommended. Neither of these rates take account of the extras which the annual town meeting votes.

In corporated with the selectmen's annual report is the budget of the town school board, which estimates $275,785.70 for the school expenses which will call for a tax of 12 mills. Last year the estimated expenses were $262,106.07 and a 13 mill tax was called for.

Selectmen's Annual Report

The annual report of the selectmen to the citizens of Norwich is as follows:

Your board of selectmen take pleasure in offering for your inspection and information the following brief statement of some of the activities of the town for the past year, together with an estimate of receipts and expenses for the year to come.

Although during the past year the expenses in some departments of town affairs have been larger than had been expected, due, in the main, to necessary repairs and improvements, your board is pleased to be able to state that all bills of the town which were presented for payment have been fully paid, and that there is at the present time an unexpended balance on hand amounting to over $11,000, which sum is equal to a trifle more than one-half of one mill upon the present grand list. As in previous years, the board has made every effort to keep expenses as low as possible and to see that the town received a dollar's worth of labor or material for each dollar expended.

Although employment conditions have not been as satisfactory in Norwich as in previous years, yet it was possible to keep the expense for the outside poor within the appropriation, and while there has been some additional expense at the the almshouse, the greater part of this is represented by necessary repairs to the property itself. The entire inside of the building has been painted, substantial fences have been erected about a portion of the property and new fire hose has been purchased, the old being found upon test to be practically worthless. Also, the coal for the coming season has been purchased, delivered and fully paid for. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have completed their first year as superintendent and assistant at the almshouse, which positions they have filled and we trust, will continue to fill in a satisfactory manner.

The highways of the town have been kept in good repair but no important new work has been done. The appropriation which was made at the last annual town meeting for state aid roads has not been used as the state highway department has been unable to perform the work. The board has taken this matter up with the department, however, and believe that this will be done at an early date, which will result in a much improved highway in the Taftville section of the town. To keep our highways in repair with increased traffic, which they have to bear, it is highly desirable that the town have further mechanical equipment than it has at the present time, a purchase which would result not only in better roads, but it is hoped in a decrease in the labor cost of maintenance. It is expected that this equipment can be purchased for use during the coming year.

Your board has installed two flashing beacons, one at the corner of the Norwich Town green and the other in the village of Occum. These two beacons have not as yet been purchased but have been installed temporarily to see of they prove satisfactory, and if they are to be retained, will have to be paid for out of the forthcoming appropriation.

Ordinary repairs have been made on the bridges and new double planking has been laid on the entire surface of the Eighth street bridge. The Preston bridge has also been replanked on one side and an entirely new walk has been built on the northerly side of this bridge. The removal of the street railway tracks from this bridge will make it possible to keep this highway in better condition than in the past. Owing to the action of the last legislature in placing the entire expense for the roadway and approaches of bridges over railroads upon the municipalities, there will probably be a somewhat heavier expense for the portion of bridges overpense for the portion of the ordinary bridge repair in the future than in the past.

For many years past there has been great difficulty in providing proper accommodations for the holding of elections in some of the voting districts of the town. Your board has taken steps in conjunction with the city to remedy this difficulty, at least to some extent, and expects with your approval to erect a permanent building for voting purposes on the grounds of the Greeneville school. It has also made arrangements with the town school committee to have a proper place for election purposes provided on the East Side, while the city is making arrangements to construct a voting place on the West Side for the use of the second voting district. While these buildings entail some immediate outlay, they should result in a substantial reduction in expense of holding elections after they are completed and ready for use, and it is hoped that the one in Greeneville can be used in the approaching national and state election.

Several special town meetings have been held during the year, at one of which it was voted to erect a new modern school building on the present lot on the East Side at a cost not to exceed $100,000 while at another a special tax adjustment committee was appointed to consider and report at a later meeting on the question of securing a more equitable assessment of taxable property in the town. This committee has organized and held a number of meetings but it is not yet ready to make a final report. In order to defray the expense of the school on the East Side just mentioned, it will be necessary for the town to issue serial bonds to the amount of $100,000, and it will be also necessary to issue approximately $17,000 of bonds to replace the court house bonds for this amount maturing Jan. 1, 1925. The question of issuing these bonds has already been taken up by your board and it is believed that they can be issued and sold at an advantageous rate of interest not over 4 1-4 per cent.

On March 21, 1924, Daniel F. McNeil, who for a considerable number of years has served as one of the town auditors, was removed by death. Mr. McNeil's agreeable personality and faithful services have been and will be greatly missed by your board. At a meeting held shortly after his death James W. Semple was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. McNeil until the next election.

Your board would recommend a tax of 8 1-2 mills as sufficient to meet the estimated expenses for the coming year. In addition to these estimated expenses, however, there will no doubt be a number of requests for appropriations made by petition which will be incorporated in the warning for the annual town meeting. These appropriations, if made, will of course call for a heavier rate of taxation than that recommended above.

The town school committee asks that the town appropriate the sum of $275,785.70 for the support of the schools during the coming year. HOLY NAME PARADE ASTONISHED WASHINGTON

The recent Holy Name parade in Washington at the national convention of the Holy Name societies was declared to have been one of the greatest parades that the national capital ever saw by Rev. W. A. Keefe of this city, state director, who returned a few days ago from the convention. By actual count there were 106,000 men in the parade and there must have been 150,000 looking on when President Coolidge made his address which, Father Keefe said, made a favorable impression and was a characteristic declaration and exposition of good sound principles that all could subscribe to.

Picturesque features of the parade were about 3,000 New York and Philadelphia policemen, with their own bands, big detachmnets of letter carriers and firemen, Indians from the west and several thousand colored men. A railroad man with long experience in Washington was authority for the statement that never have such crowds been carried into the city by the railroads as came there for the Holy Name parade.

COLCHESTER CAN USE RANSON SCHOOL-HOUSE

The Colchester health officer, Dr. Edward Howland gave notice Friday morning to the town school commitee, permitting the opening of the Ranson school in the center of the borough Monday morning with sessions to continue until the Christmas holiday. Last year the school house was occupied by grades 1, 2 3 and 8. The Ranson school was closed along with others by Dr. Howland, on the grounds that it was unsanitary. His order was issued a few weeks before the opening of the fall term and as it left Colchester practically without a single school house the edict was of wide interest in Connecticut. School authorities mixed things up with health and political heads in the town and the battle was carried to the state board of education. The work of remedying the conditions of the schools was started immediately and some of the schools were ready for occupancy at the opening of the fall term, while others were still being put through a cleansing course. A number of the grades were allowed to use part of Bacon academy. The Ranson school was said to be in the worst condition.

FINISHING CONCRETE ON LAUREL HILL AVENUE

It is expected now by Street Commissioner John C. Donovan that the new concrete road on Laurel Hill avenue as far as the city line will be completed by Monday night and as soon as the last concrete that has been laid has dried out the street will be open for traffic for its full width over the new section.

By next Tuesday the street commissioner expects to start the West Main street cement job from Washington square to Thames square. It is his intention to do the space between the trolley tracks first. The block pavement will be taken up and an entire new concrete pavement laid.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Dwight B. Strong.

(Contributed.)

It was with sad hearts that the community of Colchester learned last week Thursday mroning, Sept. 18, that Mrs. Hester H. Strong, widow of Dwight B. Strong, had passed away at her home on South Main street after only a few hours' illness.

Although she had been an invalid for several years, and her hold on life was considered slight and precarious, still she was able to be about her home until she was taken suddenly ill and rendered unconscious. A few hours later, in spite of all that loving hearts and hands could do, the end came.

Mrs. Strong was born in Smithfield, R. I., March 23, 1850, and was the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George E. Fuller, a former pastor of the M. E. church of this place. Her education was gained at the public schools and at Bacon academy. On March 5, 1879, she was married to Dwight B. Strong of this place, who died several years ago. Her life was a beautiful and noble one. The remembrance of her kindness will be a fragrance to her relatives and friends, memories that will be always sweet and lasting. Brought up under the refining influences of a Christian home, her early training developed in her those virtues which ripened into a beautiful life of Christian character. Uniting much suavity and graciousness of manner to sincerity of feeling, she won friends easily. She had a refinement of taste, having superior qualities of heart and mind; always home loving, she was an ideal mother, a devoted wife a kind and considerate neighbor and a true friend. Her home and her family were very dear to her, and the loss of a number of children seemed to draw her all the more tenderly to those who survived, to whom she was ever a gentle adviser, and her death will leave a great void in the home circle.

Mrs. Strong possessed a disposition that was pleasantly and persistently cheerful and patient, and was always in sympathy with her family, and always at their command for any service she could render, rejoicing in their success and sympathetic with their trials. Her love for her family was well returned in the never failing, ever patient care given her by her devoted children, to whom their loss seems almost unbearable. She will be sadly missed in the home circle, where she will always be held in loving remembrance. She was a member of the Methodist church and after her marriage became an earnest and efficient worker in the Baptist church, where she was a regular attendant until ill health forbid her attending. There is sorrow and regret that the arrow of death should descend so soon and so suddenly at her door, but the time had come, the Heavenly Father had called her, summoning her across the river, and without doubt "our loss is her unspeakable gain." Her friends can only stand with the upward gaze on their face for a moment, and then turn back to life's waiting duties, to wait till the shadows life and the day breaks which is followed by no night forever more.

Mrs. Strong is survived by three daughters, Mrs. E. R. Sherman, Miss Evelyn Strong, Miss Edna Strong and two grandsons, Randall and Willard Sherman, all of thig place.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home on South Main street. Rev. George E. Chappell of Hartford officiated. The large attendance best witness the universal sorrow which is felt by the people, and the respect they desired to show to her memory. She lay in her casket, surrounded by beautiful flowers, as peaceful as if asleep, and after a brief home service the remains were laid to rest in the family lot in Linwood cemetery. A duet of voices rendered sweetly two hymns during the ceremony, Face to Face and Abide With Me, with much feeling.

To the dear Heavenly Father who robs even death of its sting and who doeth all things well, into His strengthening and loving care we commit the sorrowing ones. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved family in this their time of sorrow.

Miss Helen Robinson.

Following an illness of three months, the life of Miss Helen Robinson came to a peaceful close Friday morning at 3.15 o'clock at her home, 59 Sachem street, relatives who had tenderly cared for her during her illness being at the bedside.

Miss Robinson was born in Norwich, the younger daughter of Elizabeth C. and the late Frank A. Robinson, and had spent all of her life at the family homestead in this city. She was educated in the public schools and the Norwich Free Academy, graduating with the class of 1901. She was an active and earnest member of Christ Episcopal church and one of the most valued workers in St. Agnes guild, the Junior Auxiliary and the church school, in all of which she was an untiring worker, her efforts being appreciated by her fellow workers.

Of a kind and loving disposition Miss Robinson followed the Christian teachings to the highest degree and a host of friends will mourn her loss. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Frank A. Robinson and her sister, Miss Louise Robinson, both of whom have the sympathy of many friends in their great bereavement.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL GETS UNDER WAY TODAY

New York, Sept. 26 (By the A. P.) —The thud of the pigskin will rival the crack of the base hit tomorrow when the 1924 college football season gets under way.

Moleskin wearers in all parts of the country, representing approximately 300 colleges and universities will line up for the opening battles.

With few exceptions, all of the major teams will test their new machines tomorrow, the easts Big Three"—Yale, Harvard and Princeton—will not make their bows until next Saturday, while most of the western conference teams, also have another week of preparation before going into combat.

In the east, however, Cornell, seeking a campaign which the big red hopes to make its fourth straight without defeat, meets St. Bonaventure; while Syracuse opens against Hobart; and Columbia likewise against Haverford.

Pennsylvania probably will be without the services of its veteran halfback, Thomas, in the opener with Ursinus. Penn State has drawn Lebanon Valley for its initial opponent; Lafayette meets Muhlenberg, while Washington and Jefferson battles Geneva. Pittsburgh will meet Grove City.

Among the New England colleges Dartmouth starts off against Norwich, Boston College takes on Providence, Holy Cross encounters Catholic University, while Rhode Island State and University of Maine tussle each other's scalp.

EPINARD RULING FAVORITE IN TODAY'S RACE

New York, Sept. 26.—Edmond Pierre Werthelmer's famous Epinard, four-year-old, will face six rival American thoroughbreds tomorrow at Aqueduct track in the second of the series of international specials in which the foreign horse was brought to this country.

Beaten by a narrow margin by Wise Counsellor in the first race on Labor Day, Epinard, improving steadily in training, will enter the post with a excellent prospect of victory, critics believe. The invader is expected to share popular support with Jack Major August Belmont's 3-year-old, which has flashed sensational speed within the past week.

Zev and My Own, rivals for 3-year-old honors last season, will seek to regain some of their former glory while Wise Counsellor will bid for a second straight triumph.

YALE VARSITY HAS SHORT SCRIMMAGE AGAINST SCRUBS

New Haven, Sept. 26.—The Yale varsity had a short scrimmage this afternoon against the first scrub team and Bunnell, was given a trial at quarterback. He played in that position on the freshmen team last year. Though the varsity was held on the one foot line in the early part of the scrimmage, Pond later made a touchdown on a line plunge. H. C. Stahahn, center on last year's freshmen team, was moved from the scrubs to the varsity today. M. G. Field, one of the tackles on the scrub team, injured his knee today and will be out of the practice for several days. The graduate players at the field today were Morris Ely, '98, Raynham Townshend, '00, and William O. Hickock, '95, whose son is a candidate for the eleven.

Kacays vs. Stars.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 26.—Before football is permanently ushered in to take its place as the city's leading sport, baseball will once and for the last time this season have its way on Sunday afternoon, with the Knights of Columbus and the Fort Trumbull Stars opposing each other. After a good amount of wrangling as to the relative merits of each team, a game was finally arranged to decide the team which is the best of the two. Joe MacInnes will twirl for the Knights, while his opponent on the mound will be Havens. It promises to be a hot battle, and all thoughts of football, which is beginning to take its grip upon local fans will be forgotten temporarily.

BOBBY JONES AND VON ELM BATTLE FOR NATIONAL AMATEUR GOLF CROWN TODAY

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 26.—(By The A. P.)—Youth was served in large measure in the semi-final round of the national amateur golf tournament today, George Gon Elm of Los Angeles dethroned the champion, Max R. Marston, of Philadelphia, 7 and6, and Robert T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, eliminated Francis Ouimet of Boston, 11 and 10.

Either Jones or Von Elm will become champions as the result of the final 36 hole round tomorrow. They have never met before in the national tournament. Jones, second in the qualifying round with a score of 144, has had the more formidable foes to eliminate, Marston excepted, Von Elm, tied for eighth place in the qualifying list, with a score of 150, has attracted attention all the week by the lowness of his medal scores in match play, although Jones, with a 73, had the better medal today by three strokes.

Possibly it was the physical and mental strain of protracted 36 hole matches that caused Francis Ouimet, former open amateur champion, to suffer the worst defeat of his career today. Out of 26 holes played he won two and halved 11. Jones shot like the machine he is at his best. For 26 holes he took one over fours, or two over par.

Jones was superior in every department, especially in length and direction with woods and irons, at most holes it was drive, iron and two putts for a par. He forgot he was playing a close friend and a mighty match golfer and simply sought the par of every hole. He got it except in three cases.

Ouimet, behind from the tee most of the time, and often in the rough after hooks was a trap shooter today. It was seldom that his approach shot did not land in the soft sand which guards every carpet at Marion and his recoveries were far from the excellent variety he showed in the Walker cup tournament and in previous rounds this week.

Jones was in a trap but once. He was eight up after the morning round. He had five one-putt greens all day and never took as many as three putts.

Von Elm, who is a skilled boxer, waited for openings and then smashed through. He was over par ten times in the thirty holes of his match with Marston, but in only four cases was Marston better. Playing coolly as if in stroke competition, Von Elm never made two poor shots through the green in succession, while Marston, especially in the afternoon round, was timid with his irons.

Von Elm's approximate medal score for the morning round was 76 and he took 39 to the turn in the afternoon, Marston's scores were 84 and 42. Von Elm won 12 holes and Marston 5

PIRATES TAKE TWO GAMES FROM CUBS

Pittsburgh, Sept. 26.—Returning from their disastrous eastern trip during which they were eliminated as pennant contender, the Pittsburgh Pirates took both games of a double header from Chicago today in the final series of the season. The scores were 9 to 3 and 10 to 6.

The Pirates won the first game with ease, holding the Cubs scoreless until the seventh inning while they piled up a commanding lead behind Kremer, who struck out six Chicago batsmen.

In the second game Miller put the ball over the fence in the second inning for a home run. Wright also hit a homer, in the second game, with a man on base. The score:

YANKS POUND THEIR WAY TO VICTORY OVER ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—Their backs to the wall and fighting desperately in the hope of overtaking the Washington Senators, New York pounded its way to victory when Philadelphia's defense weakened in the fifth inning. The final score was 7 to 1.

For four innings, "Texas" Gray baffled the Yankees attempts to break through his delivery and was retiring them in order on easy pop ups and ground grounders. But Pennock was sailing along just as smoothly and through the Athletics managed to get men on base in each of the first three innings, they were unable to come through with the hits in the pinches.

The first break in the hurling duel came in the fifth inning and the visitors quick to take advantage of its effect on Gray's equilibrium, followed with some solid clouting that cinched the game.

The turn in the Yankee fortunes came when Dykes and Miller collided in short right field in a chase for Pennock's pop fly. The ball fell between them and before it could be recovered the New York southpaw was dusting himself off on second base. Witt followed with a grounder to second that Dykes fumbled in his anxiety and men were on first and third with only one out.

Gray worked carefully on Dugan but the lanky third-sacker picked out one to his liking and knocked it down the left field foul line for two bases. Pennock crossed the plate with ease on this blow and Witt pulled up at third.

Ruth was then purposely passed, filling the bases, but Pipp blasted a single through the drawn-in infield that sent two more runs across the plate and the fourth and fifth runs of the inning counted on Meusel's single and Ward's grounder that forced Meusel at second.

The lone run of the locals was scored in the sixth inning by Pinch-Hitter Welch, who singled to center to start th eround. Hale followed with another hit of the same calibre but was thrown out at second when he tried to take advantage of Witt's momentary fumble. Welch crossed the plate on Lamar's single through Ward but the rally met a sudden quietus when the next two batters went out on easy chances.

Burns, Helmach, Harris and Hasty were paraded to the pitcher's box by Manager Mack after the fifth inning, the latter finishing the game.

Helmach was solved for two runs in the seventh inning, one of which may prove costly to the Yankee cause.

Joe Dugan, who had opened the inning with a single, raced to third when Simmons fumbled a single from Pipp's bat and when he slid into third he wrenched his left knee so severely that he was temporarily knocked out. After several minutes of delay McNally was substituted for the injured third-baseman and later crossed the plate on Meusel's clout tocenter.

POETRY

DARKNESS.

I love the dark
That leads the heaven-seeking lark
To rest upon his lowly nest;
Mute symbol that whatever be the quest—
Love is best.

I love the dark,
The friend of weariness and day-locked tears,
Its shadowed face hath never waked my fears;
Cool-fingered and with loving touches rare,
It takes from fevered earth her look of care,
And gently spreads 'neath wandering moon and star
A silver mist lest light,
Too bright,
Should mar
The sifted radiance whose amber gleams
Illume a weary world to happier dreams.

I love the dark
That like the drowsy rosebud on the lawn
Within its dusky breast conceals the dawn;
For are not hope and promise ever dearer
Than beauty's self?—and to the heart strings nearer?
I love the healing dark—who knows but through
Its dusky aisles kind angels foot the dew
Unseen? I love the dark; 'tis consecrate,
And for its coming tender memories wait
And 'neath its loving benison old wrongs
Are lost in plaintive echoes of old songs.
—Samuel Minturn Peck, in Boston Transcript.

LOVE THE JEALOUS.

I praised the daisies on my lawn,
And then my lady mowed them down.
My garden stones, improved by moss,
She moved—and that was Beauty's loss.
When I adored the sunlight, she Kept a bright fire indoors for me.
She saw I loved the birds, and that
Made her one day bring home a cat.
She plucks my flowers to deck each room,
And makes me follow where they bloom.
Because my friends were kind and many
She said—"What need has Love of any?"
What is my gain, and what my loss?
Fire without sun, stones bare of moss,
Daisies beheaded, one by one;
The birds cat-hunted, friends all gone—
These are my losses; yet, I swear,
A love less jealous in its care
Would not be worth the changing skin
That she and I are living in.

A chemical product which resembles glass and can be used for many of the same purposes has been produced in Germany. It can be rolled, bored, polished or cut and does not have the tendency of glass to splinter. Because of this quality it has been recommended for the glass panes of automobiles, ornaments, and toilet articles. IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

A city tax of 10 mills was laid at the annual city meeting in Norwich fifty years ago. Items of interest from The Bulletin of September, 1874, are as follows:

Sept. 21, 1874.—A man named Daniel McCarthy died at the advanced age of 104 years in Baltic Friday. His hearing and eyesight were perfect up to the last day of his life. His funeral occurred Sunday afternoon, passing through this city, and was the longest seen in years and reached from the postoffice to the Universalist church.

Chief Engineer Carrier announces that fires will be indicated hereafter by successive strokes of three on the alarm bell; in which cases the steamers will be taken to the scene, as there are no water pipes at present in Greeneville.

Sept. 22, 1874.—An advertisement of the Great Eastern Menagerie, Museum, Aviary and Circus announces a lioness, a litter of cubs, only three weeks old, born in Kansas City, and a street procession with lions, tigers and panthers, unchained, in the street, and a novel new steam piano. Admission 50 cents; children, 10 years, 25 cents.

At a city meeting a tax was laid of 10 mills, and James Ritchie was elected collector, defeating A. P. Davis 129 to 88. The compensation was made at 1 per cent. on the amount collected. The meeting voted to purchase a lot for $700 and to erect a house for Independent Hose Co. No. 6 at a cost of $5,300.

Patrick McGinnis, a deckhand on the Steamer City of Lawrence, while engaged yesterday morning in wringing out a mop fell overboard from the steamer and was drowned.

Sept. 2, 1874—Owing to the very bad weather of last week the Mohegan fair was postponed, or rather held over to yesterday. Those who remember this wigwam as it was 10 or 15 years ago and visited it yesterday would hardly recognize it, but for the surroundings, as the same affair. It seemed to have lost that wild and novel character which rather made it enjoyable and interesting, and which rendered these occasions so different from the fairs, strawberry festivals, etc., which we have in the city.

At a meeting of a large number of Scotchmen in the Greeneville Engine house it was resolved to organize a Caledonian society in the city of Norwich and a committee consisting of James Gilmour, Allen McPherson, John Corcoran, James Murray and Donald Ferguson was appointed to draft a consitution and by-laws.

Sept. 24, 1874—Charles P. Adams, formerly of this city, died in New York yesterday morning, after an illness of about four weeks. He served during the war in the navy and since the war, till recently, has occupied a responsible position in the treasury department at Washington. Recently he had been in business in New York.

The 25th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. John Trankla was celebrated at their home in Preston last evening, and was participated in by a large circle of friends of the happy couple. The family gathered in the sitting room when William H. Hovey, Homer Bliss, D. T. Roath and Ambrose Higgins entered bearing in their hands the testimonial of The Bulletin office which consisted of a full service of silver plate which was presented by Mr. Hovey. The pieces were marked on the side with a capital T except the coffee urn which has engraved upon it, Mr. and Mrs. John Trankla from their friends in the Bulletin Office. Mr. Trankla has been employed in the Courier and Bulletin office for more than 21 years as pressman and has been known among his fellow workmen as "John, the pressman." With the exception of the time he was confined to the house for several months with two broken arms he has barly been missed from his place at the press during all those years.

Sept. 25, 1874—For the past year the real estate market has been very slack hereabouts. Quite a number of tenements have been empty and building has not been very likely. There are indications, now, however, of a revival of briskness in this market. In the outskirts of the city there is considerable building and a few houses are being put up nearer the center.

Yantic lodge, No. 43, Good Templars, celebrated the 8th anniversary of the organization at its lodge rooms on Sachem street last night. The occasion was a very enjoyable one as was evident by the crowded condition of the audience room.

The Connecticut fair now being held in Hartford is the most successful ever known. Yesterday it was estimated that not less than 6,000 persons were present. In agricultural products there are 130 entries. It is a pity that eastern Connecticut is not better represented but the Windham and New London country fairs probably have more interest for our immediate neighborhood.

Sept. 26, 1874—The match game of baseball between the Arctics and the Union Star club of Manchester was played yesterday on Horseshoe park Willimantic. The Union Stars first went to bat and were whitewashed nine straight innings, while the Arctics made but five runs. The last game of the series for the championship of the county will be played at Montville Monday next between the Arctics of this city and the Stars of New London.

George Fenton of Canterbury managed last Tuesday to kill 34 water snakes in the vicinity of a brook. They averaged four feet in length, making 130 feet of snake.

E. C. Winchester and Guilford Smith of South Windham, in a rowboat weighing 80 lbs., navigated the Shetucket from South Windham to Laurel Hill bridge, a distance of some 20 miles. They made the trip between 9 o'clock in the morning and 4:30 in the afternoon, carrying the boat around the dams at Baltic, Occum, Taftville and Greeneville

BEFORE BABIES WERE BORN

Mrs. Oswald Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Girardville, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my last two babies came. It keeps me in perfect health and I am on my feet getting meals and doing all my housework until an hour before the baby is born. A friend told me to take it and I have used ten bottles since I heard about it. I recommend the Vegetable Compound whenever I can. Just yesterday a friend was telling me how miserable she felt, and I said, 'If you start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's you will feel fine.' Now she is taking it."—Mrs. P. J. OSWALD, JR., 406 West Ogden-St., Girardville, Pa.

Mrs. Nicola Paluzzi Says

Mishawaka, Indiana. — "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness before my babies were born. I was weak and tired out all the time and it helped me. When I had inward inflammation the doctor treated me, but did not help me, so I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and it helped me at once." — Mrs. NICOLA PALUZZI, 415 E. Broadway, Mishawaka, Indiana.

A PERFECT DAY

When you come to the end of a perfect day,
And sit alone with your thought,
While the chimes ring out with a carol gay,
For the joy that the day has brought,
Do you think what the end of a perfect day
Can mean to a tired heart,
When the sun goes down with a flaming ray
And the dear friends have to part?

Well this is the end of a perfect day,
Near the end of a journey, too,—
But it leaves a thought that is big and strong
With a wish that is kind and true.
For memory has painted this perfect day
With colors that never fade,
And we find at the end of a perfect day,
The soul of a friend we've made.

HINTS ABOUT OIL STOVES

Dear Editor and Sisters, Social Corner: Will answer present to roll call and send a bit besides.

Do you ever have trouble with your oil stove? One of mine was in trying to bake cookies. Now I invert the pan and place cookies on, then bake on the top shelf in oven. For cakes that need to cook slowly put two thickness of paper in bottom of pan and bake on lower shelf with a slow fire.

[illegible] use a heavy pad of paper on top of oven to keep heat in.

When corners are full and you wish [illegible] if your cooking vessel has [illegible] place a covered dish [illegible] on the flat cover. It will get [illegible]

HELPS FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

Dear Corner Friends: I had a large rust spot on some pillow cases and other garments. So I stewed rhubarb in the usual manner and adding no sugar soaked the white clothes in it for three-quarters of an hour, then took them out, rinsed in cold water and poured boiling water over them, to take out the purple stain of the rhubarb. This took out every stain when I found every thing else had failed.

To bleach clothes that have turned yellow from long use, or from wearing in the dust, I find nothing better than putting them to soak about five days in buttermilk. You can buy it from your farmer for five cents a quart as twenty cents a gallon and two quarts will give you quite a little space by putting it in a stone jar or wooden bucket for this purpose. At the end of that time rinse thoroughly and boil in a light suds

ROLL CALL HELPED PAGE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Present! Surely meant to answer when my name was first called, but have let almost two weeks slip by.

Having the roll call has certainly kept our page full of letters, hasn't it? And such interesting ones at that. I suppose we are all looking forward to the first meeting in the Buckingham next Wednesday. Must bring my little address book along and get names and addresses of some of the new members.

Just got company and as this must go now will ring off till some other time. As ever,

TRIPLETS.

FINDS LETTERS HELPFUL

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I saw my name in the roll call, so I am answering to it. I am so glad to belong to the Social Corner. I like to read the letters, they are so good and helpful. I cannot attend the meetings very much as it takes so much to go to the meetings, and even the picnics, I have to give up a good many of them.

Hope I shall be able to go some during the winter. With best wishes.

FINE TIME AT NORTH WINDHAM

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Went to North Windham picnic yesterday and had a wonderful time. The day was ideal and the dinner, as usual, was very good. I think Alfara and Tiny Ann were good hostesses. I took Priscilla, Jennie and Olive and I heard them say they had a lively time, too.

The first fall meeting of Club No. 1 meets Oct. 8th in Franklin hall, Willimantic, and Whirlwind and I are to be hostesses. Living 60 miles away makes it hard for us, but we are going to try and do our best, knowing all the sisters will take hold and help us. Now the beans, macaroni and cheese, milk, sugar and coffee have been promised—also two salads. Would like at least two more salads. Pies and cake are wanted, and anything the sisters can bring.

We cannot see the sisters personally so will take this means of asking you who can and will to bring something for the entertainment and give your name to me before the meeting.

Whirlwind and I have had such wonderful times everywhere we have been with the other sisters for hostesses we would like to have one of the best feeds and entertainments ever in return, but this can only be done by the whole-hearted cooperation of the sisters. Please come, bring your dishes, eats, appetites and smiling faces with you.

Twice Twenty: Do come. We did have such a good time yesterday.

Priscilla, Olive and Jennie: Don't forget to meet us for we need you and your help and eats.

You, sister from Bean Hill, Norwich, whose name I did not get, hope you will be able to come as I'd like your name in my address book.

Chauffeur: Hope nothing hinders your coming and bringing your neighbor.

Thanking the sisters in advance for helping us and trusting for a lovely day, I remain your Social Corner Sister

SUMMER GREATLY ENJOYED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As my name appears in the roll call today I will answer by saying I am very glad to say present. This is a very splendid method of finding out all the names of this great family. I have had a most delightful summer for although we all work hard most of the time we sort of take turns enjoying ourselves, except hubby—he rarely goes anywhere. One of my friends invited me to visit her over Labor day so I went and we took a trip and went over the Mohawk Trail. This was indeed a great pleasure for I had never had this privilege before. The scenery was beautiful and I so wished that my own dear family could have been with us. I saw an abundance of yellow daisies and longed to pick some of them as I am truly very fond of them, but as my host had far to go and return the same day I did not like to ask him to stop for them. We went up Summit mount and with the aid of field glasses we could see over so far away, Vermont, New Hampshire, Sugar Loaf Mount, Mount Tom and many other places of interest. This Summit mount is made of wood with wooden stairs (many too) going up high above the ground.

I think that our creator had infinite wisdom and great love for His children to form such lovely, beautiful sights for us to see and enjoy. Hope all the sisters will have the privilege of going over it. I have had the pleasure of being with my sister in law quite a bit this summer as she has been ill, but is much improved now, and one afternoon while there I saw Old Fashioned Mother. This was a pleasure for me for she is quite a busy lady and I do not see her very often. One day I spent the day with an old lady who used to live where I used to and she told of many things of long ago which were very interesting. I have been out many times to see my dear mother who is quite busy and we have had many nice visits together. Then too my sister (my only sister) and her family visited me this summer and we truly enjoyed it every so much. It was a long time since she had been home so we enjoyed it all the more.

Silver Locks and my brother came home and we had a family reunion, the first time Silver Locks had had her family all together in quite a few years. It did her lots of good, I am sure, to see us all together again. I feel that I have been blessed this year as many have lost loved ones and had other trials while I have surely enjoyed this summer. But now it is nearly passed away and we begin to think of the holidays and the fall as well as winter. Well, sure I hear the editor say "you have written enough for there are lots of letters to print this week," so I will close wishing the best of success to the Corner and all. Long may it live. As ever,

YELLOW DAISY.

PEACHES AND GOOSEBERRIES

Dear Sisters: I want to send the Corner two recipes this week which I think some of the sisters can use.

Peach Chips: Slice them thin and stew till clear in a syrup made with half their weight of sugar; lay them on dishes in the sun, and turn them until dry. Pack them in pots, powdered sugar sifted over each layer; should there be syrup left, continue the process with other peaches. I like them done with pure honey instead of sugar. But they are very tasty with sugar.

Gooseberries: Select young gooseberries, make a syrup to one pound of loaf sugar to one of fruit; stew them until quite clear and the syrup becomes thick, but do not let them be mashed. They are excellent made into tarts. Do not cover the pan while they are stewing.

RECIPES BY RAINBOW

Dear Social Friends: I missed seeing my name on the roll call, as I also missed nearly all of the R's, but trust it safe to answer just the same.

Jennie: I am sending in the words to the song you requested. They are certainly lively and I wonder how many know where and under what conditions the words were composed.

At Riverside, Calif., is one of the most beautiful hotels in the United States. The composer of the inclosed song was staying at this hotel and as she was resting at night after a day of travel, she wrote the words. It is a very quiet, restful place and she was sitting alone with her thoughts as the words simply

I never tire of hearing it sung and only wish I were able to sing it better myself.

Will someone tell me their experience canning green shell beans?

Are they enough better than dried ones to pay for the work, cans and rubbers? I have canned over 100 cans of fruit, berries and vegetables. I know that number looks small to some people but even that will count during the coming winter.

Tomato Ketchup: 1 peck ripe, (strained) tomatoes, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon black pepper, (red is better) 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 quart vinegar. Cook slowly and bottle hot. A little more sugar and less vinegar if the vinegar is too strong. We like our ketchup quite sweet. Use less sugar if you like it sour but just try it my way for once on baked beans.

Sweet Pickle Peaches: Rub the fuss from 7 pounds of peaches and stick three whole cloves into each peach and set aside. Let come to a boil, 4 pounds brown sugar and a small quart vinegar, then add the peaches boiling until tender. Skim out the peaches into a stone jar and boil the syrup until thick as molasses.

Some add cinnamon bark but I do not care for it.

Chili Sauce: 12 ripe tomatoes, chopped fine, 2 green peppers, 4 onions, 1 scant cup sugar, 3 teaspoons salt, teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 2 1-2 cup vinegar.

Frankie Lynn: Hope you will soon be well again. How is your aunt (by marriage) Lena? Is she still in N. H.? I used to be very fond of her. Saw her lovely little girls once but suppose they are grown up long ago. Don't try to guess who I am because you couldn't. I saw you at a wedding nearly thirty years ago.

Hope all the sick are gaining and that every one is enjoying this beautiful fall.

YOUR FALL GARDEN SURPLUS

Dear Social Corner Members: October always finds the home garden with an excess of certain vegetables. They are not all wanted for winter storage, especially those that are undersized or of imperfect shape, yet they are too good to waste. Both for immediate use and for keeping through the winter months the following dishes are a good solution.

Creole Corn: Fry two or three slices of bacon. After removing the bacon, fry a small chopped onion until a little brown. Add one cup of corn (from the cob) and one-half cup of green peppers chopped fine and cook a few minutes. Then turn in one cup of stewed tomatoes, the bacon cut into small pieces, a teaspoon of sugar a half teaspoon salt, and if liked, a little paprika.

Baked Pears: Winter pears will begin to drop in October, and this rule for baking winter pears or windfalls may be applied to them. Fill a baking-dish with pears that have been peeled and quartered. For every quart of fruit use 1-3 cup of sugar and a half cup of water. Cover well and bake in a very moderate oven for several hours until dark red. If these are put in preserve jars while hot they will be a useful addition to your winter supply.

Salted Swiss Chard: Make brine with as much salt as the water will take up. Boil and cool. Strip the chard leaves from the stalk, and cut the stalks into lengths that will stand upright in a quart preserve jar. Pour in the brine set away for winter's use. When chard is needed later on it must be soaked in water over night, cut into inch lengths and boiled until tender, changing the water if too salt. With cream sauce this is one of our best winter dishes.

Salted String Beans: If the right variety be chosen, salted string beans will taste like fresh picked vegetables. Various trials have shown that wax beans are not fitted for that purpose as they are tasteless and fibrous after salting, but the old fashioned string bean is most excellent for salting. The beans are washed and put into the jars whole, covered with brine; as given in the rule for chard, also soaked and cooked in the same way. The result will be tender beans, of a bright green color, and excellent flavor. This very easy method of canning will appeal to any housekeeper.

Pumpkin Pie: Mix one pint of strained pumpkin (mealy not soggy) one cup top milk, one cup sugar (brown) sifted. One quarter of a cup of molasses, one teaspoon of salt, three quarters of a teaspoon of sifted ginger a pinch each of cinnamon, cloves, and nutmeg, one-half tablespoon cornstarch, and one teaspoon of butter. Follow as you would any other rule for pumpkin pie using any favorite recipe for crust.

Fried Celery: Remove the leaves and cut into five inch pieces. Wash well and cover with boiling water; after letting it stand for fifteen minutes, drain and dry. Beat an egg yolk and white till mixed, and add a tablespoon of warm water. Season dry sifted bread crumbs with salt and pepper, dip celery in egg and then in the crumbs, and fry in hot fat. Drain and serve hot, with game or poultry. Celery may also be cooked with tomato sauce or with thickened sauce made from chicken stock.

Beside these vegetables, the average garden will be yielding in October the following addition to menu: Beets, which are excellent pickled; carrots, which also may be pickled and used with potato salad and you can make carrot marmalade; small melons can be made into mangoes; onions, one of the most wholesome relishes when pickled; red peppers can be pickled for use at a time when red peppers are not in market; green tomatoes, from which can be made a dozen kinds of pickles; also ever useful parsley. The latter can be preserved for winter use in three ways: by drying, potting to frog in a sunny windowy, or picking as follows: choose thick full heads of parsley, wash carefully in salt water, dry by draining and shaking and store away for winter use in jars of cold vinegar. To each quart add two tablespoons of horse radish. This is a substitute for fresh parsley and very good in winter, for garnishing cold meat and other dishes.

TOMATO SOUP

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I will now answer to the roll call as I saw my name recently in the list. It has been a very long time since I have written but have enjoyed reading the Social Corner page, every week. Miss seeing letter from some of the older writers.

Crimson Rambler: Looked to see if I could see you at the Norwich fair, or some of the other sisters I knew, but I never saw any of them.

Hello, Red Clover, how are you? I suppose you are very busy cleaning house and doing your preserving. I have over 70 quarts of preserves done up so far and have more I want to do. Will send my recipe for Tomato Soup: One tablespoon of butter. Put in kettle; 1 small onion chopped fine, put into butter and let simmer until it is tender; then take 1 quart of tomatoes and sift through a sieve, then add to the onions. Add a small pinch of soda, 1 teaspoon of salt, 1 teaspoon of celery salt, a dash of black pepper. Let cook until done, then serve while hot with crackers. It is very good I think.

Will close my letter or it will get into the waste paper basket.

BORROWING AND RETURNING.

Dear Sisters: If any of you see the Boston Sunday Post and are like myself, children enough to enjoy reading the comic section, and read The Bungle Family in last Sunday's paper, you were perhaps reminded, also like myself, of similar experiences in lending things like the lawn mower picked out from a number of borrowed and broken ones and for four or five bucks the owner could make it almost as good as when he lent it. And the hose which was buried under the coal in the basement and had to be dug out, and the snow shovel, which had been lent to someone else, and the spoon, which might have been taken out to the garage to fill grease cups, for it couldn't be found anywhere. I was reminded of the boy who brought back the neighbor's wheelbarrow with the announcement, "We have broke your rotten, old wheelbarrow using it and pa wants you should get it mended 'cause he wants to borrow it again." In friendly and neighborly intercourse it is about impossible to avoid borrowing and lending, but it does seem as though we ought at least to take as good care of other people's things as we would of our own and return them as soon as possible after we get through with them. A recent experience of my own is still fresh in my mind, and causes me to feel a little more strongly on the point.

Some years ago, owing to much moving, etc., I let a family take my organ where I thought it would be as well taken care of as I would do it myself, which goes to show how much mistaken we can be in one estimate of people. This summer I got it home again. It is an old friend of mine and associated with all my younger days, and although I know organs are long gone out of fashion, I am old fashioned enough to love a good organ yet. I could have sat down and wept when I got it back. It was battered and dirty, full of dust and dirt, the pedaling apparatus was broken and sadly out of fix, and I heard they felt somewhat aggrieved because I wanted it again. Well, after much time and work I have got it back into fair shape once more, but I wouldn't have supposed they could have misused it so if they had tried.

It is a very risky thing to lend books and magazines unless you are perfectly sure of the ones you are lending them to, unless you are prepared to lose them, and I wonder why it is that so many perfectly good and respectable people are so careless in that respect that their friends either have to hide their choice books and never let on that they have any or go after them to ever get them back. Books cost money and most of us buy them because we wanted them; or they are gifts, which we don't want to lose. Also we hate to ask for them lest our friends feel affronted. The public libraries have to lay down stringent rules or they never would get their books back and don't always at that. And if we lend a magazine and it ever comes back to us at all it is usually soiled and torn and minus covers. One doesn't mind as much about them but with most book lovers good books occupy a tender spot in their hearts.

Another experience was when a neighbor used to borrow my large scissors and keep them for two or three weeks at a time till I went after them. We all knew how often one needs scissors and I was left with only a pair of little embroidery scissors. I thought of the boy I read of who came to borrow the next neighbor's front door and when they asked how they could get along without it he said that "Mother reckoned they might hang up a bedquilt or something."

I don't know how she thought I managed to get along without any scissors and the way I finally managed to keep mine at home was by getting my husband to sharpen both hers and mine. It was the same neighbor to whom I lent a pair of rubbers one rainy night and never saw them again. I had another pair so I never went after them, also a pie pan went the same way, and a pair of cake pans I redeemed by sending for them. She was a good neighbor about many things, too. And speaking of rubbers reminds me of lending a pair to a friend years ago. They happened to be all the ones I had at that time. It was a wet and rainy time and I had to get along the best I could without any and with wet feet sometimes till she remembered to send them back two or three weeks later. Now there are few of us who really want to put our friends or neighbors to inconvenience or discomfort. They may need the things they have kindly let us take or have an affection and respect for them. At any rate they are not ours and for pity's sake let us try to get them back to their owners in a reasonable length of time and if any accident has befallen them apologize and make reparation if we can.

Another thing so many of us are careless about is making promises to send letters or cards or flowers or reading to invalids or old people or children. We say carelessly that we will send or do such and such things and then we often go our way and never think of it again, or if we do, we say, "Oh, I meant to have done that but I forgot it." But the ones whom the promises were made to sometimes are bitterly disappointed, and sick people and those who are going down the hill of life with not so much to look forward to can't bear disappointments like those who are younger with plenty to take up their minds. I plead guilty myself. As the prayer book says, "I have done those things I ought not to have done and left undone the things I ought to have done," but having been sick a good deal myself and not being as young as I once was I know how they feel. And now I think I might better close, or my letter will take up more room than it deserves.

Best wishes.

IOLA.

HOW TO USE WHITE CLOTH BAGS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I want to tell you how I have been using those white bags that grain and flour come in. As I had a good many of them on hand, thought I must put them to good use. First after getting the lettering all out, I have made some into sheets for everyday use by putting four of them together, they are plenty large enough for a bed after sewing them together I turn the seams and run them on each side of the first seam making a very neat finish so they iron nicely. I have also made table cloths in the same way only make the hems wider and I made a number of tray cloths so when on the table they cover up the seams. No one knows the difference at the table from more expensive tables cloths. As my dining room has five windows and I need draperies I thought I could make some from the bags which I did, and they look very nice. I made them with the Dutch effect. I also have a dozen pillow cases I made from them too, and the coarse weave gives them the appearance of linen.

I ripped the bags open because they are sewed with a sort of twine, then stitched them up on the machine with ordinary sewing thread making a neat seam, and with a two inch hem they don't look half bad. And last of all I have colored some blue, and some brown and made two dresses from them, no one could ever guess what those dresses were made from. The blue one I took was fine weave, while the brown was made from coarse weave and also looked like linen. I also have dish towels made from some besides, some every day aprons that I colored dark for light colors get dirty so quickly, where any one has heavy work to do.

Biddy: I will have to hand the plum to you, also pat you on the shoulder. You are away ahead of me in the canning line. Although my list is now way beyond 50 jars still I have not reached the 200 mark. I'll know where to go when I am hungry.

J. E. T.: I feel slighted. Why didn't you send me an invite up to your place or come out to Shady Nook and give me a taste of your woodchopper's stew? Joan would have enjoyed it too, I know. Wonder if you have been to Shady Nook lately. The bungalow still stands in the same place with plenty of hops growing there now. Better come gather them before they hop away if we have any more such winds as we had week before last.

Wurdy Belle: I too have been wondering what had become of you. Haven't heard a word from you but once since you left in that shower. I saw by the paper where you had returned from the seashore and wondered of you were near enough to hear the waves roll in as I know how you love to go in bathing.

Good wishes to all Cornerites.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

NEARLY SEVEN YEARS IN THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Corner Folks: If you could just take a look into our canned goods cupboard you would readily understand why I am a bit slow in saying present to our roll call.

In reading Rose Lee's letter I see that she thinks whoever asked the editor to print the roll call did not know what they were asking. Perhaps not sister, but when the idea popped into my mind. I wrote the editor asking his opinion of it and he replied immediately saying he thought it a grand idea, that there was about fifteen hundred names and that it would take some time to print them all, but he would gladly do his part hoping it would awaken more interest in the Corner. He has nearly finished his part and when we think of all the extra work he has put upon himself for the good of the Corner, we should all show our appreciation of it in some way. It has brought responses from many who had not written for years, among them being Faye Verna of whom I had often thought and wondered why she did not write.

Kentucky Wonder's call for the name of the place where the sisters reside is a good one and I hope they will not forget it when they write for it will make our roll call books more complete.

I am proud to be one of those who can answer the Social Corner roll call of the Bulletin and my thanks are due to Primrose for first calling my attention to the fact that there were some writers in this vicinity. Had been reading the letters for some time not thinking for a minute that any one whom I knew was writing. My first letters appeared Jan. 19, 1918 and I have every Social Corner page since then with the exception of one which was loaned and never returned.

Received word my first prize Feb. 23, 1918 for letter describing a cherry tomato plant which was growing in our living room and was covered with buds, blooms and green and red tomatoes. Not long after that two of the sisters who were rather skeptical about the plant and also anxious to find out if they had guessed correctly, called on us and found out just what they wanted to know, although one was not really satisfied until she had tasted one of the tomatoes. Well much good came of that visit for on June 5, 1918, Club 4 was started at the home of Primrose, others present being Keziah Doolittle, Last Rose of Summer, Happy Go Lucky (who had not written at that time) and myself. Saturday Eve was one of us but unable to be present at that meeting. Quite a club wasn't it with just five members. Well we have more now and are increasing all the time, the last one being Caro, who is very welcome to our Corner and Club 4 for I think I am a good guesser and that she lives on a hill where the people are very lively on one side of the street but cannot get into any argument with the people on the south side of the street.

Zany: The laugh is on you this time for choosing a name beginning with Z so as to be sure of getting into the roll call, I failed to see it there. Never mind, we all remember Barnum's saying about "You can fool some of the people all of the time, all of the people some of the time but not all of the people all of the time." Have not written half I wanted to say but as we have a full page each week will continue until next month.

PLANNING FOR CLUB NO 1's MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sister: Am just writing a short letter this time as I am on my vacation and while resting thought this a good time to write. One of the sisters asked me to be hostess at the meeting in Willimantic. Now as I am new at the business. I have picked some of the sisters who live in the vicinity of Willimantic to assist me. Trust you will not disappoint me as you know I have a long way to come. There are the sisters I have chosen to assist. Foxglove, Honeysuckle, Neighbor Eveready, Ione, Little Sister, White Clover, Betsy Bobbett, Theoda, Conawah and Handsome.

For the entertainment I wish there would be 10 or 12 volunteers and I wish if possible I might have a piano selection on the programme.

Twice Twenty: See if you can be there. 'Tis a year since I have seen you.

Cretia: Hope to see you also. I hope Sis Hopkins does not have her picnic until I get back so I can attend.

WHIRLWIND.

READY FOR AFTER VACATION DUTIES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Some think I have forgotten to answer to my name in the roll call, but here I am to say, present. Now the vacation and summer season is over, I hope we all feel able for the religious and social duties which come along in church and society. Hope you have all had a pleasant time in the summer attending the picnics. I am sorry I could not be with you, but hope to meet you Oct. 1st at the Buckingham.

Necia: Bring along the butterflies to the B. M. Cady is having a nice time in Cal. I had a nice card from her. Best wishes for the Social Corner.

SCOTTIE

CANNING, AUTOING AND PADDLING

Dear Social Corner Friends: I feel that I must write and thank the sisters who remembered me so kindly on September 8. I received birthday day cards from Bonie, Whirlwind, Deliah Deal, and Silent Partner. Will say to Deliah Deal, you have guessed right. I was F. P. and am F. P. C. now. You came to see me once, when I first came to P. You probably remember the distance from the railway station to my house. I have not been able to walk that far for more than two years, but now I can do all my housework, though I am obliged to "go slow" and rest often. Have been very busy the last few weeks. Had not intended to do much in the canning line as I had so much left from last year, but my good friends and neighbors gave me string beans, tomatoes, pears, crabapples and of course I must use them so I have canned, preserved, pickled and jellied until there's not much left of me. Have canned a basket of peaches this week and if I can get wild grapes shall make jam. I have had several nice motor rides since the time I went to Groton Long Point. Have had a day at Weekapaug, a very hot day in N but delightfulfully cool at the beach and the water did look so tempting that while the others in our party were in bathing I took off my shoes and I walked along the beach and let my feet and ankles get wet, and how I did enjoy it! It surely did me good, for next day my lame, old ankles were much better and stronger. I wish I could have gone in paddling in salt water every day this summer. Perhaps I would feel ten years younger now.

Recently I went to Narragansett Pier and that was a wonderful trip.

A perfect day, good roads, and the scenery was indescribable. We went right through to Point Judith and ate our lunch near the lighthouse then we went to the pier. Hotels and most of the houses were closed for the season, of course, but the shops were open and we wandered around looking and admiring but, didn't see anything I wanted after all. We sat in the pavilion and watched the few who were in bathing (one woman and several men). Didn't have any desire to go in paddling there. I prefer to go to Weekapaug for paddling fun.

Along the way we saw the most beautiful flower garden. I felt like breaking the eighth commandment. My own flower garden was a failure this year, but my neighbors have been so kind to me I have not missed my flowers, that didn't bloom. My friends have kept me supplied with flowers all summer and hardly a day has passed that did not have flowers in all my rooms. I am surely blessed with good friends and neighbors and my son and family come and take me for a ride every two weeks, (if I am able to go) so I have a great deal to be thankful for you see. Now I will stop and I reckon the editor will be thankful for that.

I'll say good bye and good luck to all.

JACK'S WIFE.

THE BENEFIT OF A REST

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: Just a few lines to say present to the roll call. Was surprised when I saw my name as it is a few years since I have written, but will try and do better in the future. I have been a constant reader of the Social Corner page and enjoy reading about all the meetings. Have often thought I would like to attend some but as I am not acquainted with any of the sisters feel kind of backward about going all alone.

Vacation time is nearly over but still we have a few more weeks left of nice weather. To those who have not found time to spare would quote this little piece I found in a magazine: Take a rest; a field that has rested gives a bountiful crop.—Ovid.

"It doesn't matter if all the cherries and raspberries and gooseberries on the market are awaiting to be canned—you need a vacation and your family needs the salutary experience of shifting for itself for a few days.

"It needn't be a long journey or an extended absence, but put a little time and distance between yourself and you, daily tasks. It will surprise you the way difficulties flatten out when viewed from another town or state.

"One of the most pernicious old saws in the whole category of catch phrases is that one about work never hurting anybody. Invented in a remote past to drive sluggards to action, it has outlived its application in these days of feverish haste and bears the responsibility for nine-tenths of the sanitariums that fatten on our national neurasthenia.

"Get away for awhile, go somewhere, see something. Drop in on that old schoolmate of yours with whom you used to have such jolly times when you were a girl. It will do you both good. There are a thousand and one ways to take a vacation and you're going to continue to give your family the inspiration, the helpfulness and the whole-souled enthusiasm it has the right to expect from you."

Would like to change my pen name of Washwoman to JULIE.

BEING PROMPT

Dear Sisters: I was brought up to be prompt in all things. Never to study the newspaper or read a book, or hang around until the necessary things were done. No one has to wait for me if I am going somewhere with a person. I am usually ready before hand or on dot anyway. One thing I like is to be prompt in returning borrowed things, books, patterns, tools or anything. I know people that borrow but never return. You have to go after it every time. I feel rather fiery at such things. One lady discovered she had a book in her house. She said it must belong to so and so as I have had it two or three years. Let us all try and return things so kindly loaned to us in a reasonable length of time.

I called at a lady friends in the city once and she had a caller at her door returning something in a cup which she had borrowed a few days before. After the caller was gone and the door shut my friend took such a fit of laughing. When she was done laughing she said isn't it funny but Mrs. So and So always borrows two thirds of a cup of something and when she returns the article it is usually less than one half. She said then and there I'll never lend to her again.

I must have been asleep when my name was in the roll call but I answer present now if I failed to be prompt in this.

DEARIE.

PREFERS THE COUNTRY

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I saw my name in the roll call, some time ago, but have been very busy.

As Ormandine has told you Fritzie, my only daughter answered the higher roll call Aug. 10 The last four months of her life she spent with me, and though we tried to help her win the fight against T. B. it was in vain.

Since then I have been very busy fumigating the room—scrubbed the painted walls and ceiling, with a mixture of soapsuds and sulphur, napthol, scrubbed furniture with same and put it out in the sun for several days, put everything through boiling water that could be and baked small books and papers in the oven for a half hour, at 225 degrees. I sunned the bedding and some things I put in the fire and have done all I could to prevent any one else getting such a terrible disease. It has been some job, but if it will save some other poor body, from suffering as she did, it will be time well spent.

Merry Widow: Thanks for your sympathy. It was hard to lose her, but harder to see her suffer. I have been taking a weeks rest, visiting relatives in Providence, my first vacation in ten years. We drove through Roger Williams park on the way home. Saw all sorts of beautiful flowers. One bed having the American flag, in flowers and under it in green letters. Long may it wave." We passed through a village where I went to school fifty years ago, but I hardly knew where to look for the schoolhouse. Maybe it is worn out. I enjoyed the change but still, "There's no place like home, and no city life for me as long as I can live in the country.

FINE TIME AT BUMBLE BEE'S

Dear Social Corner Sisters: In answer to the roll call will say present: It has been some time since I wrote but thought I must write of the good time we had at Bumble Bee's. It rained early in the morning and I thought there would be no picnic but soon Beatrix came up and said we were going so Honey Bee, Aunt Mary Jane, Beatrix and myself started. We were the only Social Corner sisters on the bus but when we got up to Bean Hill Aunty No. 1 and Biddy got on and when we arrived at B. B's there were more sisters and they kept coming all day, and I think some went the next day. I am sorry for those who had to miss it for we sure did have a good time and a good dinner. Didn't we Wurdy Belle?

I want to thank all the sisters who sent me cards on my birthday, if it's not to late.

Bumble Bee: You sure have some fine looking potatoes.

Oleander: How is your watch? Hope it is not broken. Never mind. I got over the woodbox just the same.

Apple Blossom: So glad you could go to B. B's picnic. Hope to see you at the meeting in October.

Tafts: I have tried your sister-to-an-ange) cake recipe and think it very good.

I am sending a good recipe for

Stuffed Peppers with Cheese: 6 green peppers, 1-4 lb cheese crumbled onion (more if you like), 2 tablespoon 1 1-2 cups bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon butter, salt and pepper. Cut off thin slice from stem end of pepper and remove seeds and pith. Parboil peppers two minutes, melt butter, add bread crumbs and onion and seasoning and part of cheese, fill the peppers with this mixture and cover top with remaining cheese.

Place in a greased baking dish and bake about twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Best wishes for the Corner.

STRAWBERRY.

TIME TO PLANT TULIPS.

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: I had a wonderful time at the Ocean beach picnic, meeting lots of Social Corner sisters.

Theoda: Thanks for sending postal telling me about the picnic at the beach.

True Blue, Sister and Red Rose, also telephoned and I thank you all.

I never got my paper the first week in September. I was madder than a wet hen. I think the blame is right here in my own town. Some one reads it. The wrapper is sometimes twisted to its uttermost, the paper torn and most times the paper is put back in a loose wrapper. I hope the guilty one will read this. Its the Corner paper that gets the overhauling.

A. Corn: So you are oiling? That's good. Don't be afraid of saltpeter! That's the cure. The oil softens the callous.

Nat: Glad to hear from you. What an awful time you used to have with those hogs getting out! Do you still wear purple socks? What lovely violets they would make for the rug I am drawing in. I have sold seven rugs made last winter and another long winter coming. Have an order for twelve more, but it takes so many rags!

Eliza Jane: Thanks for invitation. Would love to see you. Come and see me some time.

Noank Brownie: Yes, I got home from the beach all right. When I see you will tell you something funny that happened.

Liberty Bell: Was sorry not to see you with the class that day. We had a wonderful time. What a surprise they gave me at the dinner hour when they presented me with a half dozen solid metal silver teaspoons! And, really, I have been spooning ever since, and we will all spoon together next year if nothing happens.

Now is the time to plant your tulip bulbs. One of the sisters spoke of ground moles eating the bulbs. Dig the earth to the depth of two feet and put boards around. Stand them up so as to have no opening. For a round bed use shingles and have no opening. I had a gorgeous bed of tulips one year, yellow and red.

LUCY ACORN.

READY FOR OCTOBER FIRST

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: In answer to the roll call am glad to say that I am very much alive. I received a card from Savilla. Thanks. I hope to meet you all at the Buckingham at our next meeting. As I am the hostess I hope the sisters will not forget to bring the good things that we need to make it a success. I hope you all read Calla Lily's letter in last week's paper.

"There is plenty of work to do
Let us tackle it with a song
And we shall find our burdens light
As we happily trudge along."

Hope to see Kittie and Guess Will Mollie Larkin be one of the helpers? Don't forget Oct. 1st.

WINDHAM BLUE BELL.

THE PAST AND THE PRESENT.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I have been thinking of how much good the churches have done for our country in days gone by. All through the towns and villages and cities the white spires pointing upward remind us of the hearts of the people in setting apart a place to worship God and teach the young to know the way of salvation and of true right living. Also of love for each other, to be kind, helpful, patient, honest and industrious.

Most of the men in important business, places of responsibility and trust have been brought up in a Sunday school, also their parents and grandparents. How much the dear pastor has meant to the towns and communities in the days gone by. In sickness, what a comfort to hear his voice in prayer and comfort. In the loss of our loved ones, the hand of love and sympathy. Then in marriage the dear church bells pealing over the hills for the sweet service where two hearts have been made one. Many fond remembrances come to us as we think of what blessed services have been held under the roof of those sacred buildings. Now days the young are going many of them to the movies, theatres and so on. How much good have those places done for our country?

Folks have to be amused? May be, but in other days folks were so busy doing home work, in the house spinning, weaving, canning, baking, quilting, and the man tending the cattle, raising crops or busy in many ways to make cheerful happy homes and their children with them learning how to do things. How many children are allowed to go to places of amusement, out on the street and the rush of today is to earn money to spend. I know the modern machinery and inventions have made work easier and save time and labor but are the people happier many times who spend all day in earning, then using all the rest of the time spending what was earned. Our children and the folks of today need to remember what the dear churches have meant to our country, and not let their money be spent for that which does not profit, but to see that they do not neglect to support generously those things that are of the most value and what have done so much good for the people. The poor pastor who lived with a small allowance was not, and is not today, having so much money he had to plan how to spend it. He was out visiting the sick, encouraging the young in the best way of living and praying for the betterment of mankind. I believe more of our money and interest should be given to support what has meant so much to our country. I believe the folks in days gone by that lived honest and uprightly were happy in their homes with their cellars full of fruit and vegetables and their families around their fireside in the evenings reading or sewing, and the children with their games and music. What will become of these dear good influences if our money and times is spent for pleasure and gain?

Best wishes to all.

SUCCESS SECRETS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I have written. I have been working with Ben Putting it off, and I find you never get anywhere when you work for him.

As I haven't even answered my roll call will say present, and that I am still alive and able to be out.

SOME GOOD SUGGESTIONS

Dear Social Corner Family: When the feet of silk stockings are worn the legs can be used for lining coats for children or jacket sleeves for pockets. They can be used for making winter headcaps for children by turning over the edge and using a narrow flat elastic and facing with colors.

I stuff old cotton socks with excelsior to rub stove, or clean off grease spots. They make a good fire after being so used.

Dry all your peelings, potato, etc., in oven in an old pan. They will burn like wood and keep soot out of the chimney and stove pipe.

I use burlap bag filled with shavings to stand on when washing, or to sit on on the back porch. There is no dampness.

It will soon be time to do patch work and tend the fire. Yours fraternally,

J. E. T.

GREETINGS FROM DELIGHT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is sometime since I have written.

Necia: Thank you for the pretty birthday booklet. Your birthday passed before I was aware of it. Will try and do better next time.

Deliah Deal: Thank you for the nice card. I hope I shall have time to stop and see you the next trip I take to J. C.

Slip-In-Sky: You have me guessing as I don't know which sister has changed her name. Some times I think it is Bob White, or was. Wish I could have met you at Bumble Bee's the 12th for I think she would be a nice hostess. With best wishes to all DELIGHT.

OATMEAL COOKIES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I saw my name among those in the roll call on Sept. 13th and again on the 20th. I hope I am not Wee Wifie No. 2. I will answer present. I read all the letters and tried a good many recipes. I tried shelling beans through a wringer and found it much quicker.

I will send a recipe for

Oatmeal Cookies: Four cups Quaker oats, 1 cup flour, 1 scant cup sugar, 1 cup shotening, 1-4 teaspoon soda in 1-4 cup warm (not hot.) salt.

Roll as thin as possible.

WEE WIFIE.

GREETINGS FROM FLORIDA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Now that I have my Bulletin regular I will try to keep up to date for letters.

I see that my pen name has passed by but I thought I'd say, present, to the call. I have had so many lovely letters from the Social Corner sisters that now I look for them.

I will say to one and all that after being in Florida for a whole year now, it is an impossibility to even begin to write all the interesting things I've seen, and heard.

But the most outstanding feature of it all is the courtesy and the fine people of the south. Next is the wonderful way in which the northern people are learning that Florida is a year round state. To you just now it means the putting in of the wood and coal supply, winter coats, and everything possible in the cellar. Here it's just planting time again. Every where the ground is being plowed up and seed put in. The trees put on a darker hue of green. The fish are biting better, the hunters oiling up, casting rods and shot guns to fish and hunt. Boats are being overhauled on the lakes and rivers for the northerners. All ready the reports are in that, caravans fom the north, east, and west are coming.

Florida will have a banner year in tourists. And the tin can tourists will have to change. They must find houses to live in, if they come down to work. In all the cities and towns they give you 14 days at the most, (when you are working at some good trade) to use the auto camps. Then you have to find a home. When you realize that more than one half of the tourists came to work, it makes it hard for the southerners to keep their jobs. Some of the tincaners are good mechanics, carpenters, plumbers and other workers. They come south and try to cut prices on the wages. A man earning $35 a week in Illinois or New York, or Connecticut, or any state whatever comes here for the winter. If he gets a job and only earns $20 to $26 a week and works for three months, then the other man who has bought a home here in Florida and has earned as much as this other man in the north and has to stand for that $10 a week cut in his pay, is going to get sore at the northerner. I've heard one Florida man say this, "Let the blame northerners freeze up north and let him starve. He comes down here and that's what happens to us. We have to starve almost, while he comes on his vacation and then have to starve after he's gone, on our cut wages." So if any of the readers come down, don't try to do the other man or woman out of a job for less money.

More and more Connecticut business men are coming to Florida to stay. In New Smyrna, there's a whole colony of Eastern Connecticut people. Quite a lot of them are in Leland and surrounding villages.

A Connecticut man has opened the new Country club for Deland. And he is such a live wire and they have nicknamed him "Highspeed," and he lives up to his name too.

Will close, hoping that all the sisters are in good health and spirits.

It's a little late but am sending congratulations to Balsam Fir. Wish her a long and happy life also.

Best wishes for the Corner page and its editor.

BALKY AUTO

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I noticed my name in the roll call so will respond. I read nearly all the letters but have not attended the meetings lately. Was ready to go to Bumble Bee's picnic but my auto would not start and I could find no one around to start it that day so I stayed at home. Men are so handy "Sometimes."

Red Clover: Haven't heard from you for a long time.

How pretty the dahlias and fall flowers are this year. Have taken several rides around to see them.

With best wishes.

WHITE CLOVER RESPONDS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I want to answer to my name in the roll call and say present. First I saw a good many of the sisters at the Willimantic camp ground but did not get a chance to speak to them all. I have a friend that has gone to Canada for her vacation, she expects to be gone a week or ten days. I think it must be a lovely place to go but I never expect to go so far away from home.

Grace: M. and Mrs. P. are friends of mine. She lives on the same street with me, so I see her often. She is the one that has gone to Canada. I have a suggestion that may help some of the housewives. A home-made scouring mixture for granite, copper or tinware that will remove rust or smell of fish or onions from steel knives is made by mixing salt and vinegar together. Above all it costs nothing.

Alfaretta: I was so disappointed when you told me you were not going to have any picnic this summer. I was going to your picnic. I also hear that Sis Hopkins is not sure of having one. I was also going to that one.

Student: Did you like the Springfield fair this year? Did you ever go there before?

Diana: Did you receive my letter I sent more than a month ago? You know I told you I was going to answer the roll call.

M. M. L. and Malvina: You both have my sympathy. I have been through it all so I know what it is to lose a mother.

I think it is very nice for some of the sisters to write a letter to the Corner, every two or three weeks. I never know what to write about. I see by the last Social Corner page that some of the sisters have been busy canning. Well I have been also. I have canned peas, huckleberries, blackberries, mustard pickle, cucumber pickle and I am going to can peaches, make sweet tomato pickle, pepper relish and grape marmalade. I think that will do this year, as I have a lot of fruit and pickle left from last year.

Aunty No. 1: I am glad to hear you and your better half are gaining. You sure did your bit this week. Such a nice long letter.

Fluffy: Have you lost your pen and ink? If so I will see that you get them soon.

Practical Polly: I think its about time you got busy also.

Dewdrop: Some time before long I am going to call you up and get that recipe of radio cake. I lost that paper.

Honeysuckle: Did you get the birthday card yet?

Katydid: Why don't you answer my letter? I only recieved a card from you since you went away. I have looked every day for two weeks for a letter.

Deliah Deal: How are you nowadays? The last I heard you were not very well.

Now I think I have written a good long letter for me, so will close with best wishes to all.

WHITE CLOVER.

MOTOR LAUNCH DICK SEIZED AND BROUGHT INTO NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 26.—Suspected of being a rum-runner, the motor launch Dick, a new craft owned by Eugene Duffy, of New York, was seized by the revenue cutter Tampa off Block Island this morning and with her crew of eight men was brought into port, where she is now moored at the pier of the United States Coast Guard Academy. No liquor was found aboard the Dick, but charges against the master of the craft, Captain E. S. Carroll, of Edgewood, N. J., and the other members of the crew, of proceeding upon foreign voyage without obtaining clearance papers and failing to file manifest, have been lodged. The Dick is by far the most valuable craft seized by the rum chasing fleet off this port. 60 feet in length, of 31 tons capacity and has a 400 horse power engine capable of driving the launch through the water at a speed of 35 miles an hour.

The Tampa had been in Block Island sound several days and after capturing two boats, which were taken into Newport yesterday, the cutter returned to patrol duty this morning. About 10 o'clock the master of the cutter observed the Dick in the vicinity of several rum-supply ships off "Rum Row." The cutter was headed towards the launch, which had apparently sighted the cutter and was then proceeded in an easterly direction. When about four miles east of Block Island the launch was overtaken and a crew from the ecutter was sent aboard with the expectation of a quantity of liquor being found. When liquor was not found to be the launch's cargo, the master and crew were arrested on the charges of violation of the navigation laws. The crew gave their names as Peter Duffy, James Collins, H. R. Thompon, Thomas Duffy, J. F. Fisher, John Sonni and Clarance Thompson and all declared that they resided in New York.

All were given a hearing at 4 o'clock before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson, of Norwich, at the customs house. The crew was discharged, but Captain Carroll was held in bonds of $500 for hearing Oct. 3rd. Carroll furnished a surety on his bond for appearance at that time.

William Cole, employed as a laborer at the Ship and Engine Company plant at Groton, took a day off and abandoned a job, at which he could earn about $5 a day, to get drunk. He showed up at the Learned Mission, where beds are provided for 15 cents a night, and in his condition created a lot of trouble. He was anxious to contribute to the mission and besides putting a bill on the donation plate he threw money on the floor. He was given a bed in the lock-up as soon as he could be landed there.

James Cox, who has been employed at the mission, also wandered from the path of duty yesterday and showed up at the mission drunk last evening. After the superintendent had left the mission for the night Cox got the key and took such liberties with the janitor that the latter asked for Cox's arrest. Both men were in the police court this morning. They pleaded that they were first offenders and Cole said he had never been arrested before, though he is 52. Judge Prince suspended judgment for 24 hours on the promise of the offenders to cut out booze from their beverages.

The Hebrews will observe their New Year—Rosh Hashanna—Monday and Tuesday.

General George Haven, 82, former commander of the state's national guard and later warden at the state prison at Wethersfield, is confined to his home on Blinman street with troubles that have taken a serious turn. He has been in the house all the week. It was expected several days ago that he would make speedy recovery, but that result has not followed treatment of his trouble. For many years General Haven was captain of the New London police force and is now a pensioner of the department at half pay. He has been a leader in the Grand Army in New London.

Frederic C. Wright, one of the best known musicians in New London, is recovering from illness that has been most painful and which has necessitated long and persistent treatment.

An automobile owned and operated by Frank May, 435 Montauk avenue, and a machine owned and driven by Miss Katherine M. Edwards, residing in the art colony, Old Lyme, were in collision this afternoon on Montauk avenue, corner of Darrow street. Both drivers were ordered by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock to appear in the police court tomorrow morning and answer a charge of reckless driving. Both cars were damaged. The car operated by Miss Edwards was a new Cadillac.

Because Joseph Francis, a youth, amused himself by beating the children of Mrs. John L. Brown, 12 Clark lane, the mother of the abused children today lodged a complaint with the police.

New London's police force personnel will be reduced next Wednesday, for Captain Charles A. Pinney has decided to lay off four supernumerary patrolmen. The officers to be relieved of duty are Dennis Murphy, Thomas Ryden, John Sheridan and Jeremiah Murphy. The officers were assigned to duty last June, at a time when traffic was great and when the city's population was much larger than it is now, because of the great number of summer residents.

Mrs. Morris Itzcowitch, and infant daughter, of Squire street; Mrs. Herman Johnson, Plainfield; Ernest Lyons, Thatcher street; Mrs. Antone Deangelo, Mitchell court; Barbara Lyons, Thatcher street, and Miss Congetta Caffaro, Poquonoc Bridge, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of Mrs. Baivina, wife of Ignats Kalki, whose sudden death from heart trouble occurred at her home, Schoolhouse lane, Wednesday night, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Joseph Rahiszewski, the pastor of the church. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The New Haven police today requested the New London authorities to provide the former department with whatever criminal record the local police might have of Leroy Talbot, colored, who is under arrest in the latter city and being held on several counts for burglary. Talbot has no police record here, but he is known in New London although he has not been in this city, so far as is known, for a year or more.

The Title Guarantee & Trust company of New York, executors of the will of James D. Lynch, today sold four building lots at the Pequot to New London residents. Henry R. Bentley acquired a parcel on Glenwood avenue and Parkway; Benjamin H. Bidwell purchased a tract on Lower Boulevard and Charles A. Smith bought two parcels on Glenwood avenue and Crocker street.

The value of the service being rendered the city by the Catholic Diocesan Bureau of Social Service is indicated by the report for August as submitted by Miss Delia Maroney, secretary, to the advisory board. The board consists of Attorney Frank L. McGuire, chariman; Mrs. F. E. Douglass, Dr. William D. Cronin, Attorney and Mrs. Arthur T. Keefe, Frank Joseph, Mrs. Clarence A. Carr, Attorney Charles Smiddy, Miss Alice Savage, Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Quinn, William T. May, Miss Viola Mowry, Mrs. Otto Aimetti and Miss Delia Maroney.

The report shows that in the child welfare division during August 11 new cases were reported, bringing the total cases in this division since Jan. 1 to 113. Free homes were provided for three children, and legal adoption was secured for three more. Admittance to St. Agnes' Home, at West Hartford, was secured for three children; to the House of Good Sheperd, 1, and to St. Francis', 1.

Free hospital care was furnished four children; free temporary shelter to six, and free mental and physical examinations were given three children. In behalf of dependent children the report shows that 300 visits were made.

In the Family Welfare division 70 new cases were reported. Free clothing was furnished 10 families; material relief, in the form of food and rent to five families; medical care for the breadwinners of two families was provided, and positions were secured for the bread winners of eight families. Visits made in the interest of needy families totaled 256.

Two new cases were reported in the Girl Welfare division, bringing the total since Jan. 1 to 38. Seven girls paroled from various public institutions, and for the conduct of whom the bureau accepts responsibility were cared for during the month.

The financial statement for August submitted by Treasurer Rev. Matthew J. Judge, Diocesan Director of Catholic Charities to the advisory board shows a balance of $264.33 Sept. 1. Receipts during August totaled $675.63, and disbursements, $411.30.

There is no settlement near in sight in the strike of the 100 weavers at the plant of the Edward Bloom Silk company, Garfield avenue. A meeting of the strikers was held yesterday afternoon in a hall on Smith street and another meeting is scheduled to take place tomorrow afternoon. The employers declare that the weavers are paid high wages, while the strikers declare that they are underpaid and are insistent in their demand for an increase of three cents per yard. The officials of the silk company have made it known that unless the strikers return to work that their places will be filled. If this is attempted the strikers assert that they will place pickets at all approaches to the mill and endeavor to induce workers imported here to take their places to refrain from entering the plant.

Mrs. Anna Soukup, 58, wife of John Soukup, Grassy Hill, Lyme, died yesterday, after an illness of several days. Besides her husband she leaves three sons an dtwo daughters.

A youth was taken into custody tonight by Patrolman Clarence Martin, charged with being a runaway. The lad admitted having ran away from his home in New York but stated that he did so in order to obtain work, which he could not secure in New York. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Sept. 26.—Stock prices displayed a firm undertone in today's irregular market which was features by bullish demonstrations in a few public utilities, rails and industrial specialties. Trading in standard industrials was quiet with a tendency to heaviness in the late dealings.

Lehigh Valley led the upward movement in the railroad shares, rising 3 points to 61, the highest price since the segregation of the coal properties. Frisco issued sold at the highest prices since the reorganization of the company in 1916 on reports of an early inauguration of dividends on the preferred which rose 3 3-4 points to 65 while the common closed 1 3-8 higher at 30 7-8.

U. S. Steel common failed to respond to reports of an increase in operations from 60 to 65 per cent of capacity, closing unchanged at 108 1-2. Independent Steel yielded to professional selling, Republic dropping more than a point and most of the others yielding fractionally.

Nash Motors jumped 6 1-2 points to a new top at 150 on reports of increased sales. Other motors moved within narrow and irregular limits. Stewart-Warner advanced more than two points to 58 3-8 and then eased to 57 1-2. Tire stocks made a moderate response to reports of improved trade conditions.

Heavy accumulation of U. S. Cast Iron Pipe sent that stock from 108 1-2 to 112 1-2 but it eased later to 111 1-4 where it was up 2 5-8 on the day. The four point rise in Brooklyn Edison was said to forecast a split-up of the present shares and a larger dividend disbursement. American Hide & Leather Preferred was brought in large blocks, selling as high as 66 1-2 but reacting later to 65 3-8, up 1 3-8.

Other individual strong spots included International Combustion Engineering, Worthington Pump, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Associated Dry Goods, Detroit Edison, Foundation company, Laclede Gas, Pacific Gas, Park & Tilford, Remington Typewriter and Union Tank Car, up one to four points. General Baking was run up 8 3-4 to 157 and then fell back to 153.

Cosden Oil was again under pressure, dropping 1 1-2 points to 28 1-2 and then rallying feebly. Burns Brother "A," Congoleum, National Enameling, Standard Plate Glass, Mack Trucks and United Railways investment issues were heavy.

Call money ruled unchanged at 2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady with business quiet.

Foreign exchange rates showed little change. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.47 and French francs were moderately active just above 5 1-4c. Swiss francs touched a new high at 19.04c.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 26.—Uneven price movements characterized today's curb market. Oils, with new exceptions, were inclined to heaviness but most of the industrials and public utilities pointed to higher ground with some excellent gains recorded by the high priced specialties.

Prairie Oil & Gas closed two points lower at 207 while net loss of one to two points also were recorded by Standard Oil of Kentucky, South Pennsylvania, Prairie and Northern Pipes, and Imperial of Canada. Standard Oil of Nebraska advanced 4 points and Salt Creek producers moved up 1 3-8 in active trading. Gillette Safety Razor (old) and National Tea closed at net gains of 6 and 5 points, respectively. American Light & Traction, Commonwealth Power and Middlewest Utilities showed net gains of 1 to 3 points, but American Gas & Electric was heavy. Glen Alden Coal dropped 1 3-4 on a small turnover. Ward Baking issues were strong.

Silver producers were the most active of the mining group, Hawthorne touching a new high on the movement of reports of favorable developments at the mines.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 26.—Bond prices moved to higher ground today under the leadership of U. S. treasury, European government and domestic railroad obligations, several of which scaled new peaks for the year. Trading was moderately active.

The reported presence of J. P. Morgan in London, foreshadowing an early conclusion of the German loan negotiations provided the incentive for further buying of foreign issues. Belgian 7 1-2s reached a new 1924 high level at 111, with the new 6 1-2s selling at 97 1-2. French and other continental bonds were firm.

A rise in the liens of the southern and southwestern carriers correspond to the advance in the shares of these roads. Frisco bonds were unusually active on reports that dividends soon would be inaugurated on the preferred stock. Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio 6s and four of the Seaboard Air line issues moved up one to two points. New 1924 high records were achieved by several of the Denver & Rio Grande mortgages.

Profit taking interrupted the advance in Brooklyn Union Gas 7s which had carried these bonds to the year's top prices. Offering of large blocks caused recessions of several points in these issues. Selling of various oil and copper bonds gave the industrial list an irregular appearance.

The treasury 4 1-2s, popularly known as the "Mellons," attained a record high price in selling at 106.7. Liberty bonds, however, failed to keep pace with this movement.

New York investment houses announced a private offering of 100,000 count company of Vienna. shares of the lower Austrian. Dis- Pennsylvania and Florida East Coast issues, offered today, were readily subscribed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Corn led in the grain markets to higher price levels today in a manner that bordered on the sensational. Broadened speculative demand for corn came about chiefly from a summary issued by the United States department of agriculture saying that for this time of year the corn crop is at present even more backward than a month ago. After scoring in some cases extreme upturn of six cents, the corn market closed strong at 3 3-8 to 5 1-8c net gain, December 106 1-4 to 106 1-2, wheat finished firm, 1 3-8 to 3 1-8c up, December 138 5-8 to 138 3-4 and May 144 1-2 to 144 5-8, oats showing 3-4@7-8 to 1 1-4c advance, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 35c.

According to some authorities the government report as to corn implied that forthcoming definite estimate of production would be lower than any total heretofore suggested. Under such circumstances active general commission house buying of corn quickly developed and the market began a rapid irregular ascent that reached its topmost point just before trading ended.

Predictions of unsettled and colder weather did a good deal to stimulate buyers after the upward swing of values got started in good earnest.

Wheat owed much of its advance to cold wet weather in Canada. The market nearly equalled the best prices yet on the cron.

Oats were moderately active, and higher with other grain.

Excellent cash demand for lard was the main feature in the provision market.

FOUR NORWICH BOYS AT WORCESTER POLYTECHNIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 26.—Four boys from Norwich, Conn., are among the 484 students, who registered at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, when it opened for the 55th annual collegiate year. The total registration is somewhat smaller than last year, when there were 511 students matriculating at the Worcester Engineering college, and the entering class numbers 20 less than last year, with only 165 registering.

There are no Norwich members of the two upper classes attending the college, but there are three sophomores and one member of the entering class. The second year men are: Roger M. Browning, Daniel J. Barnett and Thure W. Dahl. Alfred W. Young is the lone representative in the freshman class.

Ancient Order of Nobility.

In Vienna may be seen the altar hangings and vestments associated with the order of the Golden Fleece, found in the Fifteenth century, first half, by the Burgundian ruler of Flanders, Duke Philip the Good. They were supposed to have been made in the latter part of the Fourteenth century, as they are recorded in the inventory of the treasury of the Golden Fleece made in 1477.

COLCHESTER BARN IS BURNED TO THE GROUND

Elias Glaubinger of Colchester sustained a loss of about $2500 Friday morning when fire destroyed a large barn on his farm in that town, the barn being razed and contents destroyed.

The fire had gained considerable headway when the Colchester department arrived and for a time two other buildings in the vicinity were in danger of catching fire but prompt work by the department prevented this from in that direction.

The barn was used as a slaughter house and owing to complaints on the condition of the slaughter house Mr. Glaubinger had recently spent $1,000 in repairing the structure. Many hides are stored beneath the barn in a cement vault and if these are damaged the loss will run higher than the figure mentioned.

VISIT STATE INSTITUTIONS TO SEE WHAT FINANCIAL NEEDS ARE

The two state institutions in Norwich, the Norwich state hospital and the tuberculosis sanatorium, were visited Friday afternoon by the finance committee of the state board of control in relation to the appropriations which both institutions will request from the next legislature.

John M. Wadhams of Goshen, Byron D. Bugbee of Putnam and Capt Anson McCook, were the three members of the committee who came here, first visiting the state hospital where they made quite a complete inspection trip around the buildings and grounds under the direction of the superintendent, Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox. The committee visited the main buildings, the inebriate colony, the farm, the new road and the power house, showing much interest in the provision that is made at the hospital for the care of the insane.

The trustees of the hospital have included in their requests for money this year the sum of $85,000 more to enable a new ward for men to be built. This sum, if granted by the legislature, will be added to the credit of $170,000 which the hospital has as this amount granted by a previous legislature has not been used because it was found impossible to build a ward for this amount. Another request of the trustees is for an appropriation for a new bakery at the hospital.

From the state hospital the committee went to the tuberculosis sanatorium, where they were received by the superintendnt, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, and shown about the place. They left for their homes after luncheon with Dr. Campbell.

As the sanatorium superintendent was out of town Friday night it could not be learned definitely what appropriations are being asked for, but it was understood that it is desired to secure enough money to make improvements in the sleeping quarters for the employes.

PULMOTOR USE TAUGHT TO CITY DEPARTMENTS

Members of the fire department at the Central Fire station and the employes of the City of Norwich gas and electrical department received instructions Friday morning in the use of the new H. H. Inhalator, just purchased by the city for the fire department and by the electrical commissioners for that department, the demonstration being conducted by John L. Lehman of the Mine Safety Appliances Co. The instruments are of the latest type of what is more commonly known as the pulmotor and may be used in the case of gas asphyxiation, smoke suffocation, electrocution, drowning, and, in fact, in any case where respiration of the body has stopped.

The members of both departments also received instructions in the Shafer method of resuscitation and actual demonstrations of this method, along with the use of the pulmotor, were given to several members of the fire department and electrical department. Beginning with this instruction, it is planned, once each month, to continue the classes of instruction until every member of the departments is qualified and able to use both methods of resuscitation.

The following, which deals with the principle and the application of the machine is of interest to the public in general.

A victim of gas asphyxiation, smoke suffocation, etc., is for the time deprived of the power to transport oxygen from the air through the lungs to the tissues of the body. Theoretically, oxygen inhalation is the obvious method for overcoming the asphyxia. Practically, however, the inhalation of oxygen alone does not fulfil its theoretical promise. An auxiliary agent is needed. The breathing of a normal man or animal, as is now well known, is largely regulated by the carbonic acid gas (CO2) produced in the muscles and organs and carried by the blood to the respiratory center in the brain. Carbonic acid is the natural stimulus to this center and thus regulates normal breathing. The supplying of enough carbonic acid gas mixed with oxygen has been found to serve as an immediate stimulus to spontaneous breathing by the patient, thus drawing oxygen in and washing the poisonous gases out of the tissues. Carbogen is the trade name of the correct mixture of oxygen and carbon dioxide to produce normal stimulation and the maximum absorption of oxygen.

The H-H Inhalator is a device for administering carbogen to the patient. When respiration has stopped, artificial respiration by the manual prone pressure method should be employed to start spontaneous breathing. This effort should be assisted by administering carbogen simultaneously from the H-H Inhalator. Carbogen, by causing full ventilation of the lungs, rapidly eliminates poisonous gas from the blood and thus terminates the condition of asphyxia. The treatment is highly effective, inducing rapid and complete recovery if applied early enough. It requires merely general medical supervision and may be carried out safely and efficiently by men of ordinary intelligence.

NORWICH HAS HAD 36 AUTO ACCIDENTS THIS YEAR

About one in every thirty persons in the state, on an average, has figured in a motor vehicle accident in Connecticut this year. Records of the state motor vehicle department show that 15,660 accidents of all kinds have been reported up to the first of the present week. Of this number, 184 resulted fatally.

Hartford leads in the number of motor vehicle accidents reported, according to a compresensive chart showing the accident situation up to date throughout the state, which is kept at the motor vehicle depatrtment. It shows that 1,733 accidents have been reported from Hartford, of which fourteen resulted in one or more deaths. New Haven, with 1,664 accidents, of which twenty-two involved fatalities, comes next and Bridgeport third with 1,191 accidents, including eleven with fatal results. There has been one accident for about every eighty persons in Hartford; one for about every ninety-seven in New Haven; one for about every 107 in Waterbury and one for about every 120 in Bridgeport. When it is considered that the average accident involves two cars and at least three persons, it may be seen that the percentage of people in the large cities who have figured in motor vehicle accidents is increasing.

For other cities and towns in the state the motor vehicle department chart shows: Waterbury, 852 accidents, eight fatal; New Britain, 502 accidents, four fatal; Meriden, 303 accidents, four fatal; Norwich, 368 accidents, five fatal; Stamford, 413 accidents, four fatal; Greenwich, 199 accidents, four fatal; East Hartforrd, 177 accidents, four fatal; New London, 309 accidents, one fatal; Danbury, 185 accidents, one fatal; Plainville, ninety, one fatal; Norwalk, 188, one fatal. Bristol had 128 accidents, but none of them was fatal.

On Auto Trip to New Hampshire.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hinckley of Portland, Me., are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Hinckley at their home on Lucas street. Both couples left Friday by auto, for a visit at the home of another brother, Irving A. Hinckley, Lancaster, N. H., a native of Norwich who is attorney general of New Hampshire. From Lancaster the party will motor to Portland, Me., for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hinckley.

SHIFTING OFFICES AT CAPITOL AT HARTFORD

Changes in the interior arrangements of offices and rooms at the Capitol at Hartford are being made under the direction of Camptroller Frederick M. Salmon and Superintendent Frank B. Congdon in preparation for the coming session of the general assembly. No change in the interior structure of the building proper is planned or anticipated. The department of public welfare, now occupying four rooms on the fourth floor of the west wing, is to be removed to the annex, at No. 175 Capitol avenue, and other possible changes are being considered.

The new quarters of the public welfare department will be on the floor above the teachers' retirement board offices, which were recently moved from the first floor of the Capitol. The change will affect about 25 employes, the new quarters supplying about the same amount of floor space.

A remodeled lavoratory has been installed in the men's room in the east wing of the Capitol on the second floor. Alterations and improvements are also being made in the lavoratory on the second floor of the west wing, next to the office of the secretary of the state. The cloak room for the representatives is being renovated, new fixtures and conveniences being added to provide additional comfort.

In an effort to meet the requirements of the various state departments which are constantly increasing in size through expansion of activities, numerous changes have been made in office arrangements and locations during the past months by Superintendent Congdon.

The engineering and drafting divisions of the state highway department are being moved from the main office of the department at No. 16 Washington street to No. 175 Capitol avenue, formerly occupied by the dairy and food commission. This commission now occupies newly renovated and commodious quarters in the recently purchased building at No. 275 Capitol avenue, west of the States Library and Supreme Court building.

Offices of the fish and game department and the commission on domestic animals have been removed from the annexes on Capitol avenue, east of Washington street, to the new buildings at Nos. 253 and 257 Capitol avenue. The commission on domestic animals occupies the second floor of the building housing the dairy and food commissions. Office space in this building has also been provided for Secretary H. C. C. Miles of the Connecticut Pomological society. The state park and forest commission later will occupy offices over the fish and game commission at No. 253 Capitol avenue.

A building which soon may be utilized for department offices is the annex at No. 171 Capitol avenue, formerly used as headquarters by the state police department. The department is now located at No. 100 Washington street. The new quarters allow ample space for offices and police barracks so that the building formerly used as barracks at No. 20 Washington street is now vacant.

The walls and supporting balusters of the wells in the wings of the Capitol have been redecorated during the past year, the new finish adding brightness to the building's interior, which, with the changs now in progress, will present a cheery aspect and add to the comfort and convenience of the incoming lawmakers.

PRIZE ESSAY FOR CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

The prize essay, written by some member of the Central Baptist church, outlining the Program of the Central Baptist Church for the Next Sixteen Years, completing the 100th anniversary of the church, was read Friday evening at a rally social of the church and school, by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, one of the three judges who selected the winning essay among the thirty or more submitted by members.

The essay was lengthy and took up each department of church and church school work, organization, evangelistic work, community work, and finally touched upon the need of enlarging the present church building. The essay showed extreme thought on the subject and was selected by the judges, said Rev. Mr. Dunbar, only after a thorough study, many of the other essays, however, containing material of great value which might be used by the church during the next sixteen years as a part of the church policy and program.

The meeting was opened at 8 o'clock with a social, music being furnished by Swahn's orchestra. The superintendent of the church school, James L. Case, then asked the congregation to sing America, after which Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor, led in prayer.

The welcome was extended by Superintendent Case, who asked for cooperation during the coming year. Let us forget to criticize, he said, remembering that back of all is the desire to help. Let us make this year a better year, filled with friendships, quality, and of all things worth while.

Members of the church choir then rendered Come O'er the Seas, after which the junior department, in charge of Arthur F. Wyman, gave a short program as follows: Violin solo, Miss Doris Racine; recitation, On Tireless Waves, Lawrence Clegg; piano solo, Dwight Richardson; violin solo, Earl Swan. The next section of the program was in charge of Miss Edith Ellis and was given by the intermediate department. The title of the stunt was Something in Auto-Suggestion, a clever and funny bit of acting by Charles Hagberg, impersonating James L. Case, Earl Davey as C. Edward Smith, Miss Unabelle Harbeck as Miss Alice Dean and Viola Hill as Mrs. Martha Mitchell. The story had to do with an automobile ride to Pine Lodge, the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Pitt, and upon their arrival they were welcomed by Miss Eugenie Dean as Mrs. Pitt. This stunt was given by the Connecticut group at Ocean Park summer school and proved entertaining. As an encore the Connecticut song, We Ain't Going Home No More, was sung, dedicated to the good times at Ocean Park.

Previous to this number, a duet was rendered by Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., and Fred Maples entitled O, That We Two Were Maying. Following the group number, Walter McNeely favored with a baritone solo. Before You Came Into My Life. Both numbers were heartily applauded.

Mr. Case then called upon Dr. Pitt, who mentioned that September was an eventful month for the Central church, for it was in September that the Ecclesiastical society was formed, that the church was organized and received into the New London association, when two other churches were sent out from the Central church, when the church bade goodbye to the old building to go into the new church home, and, lastly, it was now September and in years to come this month, when the policy for the next sixteen years is to be read, may also be looked upon as an important event in church history.

Speaking of the essay to be read, Dr. Pitt said that for a time after he suggested it he was afraid it would not go through, but someone, name withheld, offered $100 for a prize essay, $50 to be paid when the winning essay was selected by the judges and $50 to be paid when the church adopted the policy. The name of the donor of the prize money and the name of the essay winner would be withheld until after the final award had been made.

In all, he said, thirty-one essays were submitted and most carefully read by the judges, Rev. Chester Howe of New London, Prof. F. L. Newton of New London and Rev. E. C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church of Norwich. All essays were numbered, no names appearing, and the writer of the essay remains unknown except to himself or herself.

Following his talk, Rev. Mr. Dunbar, representing the judges, read the essay, which contained over 5,000 words, and then adjournment was taken to Bushnell chapel, where the women of the church had prepared refreshments of ice cream and cake.

Following the serving of refreshments, Judge John H. Barnes, representing the men of the church, spoke briefly, stating that the Sunday school was the seed of the church. He illustrated his subject by recalling the words of Henry Ward Beecher given in answer to a friend who asked him if the work of Christ was finished. Mr. Beecher, who was then writing "The Life of Jesus, answered, "No, it never will be finished.' This, said Judge Barnes, means that when study in the church school is completed the work is not done, for it should go on all through life. Speaking of the value of prayer, Judge Barnes said there was also a need for work. He illustrated his subject by telling a story of Drs. McLeod and Watson, missionaries, who stopped in Scotland while on their way to India. While crossing a lock, a storm came up and it was feared that the boat would sink and all lives be lost. One person suggested that both missionaries pray, but a sailor said: "No, let the small man pray, but let the big man pull an oar." This story shows that there is work for everyone, said Judge Barnes, for if you cannot pray you can work.

A social hour followed his talk and Dr. Pitt suggested a careful study of the essay in preparation of a vote to be taken some weeks hence to decide whether or not the plans suggested may be feasible for a church program for the years leading to the church centennial.

OUTSTANDING FEATURES OF WORLD ENCIRCLING FLIGHT

Sand Point Field, Seattle, Wash., Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Among the salient features of the United States army globe-encircling flight that ended today were:

The flight was started officially by four planes from Seattle, Wash., 8.30 a. m., Sunday, April 6, under command of Major Frederick L. Martin in the flag plane, Seattle, and was completed today—five months and 22 days—by two of the original machines and the Boston II, a spare air cruiser sent to Pictou harbor, Nova Scotia for Lieut. Leigh Wade, whose machine was wrecked near Faroe Islands, Aug. 21.

The aviators originally left Santa Monica, Cal., March 17, but, on account of delays ni substituting pontoons for landing gear here, the official hop-off was made from Seattle, cutting 19 days off the journey.

The personnel of the flight included Major Martin, commander, and his mechanician, Staff Sergeant Alva L. Harvey, who were missing for 10 days after their flag plane Seattle was wrecked April 30, on a mountain near Port Moller, Alaska, peninsula in the Bering sea coast, and who were forced to quit the expedition; Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander after Major Martin's accident, pilot of the flag plane Chicago; Lieut. Erik H. Nelson, pilot of the New Orleans; Lieut. Leigh Wade, pilot of the ill-fated Boston, and Mechanics Lieutenants Leslie P. Arnold, John Harding, Jr., and Henry H. Ogden.

The route of the aviators traversed or touched 21 foreign countries and 25 states and one territory of the Union.

A total of fifty-seven hops were made, an average of 483 miles each jump.

With each air cruiser consuming 20 gallons of gasoline in an hour of flying, the three planes used approximately 350 flying hours 21,060 gallons. Each plane used about 30 gallons of oil every 2,400 miles and in the 27,534 mile flight the machines had 1,020 gallons of oil.

NEW YORK DOCK WORKER CHARGED WITH KIDNAPPING

New York, Sept. 28.—John R. Riley, a dock worker, was held without bail in police court today on suspicion of having kidnapped Franklin Roshek, 14 years old, who disappeared last Tuesday after he had left his home in the upper West Side to go to school.

Riley, according to the police, answers the description of the hunchbacked man, known as "Hunchback Reilly," with whom the boy was seen talking on the street a short time before he disappeared. The prisoner, however, declares that he was innocent.

"I may look like this man you're looking for, and I'm a hunchback," he pleaded, "but I never so much as saw this boy."

Believing that the boy might have been taken out of the city aboard a train on the New York Central line skirting the Hudson river near the Roshek home, the police today sent out a general alarm asking that upstate police be on the lookout for the missing youth. Officials in charge of the search have received several telegrams stating that a boy answering the missing youth's description had passed through different towns in New York and Pennsylvania.

LOTTA CRABTREE BURIED BESIDE HER MOTHER

New York, Sept. 28.—Alone in death as in life, Lotta Crabtree, outstanding musical comedy favorite of fifty years ago, who died in Boston Friday at the age of 76, was buried beside her mother and brother in Westchester county today. Only four relatives, distant cousins, were among the small group of acquaintances who attended the funeral service.

The actress discouraged intimacies and had no close friends. Her life, after she retired from the stage, centered on her cats and her many thoroughbred horses, of which My Star won numerous prizes. Joseph Crabtree, her fourth cousin, characterized her passing as the departure of a great personality. He said he was not surprised, however, at the lack of tribute paid her, for she always had sought solitude.

Miss Crabtree left a large fortune to charitable institutions. Her will is to be filed this week in the Suffolk county (Mass.) probate court.

The raid followed complaints received by the police that week end parties were being held in that section of the town. The house raided is a rude wooden affair, about a mile south of the old stone church. None of the visitors at the house escaped when the police dashed through the doors.

Crisis Has Arisen in Peace Discussions

Japan Insists Upon an Amendment to the Proposed Protocol on Arbitration, Security

Geneva, Sept. 28—A grave crisis prevails tonight in the peace discussions through Japan's insistence upon an amendment to the proposed protocol of arbitration and security.

So critical was the situation judged to be that France suggested that the Japanese amendment, which concerns the interpretation of state rights as related to arbitration and which everybody understands as referring to the immigration problem, should be considered calmly by a sub-committee. A motion by the French to this end was accepted by the arbitration commission.

Japan offered her amendment after a day of fruitless private conferences.

At 9:30 tonight, when the arbitration commission had practically completed its revision of the protocol text, M. Adachi arose and formally moved the suppression of the clause in the protocol draft which proclaims an aggressor state any country refusing to abide by the decision of the world court of justice. The clause in question refers to disputes which one party declares to have arisen over a subject which is exclusively within its domestic jurisdiction. If the world court accepts this view and rules that the matter is in fact domestic in nature, and the other, the opposing state, refuses to accept the decision and goes to war, it then becomes an aggressor and will be punished as such by the other members of the league.

M. Adachi wanted this clause stricken out altogether, asserting that it involved great injustice to the plaintiff state and shut off all avenues of peaceful settlement. Reading his statement dramatically and slowly amidst tense, almost painful, silence, the Japanese delegate accused the league of nations of not fulfilling its high mission, because it was proclaiming a state of criminal without offering any solution of the difficulty.

He argued that questions judged by the court to be within the exclusive internal jurisdiction of a state might cause the gravest kind of injustice to the other state, which should have the right to prove the righteousness of its complaint.

Senor Fernadez, a Brazilian jurist, combatted the Japanese amendment. It had the effect, he said, of putting the sign of approval on the most inadmissible, as well as the most cruel wars of all—those growing out of a conflict over a state's sovereign rights.

Both M. Politis of Greece and M. Solin of Belgium arose and defended the proposal.

DEAD GUNMAN IN BOSTON IDENTIFIED BY HIS SISTER

Boston, Sept. 28—The identity of a gunman who died at the city hospital yesterday of wounds received five days before in a battle with Boston police was revealed today when a sister appeared at the morgue and said the body was that of Isador Levin, formerly of Montreal. The sister, Mrs. Lillian Garber of Worcester, said photographs of the gunman published in Boston newspapers had given her the clue.

Levin who was first known to the police here as George Wright, was the second victim of the battle. Patrolman Albert Motroni, one of two officers who to a house in East Boston last Monday to arrest Levin on the charge of stealing an automobile, was shot to death. The other policeman Thomas Duggan, was wounded but four of his bullets took effect on the gunman before he was disabled.

Just before his death yesterday, Levin told a policeman who guarded his cot at the hospital that he was William Martin, and gave an ddress in South Boston. This was found to be ficticious. Mrs. Garber said her brother was a native of Russia. He was in trouble in Canada, she said, and came to Boston to make a new start in life but resumed his old habits. The sister said Levin once served in the United States navy.

SUSPECTED OF BEING DEFAULTER CHRISTIAN

New York, Sept. 28.—A detective was sent to Stroudsburg, Pa., today to investigate a report that a man answering the description of George R. Christian, missing partner in the bankrupt stock exchange firm of Day and Heaton, had been found in an exclusive boarding house there. It was learned later that William W. Heaton, Jr., a member of the firm, had been summoned to the Pennsylvania town.

Suspicions of the owner of the house first were aroused when newspapers published a description of Christian. The owner of the house said his suspicions were aroused further by the nervous demanor of the man, who read every available edition of the morning and afternoon papers. Every time the telephone rang, the man is said to have asked who was calling and for whom. He arrived the day before the announcement of the failure of Day and Heation.

Monument to Quentin Roosevelt Unveiled

Consists of the Figures of Three Poilus 15 Feet High —On Battlefield in France.

Paris, Sept. 28 (By the A. P.).—"My countrymen will be deeply touched that one of the soldiers crowning this monument is an American and that the sculptor chose as his model a man who bore a most honored name—Quentin Roosevelt," said Sheldon Whitehouse, charge d'affaires of the United States embassy, at the unveiling today of a monument on the spot where once stood the famous Navarias farmhouse.

"There could be no better proof for posterity of the strength of Franco-American friendship," Mr. Whitehouse added, "than the inscription on this monument regarding the American divisions which fought with their French comrades-in-arms under command of that gallant soldier, General Gouraud."

The monument consists of the figures of three poilus fifteen feet high, one a scout, one a grenade thrower and the other a machine gun man, the latter having the features of Quentin Roosevelt. Each man is depicted in action.

The monument is a sixty foot pedestal of rose granite. It stands on a hillock dominating the immense battlefield extending from Moronvilliers to the Argonne and was erected to commemorate the French and American soldiers who fell around Rheims.

The monument is visible for many miles, the war devastation having left not a single tree to shut off the view. More than 650,000 francs were raised in France and the United States to erect the monument.

General Gouraud at the unveiling in an address gave a complete history of the battles that were fought in the vicinity of the shaft, in which he said one hundred and four divisions took part. He paid tribute to the work of the American troops under his command.

Among the countless flags of the veteran associations surrounding the monument were those of the American Legion and the World War Veterans. They were brought to the shaft by American uniformed soldiers and delegates of the Lafayette escadrille. The day's ceremony began with religious services at which the Catholic bishop, a Catholic chaplain, a Protestant pastor and a rabbi officiated.

VATICAN CIRCLES ARE DISPLEASED WITH HERRIOT

Rome, Sept. 28.—(By The A. P.)—The reply of M. Herriot, the French premier, to the French cardinals respecting the suppression of the French embassy to the vatican, is much commented upon in Rome both inside and outside the vatican. Authoritative personages in the pope's entourage declare that M. Herriot, under the cloak of liberty, impartiality and tolerance for all forms of worship is simply voicing the anti-religious spirit which originated with the Voltaire doctrines and reached its apex, first during the French revolution, and later with anti-clericalism that during the last century culminated in France with the Combes and Loubert presidencies.

Vatican circles charge M. Herriot with short-sightedness and ingratitude, declaring that he does not realize, or forgets, the great advantages France has gained both at home and abroad by the support received from the church.

The great bulk of the liberals applaud M. Herriot's letter, which they characterize as one of the clearest and most comprehensive presentations of a modern lay state on the supreme sovereignty of civil government, permitting no interference by any religion in the management of public affairs, but allowing the free development of any cult within the laws, which protect all citizens irrespective of their religious opinion.

GOMPERS MAKES A VAGUE SUPREME COURT STATEMENT

Demands That Congress Shall Have Power to Reenact Any Law Nullified by the Court—Qualifies Declaration by Asserting That Congress Be Deprived of That Power During a Temporary Waive of Emotion—Fails to State Who Shall Define What Constitutes a Temporary Wave.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Proposals for the limitation of the powers of the supreme court were defended in a "campaign document" issued today by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

He criticized the present right of "final vote" held by the court as "wholly incompatible with democracy and wholly intolerable to those who have faith in their power to govern themselves."

"The demand," Mr. Gompers explained, "is not that the court be deprived of all power to pass on the constitutionality of legislation, but that it be deprived solely of its power of final vote. What is demanded is that the people finally may be able to outvoice the supreme court and write their will into law in spite of the supreme court."

"This proposal is incorporated," Mr. Gompers said, "in a declaration of the American Federation of Labor and is a plank in the platform of Senator LaFollette, independent candidate, but is an issue in this cmapaign solely because the spokesmen of a great political party have seen fit to chmapion the cause of arbitrary and tyrannical power."

He named President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes as the spokesmen.

"It is demanded," he continued, "that congress shall have the power to reenact any law declared invalid by the supreme court, and that upon re-enactment the law shall stand. This does not contemplate hasty overturning of supreme court decisions, nor does it contemplate the enactment of legislation over the head of the supreme court during a temporary wave of emotion or during any condition which might lead congress to do what later might be regretted.

"It must be borne in mind that cases do not reach the supreme court in a day and that it would be little less than a miracle if the same congress ever got the opportunity to act for the second time upon a measure which found disfavor in the supreme court.

"The American Federation of Labor believes that a majority of the people of the United States are opposed to further usurpation of power by the supreme court and are opposed to the system under which a court composed of judges who are appointed for life can veto legislation passed by elected representatives. There is involved in this opinion no attack on the court as such, and there is no desire anywhere to deprive the court of what should be its proper functions and power.

"The present situation is that the supreme court by a decision of five to four may declare null and void any act passed by congress. The court progress so decided, the people have no further recourse except through the cumbersome process of constitutional amendment."

Mr. Gompers also called attention to a plank in the platform of the progressive party headed by Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 which he said demanded "such restriction of the power of the courts as shall leave to the people the ultimate authority to determine fundamental questions of social welfare and public policy."

SUPPLY SHIP TO AID FLIGHT OF DIRIGIBLE ZR-3

Boston, Sept. 28.—The U. S. supply ship Patoka, Commander G. J. Myers, sailed tonight from the Boston navy yard to take up a position about 300 miles south of Cape Farewell, Greenland, where she will aid in the trans-Atlantic flight of the dirigible ZR-3 early next month.

The Patoka had been ready with fuel and supplies for some time awaiting sailing orders.

She will keep the airship informed of weather conditons by an elaborate system of reports. The fact that the Patoka has sailed for this northern position is said by navy officials to be no indication that that route will be taken by the dirigible. The Patoka is equipped with a mooring mast to which the Shenandoah tied up successfully in recent tests at Newport, R. I. She will therefore be available as a mid-ocean emergency stop should the giant airship have difficulty.

The East Boston airport has been notified to hold itself in readiness for an emergency landing of the ZR-3, which would require the assistance of 200 men.

PARLIAMENT TO DEAL WITH IRISH BOUNDARY DISPUTE

London, Sept. 28 (By the A. P.).—As the time approaches for parliament to reassamble to deal with the Irish boundary dispute, powerful influences appear to be at work in both northern and southern Ireland and in England to bring about a settlement of the controversy by mutual consent of the two Irish communities.

The Free State treaty provided for a boundary commission to stetle the question of the frontier to the north. Two of the necessary commissioners have been named, but northern Ireland by refusing to name the third, has held up all the functions of the commissioners.

It is now nearly three years since the signing of the Free State treaty removed Irish affairs from the realm of British politics. While there are die-hard elements and extremists in the Free State, northern Ireland and in England, the people of moderate views—by far the majority of all three communities would seem to be heartily opposed to having Irish affairs thrust back into British politics.

WILLIMANTIC

It cost the town of Windham $159,578.94 to run its business during the fiscal year, according to the report of the board of selectmen issued for publication Saturday. The amount does not include $69,350 in borrowed money. The expenses last year were $166,807.71, in 1922, $99,953.64 and in 1921 they were $86,607.76. It is pointed out that the yearly increases are due to special appropriations for the building of the Windham Center school, the addition to the Natchaug Grammar school, the new horseshoe bridge over the Natchaug river at Lower village, the vault at the new Willimantic cemetery at The Ridges and World War Memorials. For the year ending Sept. 15, 19925 the official business report of the selectmen follows: Orders, 1923-1924: Borrowed money, current account, $69,350; highways $8,015.13; almshouse $8,-146.75, outside paupers, $8,124.78, expense, selectmen's office, $1,896.67, schools and school property $371.72, expenses town clerk's office $267; election expenses $1,453.49, assessing and collecting taxes $6,426.76, cemeteries $5,293.83, bridges $666.73, old town hall $54.98, insane and idiotic $6,743.51, state county and other taxes $12,293.63, miscellaneous $7,013.70, registrar of vital statistics $397.50, state roads $47.66, town building $3,-697.66, widows' pensions, $1,796.79, special appropriation Windham Center school $3,335.69 special appropriation Natchaug school addition $69,-184.16, special appropriation horse-shoe bridge $9,126.40, special appropriation vault in new cemetery $7,-243.67, memorial tablet special appropriation $3,191.75, attorney's fees and legal expenses $74.45. Total amount of orders, $269,928.94. Deduct borrowed money, $69,350. Total $159,578.94.

Last year there was an increase of nearly $1,700 in the cost of caring for the outside poor. This is laid to the industrial depression of the past two years. It is expected that one-half of the above amount will be reimbursed to the future. The Natchaug Grammar school addition representing a cost of $69,184.16 was the largest expense item. There was a decrease of approximately $20,000 in the county tax this year over the previous form. An additional sum of $20,000 is called for in the budget for the coming year. To meet an increase of $9,000 in the school appropriation, $4,000 oh highways and $2,000 for war memorials. The $4,000 asked for the highway department is to purchase a truck to do the work now performed by teams. $4,000 is asked for by the town school committee to conduct the schools, as compared with $155,000 last year. Other increases are in the expenses of the selectmen's office for $500, widows' pensions, appropriation for the town almshouse for painting the building and for the care of the Willimantic cemeteries. Mr. and Mrs. Hearge W. Chamberlain maintain their record of efficiency in their work at the town almshouse. The total amount of the budget for 1924-1925 is $269,928.

On treacherous Hampton Hill in Hampton, early Saturday morning, a touring party of Hartford residents escaped death as if by a miracle, after their Buick touring car had plunged from the highway and come to a stop at the foot of an embankment after bowling over twice in the air. Lack of knowledge of the route was given as the cause of the accident. In the machine were: Thomas Chilone, 171 Charles street; his aunt, Mrs. Jennie Dessario, 140 Maple avenue; her husband, Salvia Dessario; Mrs. Minnie Chilone, Thomas Chilone's mother; Mrs. Chilone's two infants and Misses Anna and Elizabeth Accard, friends of the party. The Capitol city people were traveling to Providence when they met with the accident at a bad turn at the top of the hill, following the course of many other automobiles which actually went or started to go down the embankment. The sharp curve took the driver, Thomas Chilone, by surprise and before he could apply his brakes the machine had left the road. Walter W. Jewett, a nearby resident and several employes of the state highway department working in that vicinity, assisted in removing the occupants and sent in a call to St. Joseph's hospital for an ambulance. Mrs. Dessario, was the most seriously hurt and was brought to the hospital here. The damage to the machine consisted of a demolished top, and smashed fenders and windshield. A wrecker from a Hartford garage hauled the car to that city later in the day. Mr. Chilone was painfully injured on the right leg and had abrasions about the body. The remaining members of the party were severely shaken up and bruised. Mrs. Dessario is suffering from a fractured right arm and an X-ray photograph is to be taken to determine its exact condition. WESTERLY

Complaint was made to Westerly police authorities Sunday by Mrs. Mary A. Graf of the Hotel Martin that the garage door in the rear of the hotel had been forced and a Buick sedan on which she had been making payments had been taken away without her knowledge some time after midnight Saturday night. On visiting the room in the hotel occupied by her daughter, Mary Martin, she also was found not there. The automobile, it is understood, was registered in the daughter's name, and she also had the operator's license. The daughter is said to have been given operating lessons by a man who was employed by a large contracting firm which did business in Westerly.

The can was tide to the electric car in Westerly Saturday night, figuratively and literally, and a number of Watch Hill chauffeurs and Bay street merchants had a hand in the matter. The last electric car from Watch Hill to Westerly was scheduled to arrive at 11.45 Saturday night and it seemed to the Watch Hill Jehus that it should not be the tame affair that characterized the last car from Pleasant View a week ago Sunday night, when there was not a solitary passenger, and plans were made accordingly. When electric car No. 26, in charge of G. Kinnear, motorman-conductor, arrived at Watch Hill, some forty gathered on Bay street, a bonfire was built, red and green fire burned and confetti and streamers put on the war when "taps" were sounded from a boat in the bay as the last of the last cars left the Hill in a riot of sound. As it realizing the long wait at Ninigret avenue that the kneeling bronze Indian at the fountain with the fish would have before the next car, one of the passengers threw a chair at the figure as the electric car whizzed by. Long strings of tin cans had been tied to the rear end of the electric car, so that when the Main street pavers were reached a Broad street pedestrian thought that the Washington Trust building was falling. Through each open window burning red and green sticks of fire were thrust and the traffic officer gave it a clear rail to the postoffice. Supt. W. Lester O'Brien had been called on the telephone to meet the car in the square and while on the car a beautiful plush case and Ingersol watch was presented him with the following inscription: "In grateful appreciation for your kindness in keeping a trolley running so late to the graveyard, which was formerly Watch Hill in June, so kindly accept this token from the boys left behind." Superintendent O'Brien said that he was overcome and offered to run the car back to Watch Hill with the chauffeurs, but they said they had planned to return in their usual manner—by automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Gavitt returned to their Beach street home on the "last car."

A fire alarm from Box 29, Ledward avenue, at the granite works, was sounded Saturday noon at 12.10 for a fire in the story and a half bungalow owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gourlay and son, 12 Tower street. The fire started on the second floor in a closet, supposedly from crossed wires, and its presence was detected when smoke was seen coming from beneath the roof. Alexander Passetti of the Granite street garage turned in the alarm. All three pieces of apparatus responded and when they arrived dense clouds of black smoke were issuing from the end windows, which were closed, and under the eaves to the roof. A ladder was raised, the window broken and a stream of water turned in from both end windows and the fire flooded out, but not before the upper floor interior had been badly burned. All the furniture from the lower rooms of the house was removed to the lawn and every room soaked with the flood of water which came down from the floor above, clouds of smoke filling the downstairs rooms as well. Mr. Gourlay, who was in the house, heard the crackling of the flames on the floor above just as the fire alarm was sounded. The loss and damage from fire and water are estimated at between $1,500 and $1,800.

Sunday noon at St. Sebastian's cemetery a memorial service was held for Alfonso Accolino, who lost his life in an automobile accident near Saundersstown. From the Calabrese society of Providence there came to Westerly on Sunday noon President Frank Rotella, Vice President Frank DeSantis, C. Librandi and D. Figiruzzi, who gathered with local members to carry out the ceremony. A medal was brought to the widow of Mr. Accolino, on one side of which was inscribed "Morlende Dilexit Di Providence" and on the other side "Societa Calabrese Di Providence." A framed set of resolutions was also given Mrs. Accolino by the Providence visitors.

Saturday evening about 8 o'clock a Dodge sedan, R. I. 68-232, operated by Mrs. Annie L. McMahon, turned into the driveway to the R. I. garage, brushing Mrs. James McKnight of 9 Noyes avenue, Pawcatuck. A parked automobile partially closed the driveway so that neither Mrs. McMahon or Mrs. McKnight, who was walking across the driveway toward Rhode Island hotel, was able to see each other. Frank Burdick of 22 Robinson street, who was near Mrs. McKnight, seeing her danger, pulled her back so that the passing automobile just bruised her knees. Police Officer Fred T. Mitchell, investigating the accident, advised that a doctor be consulted and Mrs. McKnight was taken to the office of Dr. M. H. Scanlon, where it was found that she had also bruises on her arm.

Mrs. R. J. Rooney sustained injuries Saturday night on Granite street, near the residence of James Maxwell, when knocked down by a bicycle ridden by Frank Greenwood. Maurice M. Flynn and William Ledward assisted in carrying Mrs. Rooney into the Maxwell house. A week later he withdrew his application and returned the license because the expense involved was too great. His application was granted because he appeared best fitted to operate over the route.

NATIONAL PRESIDENT GUEST OF WILLIMANTIC A. O. H.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Sept. 28.—A reception to National President Michael Donohue, of Philadelphia, was given Sunday evening at St. Joseph's hall, by Willimantic Division, A. O. H. The affair was attended by about 200 members and guests, including several visitors from other cities. President Donohue arrived in this city from Norwich where he had delivered an address in the afternoon. President Thomas O'Brien of the local division opened the meeting. America was sung by the audience with Mrs. D. R. Portelance at the piano and Miss L. Monica McKeon leading. State President John Donnelly of Bristol was introduced and took charge of the session. Rev. Charles M. Kelly on behalf of the pastor, Rev. John E. Clark, who was unable to be present due to illness, and parishioners of St. Joseph's church extended a welcome to the visitors and the guests of honor. MORNING FIRE LOSS OF $30,000 AT PEQUOT LAUNDRY, NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 28—The New London Steam Laundry on Pequot avenue was almost totally destroyed by fire that broke out at 5.30 this morning and which had such a start when discovered that the flames wiped out the interior of the wooden structure before they could be subdued. The blaze was discovered by a watchman of the establishment across the highway and he gave the alarm. The fire whistle called the department and soon after a general alarm was sounded. The laundry buildings covered a considerable space for they were two story structures that extended from the Pequot avenue highway nearly to the tracks of the New Haven railroad. As hot as the fire was, residents in the house just north, the old Barzilla Bill residence, did not realize the laundry was afire till the noise outside and the intense heat aroused them. The laundry was owned and operated by E. Frank Morgan, ex-mayor of this city. He purchased it some three years or more ago from Charles L. Ockford, ex-chief of the New London fire department. The laundry had been in existence a great many years and this is the first fire that ever occurred there. How this one originated is not apparent, but the building gives evidence that the flames broke out in the second floor at the southwest corner of the main structure. The structure received an addition recently and new, modern machinery was installed. The boiler room was not damaged, for the fire did not get to that portion of the plant. It raged in the section adjacent thereto and on the second floor of the buildings so that there is nothing left of the structure except the main walls of wood and the machinery that was in the building, the latter being damaged considerably. Mr. Morgan told The Bulletin's correspondent this morning that there was no fire in the place yesterday after the noon hour when he left there after seeing that all was secure for the interval the laundry would be idle—Saturday afternoon and Sunday. He returned to the laundry in the afternoon and was there until 6 p. m., when he left, after examining the place to see that all was secure. He is of the opinion that a spark from a locomotive of a passing train just west of the building may have caused the fire, but against that theory is the fact that a heavy fog prevailed at the hour the fire broke out and an easterly wind would have blown sparks away from instead of toward the building.

Mr. Morgan's loss will be something like $25,000 to $30,000. He had recently improved the plant by an addition to the building and he had installed machinery that was costly. The insurance on the property is understood to be $9,000. The plant was taken by the present owner when the business was small and had been built up to the biggest laundry business in the city. Mr. Morgan said he went into the business with the aid of friends and he expected to continue in it with the same aid.

John O'Neill, the keeper of a restaurant at 52 Bank street, which was the Jere Twomey saloon for many years, was fined $100 in the police court Saturday for selling beer that had an alcoholic content of more than one-half of one per cent. Two bottles were sold to police sergeants, Cavanaugh and Smith. They purchased it to test the alcoholic contents and O'Neill is said to have understood their purpose, when he sold the beer. The beer was sent to the Newlands laboratory at Hartford and there an analysis showed that one bottle contained beer that was composed of alcohol to the extent of .59 per cent, while the other bottle contained 1.47 per cent. of alcohol. O'Neill represented that he was an offender unconsciously against the prohibition law. He said the beer was represented to him to be what was known as near beer and it was in bottles the labels of which declared the beer to be non-intoxicating. Mr. O'Neill paid his fine and the costs attaching to his arrest and trial, the bill including $45 for testing the beer and getting it to Hartford.

The work of relaying sidewalks on the east side of Bank street between Howard and Division Streets, was finished at 9 o'clock saturday evening. Monday the work will commence south of Division street and be carried along to Shaw street. The opposite side of Bank street will be tackled next.

An interesting case is anticipated in the police court Monday, when Mrs. Catherine M. Edwards and Frank DiMaggio will appear as accusing each other of reckless operation of an automobile. Their machines were in collision on Montauk avenue Friday afternoon, when the Edwards machine was coming out of Darrow street at a rate that was a hot pace. This was evidenced by the fact that in the application of the brakes on the machine to check the speed it "burned" a rut in the road. Mr. DiMaggio was driving toward his home with his wife and a small child in his car. The Edwards car banged into him and drove his car up on the walk on the opposite side of the street, but did not injure any occupant of the car seriously. Mrs. Edwards was ordered to appear in court, she being a resident in the art colony at Old Lyme, but she failed to be there until after the court had adjourned. She alleged that she misunderstood the hour at which the court would convene. She was quite indignant when she went to the police station, and made the very broad statement that "no foreigner should be allowed to operate a car." Mr. Di Maggio came back with the declaration "if ever a woman was out of place it was when she was operating an automobile." So the case is apt to be one of interest to others than those directly concerned.

Vitterio Luzietti, 14, son of Joseph Luzietti, 63 Belmont street, New Britain, who ran away from home ten days ago, was located this morning on the farm of John Gentile, Midway, by the father of the youth and was returned to his home this afternoon. This morning the accused furnished a surety on her bond of $100 for her appearance in the police court Monday morning. The woman, it is alleged sought the company of George S. MacGarrah, a sailor attached to the U. S. S. Savannah, as the bluejacket loitered near the home of the woman. MacGarrah was held as a witness, but furnished a cash bond of $50 for his court appearance.

Joseph Connors, a roamer, was before Justice of the Peace William Shmiddy at Montville, Saturday morning, charged with attempted rape. Probable cause was found and the accused was held for trial at the next term of the superior court. In default of a surety on his bond of $1,000 Connors was remanded to the New London County jail to await trial. Connors, it is alleged, was in Montville the greater part of Friday and in passing the residence of William Parker, noticed Annie, the six year old daughter of Parker playing, seizing the child in his arms, Connors carried her to a secluded spot where, it is claimed, he attempted the assault. The child told the story of the attack to her mother a short time after being liberated by Connors, and the latter was taken into custody by State Police Officer Robert Honeyman, of the Groton barracks.

Joseph L. Wilson, familiarly known as "Soldier" Wilson and at one time a fighter before New London clubs, was arrested Saturday night on Bank street by Patrolmen Braxton Hill and John Foley charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct. In default of a surety on his bond of $100, Wilson was locked up pending trial in the police court Monday morning.

G. S. Avery, 66 School street, Groton, and W. W. Robertson, Eastern Point, parked their automobiles on Meridian street, between State and Church streets, Friday night and while they absented themselves the thieves stole a balloon tire from the rear of each of the cars.

The three story wooden structure, 81 Golden street, owned by the Ella O'Neill estate occupied on the ground floor by the Charles J. McPartland Plumbing company and on the upper floors as apartments was threatened with destruction by fire Saturday afternoon when a lively blaze was discovered in the cellar. The fire was confined to where it started, but a loss of $500 resulted.

Besides damage to the building a quantity of porcelain plumbing fixtures were damaged.

It is understood that William T. May is likely to be the democratic candidate for senator in the New London-Groton district, at the election in November. It has been suggested that Curtis Morgan, a New London lawyer, had the nomination sewed up, but the democratic leaders will not agree that he should be the candidate. Indeed, they say, they were unaware that he was enrolled in the democratic party or that he ever acted with it until now.

Patrolman Charles P. Hammond was relieved from duty, Saturday night, by Lieut. Benjamin Beebe and charges will be made to City Manager William A. Holt that the officer reported on duty while under the influence of liquor. Patrolman Hammond will have an opportunity of a hearing.

Hammond, five years ago, was made detective sergeant because of his ability in running down criminals and his general knowledge of police work. His ability was recognized by the number of important arrests he made and the large number of convictions of his prisoners in the superior court. About three years ago he was reduced to sergeant following charges of drinking while on duty and again he was suspended for a like offense. About a year ago he was reduced in rank, being made a patrolman following the same charges and about six months ago he was suspended for drinking while on duty.

Saturday night Hammond reported for duty at the police station seven minutes prior to the hour for starting duty and following roll call by Sergeant Samuel Hick. Immediately following his entrance to the police station Sergeant Hick reported Hammond's alleged condition to Lieut. Beebe and then ordered Hammond to remain off his beat in the Post Hill section and north end of the city.

It is understood that Hammond declares that he was in condition to perform duty and that he has engaged counsel to fight any attempt to remove him.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Contributing to the usual happenings of a Saturday night in this territory, George Breton of Moosup drove his motor car into the left rear quarter of a horse owned by George H. Kimball of the Wood's Mill farm in Brooklyn, on the West Side, shortly after 9 a. m., and the horse was so badly injured that it afterwards had to be shot by State Officer Arthur W. Williams, who investigated the accident.

Harvey C. Kimball, son of the owners of the [illegible] and Hosea Hopkins, Jr., also of Brooklyn, were riding in the vehicle the horse was drawing when he was bumped over and they were pitched out as the vehicle crumbled under the impact of the car, but neither was seriously hurt.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is to hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. George Eaton, Riverside, at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, a week early on account of the state convention.

As usual, many people who do not read the newspapers—and do not believe them if they do—were not present when the trains or trolleys they hoped to take pulled out of Danielson Monday. And as to that, the time has arrived when most people have stopped worrying about the other fellow. As a general rule it doesn't pay any dividends. Anyway, everything is now on standard time now.

It may be the expense attached and it may be the season, but, in any event Sunday's traffic dropped off tremendously from what it was during the height of the summer season.

Mrs. Mary Gartland of Mechanic street is spending a time visiting relatives in New York.

This is the intensive week of Killingly's political campaign. The voting comes a week from today. The chief battle in the campaign centers on the election of selectmen. Otherwise, the election will be of small general interest.

Mrs. Elizabeth Manion of Pittsfield has been visiting relatives here for a few days.

Numbers of Danielson people motored to Roger Williams park in Providence Sunday to hear the concert given by Sousa's band.

It might be assumed that something has dampened the ardor of Killingly's democracy. There's no Davis club in Killingly, though other towns hereabouts have organized and are boosting the gentleman from West Virginia—or is it New York?

Officer John Gebert went on night duty in Danielson Sunday, succeeding Officer Christopher Andrews, who has resigned.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bassett of Broad street were guests of relatives in East Douglas over the week end.

Gorgeous are the tints of fall with which nature's artistry is now clothing the foliage in this territory. Here in this beauty spot of southern New England there is delight this week for those who love to view nature in one of her most magnificent moods.

Little less than amazing is the amount of laborious work being done on Sunday in all the territory hereabouts. On any Sabbath one may observe all kinds of heavy farm work under way, carpentering, excavating and a score of other activities. All of this is contrary to law, but one hears not a peep about it. Probably because it is so popular nowadays to hunt other varieties of bear. For hundreds hereabouts, Sunday has become a day of work—be the excuse what it may.

Saturday at the Skivington farm in the Mashentuck district of Killingly, an auction sale was conducted by Witter Brothers. Martin Skivington, for many years resident in that territory, has sold his farm and is to come to Danielson with his daughter, Miss Annie Skivington, to spend the winter.

George Owen Geer, son of Mrs. C. D. Geer has left for New Haven where he has entered Yale University.

The democrats of Ledyard recently met and placed in nomination the following town ticket to be voted for on the first Monday in October:

The word "earth" springs from the Latin "terra," meaning the earth, one of the eight major planets and the third in order of distance from the sun.

PUTNAM

In the city court, Saturday morning, Albert Hazen, accused of abuse of a minor female child, asked for a continuance until this (Monday) morning. Bonds were fixed at $2,000 and he remained locked up at the police station during the day. Hazel, who is over fifty, lives alone in a small tenement on School street. He is a blacksmith and has a shop on Canal street. He has lived in Putnam many years and is widely known in Windham county as a horseman, and in the past he has trained and driven race horses at local fairs.

Arthur Cordier pleaded guilty to being found drunk and to being a common drunkard. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail on the first count and to 60 days on the second count. Cordier has been before the court a number of times. He was presented two months ago and took an appeal to the superior court from a sentence of 90 days. At the recent criminal session of the superior court his case was continued until the next session, so that the old case is still hanging over him.

Although the merchants of the business section of the city have voted to discontinue the weekly half holiday except during July, August and September the merchants of the north end of the city have signed an agreement to maintain the weekly half holiday in that section of the city. This agreement includes all but one of the butchers and grocers of that part of the city known as Rhodesville. The situation in this end of the city which almost wholly serves a mill employe population is much different from the general business section. The stores nearly all deal in food products and what business is done through order teams is mostly done nights, after the mills close. Few transients are served in these stores and the regular trade can easily buy provisions Thursday morning.

The petition to continue the half holiday in the north end was circulated by Alferie Jarvis who conducts a grocery store. The signers were: Alferie Jarvis, A. E. Farley, Omer Durand, Beausoleil Bros., E. Durand, A. J. Faucher, A. J. Benoit, Oscar Dugas, P. M. LeClair Sons Co., A. Weiss, K. Bruuk, Estate of Joseph LaPalme, The Economy Grocery and the City Fruit & Produce company.

No assignments have been made for the present week in the Windham county superior court, but the week of October 6th there will be some civil cases tried in Putnam. Local interest centers in the case of Lea Smith vs. William J. Jarvis et als, assigned for October 9th.

This case is another angle of the raid on the City Hotel and the search of the automobile of Samuel Smith, proprietor of the hotel, for liquor early last spring. In the automobile searched by the officers were Mrs. Lea Smith, wife of Samuel Smith, two daughters, and Miss Celia Aframe.

The plaintiff brings her action against Captain William Jarvis of the Putnam police force, Sergeant George Larid and Patrolmen Alferie Sponsey and John Ryan, alleging false iprisonment in that they were taken to the Putnam police station and detained against their wills after the automobile had been searched and no liquor found. Attorney I. H. Miron is counsel for the plaintiff while the defendants' interests will be handled by Attorney J. F. Carpenter, former prosecuting attorney of Putnam, and Attorney William A. King of Willimantic.

Another case that has stood on the docket for two years is that of Roderick Miller vs. E. C. Rogers, proprietor of the Putnam Inn. An automobile was purchased from Rogers, according to the allegations, and later proved to be a stolen car. It passed through several hands. The matter has been adjusted as far as all are concerned except the original seller and buyer, Rogers and Miller. The car was adjudged to have been a stolen car by the superior court when taken from the possession of Adelard Mouir by the insurance company that had paid a loss on it.

Those closely interested in the business affairs of Putnam are beginning to show a feeling of optimism. It is believed that Putnam has safely weathered the worst storm of depression in its history, beginning with the closing of the Manhasset mill over a year ago, followed by the closing of all the cotton mills in the city and the dismantling of the various factory buildings of two of the largest of these. This was the forerunner of the storm of depression that broke and became hardest when, with hundreds of people thrown out of employment, the First National Bank suddenly closed its doors because Putnam's leading citizen had betrayed his trust. It was a staggering blow to this city and followed several other minor but still vital blows to the economic life of Putnam.

But the storm is clearing. The citizens are exclaiming "The old bank is dead. Long live the new bank!" and the citizens' committee is making progress toward the organization of the new Citizens National Bank for which, during the near-panic in the city, $200,000 was subscribed for shares.

At the same time that the rehabilitation of the banking institution is going forward comes the welcome knowledge that the wage earners are to be given their chance for employment in the line of endeavor in which they are proficient. This comes in the announcement of two new manufacturing concerns locating here. One concern is already operating in a small way and increasing in volume every week.

While this development is progressing another mill is being put in readiness to house another manufacturing concern, which will begin operations soon. Thus three factory buildings, closed and dismantled for a year or more, will again be in operation giving employment to several hundred operatives and disbursing, through its employes, weekly payrolls among the mercantile houses of the city.

There are other mills empty and ready to receive new occupants. The properties are valuable ones and are equipped with water power. They can not long remain idle.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in Putnam during the depressed period in business blocks. Old woden structures have been torn down to give place to modern brick structures. Stores and offices thereby provided are for the most part filled with tenants. These included two beautiful bank buildings. In Union Square, now under construction, is what, when completed, one of the most modern hotels in New England and the largest and best equipped hotel between Boston and Hartford. This is the Putnam Inn, which is being made into a four-story hotel with an attractive exterior and interior and elevator service. E. C. Rogers, proprietor of the inn, is backing his confidence in the future of Putnam by the expenditure of thousands of dollars in giving the city a fine hotel.

Putnam will enter the new month Wednesday in a more optimistic and cheerful spirit than has been evidenced for over a twelve month. The new year, it is confidently believed, will see conditions approaching normal and, possibly even beyond the expectations of the most hopeful of the citizens.

The four classes of Tourtellotte Memorial High school, North Grosvenordale, have elected officers as follows: Senior class—President, James Kenney; vice president, Olive Baker; secretary, Bernice Welch; treasurer, Margaretta Hainsworth. Junior class—President, Louis Smith; vice president, Lawson Robbins; secretary, Minnie Towne; treasurer, Theresa O'Brien. Sophomore class—President, Daniel Chubbuck; vice president, Francis Reardon; secretary, Irene Johnson; treasurer, Isabelle Beauregard. Freshman class—President, Elmer Russ; vice president, Lenois Evans; secretary, Margaret Sanger; treasurer, Sharaf Condof.

The fire company, American Legion Post, K. of C., and other organizations in North Grosvenordale are planning to organize a bowling league of six or eight teams to compete during the winter months.

Mrs. Ida Miller of Dayville is in a serious condition at the Day Kimball hospital following a shock sustained shortly after she had visited a doctor's office on South Main street, this city, Friday evening. The woman was found lying on the sidewalk by Sergeant of Police George Laird, who removed her to the police station and called a doctor. The physician ordered her removal to the hospital where her identity was discovered and relatives were notified.

N. T. White, a prominent citizen of East Woodstock, is critically ill with pneumonia at the Day Kimball hospital.

A mud guard on an automobile truck was bent when the truck, driven by Rudolph Lavigne of West Woodstock, hit a large buck deer. The deer rushed across the highway in front of the machine. After being hit by the mud guard it disappeared.

Putnam clocks did not have to be set back an hour for they had not been set ahead. This city maintained eastern standard time throughout the summer months.

This (Monday) morning, however, a good number of Putnam people whose business is governed by train service got an extra hour of welcome sleep as the train service had been changed back to meet the return to Standard time.

Mrs. W. J. Bartlett will entertain the Putnam League of Women Voters and the W. C. T. U., Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Julia M. Hicks of Hartford will speak on the fall elections. Miss Jennie Willis and Miss Rosamond Danielson will assist the hostess.

Putnam people attended the dedication of the Knowlton Memorial building at Warrenville, town of Ashford, Saturday afternoon and evening.

The last public rally under the auspices of the Putnam Woman's Coolidge Club will be held in Odd Fellows hall, Thursday evening, Oct. 9. This was determined at a business meeting of the club held at the community rooms in the Putnam Savings Bank, Friday evening. The speakers for the rally have not been secured. There will be music and singing of the campaign songs written by a Putnam woman.

Mr. and Mrs. Jules Cordier and daughter, Mrs. Joseph Jendrahu, have gone to Syracuse, N. Y., to visit Mr. Cordier's relatives, making the trip in Mr. Cordier's automobile, driven by Robert Mally.

It was stated at the Day Kimball hospital, Saturday, that Thomas Ellis, injured in Friday afternoon's automobile accident in which Joseph Caisse of Putnam was killed, was resting comfortably and that no internal injuries had developed. Ellis' right arm and hand are in very bad shape. There is a multiple fracture of the arm and the hand is badly lacerated.

Joseph Miller, driver of the car, who was held at the Putnam police station following the accident, was released under his own recognizance, on orders of Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Danielson.

The body of the dead man was removed to Putnam Friday evening by a local undertaker and taken to the home of his parents on Woodstock avenue.

Frank Schoolmaker's Rambling Four orchestra played in Ledyard Saturday night. Many from the village attended the dance.

A football team in the village is being talked of by the young men playing the game. Williams field could be put in good form for such sport.

H. M. Frazier, representing the Thames River line of steamboats, with a daily run from Norwich to New York, was in the borough Friday visiting mrechants. This line will help the borough merchants, as a truck is to come here daily to take and leave freight. Alexander P. POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

THE WIND IN A FROLIC

The wind one morning sprang up from sleep,
Saying, "Now for a frolic! Now for a leap!
Now for a madcap galloping chase!
I'll make a commotion in every place!"
So it swept with a bustle right through a great town,
Creaking the signs and scattering down
Shutters, and whisking, with merciless squalls,
Old women's bonnets and gingerbread stalls.
There never was heard a much lustier shout
As the apples and oranges tumbled about;
And the urchins that stand with their thievish eye
Forever on watch, ran of, each with a prize.

Then away to the fields it went, blustering and humming,
And the cattle all wondered whatever was coming.
It plucked by their tails the grave, matronly cows,
And tossed the colts' manes all about their brows.
'Till, offended at such a familiar salute,
They all turned their backs and stood silently mute.
So on it went, capering and playing its pranks;
Whistling with reeds on the broad river banks;
Puffffing the birds, as they sat on the spray,
Or the traveler grave on the King's highway.
It was not too nice to bustle the bags
Of the beggar and flutter his dirty rags,
'Twas so bold that feared not to play its joke
With the doctor's wig, and the gentlemen's cloak.
Through the forest it roared, and cried gayly, "Now,
You sturdy old oaks, I'll make you bow!"
And it made them bow without much ado,
Or it cracked their great branches through and through.
Then it rushed like a monster o'er cottage and farm,
Striking the inmates wth sudden alarm;
And they ran out like bees, in a mid-summer swarm.
There were dames with their 'kerchiefs tied over their caps,
To see if their poultry were free from mishaps;
The turkeys they gobbled, the geese screamed aloud,
And the hens crept to roost in a terrified crowd;
There was rearing of ladders, and hogs laying on,
Where the thatch from the roof threatened soon to be gone.
But the wind had panted and struggled in vain,
For it tossed him and twirled him, then passed, and he stood
With his hat in a pool, and his shoe in the mud.

—William Howitt.

TODAY

So here hath been dawning
Another new day;
Think, wilt thou let it
Slip useless away?

Out of eternity
This new day is born;
Into eternity,
At night, will return.

Behild it aforetime
No eye ever did:
So soon it forever
From all eyes is hid.

Here hath been dawning
Another new day:
Think Think, wilt thou let it
Slip useless away?

—Thomas Carlyle.

THE CRY OF THE HILLBORN

I am homesick for the mountains—
My heroic mother hills—
And the longing that is on me
No solace ever stills.

I would climb the brooding summits
With their old untarnished dreams,
Cool my heart in forest shadows
To the lull of falling streams.

Hear the innocense of aspens
That babble in the breeze
And the fragrant sudden showers
That patter on the trees.

I am lonely for my thrushes
In their hermitage withdrawn,
Toning the quiet transports
Of twilight and of dawn.

I need the pure, strong mornings,
When the soul of day is still,
With the touch of frost that kindles
The scarlet on the hill:

Long trails and winding woodlands
To outlooks wild and high,
And the pale moon waiting sundown
Where ledges cut the sky.

I dream of upland learings
Where cones of sumas burn,
And gaunt and gray-mossed boulders
Lie deep in beds of fern:

The gray and mottled beeches,
The birches' satin sheen,
The majesty of hemlocks
Crowning the blue ravine.

My eyes dim for the skyline
Where purple peaks aspire,
And the forges of the sunset
Flare up in golden fire.

There crests look down unheeding
And see the great winds blow,
Tossing the huddled tree-tops
In gorges far below.

Where cloud mists from the warm earth
Roll up about their knees
And hang their filmy tatters
Like prayers upon the trees.

I cry for night-blue shadows
On plain and hill and dome,—
The spell of old enchantments.
The sorcery of home.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

The proper care of the teeth is one of the important things that every boy and girl should know. When it comes to caring for our teeth the trouble with most of us is that we are careless. We know our teeth should be looked after every day, that we should clean them and keep them free of food particles but we find it easy to forget and the first thing we know we have a toothache. A toothache is very disagreeable and is responsible for many an unhappy day.

All toothaches are due to decay and the exposing of the "nerve." Decay is caused by some kinds of food, chiefly the starchy and sugary foods, remaining in contact with the teeth. Decay starts on the outside of the tooth and works its way into the tooth practically leaving a hole, called a cavity. When the process of decay reaches the "nerve" then the tooth begins to jump and ache. Unless a decaying tooth is promptly attended to the whole tooth will decay. Bad teeth will, in time, injure a person's health and cause indigestion.

It is very important to remove the particles of food that cling to the teeth after meals. The mouth should be rinsed with water and tooth brush and tooth powder or paste should be put to work. Look after your teeth Wide Awakes and you will save yourself many an unpleasant visit to the dentist.

My Summer Vacation

Dear Uncle Jed: One Saturday morning we left Norwich at five o'clock for New York state. We went through Danbury, Middletown and Beacon where we crossed the Hudson river on a ferryboat to Newburgh. Stopped in Newburgh for dinner. After dinner we went to Cornwall. We got in there at 1 p. m. I had a very nice time while I was there. I went to New York on a steamboat named the Alexander Hamilton. I stayed in New Rochelle and New York city for a few days. When I came back I came to Newburg on a steamboat named the Albany. Another time I went to Albany on a steamboat named the Hendrick Hudson. From Albany I went to Troy and then to Greenwich, New York where we visited on a farm.
